WEDDING BELLS

PETRIE—ANDERSON.

A quiet wedding was solemnized last night at 7.30 o'clock at the residence of the Rev. Hendry J. Keith, B.D., of Annie Anderson to William Petrie, both late of Dundee, Scotland. They will reside in Peterborough.

DUFFY—CROWLEY

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Luke's Church, Cowneyville, on June 23rd, 1913, when Miss Stella Crowley was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Leonard Duffy of Peterborough.

After the ceremony the young couple motored to the home of the bride's parents, where a sumptuous dinner was partaken of.

Mr. and Mrs. Duffy were the recipients of many beautiful and costly presents which showed the esteem in which they were held.

Many friends join in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Duffy a long and happy life.

Mr. and Mrs. Duffy wil be at home to their friends in Peterborough after July 1st, at 344 Simcoe street.

OBITUARY

J. J. ENGLISH.

The death occurred at ten o'clock this morning of Mr. John James English, Hunter Street, after an illness of six years. The deceased was forty-three years of age and up to a few years ago resided in Omemee. Four years ago he came to Peterborough, where he has since resided with his parents on Hunter Street. He was born in Omemee and was a member of the 45th Regiment (Headquarters Lindsay.) As a member of the Canadian Militia he received a long service medal. He was a member of the Anglican Church.

The late Mr. English is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel English of Peterborough, and several uncles and aunts who resided in the west and in the States, and who, it is feared, will not be able to reach the City in time for the funeral. The funeral will be held on Thursday morning from the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel English, Hunter Street to the G.T.R. station, whence the remains will be taken to Omemee for interment.

Funeral of the Late Mrs. Sutcliffe

The funeral of the late Mrs. Sutcliffe, who passed away on Sunday, was held this afternoon from the family residence, 200 Edinburgh street, to the Little Lake Cemetery. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. R. G. Peever, of the George Street Methodist church, and the number present testified to the esteem in which she was held.

Stock Markets

A. H. Stratton & Co., Brokers, report the following:

NEW YORK, July 7.—Summary.—Warburg may quit the race for the reserve board on account of confirmation fight in Senate.

State Supt of Banks Richards urges state land bank law.

House of Lords passed the Home Rule amending bill on second reading.

Wabash Receiver reports ten months operations show deficit of $1,500,000.

French loan to be offered at 91 this morning, rate of interest to be 3½ per cent.

NEW YORK, July 6—The Stock Market was fairly strong, making new high prices on the advance which started Thursday, a week ago.

I should not be surprised if they sag back again a point or two, in which case they will no doubt prove again a purchase.

It might be advisable, if you bought stocks last Tuesday, to take profits on half your line, particularly U. S. Steel, ACP, SP, and RDG, with a view of buying them back on a subsequent setback.

You might also go short of a little LV, around 137, with a view of making 2 or 3 points.

I do not look for any important decline until the general list has made the high prices I predicted already two months ago, when stocks were 5 to 10 points lower and a traders' market is all I look for, for a few days longer, unless the rate decision should come out this week.

I still think, as I said all along, that it will come out some time Tuesday afternoon, after the close of the market and it will no doubt be favourable.

If the market should have a setback of a point or two to-morrow, which is possible, stocks should prove a purchase either at the close or Wednesday morning.

I am sure that we will have such a setback to-morrow but if it does come don't sell any stocks after they are down.

NEW YORK, July 7.—Stocks eased off a little after opening, but recession did not bring any increase of supply and there seemed to be good buying order on a scale down. At the end of the first hour trading was quiet with prices at about opening level.

The interview with James Speyer, head of the banking house of Speyer and Co., obtained by Dow, Jones and Co., attracted a good deal of attention. Mr. Speyer expressed himself with greater confidence than has been shown any other important financier of late.

FIVE ARE INJURED.

One May Die as Result of Upset of Automobile.

WINDSOR, Ont., July 8.—Mrs. Arthur Ludlam, wife of a lumber dealer in Leamington, is dying as the result of injuries received when an automobile driven by her husband, and containing three other persons, turned turtle in a ditch on the Comber side road a few miles from Leamington. Slight hopes are held out for her recovery.

Mr. Ludlam received injuries that rendered him unconscious for four hours. The others in the party were badly bruised and cut.

Mr. Ainslie and the Misses Medd are badly cut and bruised.

The auto in which they were riding turned turtle in the road, pinning the five passengers beneath it. People living in the vicinity rushed to their assistance.

The car was coming from Leamington, and contained Mr. and Mrs. Ludlam, Mr. J. D. Ainslie, and the two daughters of Rev. Dr. Medd of Essex. The machine was being driven slowly by Mr. Ludlam, when it suddenly started toward the deep ditch on the side of the road. He turned the car quickly to avoid going into the ditch, and doing so caused it to tip over. All were pinned underneath the car.

St. Lawrence River Mystery.

QUEBEC, July 8. — Boatmen of Quebec yesterday found a body floating in the St. Lawrence. The body was that of a man and carried one large and two small wounds.

A WEAK CHESTED BOY

"My boy Frank seemed weak-chested and took a very severe cold," writes Mrs. D. Sherwin, Ningo, Man. "The many medicines used did not seem to benefit him, until we tried Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and found it to be exactly what was wanted to cure him." No treatment is so thorough and effective as a cure for croup and bronchitis.

DIVISION IS CLOSE

Asquith's Majority Cut to 23 on His Own Motion

ULS SUPPORTERS RESENTFUL

LONDON, July 8.—What is admitted by Government supporters to be a crisis developed in the Commons yesterday, when the Premier's motion alloting time for the remaining stages of the finance bill carried by the reduced majority of 23 votes. There were 20 Liberal abstentions on the main division, but subsequently the Government's majority rose to 124.

In the House of Lords the Government suffered defeat on the India Council bill. On motion of Lord Curzon, former viceroy, it was rejected by 96 votes to 38.

The Liberal Daily News lobby correspondent says the Premier and the rest of the Cabinet must keep in closer touch with their supporters, or the Liberal party and all the causes it stands for may one o' those days be wrecked before the harvest be reaped.

The News' correspondent says further, regarding the smallness of the majority in the Commons, that a number of Liberal members abstained from voting, as did several others who have a quarrel with the Government over its attitude regarding the Ulster gun-running episode.

Another cause for resentment among the Liberals was the fact that no intimation was given them on Friday that the House would adjourn on Monday as a tribute to the late Joseph Chamberlain.

HUGE REALTY DEAL.

Duke of Bedford Sells Another Parcel of London Property.

LONDON, July 8. — Another huge real estate transaction, in which the Duke of Bedford is again the vendor, has occurred in London with the purchase by Sir Joseph Beecham of an estate in the heart of the metropolis.

about $10,000,000. The purchase of this parcel which includes the Covent Garden Opera House, was effected this week and is said to be the biggest land deal in the history of London. A deposit of $1,250,000 has already been paid to the Duke of Bedford.

Health of Mr. Foy Improves.

TORONTO, July 8.—The health of Hon. J. J. Foy is on the mend. Word from his home last night was to the effect that he is much better and that within a few days he will be in a position to resume his duties at the Attorney-General's desk.

Mr. Foy had not been feeling very vigorous for some weeks prior to the election, and it is thought that the strain may have been heavy on him. Deputy J. R. Cartwright is in charge during his absence.

Sarnia Lad Drowned.

SARNIA, July 8.—Getting beyond his depth, Carl Cooper, 11 years of age, of this city, was drowned at two o'clock yesterday afternoon in "Cut-off Drain" where it crosses the river road on the Sarnia Indian Reserve. The body was recovered in 15 minutes, and had the city a pulmotor, it is believed that the child's life might have been saved. No inquest will be held.

Empress Judgment Saturday.

MONTREAL, July 8. — The judgment of the Dominion commission which enquired into the wreck of the Empress of Ireland will be delivered on Saturday morning at 10.30, according to advices which have reached here from Quebec, where the investigation was held and where the commissioners have been considering the evidence.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The British steamer Croydon, from Philadelphia, March 8, for Guayaquil, reported ashore at Barbuda, has been abandoned after the jettison of over 1,000 tons of cargo.

J. Millidge and John Hines, two Brandon men who went adrift in a small boat on Lake Manitoba Sunday, arrived at Oak Point, Man., yesterday morning safely.

Frank Carley and Arthur Gray, who drive taxicabs in Brockville, received a bad scare when leaving the garage. Three revolver shots were fired quite closely to them. The police are investigating.

The body of the woman wearing jewelry that was recovered from the Empress' wreck Saturday was identified yesterday as that of Mrs. Frances E. Boynton, of St. Thomas, Ont. Her husband identified her.

The official count of returns for Cochrane establishes Malcolm Lang, Liberal, leading over R. A. Douglas, Conservative, by 17 votes. Further arrests in Porcupine for alleged offences have taken place.

Emanuel Bernhardt, who was seriously mangled in the mill of the Ontario Paper Co. at Thoroid Monday, died yesterday at the St. Catharines General and Marine Hospital without having regained consciousness.

The death occurred in Brockville yesterday of Mrs. John Steen, aged 89, at the home of her niece, Mrs. G. Graham. Mrs. Steen after emigrating from Ireland settled in Guelph, where she lived until the death of her husband.

A thief who climbed to a porch at the home of John Walker, of Kingston, to get into a window, was frightened off by two little children. They were sleeping outside, and when the burglar reached the porch they screamed and the man ran off.

Student Drowned In Lake.

HAILEYBURY, July 8.— Edgar Spearman, the 21-year-old brother of Charles Spearman, mining engineer of Haileybury, was drowned Monday afternoon in Kirkland Lake. He went bathing along with his friend, R. K. Canochan. When Canochan was away out in the lake, Spearman, who could swim only a little, got into difficulties. Canochan hurried to his aid, but the rescuer's life was endangered owing to Spearman frantically holding on to him. Canochan reached shore in an exhausted condition and Spearman disappeared from view.

Royal Bank Clerk Arrested.

NEW YORK, July 8. — Jose Antiono Bolano, until recently assistant teller in the Havana, Cuba, branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, was arrested last night upon the arrival here of the steamship Saratoga, from Havana. He was locked up in the Tombs on a charge of embezzling $3,-300 of the funds of the branch. Bolano is 24 years old and lived formerly in Boston.

SEWER GAS FATAL

FIREMAN ALSO OVERCOME

TORONTO, July 8—Robert Strathearn, a city engineer, boarding at 100 Grace street, met death in the huge trunk sewer on the south side of Argyle street, opposite No. 114, at four o'clock yesterday afternoon when he was overcome by gas fumes after he had penetrated 250 feet towards Dundas street in the piping. Strathearn drowned in the eighteen eighteen inches of water in the bottom of the sewer in spite of the heroic efforts of George Mullen, Argyle street, and Douglas Seaton, 9 Hambly avenue, two fellow workmen, and of Captain William Davidson and Samuel Johnston, of Portland street fire hall, each of whom was at one time or another rendered unconscious by the deadly fumes pervading the hole. Lieut. Johnston finally dragged Strathearn to within a short distance of the entrance, falling unconscious just as he completed his heroic task.

Twenty feet underground lay the big sewer, and Strathearn descended where the workmen were excavating a manhole. The workmen on the job realized the danger of Strathearn's venture into the sewer, as the deadly gas fumes issued in volumes from the mouth of the pipe, and could easily be smelled at the surface. Mullen and Seaton posted at the bottom of the excavation at the mouth of the sewer to render assistance in case of need. To these men Strathearn said when he entered the pipe: "Now if you hear me shout, come after me as fast as you can." Then he walked into the pitch darkness of the sewer and the waiting men heard him splashing along in the water for nearly five minutes. Suddenly all sounds ceased from within, and one of the men shouted to him, but received no reply.

A young fireman volunteered for the trip, but when the gear was adjusted was so visibly nervous that the doctor who was present prohibited him making the descent. Lieut. Samuel Johnston then volunteered and with nearly three hundred feet of rope attached to him, descended to the mouth of the sewer. For nearly five minutes after the lieutenant disappeared in the death trap the rope continued to play out in the hands of the firemen at the surface, and it was feared that even yet insufficient rope was on hand. Finally the signal to pull was felt and the men kept the rope taut while Johnston made the return journey. All went well till within six feet of the entrance, when the men knew by the dead weight on the rope that Johnston, too, had succumbed to the fumes. The unconscious lieutenant was pulled to the surface, and another fireman penetrated the sewer ten feet and found Strathearn there. Johnston had clung to him even while walking in semi-unconscious condition, and dragged him over 200 feet through eighteen inches of water in the death trap.

Those at the surface at first thought Johnston was dead, but after a few minutes he revived under the influence of the pulmotor. The man he had risked his life to save was dead. It was 50 minutes from the time Strathearn entered the sewer till Johnston dragged him almost to the sewer entrance.

Opposed To President's Trip.

PARIS, July 8.—The extreme Socialists in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday voted in a solid body against an appropriation of $8,000 to cover the expenses of President Poincare's approaching visit to the Emperor of Russia. In spite of this, however, the appropriation was adopted by 428 against 106, as all the other parties in the Chamber united to support it.

Jean Jaures, the Socialist leader, said the French Socialists were not opposed to the alliance between France and Russia, but considered the long and expensive visits of President Poincare overdone. Besides, he added, the Russian Duma no longer had any influence on Russian policy, which was now a policy of reaction.

Great Military Activity Shown.

PARIS, July 8. — A despatch to The Temps from Belgrade, Servia, says extraordinary military activity is being displayed in Austria-Hungary. It says 40 carloads of artillery are known to have left Budapest for the frontier, and feverish energy is being shown along the whole northern border of Servia.

Southampton Railway Probe Reveals Graft Methods

ANOTHER SCANDAL IN N. B.

FREDERICTON, N.B., July 8.—The inquiry into the cost of the Southampton Railway opened yesterday morning in the York County Court House, with Mr. Pringle presiding, T. J. Carter, K.C., M.P.P., appearing for the Railway Department; C. D. Richards for the railway company, and M. G. Teed for J. K. Pinder, M.P.P., president of the company, who also was in court.

The investigation is the result of charges made in the House of Commons by F. B. Carvell, M.P., that the report of the Federal engineer, upon which the railway secured a double subsidy of $6,400 a mile, was inaccurate.

As a result the inspecting engineer was suspended, and R. A. Pringle, K.C., of Ottawa, was appointed as a royal commission to investigate the cost of the road.

Testimony was given by David W. Brown, engineer in charge of construction for a period; D. G. Kilburn, who succeeded E. V. Johnson as government engineer; James Cunningham, concrete contractor, and William and Robert McDonald, construction contractors.

A dramatic feature of the investigation occurred when the commissioner forced a witness to admit that his receipted account was made up for $1,000 more than he received after the investigation had been ordered. With unconcealed indignation the commissioner showed the witness what he thought of the proceeding and drove him from the stand.

Some of the discrepancies uncovered were found in the accounts of James Cunningham, who testified that he received $3,101 and gave a receipted bill for $4,040, and whose work is included in the inspecting engineer's report as costing $7,440.

MEETS "DEAD" UNCLE.

John Krinklaw Puts End To Twenty Years of Mourning.

LONDON, Ont., July 8.—A strange story is in circulation here. John Krinklaw, who has just returned from the west to visit friends in Lambeth Village, near here, on entraining at Moose Jaw, it is reported, fell into conversation with one John Rogers, an uncle, who, following an illness at Victoria Hospital, this city, was supposed to have been buried in a Westminster Township Cemetery in 1894.

The solution put forward is that a stranger in the same ward of the hospital with Mr. Rogers died and was buried as Rogers without the casket being opened, the hospital staff getting the names mixed. Mr. Rogers recovered, it is believed, and went west. The man, according to Krinklaw's story, is now living in Moose Jaw, and is 80 years of age. A tombstone has been over his supposed grave in Westminster Township for the past twenty years. Relatives have instituted an investigation and are writing to the man whose death they have mourned.

No Liberal Will Run.

LONDON, July 8.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Political activities will begin at once in West Birmingham and East Worcestershire. Mr. Austen Chamberlain, released from East Worcestershire, will seek to represent his father's old constituency. The Liberals will take no part in the contest, leaving the Socialists to oppose Mr. Chamberlain if they decide to fight.

Both sides are ready in East Worcestershire. Mr. Wilfrid Hill will champion the Liberal cause. He lives in the division, having already addressed meetings in a large number of places. Mr. Leverton Harris, Unionist candidate, is quite unknown. He was recommended for the seat by Mr. Austen Chamberlain, after an attempt to entice Lord Windsor for Wolverhampton.

Sentence Is Upheld.

NEW YORK, July 8.—The sentence imposed upon Upton Sinclair last April on a charge of disorderly conduct for attempting publicity to rebuke John D. Rockefeller for his attitude in the Colorado strike situation, was yesterday confirmed in the Court of General Sessions. When given the alternative in the magistrate's court of paying a fine of five dollars or serving three days in the Tombs, Sinclair chose the latter, and began a hunger strike. He served two days of his sentence, then his wife paid the remainder of the fine.

Brantford Will Own Cars Shed.

BRANTFORD, July 8.—By August 1 the Brantford Street Railway will belong to the city. The contract is signed between the city and the Grand Valley bondholders, and all that is keeping the actual transfer from going through is the fact that the work of checking up the title deeds to the property and the right of way is not yet completed. Yesterday afternoon the railway committee went over 200 applications for the management.

BEYOND HIS CONTROL.

Sixty-Fifth Had Right To Carry Private Guns Says Hughes.

OTTAWA, July 8. — Col. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia and Defence, has addressed an open letter to the Orange Order, in reply to resolutions passed by several lodges of that body protesting against the participation of the 65th Regiment in the recent Corpus Christi ceremonies in Montreal.

After a eulogy of the principles of the Order, the Minister declares that fanatical Orangemen have violated those principles and cites an occasion on which he faced the wrath of his fellow members and was justified in after years for the action which had been condemned.

Reverting to the case of the 65th, Col. Hughes says that that corps has for more than half a century carried rifles in the Corpus Christi procession.

When the church authorities asked that the men be permitted to march this year, Col. Cotnil, then commanding officer drew their attention to the rule regarding the carrying of rifles and declined to disobey it. The people of Montreal—both Catholic and Protestant—appealed to Col. Hughes to suspend the law, but he refused. A Protestant officer in Montreal discovered that other rifles might be carried and the Militia Department could not interfere, say Col. Hughes.

"Recently I declined to permit the turning out of troops, or the firing of salutes, in honor of a distinguished prelate of the Roman Catholic Church because what would be done for one Church must be done for all," says the letter, "and forthwith I am assailed as a fanatic by a few Roman Catholic people. On the other hand, I have rigidly adhered to the law regarding the carrying of Government rifles in religious processions, and am assailed by a few Protestant fanatics who do not understand the facts at all."

"PEBLO"
The Glass of Quality
We have at any doubt but that most people value their eyesight sufficiently to want to take the best care of it. That is why we went to the expense of securing for our Optical Trade the Highest Grade of Lenses then can be made and which we handle exclusively under the trade mark "PEBLO." We believed our patrons would appreciate having their eyeglasses fitted with this superior quality lens, and after two years exclusive use of "PEBLO" Lenses, we are well satisfied with the result, judging by the hundreds of satisfied customers whom we have fitted with these beautiful lenses. It is interesting to know that in spite of the expense of procuring "PEBLO" Lenses the prices to our patrons are no more than when we used other makes of lenses, this being due to the large quantity we buy at a time. We manufacture these "PEBLO" Lenses from the purest "PEBLO" glass, in our own lens grinding department.
Any kind of lens duplicated while you wait, and all work guaranteed.

FORETOLD BY A VISION

LONDON STAGE MANAGER HAD DREAM ABOUT IRVING.

A. B. Tapping Tells Queer Story of Warning of Death of Laurence Irving In Empress Disaster—Many Other Queer Premonitions of Coming Catastrophes Are on Record.

"The dream haunted me all the day, and when it became known that they had actually sailed on the Empress the news quite unnerved me, as I felt certain that it was a message that the young actor and his wife had perished."

A few hours later Mr. A. B. Tapping, stage manager of the Kingsway Theatre, London, learnt the awful truth that among the passengers who went down with the ill-fated Empress of Ireland were Mr. Laurence Irving and his wife.

The dream which foreshadowed the death of the popular actor was an extraordinary one. Mr. Tapping, who is touring the provinces with a company playing the drama, "The Great Adventure," was at Sheffield, when Mr. Laurence Irving appeared before him in a vision during the early hours of Friday morning, just about the time when the liner went down. Mr. Tapping dreamt that he saw in a room—which he afterwards identified from a picture as the saloon of the Empress of Ireland — the late Sir Henry Irving and Mr. Laurence Irving, together with a number of other people. Sir Henry was dying, and suddenly disappeared as though death had claimed him. The people then began to leave the room, and Laurence Irving walked mournfully and quietly with them. "There was no farewell," says Mr. Tapping, "from Mr. Laurence Irving, whose call to go seemed to come suddenly and unexpectedly."

The dream made such an impression on Mr. Tapping's mind that he told it to various members of the company next day, and remarked to his wife, when he heard that the Empress of Ireland had gone down, that he hoped Laurence Irving and his wife were not on board. The hope, alas! was not fulfilled.

This incident provides but another illustration of these inexplicable premonitions which have from time to time been associated with terrible sea tragedies. Three weeks ago, when the third boat of the burned steamer Columbian, which had drifted about for a fortnight with eleven men in her, the majority of whom died raving madmen through agonies of thirst and hunger, was picked up, Robert Tiere, the Columbian second officer, one of the survivors in the boat, told an extraordinary story. One of the men who died in the boat was named Prieve, and he had a dream before he left on the last voyage of the Columbian that the ship would burn and he would die after being fourteen days in a boat.

"He told this to us again and again while we were adrift," said Mr. Tiere, "and, doubt it if you will, he assured us that we would be rescued on the fourteenth day. That gave us a little encouragement, although when he died we felt there was no hope left. His dream came true, and it was on the fourteenth day that we saw the Seneca, the American revenue cutter, which rescued us from our terrible predicament."

It has sometimes happened that dreams have prevented people from sailing in ships which have been lost. There was the notable case of [illegible] which, on her second voyage, mysteriously disappeared in September, 1909, and has never been heard of since. This passenger said that he had a warning vision in which a man dressed in a very peculiar costume which he had never seen before, with a long sword in his right hand, appeared three times in rapid succession; and he was so much impressed with the vision that he left the vessel at Durban, from which point the ship continued on her ill-fated voyage.

Scores of other cases of dreams which have foretold shipping disasters might be cited, but the majority of these seem to lack authenticity. It is an extraordinary fact, however, that coincidences seem to surround disasters at sea. For instance, the latest disaster occurred at the same place at which another ship was previously run down by the sister ship of the Empress of Ireland, the Empress of Britain, and on the same day on which there was brought to Liverpool for inspection by the Finance Committee a model of the monument which is to be erected to the memory of the heroes of the engine-room on the Titanic.

Exactly at the time of the wreck of the Titanic in April, 1912, the horse White Star was the horse of the year and the favorite for the Two Thousand Guineas and the Derby. It was extraordinary also that Mr. W. T. Stead, who went down when the vessel struck the iceberg, had, twenty years before, written a novel describing a voyage across the Atlantic. An incident in this novel described how a passenger upon the vessel had a presentiment that a friend of his was wrecked and adrift on an iceberg. He induced the captain the alter the course and found that his presentiment was true.

THE BIRKENHEAD.

Last Surviving Officer of Famous Vessel Passes Away.

The recent death in England of Captain G. A. Lucas has removed an officer who was believed to be the last survivor of the Birkenhead, a troopship that ran on the rocks off the coast of Africa sixty years ago. The story of the disaster is here reprinted:—

The Kaffir War was dragging on, indecisively and ingloriously, when word was sent home for more soldiers. Immediately the Birkenhead—a failure as a steam frigate—was ordered to prepare for sea, and on Jan. 7, 1852, she sailed from Queenstown with twenty-two officers and non-commissioned officers and 466 men of various regiments, twenty women and children, and some details of the medical service. The crew numbered 130; altogether there were 630 souls on board.

All went well until after leaving Simon's Bay, and then on the starlight night was borne the cry that the ship was ashore. Instantly the commander ordered the engines to go astern. The ship responded, and the water rushed into the gaping wound which had been made by the rocks on which she had struck. Then the brave vessel was carried again on the reef, and received further grievous injury; her bottom plates being crumpled up. The bulkheads tore asunder; the sea flooded the foremost compartments and engine rooms; a number of men met death while asleep in their berths. In the meantime, order amid chaos reigned on deck.

The soldiers, who had been mustered as for drill, went to the chain pumps — quite uselessly, as it happened; the women and children were placed in boats with as little excitement as though it were an evolution to test the efficiency of the crew.

Three boats with seventy-eight persons were thus got away.

At last the great ship broke in two, the forward part sinking out of sight, leaving the stern only afloat, crowded with officers and men and the crew. Was there dismay? The soldiers were drawn up as if they had been on the drill ground; they knew that they were face to face with death, but they stood firm — the champions of the race, cool, collected, resolute.

Around the doomed men the sea lapped in the moonlight, calm and inscrutable, the long swell of the waves against the ship's torn sides chanting a dirge; now and again the silvery surface was ruffled as a shark appeared; away in the distance could be described an inhospitable shore, guarded by a well-nigh impenetrable network of coarse seaweed. This was the setting of the drama.

Every soldier—even the least imaginative — must have realized the terrible fate which awaited him, yet not a man flinched. They were present at the last roll-call. Standing at attention, facing unmoved the enemy of humanity, and surrounded by some of the worst horrors of the sea in the shape of the fish of prey, these heroes went down with the Birkenhead. When the grey, dawn broke there remained only the memory of a splendid epic and a few score of survivors. By one miracle or another 194 lives were saved of the company on board the doomed ship, and of these Captain Lucas was one.

Astronomically Speaking.

Before he became a newspaper man James S. Black was a collector in Flagstaff for awhile. He was given a bill against Director Lowell of the observatory and tramped up the long hill from the town to see the astronomer one hot June morning when the mountain sun blazed its hottest.

Arrived at the top, Black inquired of an attendant if Lowell was there. After the manner of collectors he followed up a negative answer with inquiries as to his probable return.

"Will he be back this afternoon?"

"No."

"Will he be back tomorrow?"

"No."

"Will he be back next day?"

The attendant couldn't say.

"Well," said Black, getting desperate, "do you know when he will be back?"

"Oh, he'll be back for the transit of Venus!" said the attendant.

"That finished it," said Black in telling the story. "Not being an astronomer, I gave up that bill."—Popular Magazine.

THOUGHT SHE COULD NOT LIVE

Unionville, Mo.—"I suffered from a female trouble and I got so weak that I could hardly walk across the floor without holding on to something. I had nervous spells and my fingers would cramp and my face would draw, and I could not speak, nor sleep to do any good, had no appetite, and everyone thought I would not live.

Some one advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had taken so much medicine and my doctor said he could do me no good so I told my husband he might get me a bottle and I would try it. By the time I had taken it I felt better. I continued its use, and now I am well and strong.

"I have always recommended your medicine ever since I was so wonderfully benefitted by it and I hope this letter will be the means of saving some other poor woman from suffering."—Mrs. MARTHA SEMMY, Box 1144, Unionville, Missouri.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as that above — they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger — it has stood the test for years.

If there are any complications you do not understand write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

"READ ME A LETTER FROM HOME."

Read me a letter from home tonight;
Oh, read me a letter from home.
Falling like rays of sweet sunshine bright
O'er paths I so drearily roam.
It will be precious as morning's glow,
When night's hours of sorrow are past.
And hours which were too bright to last.
Read me a letter from home tonight;
Oh, read me a letter from home.

Read me the kind words of mother, dear,
So loving, so tender and true.
And bringing her loved form to view.
Once more I gaze on her smile so sweet;
Again I am happy and free.
Stopping the progress of time's swift feet—
Oh, blissful were those days to me.
Read me a letter from home tonight;
Oh, read me a letter from home.

And every night till broad daylight
He stays up with the boys.

Found In the Ice

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1914, by Associated Literary Press.

On the 7th day of October, 1852, the ship Princess left Australia with a cargo of wool and other articles valued at $250,000. She had in her treasure room gold in dust, bars and coin aggregating $1,300,000. She was never heard from.

In June, 1868, eighteen years after the loss of the Princess, I was one of the crew of the Boston whaler Talisman, which was trying the cruising ground on the south of Cape Horn. We had had a fair run of luck when we got a gale from the north which lasted for four days and nights without a break. This drove us away south among the ice, and on a dozen different occasions the ship was within a hair's breadth of being cast away or overwhelmed. After the fourth day of the gale there was a calm lasting thirty hours. During this interval the Talisman lay between two monster icebergs, with her boats down and ready to tow her out of the way should they close in on her. Then we got a strong breeze from the east.

Sometimes we lay moored to a berg for several hours; again we were pounding among the great cakes of ice, which threatened every moment to crush in her sides. We had been driving to the southeast for three days when the breeze fell and left us on a heaving sea, with a monster iceberg about two miles away to the south.

The ship had thus far sustained little damage, but the crew were exhausted with the hard work and constant vigilance. The men were given an all day's rest, and no incident occurred until late in the afternoon. The mass of ice had a front a mile long on our side, with an average height of 200 feet. What its width was we could not say. We were astonished to see smoke rising from the far side of it. No one doubted that it came from a fire lighted by shipwrecked sailors, who had caught sight of the Talisman and were making her a signal.

The third mate and three men were ordered off in one of the whaleboats to investigate, and I was one of the three selected. We took with us a breaker of fresh water, a bottle of rum, bread, meat, blankets, a boat compass and a lantern, and darkness fell as we pulled away from the ship.

We pulled to pass the western face of the berg and found it to be about half a mile long. As we reached its southern limit and turned to the east we caught sight of a small fire on a ledge about 100 feet above the water. As soon as we got up to it the mate hailed and was promptly answered that there were two men on the ledge, one of whom had a broken leg. Thereupon I was ordered to remain by the boat and hold on, while the mate and the two men landed on the berg and began making their way up to the ledge.

Twenty minutes later the berg split, a fog settled down, and with it came a breeze. I did not know what to do, and so I laid in my oar, wrapped myself in a blanket and sat down in the bottom of the boat. You will think it queer that I fell asleep under the circumstances, but that is exactly what happened, nor did I wake until daylight came again. Then I found myself in an ice floe which was drifting to the south at the rate of about three miles an hour.

I am not at all sure how long I drifted, but the general direction was south, and the time was at least four days and nights. On the morning of what was probably the fifth day I awoke to find that the floe had ceased drifting, and a quarter of a mile to the east of the boat was a mass of ice.

It was a mile or more in length and not over thirty feet high and looked more like a wall resting on the water. The ice was yellow and dirty, with rocks embedded in it here and there, and I have no doubt that a good portion of it was the lower part of an iceberg which had turned turtle. Between me and the wall was a jumble of ice, over which it seemed impossible to make my way, but as soon as I had broken my fast I set out to try it. It took me a full hour to make that quarter of a mile, but at length I reached the wall and found that I could easily get up its rough side. When I reached the top it was to discover that the mass of ice was almost a cube, with a great hollow in its surface to remind one of the crater of a volcano.

In the center of this hollow lay a mass of wreckage, and after a long stare, half believing my eyes deceived me, I slid down and began investigation. No one will ever see a more curious sight [illegible] several hundred feet square was covered with broken masts, yards, beams, planks, boards, ropes, blocks and sails. A large ship had here suffered destruction. Just how I could not determine, but it seemed to me as if a great body of ice had fallen on it as she rested in the crater. No other force unless gunpowder could have so wrecked and scattered her about. Some of the wreckage bore the name Princess.

Late in the afternoon the floe began to break up, and I got back to my boat. By night there were lanes of water in every direction, and a strong breeze set in from the south. I drifted to the north all that night and all the next day, but as the second night came on I was picked up by the Scotch whaler Jeannette, which had captured and was cutting in a whale, and months later was landed at her home port.

That Scottish French!

Three interesting specimens of Scottish French are quoted in The Glasgow Herald. One is from the menu of a popular Glasgow restaurant, which, being a very up-to-date establishment, boasts a "Table d'Hote." Suggestions of comfort and of fashionableness are agreeably combined in an announcement displayed in the coffee-room of a West Lothian hotel—"La Hot Dinners." But the apex of "ton" is reached in a hotel sign which has long been the pride of a certain Ayrshire town—"The —— Arms, Mrs. ——, nee Mrs. ——."

What Does the Dog Get?

The natives of western Australia, according to a current writer, "after gorging themselves on the flesh of the kangaroo throw the bones over their shoulders to their gins—i. e. wives—what pass them on to the children.

How can the United States hope to retain the confidence and respect of its neighbors as long as it exports 309,000 gross of fountain pens every year?

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Treating a Cold.

The old idea that quinine would cure a cold has been exploded. It used to be supposed that quinine checked fever. It is now known that the only fever it has any effect on is malaria.

Colds are treated in many ways, but all depend upon one principle—that of opening up all the organs of elimination. Anything that will make the kidneys, bowels and lungs work and will open the pores of the skin and cause profuse perspiration is good for a cold. A hot bath, followed by a hot drink and rest under blankets, is the best and simplest of home treatments.

Hot milk or hot lemonade is far better than hot whisky. There is no need to take an alcoholic drink. A far better way to use alcohol is to rub it over the body immediately after the hot bath.

Cured of Piles and Eczema

By Using Three Boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. Abram Buhr, Herbert, Sask., writes.—"I want to say that I was troubled with eczema and piles and suffered greatly from the itching, burning sensations caused by these annoying ailments. I sent for a free sample of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and this did me so much good that I bought three boxes more, and after using same was cured of both eczema and piles."

This is the kind of letters we receive daily from people who have been cured of these distressing skin diseases by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment. No matter how skeptical you might be, you could not read these letters for many days without concluding that Dr. Chase's Ointment is undoubtedly the most prompt relief and certain cure for these ailments.

If you have doubts send for a free sample box and be convinced. It was by use of a free sample that Mr. Buhr was convinced of the merits of this treatment. For sale at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

FAMOUS WOMAN COOK.

London Gentlewoman Has Built Up a Unique Business.

"Mrs. Lewis is coming to cook the dinner," said a London hostess to someone she asked to dine with her, and as the someone was a judge of good dinners the invitation was accepted.

Consulting cook and hotel proprietor describes the calling of this capable gentlewoman who has made such a name for herself that anxious hostesses entertaining royalty for the first time are glad to secure her advice. But supervising a dinner in someone else's kitchen is not the most pleasing part of her work. To take command for an evening, very often over the heads of one or two paid cooks, is difficult, but Mrs. Lewis is helped out by her sense of humor, and says that her experiences in some kitchens would make amusing reading.

Sometimes for some great dinner for which additional house-room is needed, she is asked to build up a tent, and she often furnishes it and ornaments it with china and pictures, for she makes this her occupation as well as the catering and cooking for the actual dinner. Sometimes when a host or hostess wishes to entertain many guests to dinner and a ball, Mrs. Lewis takes a big vacant house and furnishes it for one night, in all the rooms that are seen, as completely as if its owners were still occupying it."

Preparing an important dinner is no light task. "I asked Mrs. Lewis what was the time-table of her day when she went out to cook one of these dinners that have made her so famous. It is a very long day's work. She is at the market at 5 a.m. to buy her material; at seven her staff is ready to help her in her own kitchen, and she begins with the last dishes of the dinner, preparing the sweets and ices; next she turns to the cleaning and preparation of the vegetables, and then to the materials for the soup and the making of the cold dishes. By one o'clock the meals and birds are all prepared for the cooking, and at six all the things to be cooked at the house where the dinner is to be given are put in hampers and taken over there."

Mrs. Lewis began her education as a cook when she was only thirteen, learning her art in the kitchen of several persons of title and large establishments. She believes that a woman cook may be as great a success as the most noted chefs, and considers that an accomplished woman cook is more satisfactory than a man cook of equal attainments. Women cooks are more resourceful, she says, less apt to make difficulties, and grumble less at their work than men, though, on the other hand, they are, as a rule, more extravagant than men cooks, not understanding so well the financial aspect of cooking and catering. No cook with her training completed leaves Mrs. Lewis' kitchen for another place at less than $500 a year.

The Canny Scot's Sense of Rumor.

The reason a Scot does not laugh a joke right away, says Dean Ramsay, is not, as is the popular fiction that he is "slow in the uptake," but that the canny man will not commit himself. He must think it over before he donates the exact amount of laughter which the joke deserves. The Scot minister, who is Scotland's common public speaker, is aware, consciously or instinctively, of this trait and his delivery of an anecdote with a point is a thing of unique art.

Old Passage Found.

An ancient tunnel was discovered in the progress of the excavations made preparatory to the erection of the new building for the National University College, Dublin at a depth of twenty feet below the surface. A spacious and well-constructed tunnel has been brought to light. It is some nine feet in diameter, and is apparently of considerable antiquity.

Mahomet and the Mountain.

The mountain would not go to him, so Mahomet had to go to the mountain.

Trade is a mountain full of gold and treasure, but it will not come to the merchant who sits and waits for it. He must go to the mountain and when he gets there, he must dig for the treasure and work both to obtain and to hold it.

Advertising, intelligently handled, is the best means to get to the mountain, to unearth the treasure and to hold it, and newspaper advertising is the best and by far the cheapest when results are considered.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Outdoor and Indoor Air.

There is a great difference between outdoor and indoor air, inasmuch as the first circulates freely and the second is stagnant. Another difference is that floods of sunshine constantly cleanse outdoor air of its impurities, but most rooms get very little of that useful commodity. Many persons who visit the physician with complaints of poor digestion and anaemia declare that they are active all day long and that going out for walks is the last thing they need.

They may be right about the amount of exercise they get, but people constantly fall ill in spite of plenty of exercise in the house and get well again with a little outdoor exercise. A certain amount of active work about a house is good for every one, but there ought to be some daily outdoor life as well.

It does not follow that that outdoor life ought to include violent exercise or even any exercise at all. Every one knows how babies thrive when they take their naps outdoors. The principle applies to the adult also.

It is a matter of scientific record that people whose daily occupation obliges them to sit in the open air—such as market women, attendants at fruit stands and newspaper sellers—are robust people who do not take cold easily. Yet it is probable that few people take less exercise

Knew About His Own.

The late Sir John Astley, affectionately remembered as "The Mate," was, many years ago, standing for Parliament. A tiresome heckler asked him what he thought of Sir Wilfrid Lawson's Wine and Spirits Bill.

"What do I think of Sir Wilfrid Lawson's Wine and Spirits Bill?" cried indignant Sir John. "I don't think of it at all. That's his affair, not yours or mine. I can tell you, if you like, that my own last year was a jolly sight too big."

Counts Up.

"My dear," he said in a mildly reproachful tone, "I have no doubt at all that you are a good bargain hunter, and that you always get really excellent bargains, but you get too many of them."

MAD DOGS NEVER FROTH.

What We Usually Call Rabies is Only a Form of Epilepsy.

A mad dog does not rush.

A mad dog does not fight back even when cornered.

The symptoms usually described as those of rabies are only those of a simple form of epilepsy or nervous disorder, and they are not contagious.

Hydrophobia is not caused by heat; epilepsy is. Hydrophobia is only communicable by a bite; epilepsy is not communicable at all. Dogs suffering from hydrophobia do not froth at the mouth; epileptics do.

Dr. Wesley Mills says, "Discrimination lies between this disease and epilepsy or fits of various kinds arising from the heat of the sun as dogs run the streets." Again he says, "Fear of water is a pure hypothesis so far as the dog is concerned."

Let a poor little house dog unaccustomed to roughing it for himself become nervously excited by the din of the streets or overheated on a hot summer day and some fool raises the cry of mad dog and shies a brick. The dog runs and that is enough. Man are but savages under restraint, and anything that runs must necessarily be guilty, and soon a howling mob is in pursuit and the dog is lucky, indeed, that escapes.

Every large city has a dog pound. Hundreds of men are employed as dog catchers. They are frequently bitten. Did any one of them ever have hydrophobia?

Hundreds of men in this country keep dog kennels and raise dogs for sale. Other hundreds make a business of training dogs for field trials, hunting and performing. They are frequently bitten. Did any one of them ever have hydrophobia?

NEW FIRE ALARMS.

One That Doesn't Mind Ordinary Heat, but Knows a Sudden Blaze.

A fire alarm which discriminates between ordinary heat and any fire that may start and another which makes more racket the hotter the fire is are two additions to the great number of recent automatic fire alarms. The discriminating alarm is based on the theory that a dangerous fire will cause a sudden rise in temperature in a room, but that ordinary temperature changes due to heating systems or to the weather are slow.

One thick glass tube and one thin glass tube contain liquids that will vaporize and make pressure in the tubes when they are heated, and the alarm will ring when the pressure in the thin tube is greater than in the other.

With a slow increase of heat the liquid in both tubes vaporizes at about the same rate, but with a sudden heat the thin tube acts more promptly.

The other fire alarm is based on the electric resistance of a metal. It can be dropped by a cord into a ship's hold, for instance, and if there is heat there it will ring gently or vigorously, in accordance with the degree of the heat.—Saturday Evening Post.

London's "Ragged Schools."

The first organized society in the world to deal with the education of slum children and waifs of the street was established in London in 1845 under the name of the "Ragged School Union." The Earl of Shaftesbury was the chairman, and William Locke and S. Starey were the principal organizers. The first "ragged school"—the name popularly given to the free schools for outcast, destitute and ragged children of London and other English cities—was founded by John Pounds, a cobbler, at Portsmouth in 1839. Hundreds of these schools are still in existence, although in London they are being gradually superseded by other institutions.

Cyclone In Calcutta.

The worst cyclone in fifty years recently swept the city of Calcutta, India. Tremendous damage was done to property. Three men were killed and many injured. Conveyances were blown over, and some of the occupants were taken to hospital. Communications are seriously interrupted, and the port authorities report that several small boats have been dashed to pieces in the docks. Halfstones the size of eggs smashed the glass in almost every building in the city. Two steamers are ashore in the Hooghly.

To Have First Theatre.

Although Ceylon is nearly as large as Ireland, and has a population of some 4,000,000, its principal city, Colombo, has never had a theatre. It is now to have a modern one of steel, brick and reinforced concrete, with orchestra, dress circle and gallery, seating 1,000, and will cost, when completed, about $40,000.

A Floating Factory.

The British Admiralty is contemplating the construction of a huge floating self-contained factory capable of carrying out almost any kind of repairs to war vessels that can be done without drydocking.

Fishes Ring For Dinner.

The goldfish which thrive in the warm mineral water of the famous Roman baths at Bath have learned to ring a bell for their dinner. A metal ball floats in the water with an ingenious pivot attachment, from which strings hang down in the water. When the goldfish, consulting Bunty, pull the strings, a bell sounds and a cup of ants' eggs is turned automatically into the water. The fish greedily enjoy the new game, which is watched daily by interested crowds.

NEWBURY, ONT., MAY 29th, 1913

"I am not a strenuous user of medicines or patent medicines, but I have taken nearly everything recommended for Indigestion and Constipation.

I have been so bad with Acute Indigestion that I was nearly in convulsions and had to be held. I have used "Fruit-a-tives" and I have not had another attack nor suffered at all with Indigestion since taking them.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only remedy I ever used that did me any good, and I am grateful to "Fruit-a-tives" for making me as well as I am today, and everyone agrees that I look in first-class health.

My husband likes "Fruit-a-tives" very much and takes them whenever he has occasion to use a remedy for Constipation"

Mrs. D. McRAE

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c, or will be sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

TALES OF INDIA.

Some interesting recollections are given by an "Old Soldier" writing in "The Indiaman." The Maharaja of Rewah—who died in 1851—was one of the greatest sportsmen in India; he had slain hundreds of tigers, some of them at very close quarters. He was a mighty hunter, and a very fine specimen of a Rajput chief, and the terror of all his people. But he was held in complete subjection by his wives, of whom, alas! there were no fewer than eight. On a certain occasion, when paying a ceremonial visit to the British officer of the district, his highness came with a large retinue of armed retainers and many elephants, and occupied an enormous tent in the centre of an encampment, covering many acres of land, where all his wives with their respective servants and guards were likewise accommodated in tents. The next morning it was seen that a very small insignificant tent had been pitched, during the night, about half a mile from the princely encampment, and to this humble refuge the great chief had betaken himself. He explained that he had fled from the Maharanis—"For," he said, "I am something of a philosopher—Never quarrel with women."

A brave old Indian officer of the Bengal Infantry who came to England as one of the King's orderlies was asked on his return to India what he considered to be the most remarkable thing in London. He replied, unhesitatingly, "The police." "You will see," he said, "one man stop out into the middle of the street and hold up his hand to stop the traffic of carriages in order that a little child, in a perambulator pushed by a nursemaid, may cross the road in safety; and though the motor-cars and carriages contain lords and dukes—and, perhaps, even former viceroys of India—the drivers obey the signal of the policeman, and no one dares to drive past until he gives permission by lowering his hand. It is wonderful this power of the police, but I think I have found the reason. Every policeman in London is the son of a lord."

Has any Englishman acquired such a profound knowledge of the Indian vernaculars as to be able to follow the precise meaning of the songs sung by the women of the corps de ballet at a native court? One of our most eminent traveling M.P.'s was present, not very long ago, at an entertainment given by an Indian prince in the deserts of Rajputana, and was much struck by the vehemence—in voice and postures—of one of the artists who was filling the room with her melodious voice. He turned to the Indian gentleman sitting next to him, and asked what was the burden of the song. "Sir," was the reply, "you must know that she sings of love. She says: 'Why am I cursed by a desire for love, and by the absence of my lover?'" His highness, who had heard the question, but did not know that it had been answered, said: "She sings of the countless benefits bestowed upon India by the benign and beneficent British Government." — Note by M.P.: The Indian language is full of mystery.

Prizefighters' Nicknames.

There was a time when nearly every prominent English prize fighter had a nickname more generally used by admirers than his real name, and some of these were picturesque. William Perry, a famous fighter of early Victorian days, was the "Tipton Slasher." William Thompson, who won the championship in 1835, was known as Bendigo. The Australian mining town was named after him, and although some of the inhabitants managed to have it rechristened Baadhurst, the new name never caught on. Other nicknames borne by heroes of the ring were "the Gasman," "the Sailor Boy," "the Chelsea Snob," "the Bold Smuggler," "the Great Gun of Windsor" and "the Pride of Westminster."

Embryo Birds.

Mrs. Bourchier (Miss Violet Vanbrugh), the celebrated English actress, tells a story of two actors who were discussing their professional careers. One of them mentioned that since he last saw the other he had left the stage.

"But why did you leave the stage?" his friend asked, in surprise.

"Well," the other replied, "I had a hint that I was not suited for it."

"I see" was the friend's comment. "The little birds told you, eh?"

"Well, no; not exactly," was the reply. "But they might have become birds if they had been allowed to hatch!"

Fashions In Diseases.

There are curious fashions in diseases. How a doctor would stare at a patient who complained of the eighteenth century megrims! And from Dorothy Osborne's letters it is evident that the spleen was the favorite seat of malady then. If you didn't feel well it was the fault of your spleen. To-day, I suppose, there are few men or women who could point to the spot of their spleen or tell what it does or doesn't do. There was a tremendous run on appendicitis some years ago, but the most famous operator for that malady—after he had retired from practice—announced that the operation is usually superfluous.—London Chronicle.

Available For the Militia.

According to C. E. Kilbourne, the census of the United States of 1910 gives 20,473,084 males of militia age, while the reports of the adjutant generals of the several states for 1913 give the number of males available for service in the event of war as 10,127,257. The census figures, it will be noticed, are considerably larger than those of the adjutant generals, but to these figures are included all persons of an eligible age, but the law excludes aliens, persons of unsound mind, criminals and others disabled from various causes.—Philadelphia Press.

Linked With Dick Turpin.

Dr. W. H. Roots of Kingston, London, the oldest divisional surgeon in the metropolitan police, has retired after over forty years' service. The appointment has been held by ancestors of Dr. Roots for many years. One of them, it is related, was called to attend Dick Turpin on Kingston hill, when that notorious highwayman met with an accident there. A guinea which Dick Turpin paid for the doctor's services is still kept as a curiosity by the family.

Thomas Johnson of Sandbach, England, has completed sixty-three years as one of the ringers of the old parish church of Sandbach, having begun at the age of fourteen. Although now seventy-seven, he regularly takes his place in the belfry, where he has done duty 9,000 times. He has "rung out" a queen and a king and "rung in" two kings of that country.

LEARNING TO KNOW A LIFE PRESERVER

Five Minutes Devoted to Familiarizing One's Self with This Apparatus May Save One in Time of Panic and Danger.

PUTTING on a life preserver so that it will be of real use when it is needed seems a simple enough performance when one starts about it in ordinary times for experimental purposes merely, when there is no bitter fear tugging at the heart to set it to pumping fiercely, to unsteady one's nerves and to make fingers bungling and slow to act at the behest of a benumbed intelligence.

But when every second is precious and when life itself depends on the proper adjustment of these simple straps it is a different question. In the confusion resultant upon the sudden call of danger there are few human beings who are capable of exercising all or even a fair proportion of their normal intelligence. To stop and think before acting seems an impossibility. When some unfamiliar action is demanded in a time like this panic often results. Men and women find this step quite impossible and become thoroughly bewildered and helpless.

Mr. Clarence H. Davids, who was among the survivors of the collision which occurred between the Old Dominion steamship Monroe and the Nantucket, of the Merchants and Miners' line, a few weeks ago, has gathered from his experiences on that occasion a deep respect for the possibilities of the lifebelt as a means of saving life on such occasions, provided the passengers of a boat are familiar with the manner of adjusting the apparatus.

"Every one should learn how to put on a lifebelt and to put it on quickly and securely," said Mr. Davids, in discussing this matter. "I believe that it would be a very good thing if there could be lifebelts provided at the bathing beaches, so that all who go to the beaches for the summer could learn to put them on.

"It does not matter whether these belts are provided by the government as a means of teaching all citizens how to make the proper use of them in time of danger, or whether they are the property of some of the bath house proprietors or hotel managers. The important thing is that the beaches would offer an excellent opportunity to learn how to put the belts on in the least possible time.

"I am sure that a number of persons who lost their lives when the collision between the Nantucket and the Monroe took place would not have done so if they had known how to adjust the lifebelts. What seems so simple and easy on ordinary occasions in such a moment appears to be impossibly difficult. There is something, too, in the fact that many persons have never handled a lifebelt, which adds to their inability to adjust them properly at such a moment. Most persons have a very vague idea of how a lifebelt goes on and what it can do for one, and then when suddenly called upon to depend on this apparatus for their lives they are overcome with panic."

"The modern lifebelt is so easy of adjustment," said a steamship man who was asked about the necessity for spreading information among people at large as to the proper use of this apparatus, "that it seems incredible that any human being should not know how to put one on. There are printed instructions in every stateroom, and every one who can read should be able to understand at once exactly how to make the adjustment. Besides, the modern lifebelt tells its own story. Even if the printed instructions were not there a glance at the lifebelt would show how it is to be used."

"But don't you think that possibly you find all this so because you are so familiar with the lifebelt and so familiar with the thought of danger at sea. Don't you think that in the case of a mere landlubber the strangeness of the situation and the sudden call of danger might easily make the lifebelt seem a difficult item of the situation?"

"It's all panic," said the steamship man. "If a person remains calm he can certainly tell how to put on the lifebelt. If he or she isn't quite calm I can see that familiarity with the apparatus might do a lot to help the situation."

Just to show that familiarity with the art of putting on a lifebelt is of importance a young woman was sent to a steamship to play the part of a passenger in distress.

The young woman has crossed the ocean ten times, but she confessed she had never put on a lifebelt.

Although this was merely experimental, she found considerable difficulty in adjusting it and had to be helped out.

The belt is a cumbersome affair which flops to and fro while it is being adjusted in a disconcerting fashion unless one knows exactly what to do first.

The young woman who was illustrating the putting on of the belt made the mistake of trying to tie it around her waist first.

This might do for a stout person whose figure would keep the belt from slipping down, but on a person of slender figure it is apt to create difficulties.

The best way to put on the life belt is to put the tape around the neck first.

Then bring the tape down on one side, slip it through the loop and tie it.

When the tape has been tied around the neck put the belt around the figure pretty snugly and cross the tapes in the back, bringing them around in the front to tie. Tie a good strong knot of the tapes. The water will swell the tape so that the knot will hold.

There are other kinds of life preservers which instead of having the tape around the neck, to be thrust into the loop on one side, have loops of tape over both shoulders. These are just like arm holes and these life preservers are put on exactly like a jacket. After the loops have been slipped over the shoulders the belt is tied by a lower set of tapes under the arms, exactly like the first belt.

Every one has been told from childhood to look for a fire escape on going into a hotel room for the first time and to find out where the life preservers are kept on going aboard a boat, but not all of us heed this admonition. It is a very good thing to do, however, for the very first move to make in adjusting a life preserver is to get the preserver down from its rack.

In each stateroom the life belts are placed, as a general thing, in a rack pretty high up on the wall. There is a little ladder to climb up by, but a chair or a bed will do as well and may be more available in an emergency. The important thing is to know where the life belts are and exactly how to get them and how to put them on.

There are three kinds of life preservers in use, those of cork, those of balsam wood and those of kapoc, a vegetable substance which comes from the island of Java. This last material has much greater buoyancy than cork and a two-pound life preserver of kapoc will hold up as much weight as a six pound preserver of cork. But kapoc is believed to be inflammable by the United States government, which does not permit the use of preservers made of this material on boats over which it has jurisdiction. Balsam wood is coated with asphaltum when used as a preserver, as it would otherwise be too absorbent. It is used frequently on private yachts, but the big liners as a general rule use the cork preservers.

The United States navy uses a solid cork jacket which has a yoke of canvas instead of the canvas straps over the shoulders. It is impossible for this jacket to be displaced, as it fits the figure like a jacket and it is also extremely easy of adjustment.

But in the navy, of course, there is comparatively little difference in the size of the persons who are to wear the jackets. All of these by whom the apparatus may be worn are men and all fairly broad.

To go through life expectant of danger at every point and bearing it ever in mind is a poor attitude and one which robs existence of its joy. On the other hand it is a good plan to look about one when first entering upon any new phase of life, seize upon the main points of a situation and decide upon a way out in case of danger.

The man or woman who is familiar with a lifebelt and has adjusted one many a time, who knows just where the lifebelts are and how to get them is not the one most likely to suffer from panic when the moment comes to jump into the waves. Familiar to some extent with the needs of the moment, to remain calm as the waters rise, a help to others as well as himself.

First Adjust the Strap Around the Neck.

The Belt Is Pushed Well Up Under the Arms.

The Neck Strap Should Be Shortened to Make the Preserver Fit More Snugly.

Domestic Science in the Hamlet.

HOUSEWIVES of Holly, Ont., are a canny lot, and their example may well be followed by women of other sections of the country who have reached the limit of their patience in combating the domestic service problem.

Out in Holly the community housewives and the school interests are combined to teach the girls of the community the arts of the home.

Instead of having the operations of housekeeping, cooking, &c., conducted in a school building and without other than academic results, the Holly method of teaching the girls to be good housewives is to have their instruction take place in the homes of Holly.

Under the direction of a domestic science teacher and with the mistress of the house concurring, the girls work out their domestic science problems in a fashion that has direct practical results highly beneficial to the households visited, besides being of the greatest educational advantage to the girls.

The high school girls are divided into four domestic science classes, according to their place in the school. There are as many subdivisions of these classes as is necessary to the proper handling of groups.

These divisions meet once or twice a week at the various homes in the city, and the girls cook, sew and do other household work such as washing dishes, sweeping and dusting.

A definite outline of the work to be done is given to the class and also to the mistress of the house in order that she may have the proper materials and utensils ready for the use of the girls, who do all the work and leave the house with everything in its proper place and with all the dishes washed, dried and put away.

As one of the concluding features of the course six of the girls prepare and serve a light luncheon to six or seven other girls, the outlay of money being limited.

Not only the preparation and serving of the luncheon but also the manners and conversation of hostesses and guests are carefully observed and criticised, as the function offers an opportunity for instruction in the social graces.

The girls visit the grocery stores to buy food, the meat market to learn to distinguish between the different cuts of meat, the furniture store to learn how to furnish a home so as to make the money go as long a way as possible.

Men Want To Be Beautiful Just as Women Do.

THE barbers of the great cities know secrets that nobody else knows—they are the only persons in the world who have found out the fact that men want to be loved for their own sake.

"Men want to be beautiful just as women do," said a prominent barber whose shop in the very middle of the town has a never ending patronage.

"The barbers know all this. The men who cherish these desires would never dream of taking any one else into their confidence. But the barber shops are in reality the men's beauty shops. They only continue to go by the name of barber shops because it saves the face of the men—no double entendre—and permits them to persist in their masculine swagger which depends on the exploded tradition that men don't care how they look."

Recently a timid looking young man, hilarious, a little bit moth eaten, with a scraggly mustache and not too many sandy locks, somewhat faded and worn, entered a barber shop and called for the head barber.

He spoke timidly, reluctantly, but there was a note of desperation in his voice and his tired looking eyes regarded the head barber with a dogiike longing.

"Do you think?" he said in a husky whisper, "that you could do anything to improve my looks?"

"Why, surely. We'll fix you up all right, sir," said the head barber encouragingly.

"I understand," said the head barber sympathetically. Taking the sandy haired young man by the arm, he led him forward to a chair and gave him into the hands of his very best beauty specialist.

Of course the timid patron had been in barber shops before and he had had his hair cut and his face shaved and his shoes shined. That, however, was the limit of his barber shop experience.

As he sank back in the luxurious barber chair and stretched his feet to a comfortable angle he was suddenly filled with a consciousness of well-being.

All his troubles left him. He felt that the being who bent over him was capable of relieving him of all the burdens of existence.

He forgot the past, the present and the future. He sank into a delicious lethargy. Vague rosy dreams crossed his mind, although he was not sleeping. But these fairylike visions were not so definite as to require any close intellectual analysis. They were simply fleeting visitants from the world of the imagination and they assured him delightfully that he was a combination of Apollo, John D. Rockefeller, Woodrow Wilson and Beau Brummell.

While these entertaining fancies were flitting through his mind he was undergoing the familiar process of shaving, but it was not this which had superinduced so contented a mental state. It was the sub-conscious relief of having at last summoned the courage to thrust his burden on another.

He had always wanted to be beautiful and now it was up to the barber to make him so. The thought smoothed away all care from his brow.

The barber hummed softly, and at the conclusion of the shave he dropped a hot towel on the young man's face and crushed it softly down, very gradually, so that it did not hurt at all, but so that the face steamed beautifully.

Then the barber removed this towel and put on a still hotter one.

Then this towel was removed and the hottest towel in the world was placed upon the young man's face.

Then the barber began a cold creaming process. It was a delicious cold cream, and the barber manipulated it so cleverly that the young man thought for the time it might be growing an entirely new face for him, something that he could really be proud of and could take anywhere without any hesitation.

A little dream still rosier than the other dreams flitted across the young man's mind at this point. He forgot about being John D. Rockefeller and Colonel Goethals and imagined that he was the hero who figures in the magazine romance and looks so splendid in evening dress.

Then the high priest of the masculine beauty shrine began a peculiar process of massaging the young man's face.

It was partly an electric massage and partly a massage of the hand, for the barber used his hand, but an electric apparatus was attached to his wrist, so that the patient had the benefit of the electric vibration together with the soft touch of the human hand.

By this time the young man was a little delirious. He imagined that his beauty had become so dazzling that he had to wear a veil to keep the crowds from following him in the street.

The young man's eyes were now being treated. The barber told him it was the treatment for tired eyes. There were cloths wet in hot liquid first and then cloths wet in cold liquid pressed down on his eyes. A sort of freezing process completed the eye treatment.

The young man's eyes were of the sort that are more useful than decorative. He had been accustomed to consider them chiefly as organs for the gathering of somewhat sordid details from ledgers and daybooks. Sometimes he had sighed a little to think that they were not more effective with the fair sex.

As the eye treatment proceeded he felt that his eyes were turning into the dark and compelling orbs that he had read about. He even contemplated standing in front of a certain young woman he knew and looking down on her in a possessive and adoring fashion, such as he had seen practised by men dowered by nature with glowing lamps.

The barber took things out of bottles and rubbed them on the young man's hair and mustache. He attacked these features vigorously until they seemed to stand on end and the owner of the appendages felt conscious of the existence of every single hair.

Then the barber set the brushes to work and the young man realized that he had never been really brushed before, and when the air was turned on from a sort of bottle the beauty seeker felt that he had been vacuum cleaned and beaten and hung out on the line.

Then the barber soothed him. Hair locks and mustache were pulled and patted and clipped and trained. The young man became tremendously comfortable again and decided that as John D. Rockefeller he would spend at least half of every day on the premises of this particular beauty barber.

The barber put wet cold towels on the young man's face and the young man began to come back to life again.

He decided that he wasn't so much, after all.

He questioned if his looks had been improved any.

He became terribly pessimistic and wondered how much all this would cost.

The barber shot something fragrant and wet in his direction.

He was aware that in his own person he was delicately, pleasantly, redolent of lilac.

"Lilac is the very latest," whispered the barber.

The young man felt cheerful again.

"Finished," said the barber.

Then his look became bolder.

He saw quite an elegant young person looking back at him.

He beheld a richly colored countenance with bright cheeks, clear sparkling eyes, rich auburn hair, glossy and plastered back like a regular stage drawing room hero and the classiest little mustache, tiny, silky and with sharply turned up ends, such as is recommended for the spring trade.

The young man stepped forth jauntily. He grasped the hand of the head barber with fervent gratitude and left a remembrance which made even the head barber contented.

Fortunately for the young man there was a mirror in the elevator.

He hesitated when he got to the sidewalk, but finally he summoned a taxicab, for there was a mirror in the taxicab.

The young man leaned back in the taxicab and gave a certain number.

He did so with an air of some assurance.

"And then they say it is the women who want to be beautiful," said the head barber.

"And the women folks don't even know, poor things," said the tiniest of the manicures, "that there are twenty beauty shops in New York for men to one for women, only they call them barber shops just to make them seem manly."

AUCTION BRIDGE

By Prospero

THE many letters received unanimously express approval of my attempt to reform the progress of bidding. A young woman correspondent is most pointed in asking why should it be that four clubs, 4x6—24, or four diamonds, 4x7—28, have to give way to three no trumps, 3x10—30, "when four odd are certainly more difficult to attain than three, no matter what the color of the bid may be."

It is my suggestion that the declarations proceed on the number of tricks only, in their order of rank, from the lowest, one spades, then to one clubs, one diamonds, and so forth; and then one step higher to two clubs, two diamonds, &c., till cleared.

For the count of honors, my correspondent proposes a uniform count of 5 for each honor unit when divided, and of 10 when held in one hand. (Here I may explain, I call one honor unit the simple (3) honors; four honors would be two units, five honors would count as three.) Aces 10, when divided, 25 when in one hand (three or four aces, in no trump). Similarly as between long and short whist, I have on previous occasions argued that, inasmuch as honors depend solely on the fall of the cards, the count of honors be dispensed with entirely. My claim throughout these talks has been to reduce, as much as possible, the factor of luck in determining the result of the game.

My correspondent presents a most ingenious proposal that the odd tricks be uniformly counted at 5 each, below line; but they additionally obtain a premium, calculated on the basis of the following table:—

	S	C	D	Maj.	H	D	Mort.
Previous	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
Tricks 1	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
2	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
3	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
4	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
5	29	30	31	32	33	34	35
6	34	35	36	37	38	39	40
7	39	40	41	42	43	44	45

She adds:—"I feel certain a simplified method of counting will tend greatly to increase the popularity of the game."

It is left to my readers in particular, to the bridge world in general, to decide whether or not this bonus count be accepted. In every article I have spoken in favor of a simpler way to declare and score; now I frankly say I fail to see how an addition of a premium count can attain this object. To my way of thinking, the greater number of tricks taken offers it as the result of unusually strong hands and not owed to skill. For that good fortune it has been my endeavor to lessen the score rather than augment it. With cards evenly divided, the fight is for the one odd trick; a spirited struggle between equally matched contestants. As in the days of whist, the one odd formed the best proof of skilful play, taking more than one odd merely of good cards.

Score:—First game, love all.

Z commenced with bid of a diamond. A a royal. Y holds these cards and bid misses 2 (I will milk bids unless, as showing the substraction of number from book of 7, which gives the contract bid for. In this case misses 2 means Y Z to take not over five tricks to make good). As you observe, the hand Y is here given, on which five odd was declared. You also bid 3, and the question is, What should B say?

The reasoning of Y to abandon partner's diamond was based on ten minors, of which three deuces and three tops, also the three lowest cards in diamonds and one singleton, all spoke in favor of notice. Hardly a trick could be put on Y's shoulders.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE CONSISTENCY OF MAN

Mrs. Gray sat reading when Jack came in, and as he bent to kiss her she ran her capable hand through his blonde hair.

"Been working hard?"

"Yes," 'responded her son, laconically.

'I'll get your slippers, dear,' volunteered Mrs. Gray.

"I'll get 'em," was Jack's brief answer.

It was then that Mrs. Gray noted that something was wrong. Jack had entered without a smile, which was a most unusual thing, besides he was terse to-night where he was ordinarily talkative, and when he had spoken his voice was hollow.

"Don't you feel well, Jack?" she queried with solicitude.

"I feel all right," said Jack gloomily. "It's all about Phil," he broke forth after a moment — "Mother — he's gone and done it."

"Done it," gasped Mrs. Gray, "done what?"

"Engaged," groaned Jack, "and to a little doll from Philadelphia that he met only last winter. Why couldn't he have chosen one of our own girls—there's Alice Webster and Sadie Harper; they're pretty girls, both of them, and they know something —"

"She's a hare-brained little idiot," argued Jack; "she hasn't a sensible quality about her. Why, she wears a slashed skirt, powders her face and the heels on her shoes, I bet, are six inches high."

"Even so—" soothed his mother.

"Can't cook, can't do any sensible sewing—can't do anything but play bridge and doll up and be a drag on a man's neck for alifetime. I've reasoned with him—"

"Oh, Jack, you didn't do that!"

"Why not Isn't he my best friend? And he couldn't deny that what I said was true either. All he could say was, "Cant' help it. When you meet the only girl in the world for you, you'll do the same."

No amount of comforting sufficed to raise Jack's spirits. Throughout the following weeks he comported himself like a man with a weight on his mind. The approaching marriage ceremony was a nightmare to him. On the dreaded day when he stood beside his friend and heard the minster give unto his keeping the dainty girl wife he could have wept. He raised his eyes and suddenly they met other eyes; they were grey eyes, fringed with abnormally long lashes, and they belonged to the maid of honour, who was the bride's sister.

There resulted a shock of contact. It left Jack cold all over. After the ceremony he found himself walking dreamily after the bridal couple down the aisle. Some one was beside him, and there was a hand on his arm—an idle, little white-gloved hand. It came suddenly to Jack that the slippiest thing on earth would be to touch it — hold it fast. At the carriage he jostled aside another man who would have helped her in. Fortune favoured him. And she lifted her foot, she tripped, and as she fell it was Jack's arm that caught her. How little she was—hardly any weight at all upon a man's arm.

"It's my slipper heel," she wailed as he righted her, "It's caught in my dress."

And so it was. And it was Jack's privilege to disentangle it. It was a dainty thing, beautifully arched and with a high, slender heel.

Afterward, when he settled her in the carriage, gently pushing in her chiffons and laces, he thought of her as a little star enshrouded in moonbeams. He was happy out of all reason; and yet, he was sad—he could not have told why.

It was six months after this event that Jack Gray on coming home one evening again entered the room where his mother was sitting. He was smiling, but as he bent to kiss his mother, she noted with a strange foreboding that something was different.

"Well, mother," he said a little breathlessly, "I've gone and done it."

She started. "Done it?" she whispered.

"It's Enid, of course," he said.

She could not restrain a little cry. "Oh, Jack, that little doll!—" She caught herself, knowing that whoever he had chosen she could not speak slightingly of his choice. "She seems so very young," she finished lamely, "and so delicate and fragile—and so little adapted to be the wife of a man with his way to make."

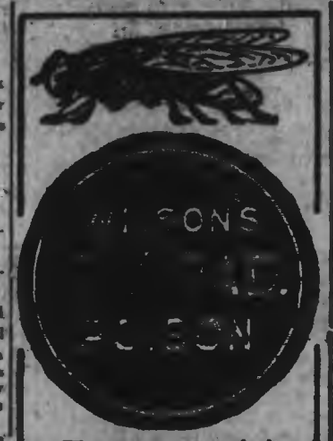
She had not said useless and foolish and idle, but she meant it.

"Oh, Jack," she wailed after a moment, as he did not speak. "Why couldn't it have been one of our own girls—Sadie Harper or Alice Webster—both of them so pretty and so capable."

"I know, mother," said Jack, "but you see when you meet the only girl in the wor'd for you—"

They looked at each other with a flash of recollection. Jack turned red, and into Mrs. Gray's distressed face crept a wavering smile.

"'Consistency is a jewel,'" she said, "but it doesn't' belong to a man any more than it does to a woman."



There are many imitations of this best of all fly killers.

Ask for Wilson's, be sure you get them, and avoid disappointment.

OSLER'S NEW CHARITY.

For many centuries—indeed, ever since men recognized that pains in their joints might possibly be due to disease — the varying forms of rheumatism have been a puzzle to doctors, and for nearly as long cripples have flocked to get relief from the healing waters of Bath. It is, therefore, a glorious thing that the city has done. It has formally opened a pathological laboratory for the investigation of that terribly distressing affliction known as rheumatoid arthritis.

If the problem of its origin could be solved, comfort would come to thousands living maimed lives today, and many more thousands yet unborn, as Sir William Osler said in declaring the laboratory open: "This is Bath's great opportunity, for nowhere else do so many arthritis patients come in the course of a year."

The laboratory is not intended for the benefit of the wealthy habitues of the Grand Pump Room, for it is attached to the Royal Mineral Water Hospital, which is an institution free to all, rich and poor alike. Its origin is peculiarly interesting, and was explained at opening ceremony by Rev. C. E. B. Barnwell, the president. Towards the end of the sixteenth century justices of the peace the country over were enabled by act of Parliament to provide money for sending poor and indigent cripples to Bath, and they fulfilled their duty so thoroughly that the crowds of beggars became an intolerable nuisance. In fact the name of the Bath beggars became notorious. Beau Nash and Dr. Oliver, with one or two others, made up their minds to do something for them, and so got together funds for helping them. The result was the buying up of the derelict theatre and turning it into a hospital. It is in the modern successor of this old charity that the present laboratory has been built.

In his address Sir William Osler first alluded to the enormous changes that had taken place in the methods of investigating diseases during recent years. "We now differentiate its causes into three groups," he said, "first, those cases where a focus of poisoning is formed in the teeth and tonsils; secondly, those set up by the poisoning in the bowels; and, thirdly, those started by the trouble known as gout. Even to distinguish between the three needs laboratory work of great difficulty. It is in the elaborate working out of every case and full tabulation that the hope of eventually conquering the disease must lie. I hope this laboratory will help us to reach some knowledge of the cause which leads to this vast waste of human life and energy."

But Sir William Osler not only set before his audience a great ideal. He went on to make definite suggestions, and out of them arose the new sanitarium.

Air Trip Rates in England.

Hamel, the only aviator in England who regularly loops the loop with a passenger, charges £50 for each flight. For an ordinary passenger flight Hucks charges £10 10s. The present recognised charge for cross country flying is 15 shillings a mile for return journeys and £1 a mile for single outward journeys. An aviator can travel with ease at over a mile a minute and under favorable conditions on a cross country journey can earn £70 in sixty minutes. At the Hendon aerodrome, where the fees for short flights range from £2 2s. to £5 5s., an average of sixty passengers are taken up on a fine Sunday afternoon, amounting in money value to something approaching £200.—London Mail.

A Charter from the Public

IF publishers of daily newspapers were to cease issuing their papers during the summer months, saying—"It's too hot in July and August to publish papers, and, anyway, people don't read papers in summer,"—what a cry of protest would go up all over the land!

The people would say to the publishers:—

"We must have the news and you "must give it to us. You are our "servants in this matter—our news "gatherers and scatterers. We are "ready to pay you for this service. "You have no right or liberty to take "it upon yourselves to cease publish-"ing your papers at your pleasure "or convenience."

Think of it! The Daily Newspaper exists by the mandate of the people. It alone among all publications may not continue or cease at its pleasure, for it holds its charter from the people whose servant it is.

Then think of this:—

Have those other servants of the people—the merchants who supply them with their daily necessities—any right to be silent with respect to the news they have for those who depend on them? Has not the public a right to demand that the news of the stores shall be published along with other news of value and interest? We put it up to the people of this community and to the merchants of this city that the store news of this community is necessary news and should appear regularly in the public press at all seasons of the year. Think of this, you merchants of this city.

WASHINGTON, July 8. — After 34 years behind the bars under life sentence for murder, Spopee, a Blackfoot Indian, was unconditionally pardoned yesterday by President Wilson. He will be released at once from the federal hospital for the insane here to return to his daughter at Browning, Mont., whom he has not seen since she was a baby.

Spopee was charged with the murder of a white man near the Canadian border north of the Montana line. It is thought by the Department of Justice that the murder probably was committed in Canada, and that the territorial courts of Montana which tried him at Fort Benton had no jurisdiction. Moreover, it is now believed that Spopee committed the murder in self-defence. He and another Indian, Good Rider, asked a white man for food. Their request was denied, and the white man denounced Spopee, finally assaulting him with an axe. The Indian claims to have fired in self-defence.

"Going to England."

The Isle of Wight inhabitants are not alone in speaking of "going to England" when they leave their own fragment of the kingdom. A patriotic Cornishman also "goes to England" when he crosses the Tamar. Similarly inhabitants of the Balkan peninsula talk of "going to Europe" when they leave their own corner of the continent—in curious contrast with the people of our own island. We regard ourselves as both of and in "Europe," and accordingly it is only "the continent" that we visit. The record in the splendid isolation line is probably held by that minister of the Cumbraes, in the Clyde, who prayed for a blessing upon "the inhabitants of Great and Little Cumbrae and the adjacent islands of Great Britain and Ireland."—London Mirror.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

DAILY FASHION HINT.

DETECTIVES ON TRAIL.

Mystery of James Knowles' Death Will Be Probed.

TORONTO, July 8. — The assistance of the Provincial Attorney-General has been asked in the investigation into the death of James Knowles, who died under peculiar circumstances in South Porcupine on June 19. In the absence of Hon. J. J. Foy, Deputy-Minister Cartwright will take charge of the departmental end of the enquiry.

Although an attack had been made on Mr. Knowles some time prior to his death by parties in the place who bore him ill-will, nothing was said of the matter at the inquest. Emile Lewis, who is alleged to have struck him over the head with a milk bottle, is being held pending the outcome of the investigation.

Wanted Mounted Hack.

TORONTO, July 8. — Hon. W. J. Hanna last evening made a statement regarding the reappointment of Paul Morand as license inspector in North Essex as one which had been especially sought by many people in his district. Morand, he said, had been reinstated some time ago, following appeals to the Department from reputable people who had appreciated his services in the past.

The commissioners and several clergymen had taken the ground that he had proved himself a good officer, and that it was unfair that he should be ruled out of his position through disqualification on a mere technicality.

Drowned While Bathing.

TORONTO, July 8.—Andrew Forest, aged 15, 446 Jones avenue, was drowned while bathing in the Don river baths on Monday night. He was a good swimmer, but it is supposed that he had an attack of cramps, due to entering the water while overheated after cycling.

In his struggle for life the drowning boy grasped his companion, Edward Schofield, 842 Broadview avenue, who was dragged down, and was quite unconscious when rescued, but quickly recovered.

The Origin of Algebra.

If Diophantus of Alexandria, fourth century of the Christian era, was not the inventor of algebra, then it is not known to whom the honor belongs. To Diophantus the honor is generally given. The Arabians claim that the invention belongs to one of their countrymen, Mohammed Ben-Musa, who flourished about the middle of the ninth century. Certain it is that the Arabians introduced algebra to Europe by way of Italy through Leonardo, a merchant of Pisa, who had lived among the Arabs of Barbary. Leonardo's treatise was written in 1202.

Some Very Pretty Names.

Here are some names taken from a jury list in 1688, the year in which Richard Cromwell succeeded his father as protector of England: Faint-Not Hewitt, Redeemed Compton, Stand-Fast-on-the-High Stinger, Be-Courteous Cole, Search-the-Scriptures Moreton, Kill-Sin Pimple, Be-Faithful Joiner, Fight-the-Good-Fight-of-Faith White, More-Fruit Flower, Weep-Not Billing, Repentance Avis, and so on.

No Encouragement.

Mrs. Short—Oh, dear, I do wish we were rich! Just think of the good we could do if we only had lots of money! Mr. Short—True, my dear, but we can do a great deal of good in a quiet way now. Mrs. Short—Yes, of course, but no one will ever hear of it.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Children's Teeth.

Care of the teeth should begin as soon as a child is born, for, although it has no teeth, it has gums where there will later be teeth, and these should be kept in good condition always. The gums should always be taken care of. They should be almost as carefully cleansed as the teeth with some antiseptic mouth wash. And it is very good for the health and strength of the teeth to massage the gums regularly. A prominent dentist makes the assertion that the greatest cause of loosened teeth is receding gums, and one way to prevent this is to massage them regularly. A small child even can be made to use a toothbrush conscientiously, and before it has really got all of its first teeth, when it is about two years old, it can have learned to handle a small toothbrush with soft bristles made especially for small children. Before it loses its first teeth it can have become so addicted to the toothbrush habit that it will be fairly uncomfortable if by chance it forgets to wash its teeth in the morning. A child should learn especially to wash the teeth whenever it eats any sweet or any fruit.

False Fire Alarm Epidemic.

MONTREAL, July 8.—The operations of firebugs and false alarm fanatics have increased during the past six months with such rapidity that a special squad of detectives are at work in an effort to trace the offenders. Since the beginning of the year over three hundred false alarms have been rung in, and more than 600 fires have been investigated by the fire commission and no cause found. During the month of June 11 fires proved to be of incendiary origin, while during May 2 such blazes took place.

Ends of the Earth.

If you stand at the north pole you can look in only one direction—south. No matter how you may twist around on your heels, it is always toward the south that your eyes are directed. North as a terrestrial direction has vanished. You have arrived at the end of north. You are "where it lives." Or else we may say that north has suddenly sprung into the sky and is now at an unattainable distance directly over your head. A moment before your foot touched the pole north was straight ahead of you, and you had all the four cardinal points to choose from—east, west, north and south. Now three of them have vanished and south alone remains. The reverse is true at the south pole, where all directions on the earth's surface are alike north. In view of these facts we may speak of the north and south poles as the "ends of the earth." They are the two turning points, arrived at either one of which there is no choice left but to start toward the other.—New York Journal.

English Laws on Finding.

Judge Atherley Jones stopped a case against a man and his son charged with "stealing by finding" a rug which the younger defendant picked up after it had blown off a motorcar. The judge, in directing the jury to return a verdict of not guilty, said that the law with regard to finding property, although there was a popular superstition that finding was keeping, was very clear. If a person found an article it was his duty to preserve it, and, if he had any reason to suppose that it belonged to a certain person, it became his duty to go to that person to make inquiries in order to ascertain. But otherwise there was no actual duty upon him to take it to a police station. It was probably a prudent course, but the police had no greater right to the article than the person who found it.—London Times.

Pretty Bad.

The barber was very busy and the shop was full of men waiting for him to practice his tonsorial art upon their heads and faces.

One man, Mr. Blank, became tired of waiting for his turn to come and started to leave. Although his beard had come out pretty heavy, he thought no one could notice it and that he could come back the next morning when Hughes, the barber, was not so busy. The barber, not wishing a customer to go away unattended to, accosted him by saying, "You're not leavin' us, is you, Mr. Blank?"

"Why, I don't need a shave, do I, Hughes?"

Hughes thereupon looked his customer over critically and answered him assuredly: "No, yeuse don't need a shave; all yeuse need is a hair cut an' de face."—National Monthly.

Papua Island.

Papua Island was so named by the Malays, and the word means "frizzled," in reference to the hair of the inhabitants. It is generally supposed that Papua or New Guinea was originally part of the mainland of Australia. It was discovered by the Portuguese in 1526, though it was probably sighted by A. Dabreu during his voyage fifteen years earlier. The Australian Government, realizing the danger that would arise if an enemy seized land so near their coasts, frequently urged Great Britain to annex the eastern portion of the island, and after two or three unauthorized annexations a British protectorate was established there in 1884.

STORSTAD BRINGS $75,000.

Battered Collier Which Struck the Empress Is Sold by Auction.

MONTREAL, July 8.—The collier Storstad, which rammed the Empress of Ireland in the St. Lawrence on May 29, was yesterday morning sold in the Admiralty Court for $75,000. The purchasers were the Prudential Trust Co., who intimated that they were acting for foreign clients, whose identity was not disclosed, but who are believed to be the original owners of the steamer, the Maritime Steamship Co. of Norway. Thomas Hall, of the Hall Engineering Co., bid $73,000 for the Storstad and the offer of the Prudential company was then received.

The Storstad, which is held as security for damages in the $2,000,000 action brought by the C.P.R., owners of the Empress, against the collier's owners, will be released as soon as the purchase money is paid into court and proceed to the Davie drydock at Quebec for repairs.

Premier Unveils Tablet.

HALIFAX, N.S., July 8.—Sir Robert Borden yesterday morning unveiled a tablet to the memory of Samuel W. G. Archibald, the distinguished Nova Scotian, who in the earlier part of the nineteenth century, played an important part in the government of the province.

A large gathering, including many ladies, were present at the ceremony, which was performed in the assembly chamber. The tablet is of bronze.

Baby Cupid.

A Crisis Which Was Successfully Passed by His Aid.

By LITTELL MCCLUNG.

Mrs. Kenton repaired his seriousness with a fatuitous laugh.

"Let's see! Why, you've known me only a month," the pretty widow objected. "You've never even seen the rest of the family!"

"You mean Henry?" he said.

"Of course I mean Henry!" she exclaimed. "Who else could I mean? The very idea of your starting to propose to me, Mr. Barton, without ever having seen Henry. The man who loves me must love him too. He must think that Henry is the handsomest, finest little fellow in the world.

"Oh, you don't realize what such a baby as Henry means to a young mother. He is her joy, her hope, her life, Mr. Barton. The man she loves must share her feelings about her child. You understand, don't you?"

The man nodded.

"But how am I to share your love for the child—how am I ever to meet him—if you don't give me the chance?" he demanded. "I call in the evening, and the nurse is just putting him to bed. I stop by in the afternoon, and you and Henry have gone out for a ride.

"Something always happens to keep Henry out of my sight. I've about come to believe that he is a myth, a prattling phantom that willfully eludes me."

"How can you, Mr. Barton, use the word 'prattling' when speaking of Henry?" she demanded, trying to keep a serious face. "The little dear doesn't prattle—he talks!"

"Indeed?" he exclaimed. "I hardly thought he was old enough to"—

"Certainly he's old enough," she interrupted. "He can say 'mamma' just beautifully, and at present I'm concentrating my energies on getting him to say 'dear mamma' and 'nurse' and other necessary words."

"Why don't you teach him my name?" he asked eagerly. "It's very easy—just Jim, you know. Then when Henry and I do get acquainted we'll start on terms of friendship without any preliminaries."

"Well, when shall I see him?" he asked. "Let me make an engagement with you and Henry."

"Let me see. This is the 20th, isn't it?" she mused. "Well, on the 1st of next month, in the afternoon, the—the Young Mothers' club meets at my house. You can come around then and have tea with us. Henry will be wearing his best frock in your honor."

"Fine and dandy!" declared Barton as he lifted his hat in farewell. "I'll be on hand, Mrs. Kenton, you may be sure."

On the eventful afternoon Barton came, as he had said, a smile of confidence lighting his face—a smile that, alas, faded as quickly as the bloom of a debutante.

Mrs. Kenton greeted him with a warm hand clasp, and the next moment he found himself in a drawing room filled with young women. He was the only man in sight, and his knees trembled as the rapid fire introductions began.

But he faced, like a hero, the chorus of "Oh!" "Delighted!" and, "How charming!" and came through with face unflushed.

Tea was served, and the meeting gave promise of passing off pleasantly enough. But the blow fell when the president, a middle aged woman with a twinkle of humor in her eye, arose for the first formal announcement.

"Ladies," she said mildly, "several of us, as is our custom, have brought our children with us—the proper thing for young mothers to do. These children, as you are aware, are upstairs in care of two of our most loyal mothers.

"Each of us has listened with patience, be it said, to praises of another's prodigy. But now we are prepared to learn the truth. There is a gentleman in our midst. He shall see the children and make formal report to us as to which is the prettiest!"

Barton's heart went right down into his patent leathers as he turned upon Mrs. Kenton with a look of unforgiving reproach.

"Really, I didn't do it!" she whispered. "It's one of the surprises the club always springs on the hostess—'pon my soul it is!"

There was no doubting the sincerity of her tone, and Barton, summoning to his aid every fiber of his courage, rose to protest. The quick eyed president divined his intention, and she gave him no chance to utter a word.

"The young gentleman may wish to protest that he is not a good judge of children," she declared, "but we cannot listen to him. We all feel sure that he is a man of judgment and courage and that he will do what we ask of him."

A dozen smiles were suppressed as a dozen heads nodded approval. Barton's eyes flashed, for the humor of the situation had not appealed to him.

"I shall not protest, ladies," he said with quiet determination. "On the contrary, I shall be very glad to pick out the prettiest baby for you. And, furthermore, I am prepared to face the consequences, whatever they may be!"

The president smiled and appointed a committee to escort Barton to the nursery. Soon he was the center of six contented infants, who were toddling and crawling about over the floor in care of two guardian mothers.

The impromptu nurses were sworn to secrecy, and Barton was given a long blue ribbon to tie on the arm of the baby he thought the prettiest. Then he was left alone with the infants.

He realized full well that, while it all might be a huge joke with the mothers, for him it was about the most serious moment of his life.

"If I miss giving the ribbon to Beth Kenton's baby the chances are she'll never speak to me again," he muttered. "I know hers is the prettiest, but how under the sun am I to know which is hers? Babies all look pretty much alike to me!"

With the slip of ribbon clutched between his trembling fingers he began to scan intently, hopefully, one by one, the faces of the babies. He found no distinguishing marks on the first three, but at the fourth he hesitated, and his breath came faster.

Surely those large, inquiring blue eyes were the eyes of Mrs. Kenton, and of a certainty that delicate, finely chiseled little nose was very like the nose of Mrs. Kenton.

"Here's where I win hands down!" he breathed, stifling his conscience. "I don't care a rap whether this chap is really the best looking or not—he gets the prize."

He reached out his arms toward the child, when a voice behind stopped him.

"Jim-Jum-Jum-Jim—ma-ma!"

It was certainly his name as plain as accents could get it. He turned to behold a lively tot pawing the air with his chubby hands.

With one swoop Barton grabbed the child, for the first glance told him beyond doubt that this was Mrs. Kenton's baby. With the youngster in his arms he rushed down the stairs and broke in upon the startled young mothers.

"Ladies," he exclaimed triumphantly, "I pick this child as the prettiest of all!"

"Oh, you dear, dear man!" whispered the hostess, taking the baby into her arms and kissing him energetically.

But Barton did not answer until all the other mothers had gone. Then he said the thing most natural.

"Don't you think your boy might be taught to say 'papa?'" he asked, with more sincerity than humor in his voice.

"Perhaps so," replied Mrs. Kenton, smiling happily. "Come, Henry," she cooed, "say 'papa' for mamma, won't you?"

Leaving It to the Pitcher.

Not in ten years has Christy Mathewson been taken out of the box by McGraw unless possibly under some condition where strategy demanded a pinch hitter or a man batting from the other side of the plate or a speedy base runner.' This may surprise 1,000,000 or more fans. Box scores may be produced to dispute it. But that is a case where the box scores are wrong. When Matty comes out he takes himself out. He knows when he is not right and is not ashamed to admit it, and McGraw leaves it to him. Many a time he has been known gently to lay the ball on the ground when he felt he could not be effective and facetiously call to some comrade on the bench:

"Come out here and finish this job. It's too large for me." And then, as a parting shot to the grinning batsman at the plate, "I'll be right here tomorrow, and the first time you come up you'll breeze."

ERIE TOOK THIRD GAME OF THE SERIES THANKS TO MR. BROWN'S GOOD PITCHING

Bluenoses Did Not Get a Hit Until the Sixth Innings—At That the Swats Were Lusty But Not Lucky -- Good Fielding Shown.

GAME BEGUN EARLY

RIVERSIDE PARK, July 8.—Erie and Peterborough met this afternoon in the last game of the series. The game was called at 2 o'clock to allow Erie a chance to catch the 4.40 train. The early hour affected the attendance which was the smallest of the week. Manager Gygli chose Brown as his box artist, while Tracey was Manager Blount's choice. Tomorrow's game with Toronto will start at 3 o'clock. The line-ups were:

ERIE	PETERBOROUGH
Dawson, m.	Blount, m.
Scott 2b.	Wash, l.f.
Colligan, l. f.	Dolan, 1b.
Gygli, 1b.	Stewart, r.f.
McNeal, r. f.	Byrne, 3b.
Paton, 2b.	King, 2b.
Behan, s. s.	Fox, s. s.
Carney, c.	Kelly, c.
Brown, p.	Tracey, p.

First Innings.

Erie — Dawson rolled to Tracey. Scott walked. Colligan hit into a double play, Fox to King to Dolan. —No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough — Blount grounded to Scott. Welsh bounced one to Behan. Dawson made a fine catch of Dolan's hard smash to deep left centre.—No runs, hits or errors.

Second Innings.

Erie—Gygli died on a bounder to Byrne, a nice play by the third baseman. McNeal flied to Blount. Welsh made a neat catch of Paton's short fly to left.—No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough—Stewart flied to Colligan. Colligan also grabbed Byrne's hard smash to left. King flied to McNeal.—No runs, hits or errors.

Third Innings.

Erie—Behan singled through short, the ball bouncing off Fox, back of second. The runner tried to go to second on the play, but King made a quick recovery and pegged to Tracey, who covered second in time to nail Behan. Byrne made a great play on Carney's hard smash. Brown flied to Stewart.—No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough—Dawson made a circus grab of Fox's hard smash to centre. Kelly grounded to Scott. Tracey fanned.—No runs, hits or errors.

Fourth Innings.

Erie—Dawson fanned. Scott was easy, King to Dolan. Colligan flied to Welsh.—No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough. — Blount walked. Welsh sacrificed. Dolan drove one to dep centre, which Dawson grabbed. Blount went to third. Stewart died on a roller to Paton, Brown covering first.—No runs, hits or errors.

Fifth Innings.

Erie—Gygli walked. McNeal scratched a hit when his bunt rolled by Tracey. Paton sacrificed, Tracey to Dolan. The decision at first was close, and Kel. Harris was chased from the coaching lines for howling. Behan hit through short, scoring Gygli and McNeal. Carney flied to Stewart. Brown drove one to Bount.—Two runs.

Peterborough—Byrne was safe on Behan's poor throw. King popped to Paton. Byrne stole second. No one covered second for Carney's throw. Fox was hit. Kelly flied to Colligan. Behan nailed Tracey's high one.—No runs, hits or errors.

Sixth Innings.

Erie—Dawson flied to Blount. Scott doubled to right. Colligan hit to Fox who got Scott going into third. Colligan went to second on Tracey's high throw to first. Gygli struck out —No runs, one hit, one error.

Peterborough—Blount lifted to Paton. Welsh singled to centre, the first hit off Brown. Dolan died on a roller in front of the plate. Stewart was out. Brown to Gygli.—No runs, one hit, no errors.

Seventh Innings.

Erie—McNeal fouled to Kelly. Byrne made a onehanded stop of Paton's grass-cutter and threw the runner out. Behan flied to Welsh.—No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough—Byrne was easy on a fly to Behan. King grounded to Paton. Fox walked and stole second. Carney's throw going to centre. Kelly hoisted to Behan.—No runs, hits or errors.

Eighth Innings.

Erie — Carney fouled to Kelly. Brown grounded to Fox. Dawson stole second and went to third on Kelly's high threw. Scott popped to King.—No runs, or hits, one error.

Peterborough — Dawson made a pretty catch of Tracey's smash. Blount grounded to Brown. Welsh flied to Dawson.—No runs, hits, no errors.

Ninth Innings.

Erie — Colligan grounded to Fox, Dolan grabbing the short stop's throw with his bare hand. Gygli died on a high one in front of the plate which Kelly nailed. McNeal rolled to Fox. —No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough— Dolan grounded to Paton. Stewart rolled to Scott. Byrne rolled to Behan.—No runs, hits or errors.

COATES HAD MET WILCOX IN JAIL

May Not Have Been the Same Man Whom Toronto Police Called Out But Circumstances Are Interesting

SPENT A WEEK ON BILL

One incident in the last moments of George Coates who, after escaping from the Peterborough County gaol was fatally injured by a G.T.R. train near Toronto, was the mention of the name of Wilcocks, 186 Broadview Ave. It seemed strange that the dying man not only gave this name, but that the man actually existed. The Toronto papers stated that Wilcocks denied all knowledge of the man and there is no question as to whether he was speaking truthfully or not. But it is known that during Coates' incarceration here, there was a traveller named Wilcocks who spent a weeks' remand in the gaol. He was charged with being drunk, and Magistrate Dumble gave him a week for sobering purposes. This Wilcox was a Toronto man. While on the hill he undoubtedly met Coates. At the same time there is no particular interest in whether Wilcocks had met the dead man in Peterborough or not, but a certain curiosity may be satisfied as to how Coates came into possession of the name and address.

2,200 CADETS IN CAMP

KINGSTON, July 6.—There are between 2,200 lads in the cadet corps camp of the third divisional area, which opened on Barriefield Heights to-day. The camp commandant is Col. T. D. R. Hemming, of this division. The camp will continue until Saurday morning.

IS RECOVERING

Mr. Clarke of Springville, who a short time ago, was very badly injured by falling from the roof of a barn that he was shingling, and who was taken to the Nicholsl' Hospital, has sufficiently recovered to be removed from the hospital, and has been taken to his home in Belleghem's ambulance. His many friends will be pleased to hear of his improvement.

Local Boy's Good Position

Mr. Harold Lees, at present with Farm and Dairy, has accepted the position of circulation manager of the Moose Jaw Evening Times. The Times is not onl yone of the largest dailies in the middle west, but one of the most influential, the Premier of Saskatchewan, Hon. Walter Scott, having a controlling interest in the company.

Mr. Lees advises the Examiner that he is not only pleased with the salary, which we understand, to begin with is about $1400, and is to go up to $1600, but with the whole prospect of his work in Moose Jaw.

Although accepting the position only a few days ago, Mr. Lees expects to leave for the west the latter part of this month to assume his new duties August 3rd.

SPEND YOUR "F-O-R-D-S" DIMES

They Are of No Value Towards Acquiring a Ford Car—Ford Co. Didn't Make Any Offer

LETTERS MISSING

Many coin collectors who have been saving American dimes on which appears the letters "D," "O" or "S" and have been looking for the remaining letter that constitute the word "Fords" will be sorry to learn that they cannot get them. A wild rumour has been around the continent to the effect that if the full word was secured they would be entitled to a oFrd car. It is stated officially that the letters cannot be procured through the mints and that the Ford Company did not make the offer.

A great many people have been fooled into believing that they might win a car by getting the five dimes. The American mints have announced that there are no coins minted with the letters "F" or "R." "D" is Denver, "O" is New Orleans, or Omaha and "S" is San Francisco.

Will Round Up Midnight Callers

The city appears to have a number of characters at present who are making midnight calls at houses, evidently with the object of purloining anything that meets with their approval.

A few nights ago a man called after midnight at a house on Victoria Avenue and endeavoured to obtain admission. The ladies of the house, who were thoroughly frightened, telephoned the police, but they were unable to locate any one after their arrival.

The police department have kept the city well free of maurauders in the past, and it would no doubt help the department if they were notified immediately of any disturbance to residents as soon as possible.

Charged With Criminal Assault

Charles Scriver, late garbage collector, was charged before Magistrate Edmison in the county court to-day with criminally assaulting Alice Williams on or about the 16th of June. The case was in progress at time of going to press.

ARRESTED WITH TRAVELLER'S BAGS

H. Harvey, alias C. W. Dauby, was arrested at noon to-day at the King George Hotel for stealing a traveller's suit case at Belleville on the 1st of July. The traveller, who represents a big confectionery firm, was in the City on business to-day, and while walking down George Street, saw a man across the road with a handbag that looked like his. He notified the police and an officer was sent to arrest him. The prison was brought before Magistrate Dumble and was remanded for a week till his record can be looked up.

CHEMONG PARK DANCE

The Chemong Park Regatta Club is holding their second weekly dance of the season on Thursday evening, and every effort is being put forth to ensure a real good time for all who attend. Mr. Asa Huycke and orchestra will supply the music and this alone is a sufficient guarantee that it will be of the very best. 3d-5

THREE BUYERS SHARED CHEESE ON TO-DAY'S MARKET

BIDDING WAS BRISK

To-day's price . . . . . 12 9-16 c.

Although the cheese market was off a little in price this week, the local salesmen secured a comparatively god figure. Bidding was brisk and every factory recived the top price. every factory received the top price, marked to-day's meeting. Mr. Switzer, President, called attention to the fact that references have been frequently made to the Peterborough Cheese Board being the banner Board of the Province and some had even said of the Dominion. This latter prominence was largely flattery, but at the same time the members realized that the Board was made up of Reeves, ex-Reeves, Councillors and other personages of County importance. Since the last meeting one of the leading buyers, Mr. Gillespie, by his elction to the position of Member of the Provincial Parliament, had added to the standing of the local Board.

W. S. Cook—Hear, hear.

Mr. Switzer—Of course I am omitting the Chairman. We hope we will merit the honour of being the banner board and that everyone connected with it will contribute his share toward making Peterborough the cheese centre it should be.

Mr. Gillespie said that his election was, for the most part, due to the splendid workers who had assisted him. In the same manner the Cheese Board could not make progress by the efforts of one or two members. Cheese makers, salesmen, buyers and patrons all have a certain duty to do. When everyone is working together the Board will reach its greatest achievement. Mr. Gillespie thanked the members for their felicitations.

Factories Represented.

The factories boarded as follows: Keene, 90; Warminster, 80; Shearer, 120; Central Smith, 110; Selwyn, 110; Warsaw, 100; Westwood, 150; Oakdale, 100; Daisy D., 85; Myrtle, 140; Ormonde, 150; Young's Point, 70, Lang, 100; Indian River, 90; East Emily, 130; Trewern, 120; Norwood, 170; Fleetwood 105, Killarney 125, Villiers, 100. Total, 2,140.

The Bidding.

Mr. Morton opened at 12c.; Cook raised to 1-4, Flavelle 3-8, and Morton 1-2. Cook made it 12 9-16, and secured Norwood, Killarney, Daisy D., Ormonde, Westwood, Villiers, Warsaw, Keene, Warminster, Oakdale, Lang. Several of the buyers called 1-2 for the balance of the Board, but Mr. Flavelle raised to 9-16, and called Shearer, Myrtle, East Emily, Fleetwood.

Mr. Morton took the balance at 12 9-16c., securing, Trewern, Selwyn, Indian River and Young's Point.

It was noticed that Mr. Flavelle was five cheese short of the necessary 500, which is required of each buyer who secures a choice. The Board, however, was not so scrupulous for the rule as to mention the matter.

Buckhorn Factory.

The President reported that Buckhorn factory desired to be listed on the Board, but reserving the right to sell only to those buyers they preferred. On motion of Mr Crack, seconded by Mr. Coughlin, it was decided not to entertain the Buckhorn offer unless all the rules of the Board would be complied with.

Mr. J. W. Wilkinson, representing the White Star Dominion Line, stated that he was interested only in the freight end of the business, and would like to see the dairy business increased to such an extent that the cheese exporters could secure a low export price. The development of ocean travel had outstripped the progress made in farming methods.

An adjournment was called for two weeks.

PETITIONING THE RAILWAY AND MUNICIPAL BOARD

Residents of Section of Aylmer St. North of Brock, Contend That Nature of the Street Does Not Warrant the Laying of Permanent Pavement

PETITION LARGELY SIGNED

A petition is being sent to the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board, signed by a majority of the owners of the property to be assessed for the cost of the construction of a pavement on Aylmer Street from Murray Street to Hunter Street, and asking the Board to interfere for their relief. The property owners objected to the construction of the pavement, first, because the work had not been petitioned for; second, because the street was in good order and not out of repair; third, because much of the land on this part of Aylmer Street was not available for building puposes; fourth, because the pavement was of a more expensive character than local surroundings justified; fifth, because the foundations of the road were of such a nature as to sink and be injurious to the pavement; and, lastly, because the section referred to was not a business street, and except on the East side of Aylmer, from Murray to Brock Streets, and one residence on the West side, there were no residences on that part of the street, either.

The petition was signed by Thomas Brightman, Jos. R. Metheral, T. H. Fleming, E. H. D. Hall, John Mervin, W. G. Metheral, F. D. Burrett, D. H. Burrett and R. B. Lundy.

Some days ago the same property owners petitioned the Council asking that the pavement planned for that part of the street, not be laid. But the City Fathers, after considering the matter, decided that it would not be wise to leave a portion of the street unpaved, and refused to change their plans.

Mrs. Pankhurst Is In Again

LONDON, Eng., July 8.—Appearing at the suffragette headquarters this morning for the first time for two weeks, Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst who was on release from hunger strike, was promptly rearrested and returned to Holloway jail, where she again commenced a hunger and sleep strike.

DARING GIRL TELLS OF THRILLING DIVE

SHE LIKES PETERBOROUGH

The Examiner representative had a most interesting interview this morning with Miss Elma Meier, the young lady whose thrilling dive, from a 75-foot elevation into a tank containing four feet of water, is the sensational feature of the Washburn carnival. Guided by Captain Stanley Lewis of the Washburn business staff, the scribe located Miss Meier in the cozy khaki tent within the tank enclosure (which also runs as a "swimmer camp" during the day) and interrupted the dainty "diver-ette" in the process of developing a large number of photographic films which were strung from every available point in the tent for "drying out" purposes, and Miss Meier greeted the Examiner man and his escort with a welcoming smile, called to her assistant to bring camp chairs for the visitors, and extended a friendly hand, moist with developing fluid and possessing the "physical culture" grip that goes with superb athletic training.

"Yes, I have been doing aquatic work ever since I can remember," said Miss Meier. "I have three sisters and a brother, all expert swimmers, and papa (who always travels with me) was instructor for years at the Y.M.C.A. natatorium in Cincinnati. I could swim almost before I could walk, and have always been as much at home in the water as on land.

"In making my high dive, I guide my course exactly as an aviator guides his aeroplane. You will notice that I wait for a few moments at the top of the ladder before making the leap; this is not for "posing" purposes as many people think, but in order to get my breath—which is pretty well exhausted after my strenuous exhibition of trick and fancy diving and my perpendicular climb of 75 feet—and also that I may gauge the air currents. If an unexpected gust of wind should arise while I am in the air, it might cause me to veer sufficiently to strike the side of the tank. Also, my lungs must be inflated to the fullest extent when I strike the water; if the impact came against my deflated chest it would break a rib or two.

"Instead of putting my hands together above my head as most divers do, before leaving the platform, I spread my arms like the wings of a bird till just before I strike the surface. Then I quickly alter the position of my hands so as to form a wedge when entering the water—and you will notice that I strike the surface at a sharp angle, the same as you would "skip" a stone on the lake. I hardly go two feet underneath, and my momentum is so great that I make a complete curve beneath the water and shoot out almost as fast as I enter it."

"What are your impressions of Peterborough, Miss Meier?" queried the Examiner man.

"It is one of the nicest towns I have ever visited," was the reply. "Your stores in particular, are so much larger than in the majority of cities of this size. I have made a lot of purchases while here, and I think that your new big store (Turnbull's) is the finest I have seen in Canada. Of course Eaton's in Toronto is a little larger, but everything seems so fresh and new and up-to-date, and the salespeople are so courteous and obliging to strangers, that it's a pleasure to trade there. Then there is your canoe factory—why when I was two years old—and I am 18 now—papa got me a little Peterborough canoe and I used to paddle it around as a part of our "family" aquatic act."

The reporter was about to ask more questions when a growling bundle of yellow fur with savage-looking teeth and glaring eyes was dropped at his feet, and Mlle. Flora, the lion tamer from the wild animal arena, entered the tent with the other cub under her arm to be photographed. Miss Meier dragged from a capacious trunk several big books albums for the scribe's inspection, certainly snapshots taken by herself all over the world; on Pacific liner decks, riding elephants in India (another favourite diversion, so she always rides about the ground on "Gyp's" broad back for an after supper constitutional, and scenes of travel, cold-flakes, from Boston to Friesa and beyond.

The fact that there is a real homelike, family life with the Washburn carnival cannot be better exemplified than in the case of dainty, girlish Elma Meier, travelling with "daddy" as chaperon and absorbed in her hobby of amateur photography. Among those people whose lives depend on clear-headedness and to whom the slightest error of judgment means crushing oblivion against the rim of a tank, or a mangled form beneath a lion's paw, late hours and dissipation are unknown. These cool-headed and clear-eyed members of the great family who earn their daily bread by risk of life and limb, are at heart, very much like you and

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER CLOSELY GUARDED

Richest Man on Earth Practically a Prisoner on Birthday

AFRAID OF COLLECTORS

Examiner Special:

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., July 8. — Afraid to go to New York fearing anarchists, and fearing to go to Cleveland because of importunate tax collectors, John D. Rockfeller, the wealthiest man in the world, to-day passed his seventy-fifth birthday on his estate here practically a prisoner, guarded by armed sentries and followed about by his own private detective, with loaded revolvers. Contrary to his usual custom he refused to see reporters and had no birthday message to hand out to the world.

WELCOMED THEIR NEW PASTOR

Congregational Gathering at Mark Street Methodist Church Last Evening

The congregation of Mark Street Methodist Church tendered a reception to their new pastor, Rev. Mr. Phelps, last evening. A large number of the congregation attended and a very enjoyable evening was spent. Mr. John Speer, of the Board of Management, after the singing of the Doxology, in a few introductory remarks, invited Rev. Mr. Feever, of George Street Methodist Church, to take the chair. Mr. Feever, in a neat, spirited, extended a hearty welcome to Mr. Phelps, as also did Rev. Mr. Clarry, of St. James' Church, and Rev. J. G. Lewis. Mr. A. Nicholls, organist, gave a well rendered pianoforte solo. Mr. E. Jones sang in splendid voice, "Fear Ye Not, O Israel." Other numbers were a recitation by Mrs. Nicholls, and a trio by Miss Nicholls, Mr. Jones and Mr. J. Iredale.

Words of greeting were extended Mr. Phelps by representatives from Bethel and Salem appointments, also by Mrs. J. Speer, representing the Ladies' Aid, and by Mr. Thomas Henry, on behalf of the Board of Mark Street Church.

Mr. Phelps, in reply, referrred feelingly to the very kindly reception that he had received from the members of his new charge. Th sincerity of their welcome had touched him deeply, and he already was quite at home.

A closing hymn was sung, after which a social hour was spent, and refreshments were served.

Charged With House Breaking

Martin Sullivan had care of a horse and buggy, and through drunkenness was unable to drive the same. He paid a fine of $5.75 for his folly.

William and Arthur Maxwell were charged with breaking into the home of W. A. Bailey, George Street, and stealing a pair of boots, 1 pair of flannel trousers, 1 pair of gold cuff links, a pair of opera glasses, gloves and other articles.

BASEBALL

The Red Caps and De Laval teams will play a Mercantile League game at Riverside Park to-night at 6.30 o'clock.

I with our trades and professions or housekeeping duties. It is an actual fact that Flora, the "lion queen" gains more personal satisfaction from the manufacture of a delicious pie than in the applause of her audience: that Captain Lewis, the publicity manager of the carnival, whose red racing car is the epuesure of all eyes on the streets, is an author of fame in the Munsey Magazines and of several books as well: and that "Ivo," the spotted man in the side show is a graduate of Booker, Washington's loved university at Tuskegee, Alabama, an enthusiastic Christian Scientist, and is never so contented as when discussing theological problems. These statements are absolutely true and prove how little half the world knows about the other half.

MR. EVANTUREL'S RE-ELECTION.

(From L'Evenement.

We regret the re-election of Mr. G. Eventurel in Prescott. We are not perhaps perfectly au courant with the local conditions of this division, but it seems to us that our compatriots should have relieved themselves forever of this cynical and impudent personage. This man was taken in the act of trafficking in his honour, in his conscience and in his votes as a representative of the people. In the face of undeniable proofs he admitted his guilt, but had the audacity to plead as extenuating circumstances, his poverty, the custom of politics, and his thought for the liquor sellers whom he offered to defend against his own party for a given sum. Repudiated by his colleagues on both sides of the chamber, he still sought to stick to his seat as a member, and only gave his resignation after having been publicly threatened with expulsion. His re-election is as regrettable as would be that of a Mousseau or a Berard.

THE HINDU DECISION.

Ottawa Journal.

The decision of the British Columbia courts yesterday upholding the Dominion Order-in-Council prohibiting the entry into Canada of aliens not direct from the land of birth, and not in possession of $200, removes considerable uneasiness in government circles, and meets the views of most Canadians. An almost similar Order-in-Council was declared illegal by Justice Hunter last year on the ground that it did not conform with the statute upon which it was based. A new Order-in-Council to meet the case was issued about six months ago, designed as the other to exclude Asiatics, and it was the legality of this which the courts upheld yesterday. The decision of the court means that the four hundred or more Hindus in the Japanese ship, off the British Columbia coast, cannot set foot on Canadian soil. But another ship-load of Hindus destined for Vancouver is on the Pacific. And while the decision of the courts, solved the immediate problem confronting the authorities, the real question remains.

THE OBLIGATION TO VOTE.

The Government is considering the suggestion that general election day be proclaimed a public holiday. The proposal is worthy of much thought. Anything that will tend to impress upon the people the supreme importance of the ballot, should be brought about as speedily as possible. If more men can be got out to the polls on election day by making that day a general holiday, then by all means let's have the holiday. But as a matter of fact the great majority of those who do not exercise the franchise are men who value the boon too little to use it. In years gone by Britons waded through fire and blood to win the right to vote. To-day some of their descendants refuse to walk across the street to exercise that right. We must come to that attitude of mind where the man who refuses to vote on election day will be regarded as without rights, as delinquent in a great moral obligation. If the making of general election day a public holiday will hasten along that frame of mind, the sooner we have the declaration the better.—Ottawa Journal.

THE INCREASE IN WEALTH.

(Toronto Star)

Sir George Paish, in the London of the last century. The United Kingdom in 1814 had a wealth of £2,500,000,000. A conservative estimate of its present wealth is £17,000,000,000 — a sevenfold increase. The wealth of France in the same period has grown from two billions sterling to ten billions, a fivefold increase. Germany, which scattered States had a wealth less than that of France a century ago, now has sixteen billions sterling, or one billion less than the United Kingdom. Its progress has been greater than that of either France or the United Kingdom.

Naturally one would expect a much greater rate of increase in the United States, owing to the enormous opportunities for expansion. In 1814 the United States was practically only a thin fringe of settlement along the Atlantic Coast, while its population is now spread over an area nearly as large as Europe. Its wealth has increased from three hundred and fifty million pounds sterling to thirty-five billions. Sir George Paish proceeds:

"This rise in economic prosperity has completely changed the atmosphere in which men live. It is difficult to grasp the fact that only a century ago none but the very wealthy could afford to travel, that nearly all were chained to the localities in which they were born, that even in London there were no omnibuses, that all but the very rich were compelled to live in the immediate vicinity of their workshops or businesses, and that now it is possible for most persons to travel not merely by motor-bus, tram-car, railway, motor-car or bicycle, from their homes to their occupations, but to journey many thousands of miles at small cost to obtain employment, either temporary or permanent. Moreover, when one stops to think that in those days news papers, magazines, books, or engravings were very great luxuries, to be indulged in by the few, and that it was exceptional for people to know anything of affairs outside their own village or town, whereas now nearly all are rich enough to purchase newspapers or magazines containing information about everything under the sun, to possess prints of the greatest pictures in the world, and are able to keep in touch with social, scientific, political, and religious thought not only in their own locality and State, but in every country, one is compelled to acknowledge, however averse one is to doing so, that the advance in the mental condition of the world in consequence of the growth of wealth and of income has been extraordinary. Thus a very cursory review of conditions to-day and a century ago reveals the wonderful change on every side of life, in this and in other countries, and the great forward movement of the nations both in mental and economic well-being."

When the figures of increasing wealth are displayed, misgivings arise, and one thinks of Goldsmith's line, "Where wealth accumulates and men decay." But this is not true of the last century. Wealth means more than money. It means, as the editor of the Statist says, comfort, refinement, education, travel, and while all have not shared justly or equally, all have benefited to some extent.

The year 1814 was not by any means a golden age to which we need look backward with reverence and regret. The laws were more unjust than they are to-day. In England there were more than two hundred offences, some of the most trivial kind, for which the punishment was death. Ignorance was the accepted lot of all but a few, and it was regarded as foolish and almost impious to educate people "above their station." The long war with France checked social progress and encouraged reaction, so that agitation for political reform and liberty was regarded as a crime. William Cobbett, in his "Rural Rides," writen early in the century, described an England that was anything but "merrie." Dickens and Carlyle, later on in the century, gave a most gloomy picture of the condition of the poor.

About the [illegible] spirit of political and social reform was revived, and a glorious era of moral and intellectual progress began. It went side by side with the increase in wealth, and was related to it, more subtly than can be described in a brief space. No country was ever harmed by an increase in wealth; but harm has come through the monopoly and the abuse of wealth.

Elemnary instruction is obligatory in France for children of both sexes between the ages of 6 and 13.

The United States, Germany and France, in the order named, are the world's greatest consumers of coffee.

NEWS FROM TEXAS ABOUT FORMER OLD CITIZENS

A Wedding and a Death That Recall Former Peterborough Friends

Mr. Alexander of the electrical firm of Alexander & Miller, has handed the Examiner copies of the Laredo, Texas, Times of June 25th and 26th in which the following items will be of interest to a number of our readers:

Beautiful Home Wedding.

The bride in this instance is the daughter of a sister of Mr. P. Alexander of this City. The Laredo Times says:

A beautiful and impressive home wedding, simple in all its appointments, was solemnized in this city in Wednesday evening, Jan. 24th at 6 o'clock when Rev. Henry Austin, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Corpus Christi, pronounced the words which linked the destinies of two happy young people, Dr. Robert Andrew McCulloch of Corpus Christi and Miss Katherine Pearl Winch of this city. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr and Mrs. G. H. Winch.

There were no attendants and the ceremony was witnessed only by members of the families of the contracting couples and a few intimate friends. Precisely at the appointed hour the happy couple, preceded by the ribbon bearers, Pearl and Ruby Colman, Holcombe Austin and Freddie Winch, formed in the hall of the Winch home. Following a solo by Mr. Robert Moynahan, "Love's Coronation," the bride on the arm of the groom entered to the melodies of Mendelssohn's wedding march, rendered on the piano by Miss Roberta Kelly. Proceeding to a place beneath the large white wedding bell which occupied a place in the decorated parlour, where there was a profusion of ferns and shasta daisies arranged about the room with esthetic taste, they were met by Rev. Henry Austin, and there took place the pronouncement of the impressive words which made the happy couple man and wife.

Following the consummation of this important event and the extending of felicitations and well wishes the bridal party and guests repaired to the dining hall, where a large wedding cake was cut, the thimble falling to the lot of Mr. Robert Moynahan, the ring to Miss Lucille Murphy and the dime to Miss Flora Bunn.

The beautiful and winsome bride was becomingly attired in a gown fashioned of soft white charmeuse, with slightly decollette bodice trimmed with pearl bands. The draped skirt had a deep tunic of shadow lace. Caught at the shoulders and falling in soft folds was the full court train. The veil, which was arranged with a coronet band of orange blossoms, was of tulle and fell the length of the train, where it was finished with a broad cuff edged with orange blossoms. The only ornament worn was a pendant of diamonds and pearls, a gift of the groom. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and lilies of the valley.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Winch and one of Laredo's most popular young ladies, who, by her pleasant ways and happy disposition has endeared herself to all who know her. One of the teachers of the public schools here for several years, she won the love and esteem of pupils, parents and co-workers. The fortunate groom is a former Laredo young man, but now one of the leading professional men of Corpus Christi, to which place, after a short honeymoon trip to Colorado, they will go to make their future home down by the seashore. Dr. and Mrs. McCulloch left for Colorado last night and will be at home to their friends after the bridal trip at the Williams Hotel in Corpus Christi.

To Dr. and Mrs. McCulloch go the congratulations and well wishes of a host of friends for a long and happy life, and may they, as they listen to the murmurings of the sea in its lash upon the shelly shores, have only the melodies of hapiness, joy and prosperity surrounding them.

Death of Mrs. F. H. Lithgow.

The deceased lady was the wife of Mr. F. H. Lithgow, formerly in the employ of H. S. MacDonald's drug store, this City. The Laredo Times says:

A shadow of deepest gloom was cast over this community this morning when the sad intelligence reached the many friends of the family announcing that Mrs. Magdelen A. Lithgow, wife of F. H. Lithgow, had peacefully passed unto that world where there is no more suffering and where the patient sufferer received her reward of eternal rest. Since last Monday, when at her home near Lalitas, she suffered a hemorrhage of the brain, Mrs. Lithgow had been in a comatose condition, never regaining consciousness. The sufferer was removed to this city on Wednesday. Gradually each day the afflicted one became weaker and those who sat at her bedside and did everything that human hands could do to prolong her life, despaired of her ultimate recovery. This morning (June 26th) at 8.35 o'clock, at Mercy Hospital, the soul left its citadel of suffering and winged its flight toward that eternal home where life everlasting is promised all.

Mrs. Lithgow was a native of Brooklyn, N.Y., where she was born about 40 years ago. Her maiden name was Miss Magdalene A. August, and she was a daughter of Dr. John J. August, a prominent pioneer physician of Brooklyn. On October 6, 1898, in Rosslyn, N. Y., the subject of this sketch was married to Mr. Fred H. Lithgow, and soon thereafter the happy couple removed to Laredo to make their home and have resided here ever since, most of the time making their home on the Lithgow farm near Lalitas, where Mrs. Lithgow was at the time she suffered the fatal malady which ended in her death. Deceased was a woman beloved by those who knew her best, a good Christian and a devotel wife. In her death the husband loses a loving companion, the brothers and sisters a dear relative and the community a good woman, and to these go out the sincere sympathy of their friends in their bereavement.

Besides her husband Mr. F. H. Lithgow, deceased is survived by one sister, Mrs. Ida Grieirson, of Brooklyn, and one brother, Dr. J. J. August of New York City.

The remaines have been removed from the Mercy Hospital, where death occurred, to the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Winch, from where the funeral was held, with interment in the Masonic burial grounds in the city cemetery.

Pres. Woodrow Wilson at Philadelphia on Independence Day.—These two photographs of President Wilson were taken during his address to the enormous crowd at the Independence Day celebration in front of Independence Hall, Philadelphia, on July 4th.

VACATION VAGARIES

By P. O'D in Saturday Night

(P. O'D., in Saturday Night.)

Vacation is an excellent institution. Any thing that makes a man as contented with his job and his ordinary lot in life as it does must be a good thing. After two weeks spent at the average summer resort the food at home or in the old boarding-house in the city seems rich and varied, and the work at the office proves an intellectual recreation.

The best thing about vacation is making plans for it. This is a truism, did you say? Of course, it is a truism. Occasionally we indulge in truisms, though our natural preference is for "isms" that are true.

When we say 'making plans," we mean plans only in the most general and romantic sense. Once you come down to details, all the poetry is squeezed out of the thing. The business of writing to hotelkeepers and railway passenger agents and other rich and dishonest people for information, is a bore and a burden. So also is packing up.

Honestly, now, as one man to another, dear reader—or as one woman to a man, or whatever the circumstances may require—did you ever use half the things you brought? Did you? No, of course not. No one ever does.

Personally we have travelled light, and we have travelled heavy, and the result has always been the same. The year we took a trunk with raincoats and overcoats and various weights of underwear, the weather was fine, and warm throughout, and all we really needed was a couple of shirts and some duck trousers. Even our toothbrush was useless, for we got practically nothing to eat.

The next time we decided to limit our impedimenta very strictly, and we carried our belongings in our pocket and a brown-paper parcel. That year we encountered every one of the fifty odd varieties of weather and temperature, and two freight cars couldn't have carried all the clothes we needed. The irony of things?—yes, also the tinnery and leadery and any other base metal you can think of.

Therefore, we repeat, the practical details of getting ready for a vacation are a weariness and an abomination. But the general plans, the vague and glowing dreams—ah, the pictures of one's self poised like a god in the path of the breakers while the peaches on the beaches gaze longingly upon one, or again smiling carelessly while one steers canoe containing beautiful ladies down dangerous rapids, or still again, singing amorous madrigals by moonlight while one drifts in the shadow of the pines. These visions are well worth the disillusion which follows.

Every young man—whether fifteen or fifty—has cherished these or similar dreams of the joys that await him in the days of vacation. And nearly every young man has had the same experience of going up to the same old summer hotel or boarding house, where you sleep on a lumpy bed with a crazy quilt, battle with the flies for your food, and spend your evenings rowing a fat girl around a pond in a flat-bottomed boat.

"But if you really want to know what flies and mosquitoes—not to speak of ants and beetles and caterpillars—can really do, you ought to go 'roughing it'". As if the ordinary summer boarding-house wasn't rough enough for anything but the most jaded taste! "Roughing it" is a pleasure to which Canadian youth between the ages of eighteen and twenty-five is peculiarly liable.

We succumbed once. We went with a canoe and a tent and some beans and a couple of fellows who said they were old woodsmen and knew how to cook. Some day we may be able to bring ourselves to write up that trip in detail. But it is only ten years ago, and the memory [illegible] cod-liver oil through [illegible] again [illegible] only "rough" seems a mild word to apply to it.

Publication of the new directory showed that the population of greater Vancouver increased 4,000 during the past year.

BAD LIGHTING

Any kind of artificial lighting that produces glare is wrong in principle, and its effect upon the eyes will be felt as though the sun were being hung in the room in the line of vision. The eye can see less with a brilliant unshaded light than it can with less light well protected.

Let us help you with practical suggestions for lighting your new home or re-arranging the fixtures and lights in the old one.

Participating versus Non-Participating Life Policies Again

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO a Publisher of this City at age 43 took out a Ten Pay 15 year Endowment Policy of $2000, No 81226 in The Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada paying therefore an annual premium of $187.20.

The Non-Participating Premium would have been $170.40.

The extra paid for profits per year (for 10 years only was $16.80.

On the 1st of May 1914 the above Policy matured and he received in cash $2620.25.

Had this man taken a Non-Participating Policy he would have saved $168.00 extra in premiums paid for profits during the ten years but he would have lost $620.25 at maturity of Policy as he would have received only $2000.00 instead of $2620.25 as he did.

Where is there a man that would not like to invest money at such a rate and that too in the Largest and Strongest Life Insurance Company in the British Empire?

You are invited to call and investigate.

H. C. Buffaur, Teacher.

The Dominion Day at Chemong was celebrated with an evidence of patriotism by the natives and patronized by the representatives from Peterborough, Ennismore, Lakefield and Oak Orchard. At an early hour the boys were busy making preparations for the afternoon. The athletic programme was varied and interesting. Entries were scheduled for all as follows:

Carpenter race—Won by J. Berdon, Ennismore.

Throwing baseball—Won by Willie Taylor, Chemong.

Throwing shoulder stone, won by Will Hickson of Ennismore.

200 yards' dash, won by Jonas Jacoba.

Tug-of-war, Chemong vs. Ennismore, won by Chemong.

Hop, step and jump, won by L. D. Tayoh, Jr.

Owing to a shower of rain in the early part of the afternoon some of the events were cancelled. At night there was a grand display of fireworks.

On the day following the Chemong baseball team went to Lakefield, and won a game from the Lakfield nine.

Mr. Wm. Taylor spent the First of July at Roma.

Mrs. George Goose and family are here visiting her daughter, Mrs. L. D. Tayior.

Mrs. John Muskrat, of Hiawatha, is here visiting.

Mr. J. Wallace, of Elkhart, Indiana, is the guest at the the Oshkigmong House.

The band boys are giving an open air concert every evening.

Receipts at the British Columbia land registry office for May showed an increase of more than $1,000 over the previous month.

The Rite Of Confirmation

Was Administered to Forty Children by Bishop O'Brien at Hastings

Examiner Special:

HASTINGS, July 7.—Dominion Day celebrations passed off rather quietly in our town, the only feature of attraction being the lacrosse tournament, which attracted quite a number of the lovers of this sport to the grounds, each one anxious to see their own team win.

A private picnic passed through Hastings from Benafort on Tuesday last, those on board apparently out for a good time.

The rite of confirmation was solemnized in the R.C. Church here on Tuesday last, when Bishop O'Brien of Peterborough, administered the rite to some 40 children.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Smith and children are camping down the river.

Mr. and Mrs. German have taken a cottage down the river for a couple of weeks, and are enjoying the fresh air.

Mr. Ivan Tapping, of Oshawa, is home for a short vacation with his parents.

Mr. Clark was in Cobourg on Tuesday.

Mr. G. Mickel, of Ottawa, has been renewing acquaintances here.

Dr. Doxsee, of Toronto, spent a few days in Hastings, boating and fishing, the guest of Messrs. R. C. and B. F. Doxsee.

Mr. Hollingbeck, who has been with Mr. T. Coughlan as jeweller for some time, leave this week to accept new position in another town. We wish him success.

Mrs. E. J. Laing and daughters, Mabel and Elsie, spent Dominion Day with Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Beavis.

Mr. Anderson, of Aurora, spent a few days during the past week wit' his son, Rev. T. H. Anderson, at the Parsonage.

Mrs. George Hormel has been visiting friends in Port Hope.

Mr. Johnson and family, of Ingersoll, are spending a month camping on an island near town.

Mr. Frank Kerr, of Peterborough, is spending a few days in and around Hastings.

Mrs. D. Scrivens returned during the past week from a visit with friends out of town.

Farmers are busy haying and report the crops in fine shape.

The Presbyterian Sunday School has completed arrangements for their anual picnic to Jubilee Point at an early date.

Mr. Staples, Principal of the Public School, has gone to his home to spend his vacation.

The recent welcome showers have greatly improved the appearance of the country, and the crops are much improved in consequence.

Mr. Winter Runnels spent Sunday with friends out of town.

All men may be born free and equal, but it is the woman who are born equal to any emergency.

Cultivate the habit of smiling right after breakfast. It may be a struggle, but it is a wonderful tonic.

THE LATE A. G. DICKSON

Impressive Service Last Night Many Friends Present

About seventy of the most intimate friends of the late A. G. Dickson availed themselves of the opportunity of being present at an impressive religious service held in Comstock's undertaking rooms, George Street, last evening. This was to be the last occasion given for viewing the body of deceased previous to its removal to Toronto for burial.

The Rev. Mr. Rollins of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church officiated. After the singing of "Rock of Ages," one of deceased's favourite hymns, Mr. Rollins read appropriate lessons from the Scriptures, which were followed by a thoughtful and earnest address, reference being made to the splendid type of Christian gentleman which the deceased represented and to his bereaved widow, who asked for their prayers in her behalf that she might be sustained in her present hour of sore trial. After the hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee," was sung, the numerous sorrowing friends took a parting look at the face of the deceased, when the coffin was sealed.

This morning the widow took the remains of her late husband to Toronto via C.P.R. for interment. She was accompanied by Mr. D. Shook, an elder of St. Paul's Church, and Mr. Kerr, of the law firm of Peck, Kerr & McElderry, and Undertaker W. Comstock. A number of intimate friends were also at the station.

Lawn Social Was A Success

BAILLIEBORO, July 6.—Mr. J. Hutchinson, of Peterborough, was down visiting friends last week.

Mr. Ivan Gray, of Garden Hill, returned home Monday after visiting friends here.

The strawberry festival in connection with Centreville Presbyterian Church turned out a great success.

Rev. Mr. Keith, of Knox Church, Peterborough, wife and family, Mr. and Mrs. McCannan, motored to Cobourg and on return trip called and had tea at Centreville.

Mr. H. Falls, of Roseneath, is home visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Falls.

Mr. Robert Johnston and friends motored in to Port Hope on July 1.

Rev. Mr. Craw and family attended the strawberry festival on Friday last.

Mr. Robert Robertson and family were visiting friends here this week.

Rev. Mr. Wicket, of Fraserville, and wife, were in attendance at the festival on Friday last.

Mr. Kerry, of Millbrook, sang a few pieces which helped to entertain the crowd on Friday.

Mr. A. Eagleson and friends motored to Port Hope on July 1.

IN THE CITY AFTER A LONG ABSENCE

Mr. Ernie McFarlane, of Globe, Cal., accompanied by his wife and child, are in the city on a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. McFarlane, Homewood avenue.

Mr. McFarlane has not been in Peterborough for over thirteen years, and sees many changes for the better in that time. He has been for some time operating a fruit farm with considerable success. He is located just about two and a half miles from Mr. Duncan Cameron, another old Peterborough resident, who is also conducting a fruit farm, with equal success. Mr. McFarlane states that the larger cities on the coast are feeling the general depression, but the smaller towns have nothing to complain of yet.

FLIRTS AND THEIR PROBABLE FATE

Pleasant, agreeable, chatty girls, who have a good word for all their gentleman acquaintances, are not necessarily flirts—indeed, they very seldom are. We all know the flirts, even if they do not take pains, as some of them do, to make themselves known.

If the girls who prize themselves on the skill in the art of flirtation could only hear all that is said of them behind their backs, I fancy they would renounce their boasted blandishments altogether, and would blush (if they have not already passed that wholesome indication of shame) at the false part they had been playing in society.

The practical flirt is regarded by all young men, except perhaps, those who are foolish enough to become her victims) merely as a frivolous piece of humanity with whom it may be well enough to while away an idle hour occasionally. But as to becoming engaged to her!—they shake their heads when that is even hinted at.

She is freely discussed in smoke rooms, in club rooms, and in hotel parlours where her little tricks of fascination are often the subjects of jests not alway the most complimentary to her.

A flirt is looked upon by thoughtful men as an actress—without the excuse of a passion for the stage, or the necessity for her shameless dissimulation. Instead of enjoying the respect which all honourable men entertain for a true woman, she is treated with her contempt while the good ed with mere contempt while the good not encourage her acquaintance. As to obtaining a desirable husband, her chance is a very remote one. The probability is she will die unmarried, or, what is much worse, will accept as a last resort, some unprincipled man, who, by his treatment of her, will avenge the deception she has long practiced upon others of his sex.

Girl Elopes With Wealthy Youth

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6.—Robert E. McCall, U.C., '10, associated with his father, D. McCall, in the largest hardware and automobile business in Stockton, as a young man of judgment and action, and when Miss Jean Anderson, a dainty little maid born in County Antrim, Ireland, and for ten years a resident at Brandon, Manitoba, where her father is a rich retired wheat grower, came to visit friends in Stockton, he promptly made up his mind she was the only girl in the world for him.

PAPA FAR AWAY IN CANADA

Miss Anderson after a while thought the same, so without having time to consult Father Anderson, thousands of miles away in Canad, or even Father McCall, near at hand, the young couple got into an automobile and went seeking Judge Morgan and the marriage clerk here in San Francisco.

Arriving at the Hotel Manx, they found their friends, Manager E. F. Cunningham, of the Shelton Electric Company, and Mrs. Cunningham, awaiting them, and succeeded in finding Judge Morgan, who gave them the state's and his own blessing.

Mr. and Mrs. McCall will pass a few days with their friends in the city and after a little trip return to Stockton, where the bride has already made many friends, who will welcome ser, not the least of whom is D. McCall, Sr.

What Robert McCall, Jr., is interested in is the reception he will get from father James Anderson, of Manitoba, when he meets him, but Mrs. McCall tells him not to worry, and somehow her presence seems to give her young husband courage and confidence. He would go against a whole battalion of fathers, if he had to.

DIED OF A BROKEN HEART

Special to The Examiner:

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., July 8.—That Fontu Tudor, a Roumanian, practically died of a broken heart because he could not find work here, and send the necessary money for support of his wife and six children in Roumania was the verdict of the coroner's jury at Thorold last night. He had been drawn to Canada by the statements of lots of work at high wages.

MATRIMONY'S TEN COMMANDMENTS.

1. Never, except for the best reasons, to oppose my wife's will.
2. To discharge all duties for her sake freely.
3. Never to scold.
4. Never to look cross at her.
5. Never to worry her with commands.
6. To promoter her piety.
7. To bear her burdens.
8. To overlook her foibles.
9. To save, cherish and forever defend her.
10. To remember her aways in my prayers. Thus, God willing, we shall be blessed.

Five Drowned When Submarine Was Wrecked

Special Wire to The Examiner:

PARIS, France, July 8.—Although it was at first contradicted, the officials of the Admiralty to-day admit that five members of the crew of the French submarine Calypso, perished when that vessel collided with a destroyer while navigating on the surface.

Many a time a pleasant smile,
Or just one kind word spoken,
Will brighten a life that all the while
Seemed to be shattered and broken.

Many a time a look or sign
Will start a heart to beating
With greatest joy or saddest grief—
As good or bad is the greeting.

Many a one who feels cast down
And that life isn't worth the living,
Could be made to see the brighter side
By one little word of our giving.

So let us guard each little act
That we may cause no aching
Of hearts by what we do or say—
Let only happiness be of our making. —Russell Aubrey.

Eight Explorers Lost In Arctic

SEARCHERS NEARLY FROZEN

Examiner Special:

OTTAWA, Juy 8.—That at least eight men of Steffanson's Canadian Arctic expedition left the steamer Karluk's party, after the boat sank in the Arctic and have not been heard from, is the report received this morning from Capt. Bartlett, via Nome, Alaska, to Deputy Minister Desbartes of the Marine Department. Fears are expressed that they perished on the ice of in the icy waters, or met death at the hands of unfriendly Eskimos. The missing men are some of the most important in the Steffanson expedition, including First Officer Alexander Anderson of Fifeshire, Scotland; Second Officer Charles Bartlett, of Victoria, B.C.; two seamen from Victoria, Henry Beuchat, anthropologist, of Paris, Prance; Dr. Allister Forbes McKay, surgeon of the expedition, of Edinburgh, Scotland; Lewis Murray of Foxfield Hants, England, and two British sailors. Captain Bartlett, himself, with the rescuing party, struggled over the ice and water for three weeks, to trace the party. They came across traces of cariboo, apparently shot for food, but they lost track of the trail at a point near the Siberian Coast, where an ice barrier has apparently broken away from the land. Bartlett and several of his party are suffering terribly from frozen hands and feet. Some of them may suffer amputation.

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, July 8.—The new Transcontinental Commission consisting of Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways, and the officers of the old Commission, held the first meeting since the resignation of Major Leonard, this morning. The uncompleted details of the road were discussed, and a policy of "full steam ahead" insisted on by the new head of the Commission, Mr. Cochrane. The Minister will press the work with a view to its earliest possible completion.

Charlotte Street Extension Will Soon Be Begun

The street railway system, which has been so much improved this summer until the claim is now made that Peterborough has the quickest service of any single track line in Canada, will be further improved and added to by the addition of the line on Charlotte street, and the boundary from Park street west.

The ties and rails are being distributed to day, and it is understood a service will be given about the middle of August.

The residents on the avenues and Charlotte street west, as well as all the other western portion of the city will be pleased to know that the extension is now under way.

Crippled With Rheumatism

And Skeptical After Trying Many Medicines — Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills Cured Him.

When the kidneys fail to purify the blood the poisons left in the system cause pain and suffering, such as backache, lumbago and rheumatism. Read how this skeptic was cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. F. W. Brown, Kingsbury, Que., writes:—"I have been completely cured of backache and lame back by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I also recommended the pills to a man who was a cripple from rheumatism. He was skeptical, as he said that he had tried nearly everything on earth. Finally he consented to try them, and to his surprise was greatly benefited in the first week, and the pains left his legs until he was so supple he could walk without pain or difficulty. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have worked wonders in this place, and we think there is no medicine like them."

"SAY, PEACE BE TO THIS HOUSE."

"Into whatever house ye enter"—into whatsoever companionship we are thrown, we are to carry with us this celestial greeting, sometimes spoken audibly, sometimes by look and handclasp, sometimes quite inaudible. . . The world needs these unuttered benedictions. The world needs men moving in the midst of their fellow men as the very apostle of God, moving on errands of righteousness, and industry, and sobriety and mercy, and carrying with them everywhere the salutations of peace. It is a question whether the world ever needed such men and such a message more than it does to-day. . . Men. . . make haste and find no time for thought, and no time for meditation, and no time for prayer—yet these are the things by which men live.—H. C. B. in the Churchman.

CUT-WORMS

By C. B. Waldron

There has been considerable complaint for several years past on the part of both farmers and gardeners as to the damage done by the cut-worms. The cut-worms is the larval form of some of the many species of Owlet moths. The larvae keep feeding during the spring and early summer and after they have obtained their full size they burrow down some four to six inches below the surface of the ground and pupate. They remain in the pupal stage but a few days, when they reappear as moths and the egg laying again begins.

As the moths select places in grass or weeds in which to deposit their eggs it is obvious that where land is kept perfectly clean by cultivation there is little danger of cut-worms the following season. It sometimes happens that gardens are badly infested with cut-worms, though they have been kept perfectly clean during the entire summer. This is generally due to the fact that the cut-worms come in from the strips of grass along the edges of the garden or from adjoining lawns or pastures. We have found that the land which is covered with two or three inches of straw as early as the middle of August and burned off before the land is plowed in the fall or spring will be free from cut-worms the following year. While this method is entirely practical for gardens it could not, of course, be applied to fields, because of the labor involved.

PLOWING A PREVENTIVE.

It has been found that early fall plowing greatly lessens the number of cut-worms. Late fall plowing has very little effect upon them.

In gardens we have found it practical to poison them by scattering a poisoned bait upon the land before planting the corn and other crops or setting out the plants from the hotbeds. This poisoned bait can be prepared by mixing with 50 pounds of wheat bran, one pound of paris green. To this should be added about two quarts of molasses and enough water to moisten. This should be applied to the land by placing small hand-fulls here and there, two or three yards apart. It is also an advantage to cover this poisoned bait with a hand-full of grass or some other protective material that the cut-worms may seek it more readily.

Plants can be protected from cut-worms by putting a band of paper around them, extending an inch into the soil and an inch above ground. The cut-worms will not eat through the paper.

The natural enemies of the cut-worm are the robin and grackel, commonly known as the blackbird, though different than the common blackbird that are so numerous at harvest time. With the help of the birds and such remedies as can be put into practice the ravages of the cut-worm can be reduced to a point where our crops are not greatly endangered.

THE 'IRED MAN.

They calls me the 'ired man out 'ere, and 'andy I 'as to be,
I grooms the 'osses and milks the cows, and carries the pigs their tea,
I gives the missus a 'elpin' 'and, wiv dishes, and mangle and churn,
But I miss the lark in the mornin' and the lullaby of the burn.

Lord 'ow I misses the edgerows, and the thrushes a 'oppin' around,
The wren and the linnet and starlin' and the plover wot nests on the ground,
The spinneys just blazin wiv bluebells, the daisies a carpet of white,

There ain't many birds on the prairie; there isn't a copse on the place,
There's something about these wide spaces wot grips a man, body and soul,
It washes 'im clean with its sunshine, and leaves 'im all mended and whole.

So I works at me chores uncomplain', and gives the old mjaus a 'and,
I ploughs and I 'arrers and threshes, a Man in a Big, Manly Land.
But some'ow when shadders are creepin' and the west is a piller of fire,
I long for the smell of the medders, and the chime of the bell in the spire.

Regular Meeting Of The Board Of Education

At a meeting of the Board of Education held last evening a communication was read from Mr. Bartlett, the architect of the new schools, explaining that the contractors had not done so well as he expected with reports to the carpenters of the two new schools and that the Board expected too much. The Board, he wrote, could not expect a slate appearance from galvanized iron. The structures were a little light, and erected in a crushed manner. He thought they could be put up more economically. The matter was referred to the Building committee.

A letter was read from Gordon and Middlehill, threatening to issue a writ against the Board if the next instalment of Mr. Wilson Taylor's salary was not received when due.—Received and referred to the solicitor.

The attendances of the various schools were reported as follows:

	Enrolment	Average Attendance
Collegiate	293	287
Central	450	256
Queen Alexandra	289	269
King Edward	398	354
Queen Mary	432	388
King George	378	340
South Central	267	245

The Secretary read a communication from Miss Seymour, who tendered her resignation, although having signed a contract for the ensuing year. It was moved by Mr. Hill, seconded by Mr. Crane, that Miss Seymour adhere to her contract.—Carried.

It was moved by Mr. Hill, seconded by Mr. Crane, that the payment of the following accounts be confirmed: W. Jessop, grading at King George school 252.80
H. Edmonson, account per ord 3.60
A. G. Harper, presiding at examinations 26.20
J. F. Harvey, presiding at examinations 12.00
W. J. Stubbs, presiding at examinations 12.00
L. J. Pettit, presiding at examinations 12.00

H. F. Downey, re Departmental examinations 30.00
E. A. Yenney, re Departmental examinations 30.00
F. J. Vondon, re Departmental examinations 30.00
—Carried.

The report of the Supervision committee was read as follows:

To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Education:

Gentlemen.— As authorised, your committee advertised for tenders for text books and supplies and for Collegiate Institute supplies for the ensuing year and recommend that the tender of Messrs. Trebilcock Bros. be accepted, theirs being the lowest tender.

JOHN CRANE,

The report of the Building committee was as follows:

To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Education:

Gentlemen.— Your Building committee beg to report an recommend that Messrs. Langford and Sheehy be paid the sum of $636.50 in full settlement of their account for extras at the Queen Mary School, and that Mr. W. J. Johnston be paid the sum of $761.55 in full settlement of his account for extras at the King George school, and that the treasurer be authorized to issue cheques for the amounts, forthwith.

B. F. ACKERMAN,
Chairman.

Mr. Hill moved and Dr. Burnham seconded that the Board adjourn till September.—Carried.

ECZEMA AND SORE EYES

George Street Sunday School Annual Picnic

Large Crowd Took in the Outing to Jubilee Point Yesterday

The three hundred people who took in the annual excursion of the George Street Sunday school to Jubilee Point on the Stoney Lake yesterday spent a day that they will not soon forget, and a very enjoyable one too, in spite of the fact that the mosquitoes at the Point worked overtime to leave their impression with the picnicers with some success.

The steamer left the City a little after eight o'clock yesterday morning with a capacity cargo of human beings. Jubilee Point was reached about eleven o'clock and there several hours were spent in merry making. A good programme of sports was also run off here, under the supervision of Mr. Pratt. Mr. Oke and Mr. Robertson. Every event was keenly contested and provided a good time for every person on the grounds.

The events were won as follows:

Girls—(Primary Dept.)

5 years and under— 1 Olive Howland, 2 Teddie Chevrli.

Over five years—1 Irene Dyer, 2 Vera Calvert.

(Min School.)

Girls 10 and under—1 D. Calvert. 2 T. Freeman.

Girls 12 and under—1 T. Cassan, 2 Edith Scott.

Boys—(Primary Dept.)

5 and under—1 Donald Robertson, 2 Rollie Lewis.

5 years and over—1 Percy Oke, 2 B. Graham and Master Leah.

(Main School.)

Wheelbarrow race—O. Nicholls, E Duggan.

Senior men's race—1 Thos. Shields, 2 Geo. Robertson.

Special Events.

The ladies' nail driving contest provoked much keen interest among the contestants and spectators alike, and was finally won by Miss Fisher, with Mrs. Hardill a close second. As a result of this event many of the former are nursing sore fingers, and some of the latter sore sides to-day.

The ladies' contest for throwing a baseball was also closely contested. Were it not for the small army of boys on hand it is said that every ball thrown by Mrs. J. H. Renwick would still be unlooked for in the grass of Jubilee. Miss Outram won this contest and the Misses Fiuse tied for second place.

The boys' throwing the baseball was won by Master Scott and Master Walton came second.

The biscuit eating contest had a long list of entries and it is impossible to estimate just how much food was consumed by those competing for honours in it. The contest was won by Master Coit, with E. Saxby second.

The steamer left the Point about four o'clock and the picnicers arrived home after a pleasant sail around the lake.

"STOP TORTURING WOMEN"--SUFFS

Special to The Examiner:

DALMUIRE, Scotland, July 8. — It is mighty uncomfortable to be King or Queen of England these days. The suffragettes this morning made their Majesties' lives uncomfortable while inspecting the shipyards here by holering through megaphones from the roofs and windows of the nearby buildings, "Stop torturing women!" They were eventually corralled by the police.

The Suffragettes to-day attempted to destroy the historical birthplace of Robert Burns, near Ayr, Scotland, but were circumvented by the police.

EVERYONE SHOULD READ IT

"O give thanks unto the Lord; for He is good; for His mercy endureth for ever."—Ps. 136, 1.

I wish everyone could read "My Mother's Journal," the diary of the mother of F. E. Clark, the father of the world-wide Christian Endeavor movement. It is overflowing with the spirit of thankfulness, though, to many, the writer had what would seem a life full of keen sorrow, great anxiety, and trying work.

The payment of a debt, a chance call, an unexpected gift, call forth expressions of heartfelt gratitude. This praise never faltered, though beloved husband and son were laid to rest, and life meant a daily struggle to make both ends meet.

Each day God sends something for which we may be thankful, because He never sends a sorrow without some comfort. Did you ever at night, when perhaps feeling discouraged, try to count up all the blessings of that day? If not, do so. If we do this, we will have neither room nor time to fret and worry.

A little girl who was given to grumbling, was asked by her father to write down for a certain time, in ink of one color, all the pleasant things in her life she could think of, and in another color, all the disagreeable ones. A few days after he asked her to read both lists over. To her surprise the first was as she had written it, the second was a blank. Owing to the quality of the ink, all had faded out. He wished her to remember the pleasant and forget the unpleasant daily happenings. But we must always bear in mind that if we could but see our lives as God has planned them, we would thank Him just as heartily for the trials as for the happiness.

A young friend who had been seeking many months for a position and had met with many disappointments, when he thought he was going to secure one, came in yesterday, with a radiant face, and bearing the news that at last he had been successful beyond all his hopes, and made this remark: "How thankful I am I did not get any of those other positions, because then I could not have had this!"—I.H.N.

KEEP THE MIND YOUNG

Last week we met two elderly persons, husband and wife, with minds as open and alert as the minds of high school youth. So well do they exemplify our notion of the means and value of keeping the mind young that we must tell about them. Both were reared in the country. Their married life until last fall was spent on the farm—about thirty years of it, we believe, in Nebraska. Now they have retired to a country town, not to rust out, but to enjoy and pursue still further some of the side-line activities begun on the farm.

Think of a farmer nearly, if not quite, sixty years old, with toil-hardened hands, setting out to learn to play the piano! That is what this man did a few winters ago. At the outset he didn't know one note from another. He denies now that he is a musician, but he "knows the notes," as we used to say at singing school, and can get a deal of pleasure out of drumming on the piano. At one time he made a study of psychology, the science of the mind; on that subject we dare say he could hold a college professor level in conversation. We asked why he studied music. "Why," he replied quickly, "the mind is kept active and open only by use and by studying new things. I don't want my mind to degenerate and become closed." There's a reason for you!

The wife of this man, while caring for her chickens, keeping house, making butter and rearing a stalwart son, found time on the farm to study art. The walls of her well-kept home are adorned with many beautiful pictures of animals and rural scenery, all the work of her own hands. A china closet is filled with a large collection of hand-painted ware, her own work, as pretty as you will find anywhere. I didn't ask this good woman why she paints flowers and pictures. It wasn't necessary, for her enthusiasm showed that she did it for the pure joy it afforded. And it has kept her mind young.—Nebraska Farmer.

A FLYING TRAIN.

Mr. Bachelet's Machine Capable of a Speed of 500 Miles Per Hour.

The latest thing in engineering is a flying train—automobile cabins, wings or any kind of motor, capable, it is said, of traveling at anything between 300 and 500 miles an hour!

The inventor of this new "speeder" is Mr. Emile Bachelet, a French gentleman by birth, who told the Lord Mayor of London that, "we could bring your mails from Liverpool to London in less than an hour, and give you fifty deliveries a day."

The principle of the flying train is very simple. For many years it has been known that a magnetic coil of a certain type when charged by an alternating current repels, instead of attracting, certain metals. Mr. Bachelet has succeeded in increasing this power of repulsion as to be able to use it to counteract the force of gravity and keep solid bodies floating in the air—"levitated," as modern magicians would say.

He showed the Lord Mayor that a slab of aluminium weighing several pounds floats in the air above such a coil like a cork on water, and can only be pressed down into contact with it by the exercise of immense force. Yet the same streams of energy which support the aluminium slab passed through a similar plate of steel or through the human hand without any effect.

When the Lord Mayor held an aluminium disc on his palm over the magnetic field, the disc was tossed into the air, apparently by witchcraft, but the Lord Mayor felt not the slightest sensation. The application of this force to purposes of traction is obvious.

For his working model the inventor has built a car with aluminium plates underneath. Against these plates play streams of energy from a number of coils placed at short intervals; the car is thus lifted from the track and loses all apparent weight, the force of gravity being exactly counterbalanced. The car is, in fact, floating on the air, and can be moved literally by the lightest touch.

Powerful magnets at much wider intervals than the "repulsion coils" draw the car swiftly along, as a needle can be drawn along the surface of water by similar means, and as air resistance is the only opposing force, the speed attained might well be terrific.

One of the most astonishing things about Mr. Bachelet's repulsion coils is that a single one of them, costing about twenty-five cents, can keep something like 40 pounds of aluminium floating above it, entirely deprived of weight so long as the current continues.

The coil resemble cotton spools some three inches in diameter and the same in length, copper wire taking the place of the cotton, and the hole in the spool being filled with a bundle, or "faggot," of iron wire. As the spool stands on end it is from this "faggoted iron core" that the stream of energy rushes upwards against the downward pull of gravity.

The invention is said to be so far perfected that a mile of line on which cars are capable of carrying 100 pounds of mail matter might be run at 300 miles an hour could be built within three months. It would cost less than $25,000 a mile, according to the inventor, to supply such a service.

Whether a service of heavy trams for passengers or goods would ever be commercially feasible is another question.

Efforts are already being made to secure the model railway for one of the summer exhibitions in London as a popular spectacle, but Mr. Bachelet is more keen on getting to commercial business.

He does not suggest that he has as yet made a "flying carpet" which will carry human beings round the world at 500 miles an hour. He fully realizes that there are various engineering difficulties to be met, but he believes that he has already demonstrated the practicability of a mail carrier that will go at least 300 miles an hour.

Old Love Letters.

Wife—I came across a bundle of your old love letters today. Husband—Did you read them over? Wife—Yes. Husband—And what was the effect of that perusal? Wife—I wondered which was the bigger fool—you for writing them or I for marrying you after receiving them.

A Hint.

"Yes," said the young student thoughtfully, "when I get interested in a subject I never stop until I have embraced it thoroughly."

"That's nice," was the hesitating reply. "Do—do you think I'm an interesting subject?"

HISTORIC FURNITURE.

Twelve business men gather at regular intervals about a long table in a room on the second floor of the building at 305 Chestnut street, Philadelphia. The chairs they sit in have been in service 133 years and are as good today as the day they were sold by the maker. These chairs have supported the frames of various men famous in American affairs.

The twelve men are the directors of the Bank of North America, the oldest bank in the western hemisphere and the most remarkable. On the walls of the directors' rooms are the portraits of all the former presidents of the venerable bank, and there is a painting of Robert Morris, founder of the institution, financier of the Revolution, a man to whom the American people owed much and to whom they made a poor return.

Off at one side is a table which came from the house of Morris. It has been in service perhaps 150 years, but there is not a crack or a blemish in its mahogany body or its marble top.—Commerce and Finance.

Concentrated Light Beams.

Little lamps that would hardly give enough light for a small room are now being used for lighthouse purposes, throwing beams many miles. One little lamp rated at only thirty candle power and operated by a battery has a record of being seen clearly at a distance of more than twenty miles. The secret is the concentration of light. Every effort was made to keep the light source down to as fine a point as possible and then to keep it all concentrated in one narrow beam. This particular light revolves, and as it comes round the fine pencil of beams will catch a person's eye miles away.—Exchange.

Curbing the Newsboys.

Venders of newspapers in Berlin are to be limited to calling out the names of the journals they sell. To make known the contents of the papers or to indicate any particular item of news is forbidden. Police Chief von Jagow proposes that any persons not immediately obeying the commands of the police in these particulars is to be punished. The hardy gurdy man has long since been banished from the streets of Berlin.

Remarkable cures of lung and bone tuberculosis by sun baths are reported to the Vienna Medical association. The treatment, however, is as old as Aesculapius.

ANOTHER EASY WIN FOR THE PETES BEAT ERIE EIGHT TO THREE YESTERDAY

Cresswell Outpitched Dorbeck—Homesters' Hitting Was Hard and Opportune—Five Runs in the Fifth Put the Game on Ice.

The Petes registered another easy victory over Erie yesterday, galloping home, 8 to 3, winners over Frank Gygli's Yanks. It was a battle of Southpaws, Cresswell opposing Dorbeck, and the local youngster grabbed off his first victory of the season in good style. The Sailors found his offerings considerable of a mystery, and until two were out, in the ninth they had made exactly four hits and one run. They started a miniature rally then that netted them three hits and two runs, McNeal driving Behan home with a homerun to left field. The ball rolled down into a hole near the fence and Mack was home when Fox relayed to the plate.

The Petes gave Lefty Dorbeck a warm reception. Saturday, at Erie, he shut them out with only four hits, but yesterday the homesters combed him for ten smashes. The beginning was in the fifth, when passes to Cresswell and Dolan, singles by Kelly and Blount, and doubles by Byrne and Welsh sent five runs over the counting station.

The homesters played errorless ball for the second day in succession, giving Cresswell fine support. A fast double play, with King as the principal factor, averted trouble in the first innings.

First Innings.

Erie— Dawson with three and two on him singled to right. Scott sacrificed, Cresswell to Dolan. Colligan walked. Gygli hit into a double play, King trapping his grounder, tagging second and then pegging the runner out at first. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough— Blount popped to Behan. Welsh died the same way. Dolan tripled between Harris and Dawson. Stewart hit to Behan, who fumbled and Dolan scored. Stewart was caought off first. One run, one hit, one error.

Second Innings.

Erie—Harris fanned. Paton struck out. Behan singled to right and stole second. McNeal singled through short scoring Behan. Dorbeck popped to Fox. One run, two hits, no errors.

Third Innings.

Erie—Dawson was out on a tap to King. Scott doubled to right. Colligan draw a pass. Gygli hit to Cresswell and was out at first. The pitcher had lots of time to get Scott at third. Harris fanned. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Fourth Innings.

Erie—Paton died on a high one to Dolan. Behan hoisted to King. McNeal flied to Stewart. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough—Dolan drove one to Harris. Stewart nearly knocked Dorbeck over with a bullet drive. The pitcher recovered in time to throw the runner out. Byrne scratched a hit when his bounder took a bad hop to Scott. King grounded to Dorbeck. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Fifth Innings.

Erie—Dorbeck grounded to Dolan. Dawson cracked a liner to King. Scott flied to Blount. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough —Fox fanned. Kelly singled over second. Cresswell walked. Blount beat out a swinging bunt to Behan. Welsh hit one through Paton for two bases, scoring Kelly and Cresswell and sending Blount to third. Dolan was passed purposely, again filling the bases. Stewart popped a foul to Scott. Byrne doubled to centre, clearing the bases. King cracked a liner to Scott. Five runs, four hits, no errors.

Sixth Innings.

Erie—Colligan walked for the third time in succession. Gygli fanned. Harris grounded to King. King made a nice catch of Paton's fly. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough—Fox walked. Kelly beat out a roller to Behan. Cresswell sacrificed, Dorbeck to Gygli. Blount crossed Erie up with the squeeze play, Fox scoring easily, while no one covered first. Welsh scored Kelly with a smash too hot for Behan to handle. Dolan forced Welsh at second. Dolan was out trying to steal second with Dorbeck holding the ball. He had the bag stolen at that, but did over it. Two runs, three hits, no errors.

Seventh Innings.

Erie—Behan fouled to Byrne. Mcneal flied to Blount. The latter nailed Dorbeck's fly to right centre after a pretty run. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough — Stewart flied to Colligan. Byrne died on a smash to Behan. King died on a roller to Dorbeck. No runs, hits or errors.

Eighth Innings.

Erie—Dawson fanned. Scott flied to Stewart. Colligan drew his fourth pass. Gygli flied to Stewart. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough — Colligan made a nice catch of Fox's fly to left. Kelly fanned. Cresswell fouled to McNeal. No runs, hits or errors.

Ninth Innings.

Erie — Carney hitting for Harris fouled to Kelly. Paton hoisted to King. Behan singled over second. McNeal hit one between Blount and Welsh for a home run, sending Behan home ahead of him. Dorbeck singled to centre.. Dawson flied to Blount. Two runs, three hits, no errors.

Notes of the Game.

The Petes are hitting tht ball.

McNeal's homer was the second of the season on the home grounds. Kustus of St. Thomas was responsible for the other.

Cresswell could not get the ball over for Colligan, the Yanks left fielder, passing him on his four trips to the plate. At that Colligan failed to score a run.

The fifth was some innings. With one gone, Kelly singled. Cresswell refused to swing at any and drew a pass. Blount filled the sacks by beating out a slow one. With the infield in, Welsh cracked a hot one at Paton, which struck the second baseman on the shoulder and rolled to the outfield, scoring Kelly and Cresswell, while the batter went to second. Dolan was up and Dorbeck refused to take a chance, passing the big fellow purposely. His dope looked good when Stewart fouled out, but Byrne upset calculations by cleaning house with a double to centre field.

Harris was back in the game for Erie, yesterday, but would have been better in bed. The hardhitting right-fielder has a bad Charley horse and looked to be in agony out there, yesterday.

Erie did not get a hit off Cresswell from the third until two were out in the ninth.

CANADIAN LEAGUE NOTES

Ottawa Journal: Before leaving for Hamilton Manager Shaughnessy announced that there would be some radical changes on the Senators' line-up unless things made a very sudden change for the better.

On Tuesday it is the big manager's intention to journey down to Detroit to search for three new players, a pitcher, an infielder and an outfielder. Just which of the three players holding down the jobs now are due for the axe he would not divulge, but admitted that he had them in mind, and that Wednesday or Thursday would see their departure.

Shag is not satisfied with the infield work shown in the London series nor does he think that the outfield is altogether reliable. While Rogers will strengthen things up a lot, another really first class man for the garden is required to round things up. Also a map to plug some of the recent leaks in the infield.

The Senators tackle the Athletics and then move on to Brantford, where they play up to Saturday, returning home with the Peterborough club on Saturday night.

Hamilton Spectator:

Manager White announced this morning that he had signed Roy Broadbent to a Hamilton contract. Broadbent is the infielder who was given a trial by the Hams in the spring and cast loss by ex-Manager Yates, without full consideration. Leaving here Broadbent secured a berth with the Galt club in the Wobbly League and has been playing Sunday ball with the Carter-Crumes. His work has been sensational and only last week one of the Detroit American League scouts paid a visit to Galt and watched the youngster in action. White was able to sign the youngster to a contract last evening, and it is his intention to have him join the Club on Monday next. Broabent has asked for permission to finish out the week with Galt. In speaking of his action in landing this youngster, White said: "The fact that I have signed up Broadbent does not mean any change to the present line-up, for I intend to stand pat with the team just as long as we keep playing the ball at present being shown. Broadbent has been burning things up in the Wobbly League, however, hitting like a big leaguer, and I have ben advised by people who should know that I would make no mistake in landing the kid. At present I am without a utility infielder, or a utility player of any kind, and I think that I am making a good move in landing Broadbent. He will prove a rattling good utility player. He will also give the team more reserve strength. Broadbent is the pick of the Wobbly League, and no mistake is ever made in corrralling youngsters of his calibre.

Brantford, July 7—Gil Forgue, the Brantford ball player, injured last week, has recovered sufficiently to be discharged from the hospital and left to-day for his home in St. Thomas. Thrailkill, late of the St. Thomas and Peterborough teams, has been signed by Manager Deneau.

Hamilton Spectator: Doc. Yates has an alibi. He claims the Hams had 276 men left on bases while he was in charge of the club, which reminds us of that little truism Grantland Rice is guilty of:

Once on a time I saw a guy,
And saw with much elation,
Who never had an alibi
For any situation.

He took each break just as it came,
With no excuse to utter;
And though he never won a game,
I never heard him mutter.

He started out some years ago,
As fleeting time is reckoned;
I'm speaking of the mummy of Old Rameses the Second.

WANTS HIGH PRICE FOR BABE RUTH

NEW YORK, July 7 — President Frank Farrell of the Highlanders today offered Jack Dunn, owner of the Baltimore Orioles something like $25,000 for four players, but Dunn is holding out for a little larger figure.

Farrell wants "Babe" Ruth, the sensational young left-handed pitcher of the Baltimore club, "Birdie" Cree, Twombley and Gleichmann. Farrell's offer of $25,000 was for all four players, but Dunn is said to want $17,000 for Ruth alone and $13,000 for the other three payers, a total of $30,000. If Dunn will come down in his price the deal will go through.

When the International League adjourned last Friday Dunn was advised to sell some of his players instead of asking his fellow-club owners for financial aid. It developed that Dunn could obtain enough money for half a dozen of his stars to pay the running expenses of the Orioles for the rest of this season and still have something left. Dunn, although opposed to letting his players go soon found himself on the defensive, with the result that he left the meeting determined to make several big deals.

Cree was sold by the Yankees to the Orioles early last spring on condition that he would be returned under an optional agreement calling for almost double the price Dunn paid for him. Cree has some personal feeling about coming back to the Yankees, which probably can be smoothed over. Cree has recovered his hitting gability this year, and it is known that Frank Chance would receive him with open arms.

STANDING IN 5 LEAGUES

Canadian League Standing

London is getting a great lead in the Canadian League race. They are having easy picking with Brantford, while Ottawa were bumped again yesterday, their fifth straight loss. As the Petes have taken three in a row from Erie and Toronto two from St. Thomas, the Cockneys are shooting away from their nearest rivals. There is a fine battle for the other places, with only five and a half games separating Ottawa in second place from the Petes in seventh. Here is the standing:

GOLF

A very pleasant game was played on the Peterborough links yesterday afternoon between teams representing the ladies and gentlemen of the Millbrook and Peterborough Golf Clubs.

At the conclusion of the game the ladies and gentlemen of the Peterborough Club entertained their visitors to a tea at the Club House.

Notes.

On Thursday July 16th a match will be played on the Peterborough Links against the Mississauga Club of Toronto. About 15 members of the Mississagua Club are expected on that date.

On Thursday, July 23rd the return match against the Oshawa Club will be played in Oshawa. It is hoped that a good turn-out of the home club will be in evidence—on that day as the Oshawa Club have always turned out well for their games here.

Welsh Gets The Decision

LONDON, July 7. — Fred Welsh, lightweight champion of England, today beat Willie Ritchie on points in the twenty-round fight for the lightweight championship of the world at Olympia.

A unique feature of the match was the appearance in the ring of a clergy man as master of ceremonies.

When the Rev. John Hervey Boudier, who is popularly known as "Father" Boudier, climbed through the ropes shortly before 8 o'clock in his clerical garb, he got a good round of applause. He then announced in stentorian tones the names of the contestants in the first of the preliminary bouts.

The great revival of interest in pugilism in Great Britain was evidenced by the big assemblage of all classes, which had congregated in the great arena of Olympia. The newspapers had predicted a large attendance of women, but there was only a small sprinkling of bright dresses in the cheaper seats around the sides of the arena, which filled first before time was called.

Before the three preliminary time-killing bouts had been finished the majority of the prominent London sporting men had gathered about the ring, as well as 200 or 300 American citizens, some of them well known.

There were not more than 100 women altogether, most of them in evening dress, in the section occupied by members of the Royal family and prominent society people during the Horse Show.

Welsh entered the ring at 9.58 amid lustly singing of the Welsh hymn, "God of Our Fathers," by hundreds of his countrymen.

The betting was 7 to 4 on Welsh. Geo. Considine placed $2,000 at these odds.

Mrs. Ritchie reached up and shook hands with the American fighter. Mrs. Welsh, wife of the Welsh fighter, arrived at the ringside.

Welsh Took the Lead.

In the opening rounds Welsh scored more points than Ritchie. In the fifth round, however, Ritchie forced the fighting and in this and the next two rounds there were some sharp exchanges and heavy infighting in which Ritchie generally got the upper hand. Several times the American was cautioned for holding in the clinches.

In the eighth round the Welshman recovered his liveliness and in this and the ninth round forced the fighting and had the best of the encounter. When half the match was over Welsh led easily on points.

Ritchie revived somewhat in the eleventh and there were some hot exchanges as in this and the twelfth. Welsh repeatedly, by his remarkable quickness, scoring and then eluding heavy returns.

In the thirteenth Ritchie had it all his own way, landing some heavy blows and forcing the fighting all through, while Welsh appeared to be weakening.

The fourteenth was also all Ritchie's and the fighting wa very fast.

Then both slowed up, but in the sixteenth round there was a lot of infighting and Welsh was boxing splendidly, Ritchie meantime trying for a knockout.

In the seventeenth Ritchie got home a number of sharp body blows and forced the fighting throughout, but Welsh was very clever in covering.

The nineteenth was even, with Ritchie forcing the fighting.

The final round was the swiftest of the whole fight and Welsh had the better of it.

Of the twenty rounds ten were undoubtedly Welsh's, five went to Ritchie and the other five were about even.

Ritchie broke down when the decision was given against him and was in tears when seen in his dressing room. "I have nothing to say," he said between sobs. His manager and seconds were just as reticent.

There was some dissatisfaction among the American spectators of the fight at the decision, because neither man was beated at the finish, and although the Welshman scored more blows, those of the American appeared to be the more telling.

OLD COUNTRY CRICKET.

LONDON, July 7.—Surrey beat Lancashire by an innings and two runs. Hayes got 108 runs, Hayward 76, Hobb 64, Ducat 97, Makepeace 51 and Sharp 30.

Kent beat Yorkshire five wickets. Kilner for Yorkshire made fifty runs. Booth took five wickets for 48 runs, and Blythe, for Kent, eight for fifty-five.

ANNIE LOUISE CARY

And Her Favourite "Robin Adair"

The indisputable queen of song in her day was Annie Louise Cary. She was one of the world's famous contraltos when she retired from the operatic stage at the very height of her career in opera. She retained the sweet, wholesome characteristics of the American girl all during her musical triumphs. She made her debut in Copenhagen, although she studied in Milan. For three years she delighted European audiences before making her appearance in America. For over twelve years, with the exception of a brief European tour, she delighted American audiences with the charms of her voice and personality. But to hear her sing "Robin Adair," that simple old song, and that masterpiece of Arthur Sullivan's "The Lost Chord," and Longfellow's "The Day is Done," with the rich tones of the happy, good-natured personality that always charmed, she always left the audience breathless and spellbound.

"Robin Adair," "The Lost Chord," and many other favourites of Cary are to be found in "Heart Songs," now being distributed to the readers of this paper. See Coupon elsewhere in this issue for terms.

There was such a demand for the Heart Songs that we had to discontinue inserting the coupon. We have now on hand a further supply, and the coupon will run for two weeks. If you desire a copy, save the coupons and together with 15c you will get a $3.00 book.

OBITUARY

JOSEPH PERRIN.

Mr. Joseph Perrin, who had a paralytic stroke over a year ago, passed away on the afternoon of Saturday, 4th inst. Mr. Perrin was born in Mariposa over eighty years ago. He was a son of the late Josiah Perrin, of that township, and was one of the pioneers of this township. Some years ago he gave up the farm to his son Noble, and has lived in semi retirement ever since. He leaves to mourn his demise his widow and six children. The sons are: William, of Saskatoon; Wesley, Joseph and Noble, of Pamelon, and Mrs. A. Miller, of Peterborough, and Mrs. Fred Maunder of Banff, B.C. Mr. Perrin was a general favourite. He was a man of very genial disposition, and as a consequence had many friends. By his veracity, honesty and straightforwardness in every-day life, he won the respect and good-will of all his neighbours and associates.

The most heartfelt sympathy of the people of this community goes out to the family in the hour of their sad bereavement.—Lindsay Post.

MILSON BLEWETT

One of the oldest residents of Smith Township, and one who is known from one end of the township to the township to the other for his sterling qualities in the person of Mr. Milson Blewett, passed away yesterday afternoon at his home after a lingering illness. The late Mr. Blewett was 74 years of age and was born in the State of Pennsylvania. When only a child he came to this district where he has lived for nearly 70 years, and where he received his education.

The deceased was highly respected in Peterborough and in Smith township, where he has many friends, who wil regret to learn of his death.

He is survived by five daughters, Mrs. E. J. Sanderson, Selwyn; Mrs. W. Kelly, Bridgenorth; Mrs. Wm. Grant, Smith; Mrs. J. Mann, Manitoba, and Miss Josephine, at home; and one son, Sidney, at home. One sister, Mrs. Winnifred Eliott, and two brothers, Mr. W., of Buckhorn, and Mr. M. Blewett, of Peterborough, also survive him.

The funeral will be held to-morrow afternoon at 3.30 o'clock, from the family residence, to the Little Lake Cemetery. The Rev. Mr. Ireland will officiate.

Girl Goes To Jail For Week

A young girl of suspicious character, who was taken into custody yesterday, appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning at a private session of the police court, and was remanded to gaol for a week.

AZTEC MOTHER'S ADVICE TO HER LITTLE DAUGHTER

What he calls the product of the twilight of a civilization is reprinted by William H. Prescott in his "Conquest of Mexico" as the advice given by an Aztec mother to her little daughter. It is translated from Sahagun's "Historia de Nueva Espana."

"My beloved daughter, very dear little dove, you have already heard and attended to the words which your father has told you. They are precious words, such as are rarely spoken or listened to, and which have proceeded from the heart in which they were treasured up. . . . The first thing I earnestly charge upon you is that you observe and do not forget what your father has now told you, since it is all very precious; and persons of his condition rarely publish such things; for they are the words which belong to the noble and wise—valuable as rich jewels. . . . The second thing that I desire to say to you is that I love you very much, that you are my dear litle daughter. .

"Take care that your garments be such as are decent, and proper; and observe that you do not adorn yourself with much finery, since this is a mark of vanity and of folly. As little becoming is it that your dress should be very mean, dirty or ragged; since rags are a mark of the low, and of those who are held in contempt. Let your clothes be becoming and neat, that you may appear neither fantastic nor mean.

"When you speak do not hurry your words from uneasiness, but speak deliberately and calmly. Do not raise your voice very high nor speak very low, but in a moderate tone. Neither mince, when you speak, nor when you salute, nor speak through your nose; but let your words be proper, of a good sound, and your voice gentle. Do not be nice in the choice of your words.

"In walking, my daughter, see that you behave becomingly, neither going with haste, nor too slowly; since it is an evidence of being puffed up to go too slowly, and walking hastily causes a habit of restlessness and instability. Therefore neither walk very fast nor very slow; yet when it shall be necessary to go with haste do so—in this use your discretion. And when you may be obliged to jump over a pool of water do it with decency, that you may neither appear clumsy nor light. . . . Walk through the street quietly and with propriety. Walk neither looking at the skies nor on the ground. Do not look upon those whom you meet with the eyes of an offended person, nor have the appearance of being uneasy; but of one who looks upon all with a serene countenance; doing this you will give no one occasion of being offended with you.

"Show a becoming countenance; that you may appear neither morose nor on the other hand too complaisant. See my daughter that you give yourself no concern about the words you may hear in going through the street nor pay any regard to them; let those who come and go say what they will. Take care that you neither answer nor speak, but act as if you neither heard nor understood them. . . . See likewise my daughter that you never paint your face or stain your lips with colours in order to appear well . . . but adorn yourself, wash yourself and cleanse your clothes; and let this be done with moderation; since if every day you wash yourself and your clothes, it will be said of you that you are over nice, too delicate; they will call you tapepetzca tiuentzaxca.

"In this manner the ancestors from whom you spring brought us up. Those noble and venerable dames, our grand-mothers, told us not so many things as I have told you; they said but few words and spoke thus: 'Listen, my daughters; in this world it is necessary to live with much prudence and circumspection. Hear this allegory, which I shall now tell you, and preserve it, and take from it a warning and example for living aright. Here in this world we travel by a very steep and narrow . . . road, which is as a lofty mountain ridge, on whose top passes a narrow path; on either side is a great gulf without bottom and if you deviate from the path you will fall into it. . . .'

"My tenderly loved daughter, my little dove, keep this illustration in your heart and heed that you do not forget it—it will be to you as a lamp and a beacon. . . . May God prosper you, my first-born, and may you come to God, who is in every place."

"My darling," he exclaimed. "What in the world is the matter?"

"Oh, I've had such a dream," she said.

Jenkins begged her to tell it to him, and finally she consented to say this much:

"I thought I was walking down the street and came to a shop where it said, 'Husbands for Sale.' You could get beautiful ones for $5,000, and very nice looking ones for even as little as $500."

"And were there any that looked like me?" asked Jenkins, not altogether ingenuously.

The sobs became suddenly violent. "Dozens of them," gasped Mrs. Jenkins. "Done up in bunches like asparagus, and marked 25c a bunch."

There will be a big honey crop round Chilliwack, B.C., this year.

A Scotchman visiting in America stood gazing at a fine statue of George Washington, when an American approached.

"That was a great and good man, Sandy," said the American; "a lie never passed his lips."

"Weel," said the Scot, "I prayzsume he talked through his nose like the rest of ye."

EXCLUSIVE MEASURES ADOPTED BY LORDS

Motion to Exempt Ulster from Home Rule is Carried—Crewe makes Concession

OTHER PROPOSALS

LONDON, July 9.—The House of Lords on the first night in committee on the Government of Ireland (amending) bill made large changes in the measure, eliminating the time limit and providing that exclusion shall apply to Ulster as a province. The first alteration was adopted by a vote of 156 to 35.

An important concession was made by the Marquis of Crewe on the amendment moved by Viscount Middleton to the sub-section which provides that the power of the King to the excluded area shall be exercised by the Lord Lieutenant through such officers and departments as may be directed by orders in Council. Lord Middleton, having regard to the close relations which under Home Rule the Lord Lieutenant will have with the Dublin Parliament and Executive, proposed to substitute a Secretary of State for "the Lord Lieutenant" for the purposes of the sub-section. This in substance the Government accepted. It follows that so far as the excluded area is concerned the relations between Ulster and the Government in London will be of a direct character, and not via Dublin.

In accepting this on behalf of the Government the Marquis of Crewe said that whatever force there might be in the objection to the Lord Lieutenant exercising the dual function he did not think it would be wise to insist that the Minister responsible for the administration of Ulster should be a Secretary, which in place would mean the Home Secretary. He would not oppose the amendment. Other amendments were agreed to providing that the officers and departments through whom the civil government is administered in the excluded areas shall not be officers or departments exercising executive power under the Irish Government, and that all orders in Council relating to the excluded areas shall not have effect without the sanction of both Houses of Parliament in this country.

A number of consequential amendments were agreed to, including one reducing the number of Irish members at Westminster from the Home Rule area from 42 to 37.

The most animated discussion of the evening took place on Lord Macdonnell's scheme of "Home Rule within Home Rule." The proposal be put before the House was shortly stated that an Ulster Council should be constituted with administrative control within the province of education, local government, agriculture and technical education, and at the same time Ulster should be represented in the Dublin Parliament. Lord Crewe objected to this scheme as one which did not appeal to Ulstermen themselves. It was approved by Lord Loreburn and also by Lord Courtney. The latter made an impassioned appeal to Unionists to accept it. "We are in rather a mess now," he admitted, "owing to miscalculation on the part of the Government. They miscalculated the strength of the opposition that prevailed in Ulster."

An amendment moved by Lord Lansdowne providing for the total exclusion of Ulster from Home Rule without time limit was next adopted by 128 to 39.

Lord Lansdowne, referring to the Marquis of Crewe's challenge Monday, said that the opposition would not guarantee that Ulster's exclusion would prevent civil war. Things had come to such a pass in Ireland that it was impossible for anyone to guarantee what might happen there in the next few weeks, even days.

"But on the whole," he continued, "we are inclined to believe that this arrangement is more likely than any other to provide relief from the present anxieties."

The Daily Telegraph yesterday asserts, on high authority, that the Government eventually will accept the bill as amended by the House of Lord. It adds that there will be no difficulty regarding the abolition of the time limit, but that the Redmondites will stoutly oppose the exclusion of the whole of Ulster. They will, however, The Telegraph declares, be out-voted on this point in the House of Commons by a combination of Liberals and Unionists.

Mexicans Rigged Evidence.

EL PASO, Texas, July 9.—George St. Clair Douglas, the British subject who was recently tried before a Constitutionalist court-martial at Zacatecas City on a charge of having assisted the Federals in their defence of the city, has been ordered expelled from Mexico. Manuel Carles de la Vega, revolutionary governor of Zacatecas, ordered the expulsion. Douglas is expected to arrive here in a few days.

Bull Attacked Farm Hand.

BELMONT, Ont., July 9. — Cecil Bateman, a farmhand in the employ of Wm. Legg near here, is in a critical condition as the result of being attacked by a ferocious bull. The man was charged upon by the animal while working in a field. He was knocked down and trampled on, his face being terribly lacerated. He was also injured internally and rendered unconscious.

HUGE DISCREPANCY HAS BEEN REVEALED

Padding of Southampton Railway Accounts $68,000 so far and the End is not yet.

EXPERT TESTIFIES

FREDERICTON, N.B., July 9.—The amount to be deducted from the redressed bost of the Southampton Railway, on which the double subsidy was paid as a result of the inaccurate report of the Federal department's engineer, has reached $68,000, according to the partial evidence of one of the engineers appointed to ascertain the cost of the road.

To this can be added $23,000 on other items on which the commissioner has deducted that excess amounts were reported.

Other items, amounting to almost one-third of the reported cost of the road, are still to be compared.

Evidence was given before Commissioner R. A. Pringle yesterday by Gordon Grant, Claude McDonald, John Murray and Ernest Stairs, all of whom assisted in the work of construction; George Pinder, son of J. K. Pinder, M.P.P., the president of the road; and D. G. Kilburn, an expert engineer, who assisted in the valuation of the road on the instruction of the commissioner.

Mr. Pringle took the work in his own hands and made rapid progress in securing definite evidence. By comparisons between evidence already given and Mr. Johnson's report, startling discrepancies were shown. Some of these counsel for the railway admitted, and others he left with them to find an explanation, if they could. Mr. Kilburn's evidence, a careful comparison of Mr. Johnson's report with the result of the personal investigation made by himself and two other engineers, was clear-cut and unshakable, and in most cases was supported by official documents or the evidence of the contractors.

Commissioner Pringle's estimate of the time required to complete the inquiry is lengthening out, and he now fixes Friday as the day on which he hopes to conclude the hearing.

WHOLESALE THREATS MADE.

Winnipeg, July 9.—The following is a copy of letter, written in red ink, received by Chief Justice Howell yesterday morning:

"To the Criminal Judge: I herewith wish to notify the judge and everyone connected with judgment due to criminals, that should J. Krafchenko be hanged for the crime he is charged with that there is at this present moment a secret society with 2,653 members (citizens) who are determined and will physically ruin the street constables, shoot the executioner and give due punishment to all connected in the case, besides other city destructions, if the sentence be carried out.

Abolition of Death Penalty Among New South Wales Proposals.

LONDON, July 9.—The governor's speech in opening the New South Wales Parliament, says The Telegraph's Sydney correspondent, contained probably the most comprehensive list of subjects ever presented in any Australian State Parliament of recent years.

Two interesting proposals are the abolition of the death penalty, and removal of sex disability for representative institutions, including Parliament and municipalities. One notable feature is the absence of prominent planks in the Labor party's platform, such as abolition of the Legislative Council. The Government has a substantial majority in the Assembly, although outnumbered in the Council. It is not believed the Upper House will resist the majority of the measures.

MUSH PROVED FATAL.

Roumanian Had Too Big a Meal After Long Fast.

ST. CATHARINES, July 9. — A coroner's jury found that Fontu Toderaro, Roumanian, who emaged his home in the old land to raise funds to bring him to Canada, died at Thorold in a rude shack built by his own hands, from acute indigestion, when friends prevailed upon him to take some mush and milk after he had been without food for more than a week. Toderaro found but six days' work since April 5, although he had expected to find riches in the construction of the Welland Ship Canal.

As soon as he arrived he sent home the remaining $26 of the amount raised on the mortgage for his trip.

Roosevelt Still Declines.

NEW YORK, July 9. — For two hours yesterday the Progressive leaders of New York State used every argument at their command to force Col. Roosevelt to agree that he would accept the nomination of governor.

After it was all over, Col. Roosevelt said that he had nothing to say at this time and would not change his previous statements declining to run. It was understood that the question was still an open one, with the colonel continuing to stand out against the proposal that he head the state ticket.

MURDER IS THE CHARGE

Death of Patient in Doctor's Office Is said to Have Been Effected By the Physician's Wife

SHE IS LOCKED UP

FREEPORT, N.Y., July 9.—Florence Conklin Carman, wife of Dr. Edwin Carman, was arrested yesterday, accused as the mysterious assassin who a week ago Tuesday night, murdered Mrs. Louise Bailey, wife of a Hampstead manufacturer, by firing a bullet through her heart while she was standing in the physician's office. Early night Mrs. Carman, at whom the finger of suspicion has been pointing since the discovery was made that she had installed a telephonic instrument in her husband's office so that each might hear what went on between him and his women patients, is locked up in Nassau County Jail at Mineola. There she will remain until Monday, when she will be taken out again and examined by the coroner, before whom she pleaded not guilty when arraigned yesterday, after her arrest in the room where Mrs. Bailey died.

Mrs. Carman's iron nerve is shattered, for as the steel-barred door of the Mineola Jail closed behind her she pulled her heavy veil from her face and broke down. Her husband and the sheriff, who took her in an automobile from her home here to the jail, assisted her to the top floor of the building.

The immediate cause of the arrest was the testimony given yesterday by Ellwood T. Hardee, an insurance agent, whom the authorities called the single reliable eye-witness to the crime. Hardee is under lock and key also. He is being detained as a material witness, for his story is of so great importance that the authorities said they feared an attempt might be made to get him out of the jurisdiction of the New York courts.

Hardee' story, briefly told, is this:

At seven o'clock on the night of the murder, Hardee said, he determined to pay a professional visit to Dr. Carman and allow him to dress a minor injury to one of his heels. He left his home and walked to the physician's house. Arriving, he decided he could dress the injury himself and thereby save a doctor's fee. So he walked past the house and then turned around to begin his journey home. At that instant he heard an explosion. He thought it was caused by an automobile tire, but when he looked for the machine, he could not find it. He turned his eyes toward the lawn at the side of Dr. Carman's home. A woman, tall, well built, hatless, wearing a light shirtwaist and a dark skirt, was moving away from one of the windows at the side of the physician's office toward the rear of the house. She was not running, not casually strolling around the lawn; she was walking "in a hurry," the witness said.

BURNS' BIRTHPLACE SAVED.

GLASGOW, Scotland, July 9.—An attempt to destroy the cottage at Ayr, where Robert Burns, the Scottish poet, was born, Jan. 25, 1759, was made just before daylight yesterday, by two members of a militant suffragette "arson squad."

The two women were surprised by a night watchman as they were in the act of placing bombs against the doors and windows of the poet's birthplace, which is venerated as a shrine by the Scottish nation. The man captured one of the militants, but the other escaped.

The women were stockings over their shoes, in order to deaden the noise and hide their footprints.

The arrested woman gave her name as Janet Arthur. She created a noisy scene when arraigned at the police court, fighting the wardens and shouting quotations from Burns' poems. She was remanded.

KINGSTON, Ont., July 9.—Charged with crime by one of his daughters, David Gosse, 60, who lives at Bedford Mills, 30 miles from Kingston, and who is employed as a guide of fishermen and hunters, was arrested at his home yesterday morning by County Constable Robert Smith and City Constable Marshall Armstrong and brought to the police station. The accused was regarded as a desperate character and officers went well armed. Under a ruse they wanted him as a guide. They got Gosse to row them from his home across Rock Lake, and there they placed handcuffs on him. Although an old man he put up a lively fight and swore that, had he known they were policemen, he would have shot them. It is stated that for nights he has been sleeping near his door with a shotgun and revolver handy, he having got wind that the police were on his trail.

Accused has a family of eleven children and there are four girls.

OTTAWA, July 9.—That at least eight officers and men of Stefansson's ship, the Karluk, who were also with the crew when they got safely on to the ice before she went down on Jan. 11 last had not reached Wrangel Island with the rest of the ship's company is revealed in a further report to the Department of the Naval Service, received from Capt. Robert Bartlett yesterday. The fate of these men, divided into two parties, was not known when Captain Bartlett left Wrangel Island for the Siberian coast in search of help for his marooned crew, but as they were well equipped, it was hoped they had succeeded in effecting a landing. The Herald Island and would be picked up by the relief expedition this summer. He ordered a search party sent out for them.

A letter from Captain Peterson gives a statement of the condition of Captain Bartlett, which that hardy mariner did not think it worth while to mention. Captain Peterson says that Captain Bartlett was in bad shape. On the long sledge journey his hands and feet had been badly frozen, and he was suffering great pain. However, Bartlett has apparently recovered, for he is at Nome waiting for the American revenue cutter Bear to take him with supplies to Wrangel Island. When Captain Bartlett left Wrangel Island the thirteen men who remained were apparently in good shape. The fate of the others cannot be known until next autumn, as navigation will not open until August and under the most favorable conditions word of the men will not reach civilization until September.

"PEBLO"
The Glass of Quality
We have at any doubt but that most people value their eyesight sufficiently to want to take the best care of it. That is why we went to the expense of securing for our Optical Trade the HIGHEST Grade of Lenses then can be made and which we handle exclusively under the trade mark of "PEBLO." We believed our patrons would appreciate having their eyeglasses fitted with this superior quality lens, and after two years exclusive use of "PEBLO" Lenses, we are well satisfied with the result, judging by the hundreds of satisfied customers whom we have fitted with these beautiful lenses. It is interesting to know that in spite of the expense of procuring "PEBLO" Lenses the prices to our patrons are no more than when we used other makes of lenses, this being due to the large quantity we buy at a time. We manufacture these "PEBLO" Lenses from the rough "PEBLO" glass, in our own lens grinding department.
Any kind of lens duplicated while you wait, and all work guaranteed.

Little Digesters are a Great Help to Mr. John F. Becker

The weight of years very often brings with it a still heavier burden, that of Indigestion or some Form of Stomach Trouble.

Then "Little Digesters" come to the rescue—if you give them a chance, as did Mr. Becker. Here is his letter telling what they did for him:

New Dundee, Nov. 10, 1913.

TO THE COLEMAN MEDICINE CO.

Dear Sirs,—

I was for a long time troubled with blasting after meals, and my tongue was always coated. Seeing the "Little Digesters" advertised I bought a box, and they took all that trouble away, but I thought one box would not be enough, so I sent to you for more. They are a great help to my body.

Yours truly,
JOHN F. BECKER.

Excuse my writing with pencil, being an old man of 74."

"Little Digesters" aid the feebly stomach to digest the food perfectly. This means that you can enjoy every meal, and get the strength out of what you eat, if you take a "Little Digester" afterwards.

INCUBATORS IN EGYPT.

Lower Country Has an Immense Output of Chicks.

Egypt has employed incubators for hatching purposes for centuries.

To-day the industry exists on a very large scale. It is estimated that in Lower Egypt there are now in operation several hundred hatcheries and in many cases they have a capacity of 40,000 eggs at a time.

A few years ago it was estimated that upward of 90,000,000 chickens were hatched annually in the egg ovens of that country.

There is usually considerable difficulty in persuading the owner of a mamal el firakh to show a foreigner, or even an Egyptian, over one of these primitive incubators, though they are quite numerous and are found throughout the Nile Valley from Alexandria to Aswan.

The "ovens" are worked only from February to May each year. One visited consisted of four hatching chambers, each of these chambers, about 4x4 yards, being capable of holding up to 6,000 eggs at a time, and accommodating each season about 130,000 eggs. When the eggs are first put in the hatching chamber they are often piled up four or five deep, but are afterwards spread out in a single layer, this never later than the tenth day.

The eggs are turned three times daily. On the fourth or fifth day they are tested, and all the infertile ones are taken out and sold for human consumption. The testing is done in the upper chamber, which is dark, each egg being held up in a ray of sunlight, which comes through a hole in the dome roof made for this purpose. Usually one-quarter to one-third of the eggs prove infertile. It is said that very few are left in after this first testing fail to hatch.

The temperature is regulated by manipulating the fire of bean straw, chopped and mixed with a certain amount of animal manure. The upper chamber is consequently full of choking smoke, and there is always a lot of smoke in the hatching chamber. The mud-brick walls are made very thick and prevent sudden changes of temperature. No artificial moisture is provided.

Every time the eggs are turned, care is taken to remove those which have been immediately under the fires, and place them in the centre of the chamber; this is said to be a most important point.

The mamal el firakh described is quite a small one. It is said that many consist of from ten to twenty hatching chambers, each 4x4 yards.

For upward of 5,000 years eggs have been hatched artificially, not only in Egypt, but also in China and other Asiatic countries, though it is only in comparatively recent years that this process has been used in Canada and European countries.

Prehistoric Cremation.

Evidently the Picts and Scots of our ancient histories were far more advanced in civilization than the old Roman writers stated.

At least they had got beyond direct earth to earth burial, and had developed a nice taste in urns wherein to deposit the incinerated remains of their friends. There has just been found on a farm at Louchar Brae, Skene, a fine specimen of these urns.

It was discovered in a low gravelly mound, part of which had been removed in the formation of a road. The interment consisted of an urn inverted over a heap of small pieces of bone, which had been burned. Examination of those fragments has shown that they are remains of the body of a human adult, but that it is impossible to form any opinion as to their sex or race. With the bones, and in the immediately surrounding ground, were scattered tiny portions of charcoal, probably remnants of the funeral pyre.

Natives Saw Cruiser First.

The first flag in Australia to salute the cruiser Sydney and the submarines was at the Aboriginal compound near Darwin. The flag was made entirely by the aboriginal girls, and is a beautiful piece of work. The aborigines, greatly excited, stood along the edge of the cliff from daylight looking out to sea. When the vessels hove in sight, the crowd shouted "Yakai!" and threw spears in the air. As the Sydney steamed past, with the submarines following, the aborigines were in transports of merriment, shouting, "Big feller come up; two feller young one follow up behind, all same opu."

Love of Gossip.

One of the chief characteristics of the human race is inquisitiveness—not so much about things and places and ideas as about each other. Every person is a born gossip, and the accomplished scandal monger is always welcome, provided, of course, his scandal is about others. You can test this at any time by considering who are the people you like best to meet and who are always surrounded by the greatest number of idle acquaintances. Invariably you must be forced to the conclusion they are those who have made a business of acquiring information about others and retailing their knowledge in various dressings. This love of gossip is further revealed in the kind of books which claim the widest appreciation. You will find that these books are not poetry, drama, science or philosophy. They are novels, memoirs, diaries, intimate histories, recollections, letters—all of them essential gossip (and sometimes scandal) appearing by their power to attract the gossiping sense which exists in all of us.—T. P.'s London Weekly.

The Koran.

In the London Everyman is a review of the Koran and its author, Mohammed. It is a one man's book and that man not an imaginative one, but essentially a man of action and lacking in invention. The Koran is a jumbled mass of precepts, doctrines, threats, injunctions, divine commands, narrative, lyric and epic poetry. It's heaven and hell are too material for modern thought. "Obviously," says Everyman, "the Koran is meant not to be read with the eye, but to be recited, when the repetitions are not nearly so pronounced. It reflects a social order, a system of ideas as remote from Rome, and more especially from Greece, as our own are from the North American Indian. But neither time nor evolution can utterly quench the flame of Mohammed's personality, which carried his followers to reckless excesses, to the sovereignty of empires, which created an art peculiar to Islam and founded age long traditions."

One of the Sights of Paris.

The Paris department stores are worse jumbles even than the English department stores. When there is a special sale under way the bargain counters are rigged up on the sidewalks. There, in the open air, buyer and seller will chaffer and bicker and wrangle and quarrel and kiss and make up again—for all the world to see. One of the free sights of Paris is a frugal Frenchman with his face extensively haired over pawing like a Skye terrier through a heap of marked down lingerie, picking out things for the female members of his household to wear, now testing some material with his tongue, now holding a personal article up in the sunlight to examine the fabric—while his wife stands humbly, dumbly by, waiting for him to complete his selections.—Irving S. Cobb in Saturday Evening Post.

A Bird in the Hand, Etc.

The minister had just pronounced the words which made them one. Of course the next thing of importance was the fee.

The bridegroom looked at his bride, then at the minister. Fumbling in his pocket, he produced a two dollar bill.

"Here is a two dollar bill I will give you now," he said, "or I will wait until the end of six months and pay you what I think it is worth, even if it is a hundred dollars. You can take your choice."

"I'll take the $2 now."—Indianapolis News.

His Infinite Variety.

The average man has within his system the material for 13 pounds of candles, a pound of nails, 800 pencils, bindings for 16 small books, 500 knife handles, 28 violin strings, 20 teaspoonfuls of salt and a pound of sugar.—Detroit Free Press.

A Sure Clue.

"Doctor, is your patient sure you can cure him by your new method?"

"How did you know my patient was not a woman?"

An Appropriate Sign.

Mrs. Smith—I see the contractor has put the sign "Sold" on the new house next door. Mr. Smith—Yes, and the sign "Stung" should be put on the buyer.—Kansas City Journal.

Empty hours, empty hands, empty compensions, empty words and empty hearts draw evil spirits as a vacuum draws air.—William Arnot.

As Smart as His Boy.

When Sir William Gilbert was twenty-seven and was known to the world as a promising writer, his father, who was a retired naval surgeon, wrote a semimetaphysical, semimedical book entitled "Shirley Hall Asylum," his first book.

Edith A. Brown, when preparing a biography of the younger man, having heard that the son was the incentive from without which spurred into action the inherent but dormant literary talent of the father, asked if such was the fact.

"Yes," replied the author of the "Bab Ballads" and the wittiest librettos ever written. "I think the little success which had attended my humble efforts certainly influenced my father."

"You see," he added, with a suspicion of a smile, "my father never had an exalted idea of my ability. He thought if I could write anybody could and forthwith he began."

A Question of Brains.

At a club frequented by doctors the discussion came up recently whether a person could live without a brain. During the discourse one of the doctors said: "When I was practicing medicine in Indiana a remarkable case came under my supervision. A man while out hunting had leaned upon his shotgun and the weapon had gone off accidentally, making a large wound in his head just above the ear. The brain was laid bare and in bringing the patient to the hospital a handful of the gray matter leaked out. He was trepanned and finally recovered, his mental faculties apparently as good as ever."

"Your story is interesting," interrupted an auditor, "but it sounds to me somewhat inconsistent."

"Why so?" questioned the narrator.

"Because," answered the other doctor, "if he had ever had a handful of brains he wouldn't have leaned on the gun."—National Monthly.

Great Crest of the Sierra.

Mount Whitney, the highest point in the United States, is not an isolated mountain peak, like Mount Shasta or Mount Rainier, but is the loftiest point in the great California crest or enormous saw tooth ridge of the Sierra Nevada, including many eminences almost as high. Mount Whitney is 14,501 feet above sea level. Among those of slightly lesser height are Mount Russell, less than a mile distant, 14,190 feet; Mount Williamson, 14,384 feet; Mount Muir, 14,205 feet; Mount Langley, 14,042 feet; Mount Barnard, 14,008 feet, and Mount Tyndall, 14,025 feet. The most distant of these is less than six miles away.

By a strange freak of nature the lowest point of dry land in the United States is less than eighty miles from the highest. The lowest point is in Death valley and is 276 feet below sea level. It is said that from this point Mount Whitney can be easily seen on a clear day.

In the Same Boat.

As the taxi skidded from side to side with increasing speed the occupant was becoming dreadfully nervous. Opening the door he called out, "I say, cabby, not so fast; this is my first trip in a taxi." "It's mine, too," came the prompt reply.—London Opinion.

An Ignoble Use.

Washington Irving in "Crayon Papers" says: "I was once at an evening entertainment given by the Duke of Wellington at Apsley House to William IV. The duke had manifested his admiration of his great adversary, Napoleon, by having portraits of him in different parts of the house. At the bottom of the grand staircase stood the colossal statue of the emperor by Canova. It was of marble in the antique style, with one arm partly extended, holding a figure of Victory. Over this arm the ladies in tripping upstairs to the ball had thrown their shawls. It was a singular office for the statue of Napoleon to perform in the mansion of the Duke of Wellington!

Imperial Caesar, dead and turned to clay!

Qualified.

"This," said the able manager, "is a difficult part to play. The character doesn't have to speak a word during the performance, and yet he is on the stage the greater part of the time. Do you think you can do it?"

"I should think I can!" exclaimed the actor. "I'm well qualified for the part. I've been married for twenty years and haven't had a chance to say a word yet."

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Opening a Boil.

It is exceedingly painful to touch a boil even when it is large enough to open. A correspondent of the New York World writes that the best way to do this is to paint a ring of collodion, which can be purchased in any drug store, around it, being careful not to put any directly over the boil. As the alcohol evaporates the collodion is drying will exert a gentle but firm pressure all around the boil, not only opening it, but forcing out its contents, which should be absorbed by a perfectly clean handkerchief or piece of sterilized cotton.

St. Paul's Cathedral Has Cardinals.

England has cardinals other than those created by the Pope. At one time these were officials of that title attached to a number of our cathedrals, whose duty it was to visit the sick and relieve the needy, but St. Paul's is now alone in the possession of a senior and a junior cardinal elected by the deans from among the minor canons. One of the holders of the title in recent times was the author of the "Jackdaw of Rheims."—London Chronicle.

Lilliputian.

Lilliputian has become a word almost entirely substituted for dwarf, yet the term was only invented by Jonathan Swift in 1727 when he wrote his famous "Gulliver's Travels." In this weird little fable Swift created the island of Lilliput, of which the inhabitants were no greater in size than a man's finger. Swift was a queer character, of an unhappy nature.

Dr. Chase Is No Stranger

There is no better safeguard against disease and suffering than a good cathartic medicine. In the great majority of homes Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are constantly kept at hand, because they quickly awaken the action of liver, kidneys and bowels, and cure the most common ills of life.

Mrs. Thos. Smith, Jamestown, Ont., writes:—"Dr. Chase is no stranger in our home, for we have two of his Receipt Books in the house. My father and my husband's father each had one, and I have been familiar with it ever since I can remember. It was only natural that we should use the Kidney-Liver Pills, and we found them so satisfactory in regulating the digestive system and curing the common ills of life that we always keep them on hand. Many a time these pills have saved me much suffering and prevented serious disease. We also keep the Ointment in the house all the time."

STYLES IN HOUSEMAIDS.

Young Mrs. Wombat was a dame
Who always dressed in style.
She understood the fashion game,
On dresses spent a pile.

Oh, she was willowy and slim,
Could wear both checks and stripes!
She liked to have her housemaids trim,
And they were slender types.

But she would meet them on parade
And note with many frowns
A pantly girl or parlor maid
In one of her own gowns.

She had to drop her slender girls.
From knowledge caution springs.
And now she hires some portly pearls,
Too fat to wear her things.

R. L. S. and Deroulede.

The critic who first introduced M. Deroulede to the English public as a poet was Robert Louis Stevenson. It was when stranded in a village inn in the course of his travels with a donkey in the Cevennes that Stevenson picked up a copy of his verses, and, after reading them, he delivered the verdict, "One feels that one would like to trust Paul Deroulede with something." His songs are of war and are inspired by his own experiences of the Franco-German campaign.—Westminster Gazette.

A Famous Regiment.

The Buffs, the famous old "Nutcrackers," of which the King of Denmark was appointed colonel in chief on his recent visit to England, are one of the oldest corps in the British army. They were evolved from the old trained band in the days of Elizabeth, and because of this ancient connection with the capital they have the privilege of marching through the city of London with fixed bayonets, beating drums and flying colors.

As In Days of Old.

The assemblage of the Barons of the Cinque Ports for the installation of Earl Beauchamp as Lord Warden on July 18 will take place at the ancient site, the Roman lighthouse of the western heights of Dover. It was there that the lord wardens were installed from time immemorial until twenty years ago.

FELL IN A FAINT

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Aver's Cliff, Que., writes: "Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was in a terrible condition. Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall to the floor. I could not sweep without fainting. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has so built up my system that I can wash and do my housework. Your medicine cured me when doctors had failed."

THE KING'S ORDERLIES.

East Indian Soldiers In Royal Entourage Now an Institution.

The fact that King George received at Buckingham Palace recently four Indian orderlies, who will be in attendance on His Majesty at state ceremonies during the season, is a reminder that it has been the custom for many years, particular since the late Queen Victoria was made Empress of India in the 'seventies, to have at the English court Indians of high caste, usually relatives of powerful potentates, to act as orderlies and attendants to their Majesties.

The custom really arose from the desire of Indian princes to learn something of English life, although it has been suggested that the wish on the part of the authorities to impress Indian royalty with our power and resources has had not a little to do with the continuance of these periodical visits to the court of high-caste Indians. And there can be no doubt that the close personal relationship between the Indian princes and our royal family which has resulted from such visits has done much to improve the relations between Britain and India.

Queen Victoria always liked to have her Indian attendants about her, and a glance at pictures dealing with the events of her reign will show that she was invariably accompanied by her orderlies from the East.

The late King Edward, too, whose voyage to India in the winter of 1875-76 brought him into close contact with the chief Indian vassals of the British Crown, had a great partiality for Indian attendants and orderlies, and it is an open secret that the honor of attending his late Majesty for a season was much coveted by the sons of Indian rulers.

In a certain sense these visits form the completion of their English education, for the majority of the Indians seen at the court have been to our colleges and Varsities for their early training.

The custom, which really has for its object the cementing of the bond of friendship between Britain and India, is carefully observed by King George and Queen Mary, whose visit in 1911, when they attended the Durbar, and Delhi was proclaimed the capital of India, aroused much enthusiasm. As a matter of fact, His Majesty made himself so popular during his visit to India that it was with the greatest difficulty that the orderlies at present in attendance upon him were selected from the number who wished to spend a season at the English court.

Is Menelik Dead?

The mystery of Menelik, Emperor of Abyssinia, is not even yet cleared up, for nobody knows whether he is still alive or has been dead for years. His death has been reported several times, the last occasion a few months ago, when the news was accepted as definite; but the latest Menelik news is as above stated.

This is what the Hon. W. Thesiger, British Minister to Abyssinia reports after a long journey he has just completed from the Abyssinian capital to the capital of British East Africa. The journey was undertaker to examine the situation on the Anglo-Abyssinian frontier, and to inquire into the circumstances under which Captain Aylmer met his death and Lieutenant Lloyd Jones was severely wounded in encounters with raiders.

The British Minister started from Adis, Abeba, in January, and when he left Abyssinia, and even up to the present moment, the mystery of Menelik remains complete. No one will admit that the emperor is dead, and outside the innermost compound of the palace there is complete ignorance on the subject. Even among the diplomatic body in Adis, Abeba nothing is known beyond the fact that not one of the Ministers has seen Menelik for years. The general belief is that the emperor's embalmed body lies in an innermost room of the Gebi, but as a matter of fact those in the Abyssinian capital know no more than people in London. The total distance covered by the Abyssinian expedition to Nairobi, was 1,116 miles, and involved a three months' march.

Anglo-Saxons.

The term "Anglo-Saxon" comes from the fact that England was largely settled, after the old Briton rule, by the "Angles" and "Saxons" from Germany. The Saxons were, of course, from Saxony, and the Angles took their name from a town near Sleswick called Angles. The Anglo-Saxons are, therefore, of Germanic breed. It may be said in passing that the Germans, English, Americans of English ancestry, Danes, Dutchmen, Swedes and Norwegians are all of the same stock.

Ten Cents a Day.

Physical Energy.

Perhaps you do not know it, but when you walk a distance of ten miles you expend enough force, could it be all collected, to raise 200 tons one foot from the ground. Of this enormous quantity of energy the legs are responsible for 150 tons, the heart for 100, the lungs for twenty-two and the bulk of the remainder is wasted in the heat given off from the body.

In severe athletic competitions, such as running, rowing and boxing, you must be in such a condition as to be able to exert, by your limbs alone, each minute as much force as would lift 5,000 pounds one foot above the ground.

When a powerful man works for twenty-four hours with all his might the energy he expends is equal to lifting a third class cruiser, and during his life he dissipates enough power to carry his body at death to the sun. These statements may at first sight seem extraordinary, but will not seem so when it is remembered that two ounces of bread contains the potential energy of 150 tons.—Pearson's.

The Possum Trail.

At one of the famous Georgia 'possum dinners one of the guests turned to the waiter with the remark: "Rastus, that 'possum must have gone to my head. It aches like fury."

THIN PEOPLE CAN INCREASE WEIGHT

Thin men and women who would like to increase their weight with 10 or 15 pounds of healthy "stay there" fat should try eating a little Sargol with their meals for a while and note results. Here is a good test worth trying. First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Then take Sargol—one tablet with every meal—for two weeks. Then weigh and measure again. It isn't a question of how you look or feel or what your friends say and think. The scales and the tape measure will tell their own story, and most any thin man or woman can easily add from five to eight pounds in the first fourteen days by following this simple direction. And best of all, the new flesh stays put.

Sargol does not of itself make fat, but mixing with your food, it turns the fats, sugars and starches of what you have eaten, into rich, ripe fat producing nourishment for the tissues and blood—prepares it in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accept. All this nourishment now passes from your body as waste. But Sargol stops the waste and does it quickly and makes the fat-producing contents of the very same meals you are eating now develop pounds and pounds of healthy flesh between your skin and bones. Sargol is safe, pleasant, efficient and inexpensive.

Buying an Island.

The story of the settlement of Tangier Island, in Chesapeake bay, as told by J. M. Church in his book about the island and its isolated inhabitants, outdoes that of the famous sale of Manhattan:

"You gentlemen ain't never heard how Tangier got settled? It were by a man from the eastern shore settlements back in 1707—more'n 200 years ago. The island were the home of a tribe of Indians, and this here man Poat got the idee of raisin' stock on it. So he runs over and tells the Indians that the colonists are goin' to come and massacre them and they'd better get outen the way. That scared the Indians, all right, and they sailed over to the western shore of Virginny. But before they went Poat said, as the island wasn't goin' to be any more use to 'em, he'd buy it off them. The chief agreed, so Poat gave him two old overcoats, and the island was his. Then he brung over five families and a passel o' horses and cows."

Where Is Europe?

The man who motors from London to Brighton would never dream of telling his friends next week that he had spent the holiday motoring in Europe. But the man who motored from Calais to Boulogne would.

Europe doesn't mean England to the average man. Try it on him and see. Europe he conceives only as the continent.

The Scilly islanders are much the same. They greet newcomers with inquiries as to affairs in England. I have known old country folk in the Isle of Wight speak in the same way, and the people of the marsh country at the back of Dungeness used to and may even now regard themselves as extra territorial. They were the marshmen; other people were foreigners and Englishmen.—London Mirror.

Double Action Saws.

The French have invented a double action saw that is said to be much better than saws of the ordinary kind. The teeth of the new saw are arranged in alternate groups, four pointing forward and then four pointing back. For cutting metal the new saws are almost twice as efficient as saws of the usual pattern. They last six times as long. The blades do not break readily. They cut either wood or metal and are made in a great variety of shapes and styles.

How a Secret Was Obtained

By MARTHA MONROE

Two men met on the custom house wharf in Naples, where baggage was being transferred from a recently arrived ocean steamer.

"Good morning, Vincenzo," said one. "What are you doing here?"

Vincenzo Fabroni gave the other a look enjoining silence and led the way to a place where they would not be observed.

"Well, Giuseppe, I am trying to make an honest living carrying baggage. The truth is I am tired of a criminal life and wish to reform."

"But you have nothing to fear. Being a member of the Camorra, you are always sure of protection whatever you do."

"That may be, but I am not naturally a villain. I was made so by circumstances."

"Well, Vincenzo, I wish you success in your efforts to carry rich men's trunks for an occasional lira that you may make by doing so. As for me, I wish I had your opportunities in a membership of the Camorra."

"Why don't you join the society?"

"It won't have me. I have secret enemies among the members who keep me out. Nevertheless I have been reasonably successful without the Camorra's assistance. I have just steered an American tourist into the hands of bandits and shared in the ransom."

"I wish you would lend me some of it. I would like to set up a wineshop whereby to make a living."

"How much do you need?"

"Five hundred lire would start me."

Giuseppe Zarrella thought a few minutes, then said: "I need something you possess. You need something I possess. Suppose we make a trade. You wish money to see you up in business. I wish to be a member of the Camorra. I will give you all you require for your purpose. You give me a secret that will enable me to gain admission into the society."

"What secret?"

"Who murdered Di Guido?"

Vincenzo winced. "What good would it do you to know that?" he asked.

"It would open to me the doors of the Camorra. The police are straining every nerve to discover who committed that crime. Let me once intimate that I am in the secret and the Camorra will gladly admit me."

After some more talk Vincenzo said that he would think the matter over and would give his friend an answer on the steps of the sea wall at 9 o'clock the next evening. When they came to gather again Vincenzo said:

"Giuseppe, the risk I would run in giving you the information you wish—the risk of my life—is worth much more than 500 lire."

"How much is it worth?"

Giuseppe looked at the other, wondering how high a price he could put on his secret. Finally he said, "Could you give me 3,000 lire?"

"Yes, I will give you that. An admission to the Camorra would be worth that to me."

"Swear that you will divulge the secret to no one."

"How could I use it without divulging it?"

"I see. Swear that you will tell no one that I gave it to you."

"I swear to that."

"When will you make the trade?"

"Now. I came provided with the money."

Giuseppe took a roll of bills from his pocket, counted out 3,000 lire and put the rest back. With the money in his palm he clasped Vincenzo's hand. Vincenzo whispered the secret in his ear, the hands were unclasped, and the bills remained in Vincenzo's.

"Now, Vincenzo," said his friend, "I will tell you what to do. Report to the Camorra that you have made this money by robbery and expect an arrest, warning them to be ready to clear you. That will account for your having such an amount, and they need not suspect that I got my secret from you."

"That I will surely do."

A few days later Vincenzo reported that he had waylaid an Englishman on the heights back of the city and taken considerable money from him. He was promised that should he be arrested and tried members of the Camorra would be present at the trial and intimate by signs to the judge that if Vincenzo were convicted he (the judge) would be assassinated.

Within a week a man was arrested for the Di Guido murder. He remained in jail some time while the government was working up a case against him and taking steps for his conviction despite the threats of the Camorra. Meanwhile Vincenzo Fabroni opened his wineshop and was making, for him, a good living. One day a member of the national police walked by his shop several times and, when he saw it was empty, walked in. Fabroni stood looking at him with astonishment mingled with horror.

"Giuseppe!" he exclaimed or, rather, moaned.

"Don't be afraid," said the carabineer. "You are safe so far as the government is concerned. Serve me a liter of wine, and I will tell you something."

Vincenzo pulled himself together, brought the wine, and Giuseppe told him that he had bought his secret not to secure a membership in the Camorra, but to discover the murderer of Di Guido.

A Discovery.
A merchant in a Canadian city once made a discovery. He had purchased some goods that did not turn out as he thought they would. Instead of advertising "Enormous Bargains" he simply said, "I bought them to sell at $10.00, but they are not worth it; in fact I cannot recommend them at all, but you will find them worth $4.90." He sold them all and made some new customers, who were convinced of his sincerity.
Nothing new about it. Truth is as old as the hills and he simply told the truth. He discovered that honesty is the best policy, and fortunately very many advertisers are making the same discovery.

If Mrs. Smith Stayed Home

BEFORE you leave for your summer vacation, you order your favorite daily newspaper sent on to your vacation address.

And having had it sent on, do you not watch for its daily arrival almost as eagerly as for your personal mail?

But do you read the advertisements in it as carefully at such a time as you do when you're at home?

Of course you do!

There is much in them to interest, advise and help.

The shrewd manufacturer, nowadays, realizes that it is wise to continue advertising his wares all the year 'round. He advertises all through the summer—partly to keep his goods before the numerous people who take no vacation and are thus possible customers every day throughout the year; partly to reach those who are away at summer resorts, but who will be home again in a few weeks ready and eager to buy his goods.

In his advertisements there is for Mrs. Smith, at the summer resort, just as interesting news of merchandise as for Mrs. Jones who stayed home.

When Mrs. Smith comes home she will find a lot of new things needed for her home and her family. And she should have her mind already made up as to the kind of things she will select.

Your daily paper, read on the porch of a summer cottage, will aid you in this—through its vitally interesting advertising columns—just as much as if you had stayed home and were reading it there.

So read the ads Mrs. Smith—even if you are away.

You can obtain helpful advice on advertising free of cost and without obligation by consulting the Business Department of The THROUGH Miss Gage, the nurse, Prudence Pry had become acquainted with Mr. Chotek, an officer of the Slavonian Society of New York, and on a bright blue morning of early June she was crossing the water to Ellis Island in his company.

Mr. Chotek was a cultured gentleman of middle age, who had not forgotten that once he, too, had been an immigrant, and he often made trips to the island to rescue humble compatriots from embarrassing tangles and assist ignorant young girls by turning them over to the Slavonian Home until employment and friends could be found for them.

"Grandpa, isn't it marvellous that Mr. Chotek can speak so many languages? He knows all the Slavonian dialects, French, German, Russian and Italian. It certainly makes me feel ashamed of my ignorance," said Prudence as she was leaving the house this morning.

"Yes, it is," replied Grandpa, "and it is even more marvellous that he says nothing foolish in any of these languages. I like Mr. Chotek so much that I am reconciled to your visiting the island in his company, and I couldn't say more than that!"

One of the old gentleman's hobbies was "race integrity" and he had little liking for what he termed "the rapidly increasing foreign element." Naturally, Ellis Island was to him an obnoxious spot, the home of millions of microbes

Prudence thought otherwise. To her the often slurred at "foreign element" was full of interest and dramatic possibility and she had not the slightest fear of germs.

All the young girl and her new friend sped over the sparkling water toward the wide pile of buildings in the distance Mr. Chotek explained to her that four ocean liners would send immigrants to the island that day—the Italian steamship Regina d'Italia, the Franz Josef, from Trieste; the Cedric, from Liverpool, and the Greek steamship Thessalonika—so one would have an opportunity to see people of many nations land, and on the Austrian and Greek boats there probably would be a good many Slavonians.

"Please tell me just who besides Russians and Poles are Slavonians, Mr. Chotek?" asked Prudence, rather shamefacedly. She felt she ought to have consulted the dictionary before leaving home.

"Bulgarians, Czechs, Roumanians, Servians, Croatians and Dalmatians," he replied. "They are all Slavs and they speak a variety of languages. See those bright shawls and head coverings on the barge that is anchored in front of the Administration Building? I should not be surprised to find those are Slavonian women. We shall be just in time to see them land."

As Prudence and Mr. Chotek left the ferry the immigrants also began to defile from the barge. The bright colored procession slowly made its way toward the main entrance of the Administration Building, where each immigrant would in turn pass through the required examinations before being released to his friends. There were a number of women with babies at the breast and children clinging to their skirts. All had heavy, bright colored packs of clothing, which they dragged laboriously, and one dark eyed Italian boy carried a gayly beribboned harmonica under his arm.

The pretty, flowered scarves of the women gleamed in the sun, and their heavy, glossy hair, bare of any covering, glittered with ornaments and trinkets. Of course, all were arayed in their best clothes for the landing.

But back of the exotic charm of the scene was something sad and ominous. Prudence felt her heart stir as the thought of all the hopes and fears behind those apprehensive eyes, shining with timid excitement. She had been reading a book called "The Wayfarer in New York," and she recalled a sentence that said:—

"He" who thinks that these people scent but the dollars which lie in our treasury is mightily mistaken and he who says that they come without ideals has no knowledge of the children of men."

She believed this was true, and a deep sym, ithy for the voluntary exiles animated her and made her long to protect them.

"Let us go in ahead of them," said Mr. Chotek, "so we can follow the routine of admittance. You will be interested to see how quickly and yet how thoroughly the sifting process takes place."

Before long, established in a convenient spot by the side of one of the wired alleyways, they saw the motley crowd of men, women and children pass in single file before several medical inspectors stationed at different points. Each alien was quickly examined for different points—general physical condition, eyes, mentality, &c., and chalk marks drawn on shoulders to indicate any condition that called for further examination by the Government's experts.

At the conclusion of the tests the puzzled strangers faced a double alleyway, and at this point an attendant watched for the fatal chalk marks, and turned those so stamped into a corridor leading to the special inquiry rooms, while the fortunate ones, supposedly sound in body and mind, passed on into the general waiting hall for an examination as to their antecedents, means, intentions and destinations.

"What will become of the poor things if they can't pass the final tests?" the young girl asked.

"They will be deported, and the steamship companies will have to pay their way back. If there is any latent individual weakness, the long trip in the steerage develops it, and sometimes those who were apparently sound on departure show marked physical and mental defects on landing."

"Are any sent back?"

"About two per cent. I think last year about 15,000 immigrants were refused admittance. Of course temporary ailments are cared for at the expense of the steamship companies in the hospital on the island, and in case of sick children the mothers are cared for in the dormitories until the little ones recover. Would you like to see a mental test applied to some of these poor creatures who were stamped with the white chalk cross?"

Naturally Prudence wanted to see everything, so they repaired to the room set apart for that purpose. The young surgeon in charge has invented a system of tests for mental suspects by means of simple mechanical devices of blocks, stationary cubes and cut puzzles. Also simple counting tests by means of cards are used, and facial tests and general questions.

A very pretty Yiddish girl, her head enveloped in a plaid shawl, was being examined when Prudence entered, and she watched with tense interest the application of the various tests, given very patiently and quietly by the doctor and interpreter.

The girl exhibited not the slightest sign of excitement or interest when she failed at one of the simplest block tests, which would be quickly accomplished by any intelligent child of five or six years. She seemed not to realize her deficiency. As Prudence gazed at the girl's gentle, impassive face she recalled the compassionate Scandinavian term for such defectives—"God's fools," they are called.

"Don't let us stop any longer, Mr. Chotek, it is too painful."

"Yes, it is," agreed her companion with a sigh. "About one hundred feeble minded cases are deported each month. But we must look behind the painful aspect of their exclusion and recognize the principle of justice and common sense at work. Now it is about dinner time, so let us go to the dining room; that will be a cheerful sight."

In the huge, white tiled dining room thirteen hundred people can be seated at the long tables. To-day the menu was green pea soup, ham, baked potatoes, bread and butter, crackers and milk and special bread for the Jews.

More than six hundred people were helping themselves from the steaming bowls, apparently with relish, and Prudence thought what an improvement this meal must be over their steerage rations. Mr. Chotek told her that the steamship companies paid Uncle Sam twenty-four cents per person for these meals.

"Now the tests must be [illegible] and many of these poor [illegible] soon with their fri[illegible] go to the room where they are dismissed," suggested her guide.

But just at [illegible] an official approached Mr. Chotek and, after respectfully saluting him, asked him to step to one of the examining rooms in behalf of some Slavonians.

The aliens in question were a Croatian mother and two children, a fine looking boy of sixteen and a girl of ten or twelve.

It seemed the woman had a husband in North Dakota, and she wanted to go to him, but she had not a cent of money. She made her explanations through the interpreter with a composure directly that was very attractive. She was a quaintly handsome figure in her striped "bampa," bright, voluminous apron and figured head scarf. The children were questioned and proudly boasted that they had been to school.

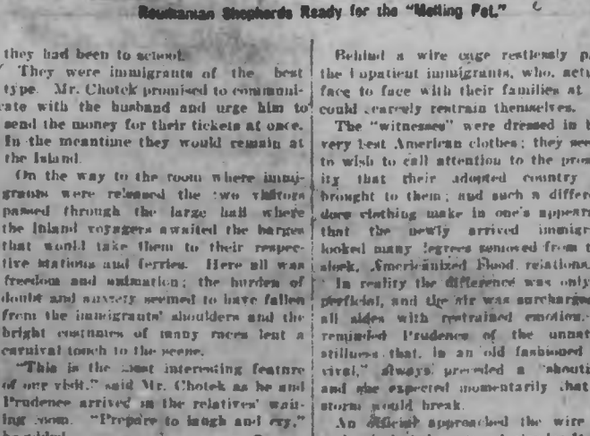
They were immigrants of the best type. Mr. Chotek promised to communicate with the husband and urge him to send the money for their tickets at once. In the meantime they would remain at the Island.

On the way to the room where immigrants were released the two visitors passed through the large hall where the Island voyagers awaited the barges that would take them to their respective stations and ferries. Here all was freedom and animation; the burden of doubt and anxiety seemed to have fallen from the immigrants' shoulders and the bright costumes of many races lent a carnival touch to the scene.

"This is the most interesting feature of our visit," said Mr. Chotek as he and Prudence arrived in the relatives' waiting room. "Prepare to laugh and cry," he added.

A long line of "witnesses" (for so the relatives and friends of aliens are officially designated) were slowly entering from a large ante-room and passing before a row of desks, where officials put them through a rigorous examination as to their claims of kinship with the strangers. Every effort seemed to be made to protect those newly arrived against exploiters or traffickers.

Prudence and Two Little Visitors From Norway.



Roumanian Shepherds Ready for the "Melting Pot."

Behind a wire cage restlessly paced the impatient immigrants, who, actually face to face with their families at last, could scarcely restrain themselves.

The "witnesses" were dressed in their very best American clothes; they seemed to wish to call attention to the prosperity that their adopted country had brought to them; and such a difference does clothing make in one's appearance that the newly arrived immigrants looked many degrees removed from their sleek, Americanized flood relations.

In reality the difference was only superficial, and the air was surcharged on all sides with restrained emotion. It reminded Prudence of the unnatural stillness that, in an old fashioned "revival," always preceded a "shouting," and she expected momentarily that the storm would break.

An official approached the wire pen and unlocked the gate. A slender Italian girl in deep mourning rushed out, dragging her bundles behind her. She darted around the "kissing post" and flung herself into the [illegible] of brother and sister, while stormy sobs burst from her breast. The air was rent with her muffled cries, nothing restrained, and Prudence gasped and looked in her little efforts to control herself as she hid behind Mr. Chotek to give vent to her sympathetic tears.

A bit of comedy came as a relief when a stupid but honest faced Polish woman gave her age as twenty-eight and claimed an eighteen-year-old daughter who stood beside her father beyond the "line" of desks. Much questioning ensued, causing obvious distress to their simple minds. Finally the transparent honesty of their guileless faces and manner won the day, and the members of the little family were reunited.

Prudence had noticed a tall, handsome girl among the caged women, who bore traces of distress and excitement on her olive face. The interpreter now approached her and began asking questions first of her and then of a man and woman who had come to claim her. Suddenly there were discrepancies and the girl began to weep. The woman "withdrew" had a child in her arms, and she put it down on the floor in order to indulge more freely in gesticulatory explanations.

Mr. Chotek went up to the bars and conversed with the girl, and when he returned Prudence asked him what the trouble was.

"That is a Dalmatian girl who has been detained for several days," he replied. "The man came alone the first time and claimed to be her brother, but he could not produce satisfactory proofs, so he was told to return and bring his wife. He came back to-day with his wife and child, and now says he is the girl's cousin, and brings a doctor's certificate to show that he brother is kept away by illness. To the officials the case looks suspicious and the girl must wait."

"What did she say to you?" questioned Prudence.

"The officials gave me permission to take the girl to the Slavonian Home, where she could remain in comfort until it was proven beyond a doubt that she has a brother here. But she refuses to go with me."

"Poor girl. She is probably too confused to know what she is saying or doing," exclaimed Prudence.

As the two visitors reluctantly turned their backs on the interesting human spectacle of the waiting room with its famous "kissing post," the scene of so many dramatic reunions, the barge drew up with loads of English immigrants from the Cedric. With their flower trimmed hats and conventional clothing they were a novel contrast to the Southern Europeans.

"You might think the emotional Italians would be the ones to make a fuss over the lengthy examinations," remarked Mr. Chotek in passing, "but they are not. It is the English or Irish immigrant who objects to the tests. He always begins to talk aggressively about 'his rights.'"

"In that respect they are already Americanized," retorted Prudence, laughingly.

"Well, you have seen 'The Melting Pot.' What do you think of it?" asked her escort.

"I think it is the best 'emotional' drama I have ever witnessed," replied the girl, "and it has set me thinking, too. I believe it is much easier to be born an American citizen than to become one."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

On the Eve of a Wedding

Mistaken Identity Caused a Complication

By JOHN Y. LARNED

Arthur MacKnight left his office at the conclusion of business hours and went to his bachelor apartments with a light heart. He would sleep that night in these apartments for the last time, for he was about to be married.

MacKnight's love came at first sight. He had made a flying trip abroad the summer before, had seen an American girl in the Kursaal in Lugano, Switzerland, had followed her to Lucerne and had secured an introduction. After two weeks going about in the same party he became engaged to her and the day after his engagement was obliged to leave her at Montreux to catch a steamer for America.

His fiancee, Miss Leona Denton, remained abroad three months longer. Her home was in a different city from that of MacKnight, and since he was very closely confined to business the lovers saw very little of each other. Therefore when he succeeded in arranging for a wedding to take place in the near future he was made a very happy man.

Consent that their daughter should ally herself with a man of whom she had seen so little and about whose antecedents so little was known was given by Miss Denton's parents with reluctance. MacKnight had been able to give no information about his family, had not a relative that he had ever seen, and his statements about his childhood were conflicting. The truth was that the poor fellow was a foundling, he knew he was a foundling and shrank from admitting the fact. Nevertheless he finally did so to his fiancee. But she who had come to love him with as much fervor as he loved her did not dare to communicate the fact to her parents lest they insist upon her breaking off the match. Consequently he was to be married with this secret kept by himself and Miss Denton from those who had a right to know it.

MacKnight reached the city where the Dentons lived too late to see his fiancee till morning. Before going to bed he sat smoking in the lounging room of the hotel where he stopped. It was not a first class house by any means. He had chosen it because it was the only hostelry that was not at a considerable distance from the Dentons. While he was smoking a man entered the room and looked about him uneasily. His gaze fell upon MacKnight, and he seemed surprised. MacKnight was also surprised. Between the two men there was a striking resemblance. Their complexion, hair, height, build were the same. Their clothing were entirely different, MacKnight's being plain, those of the other flashy.

The man passed out of the room, and soon after MacKnight went upstairs and to bed.

He was awakened by a knocking at his door. Rising, he opened it, and there stood a couple of policemen. They entered the room and directed MacKnight to dress himself. He asked what it all meant, but the only information he received was that he was wanted for various offenses. There being nothing for him to do except to obey, he turned to a chair on which he had left his clothes and began putting them on. He was so rattled that he did not for a few moments notice that the clothes were not those he had taken off. Then he saw that the suit was the exact counterpart of the one worn by the man he had seen in the lounging room.

Gradually it came into his head that this person had been hunted by the police and, having noticed the resemblance between himself and MacKnight, had conceived the idea of throwing the officers on a false scent. The supposed criminal could easily have learned the number of his room, opened the door with a skeleton key when all in the house were asleep, purloined MacKnight's clothes and left his own in their place.

Holding up the suit he was ordered to put on, MacKnight gave the policemen the above explanation. They looked at each other as much as to say, "Have we been fooled?" Then, without even consulting, they ordered MacKnight to put on the clothes, first taking the precaution to go through the pockets, in which they found articles to identify the owner with a prominent criminal. The prisoner was taken to a police station and locked in a cell.

To be placed in such a position only a few days before his expected wedding was, to say the least, distressing. MacKnight, who had had no experience in criminal law, did not doubt that he could prove his identity as soon as given an opportunity. What he dreaded was that the episode would strengthen the doubts concerning him held by his fiancee's parents and that they would withdraw their consent to the marriage.

He spent a night of torture, and the next morning early sent for an attorney, who assured him that he could secure an examination at once and, by giving bail for his appearance when the case came to trial, he would be liberated. This was done, and before noon the prisoner, having signed his own bail bond, was released from custody. Calling a cab, he drove at once to his fiancee's.

He had been expected much earlier, and his not coming had occasioned some worry. He proposed to give his explanation to Leona privately, and his not accounting for his delay at once made a bad impression on the rest of the family. As soon as the young couple were left alone he told his bride to be the story of his arrest. She listened eagerly and at his conclusion seemed much dejected. Her parents had not ceased to hold up to her the risk she ran in marrying a man who knew so little about, who had no family connections and whose childhood he had failed to account for. She dreaded lest they would now refuse to permit the wedding to come off as had been arranged.

The pair, after consultation, joined Mr. and Mrs. Denton and made a clean breast of what had occurred. It was evident that both the father and mother regarded the matter as a confirmation of their fears. MacKnight was informed that the wedding day must be put off indefinitely, by which he understood that it would not take place at all with Mr. and Mrs. Denton's consent. After further consultation between the lovers, they agreed that the wedding as arranged must be abandoned. Leona was too distressed to talk about the future, but she surely would not go back on her lover without the best of reasons.

The next morning MacKnight went to the office of his lawyer and was much surprised and disheartened to learn that it would be difficult to prove that he was not the man he was supposed to be. True, if he were the criminal, MacKnight must be accounted for. But might not MacKnight be both himself and the criminal? Persons had been known to lead double lives before, and why not in this case? At any rate, there must be a trial, which would attract a great deal of attention, and, even if the prisoner were acquitted, many persons would believe him guilty.

Leona had an interview with her parents, in which her father expressed the opinion that there was something wrong about her lover and that his arrest was fortunate in that it had saved her from a union with a criminal. The girl came from this interview feeling that no matter what verdict a jury might give with respect to the charge against her lover her father would believe him guilty.

Such was the situation of this young couple on the eve of the wedding day that had been set, with all the attendant expected happiness. But three days intervened before the intended nuptials. A compromise had been effected between Leona and her parents that the invitations should be recalled the next day. The lovers went for a final conference with the lawyer. He advised his client to jump his bail, go to a foreign country under an assumed name and begin life anew.

MacKnight, heartsick over the affair, dreading a trial and his inability to account for his past childhood, decided to act on this advice. It therefore remained with Leona whether she would share his fate or endure a lifelong separation from the man she loved. It was a question which suffered the more, MacKnight or the girl, whose life would be wrecked if she stood by him and would be blighted if she gave him up. A few hours of deliberation were sufficient for a decision. She agreed to marry her lover secretly and to go into oblivion with him.

MacKnight was leaving her home after receiving this decision when he met a man coming up the steps. The comer said he was looking for one Arthur MacKnight. "I am Arthur MacKnight." "I desire to confer with you." The two went back into the house, and the man said:

"I am John Eldredge of Barker, Smith & Eldredge, attorneys, of your city. A few years ago a matter concerning you was left with us, you not to be informed of it till you came to be twenty-five years old. But this charge against you which we have seen printed in the newspapers has seemed to warrant our communicating with you earlier. You were born in wedlock, but your father and mother are dead. Circumstances stood in the way of your mother acknowledging you. Shortly before she died she left a will in our care leaving you her property, you to be paid a part on reaching the age of twenty-five and the rest at thirty. If you need money for your defense of this charge against you I think we can enable you to borrow on your prospects."

Leona, who had heard her lover return to the house, at this juncture entered the room, curious to know what brought him back. MacKnight sprang toward her, folded her in his arms and covered her with kisses.

"The tide has turned," he cried. "All will yet come out as we wish. This gentleman has solved the mystery of my childhood."

It appeared that MacKnight was the son of persons of refinement and that he was heir to an estate of some $200,000. The mystery of his birth having been solved, Mr. Denton's suspicions were allayed, and he sympathized sincerely with the young couple. Considerable money was spent on detectives for the purpose of hunting down the real criminal, and he was found before the date fixed for the trial.

But long before this the lovers were married, for the invitations to the wedding were not recalled, and it occurred on the day that had been fixed.

After his marriage MacKnight took pains to hunt up more minute information of his parents and the reasons why he had been abandoned. All he could learn was that there was a secret marriage, with circumstances that prevented his acknowledgment till those nearest of kin to him were dead. His inheritance came from his mother, who lived under her maiden name.

Too Much For the Whale.

The Sunday school teacher was making a review of the Bible lesson.

"Who was the wisest man, James?"

"Solomon."

"That's right. Now, Frank, who was the strongest man?"

"Jonah."

"Wrong. What reason have you for believing Jonah to be the strongest man?"

"'Cause the whale couldn't hold him after it got him down."—Philadelphia North American.

Reasonable Expectation.

"Has your son found anything to do since he came out of college?"

"Not yet."

"There ought to be plenty of work for a young man of his ability."

"Probably there is. You see, he has been looking for a place where he could start in at the top, but I expect him to give it up and take something else eventually."—Chicago Record-Herald.

How He Proposed.

"She" was working at a woolen article for a bazaar. "He" asked her what she was making.

"A comforter," she replied.

"That is exactly what I want," he answered.

"Oh, I shall be most happy to make you one," she innocently rejoined.

And she did!—Weekly Telegraph.

Inexpensive Traveling.

There was once a lawsuit between Samuel Foote, the famous actor, and a Mr. Ross respecting the Edinburgh theatre, let by the latter to the former. The matter was terminated in favor of Mr. Ross, and Foote was saddled with the costs. When he had paid the bill to Mr. Ross' Scottish solicitor he said to him, "Now, when do you go to Scotland?"

"To-morrow."

"And how do you travel? I suppose, like the rest of your countrymen, you will do it in the most economical manner?"

"Yes," replied he, "I shall travel on Foote!"

Famed For Their Tattooing.

The Maoris used to be noted for their tattooing, which was designed to clothe as well as ornament the body. Whoever refused to undergo the prescribed tortures of tattooing required at every important event of his life was regarded as a person by his own consent foredoomed to slavery. The men were actually depilated in order to increase the surface for tattooing, while for the young women the operation was limited to the lips, whence the term "blue lips" applied to them by the English.

Not so: it was a female egg. And so the Argus remarked away back in 1803, "News dropped to a woman is like a bad egg—everybody will soon know it, broken ever so gently."—Portland Eastern Argus.

TIRED-OUT KIDNEYS
Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses of eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort, but by awakening the action of liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

To Overcome Sunburn, Tan, Freckles, Wrinkles

If your skin is unduly reddened, freckled or tanned, dab a liberal amount of mercolised wax on the face and allow it to remain over night. When you wash off the wax in the morning, fine flaky almost invisible particles of cuticle come with it. Repeating this daily, the entire outer skin is absorbed, but so gradually there is not the slightest hurt or inconvenience. Even the stubbornest freckles are affected. The underlying skin which forms the new complexion is so fresh and youthful-looking, you'll marvel at the transformation. It's the only thing known to actually discard an aged, faded, muddy or blotchy complexion. One ounce of mercolised wax, procurable at any drug store, is sufficient in most cases.

If sun and winds make you squint and frown, you're bound to cultivate wrinkles and crow's feet. To overcome these quickly, bathe the face in a solution made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel.

Revelation Concerning Smuggling of Chinamen Not New.

SARNIA, July 9.—One of the biggest Chinese smuggling syndicates in the country is reported to have been unearthed at Saginaw Tuesday in a ramshackle laundry building. Sarnia officials say there is no doubt but that such exists and that large motor boats and powerful autos are used to get the Chinamen from Canada to the United States by way of Port Huron.

It is well known here that this city is one of the three shipping points in the Celestial traffic. The other two points are Windsor and Niagara Falls. For instance, Lee Sing will arrive in Sarnia and start a laundry. Inside of a week's time a party of five or six Chinamen will come and visit him. They hang around two or three days and then disappear. Later Lee Sing sells his laundry to another Chinaman, and he, too, disappears. Lee Sing is none other than one of the many Chinese agents of the smuggling syndicate which has its main headquarters in Hong Kong, China.

The Sarnia authorities are more or less familiar with the traffic, but it is not Canada's business to prevent a Chinaman from leaving the country. In fact, it is a source of satisfaction, and, although any number of Chinamen may be under suspicion, the Canadian merely shrugs his shoulder and pays no more attention to the matter. It is alleged that Point Edward, or more particularly Sarnia Bay, is a locality from which more than one Chinaman is taken across to Port Huron in launches.

French Workmen Get Half Holiday.

PARIS, July 9.—The Senate by a vote of 246 to 20 yesterday adopted a bill providing for a Saturday half-holiday in the state workshops. This bill had already passed the Chamber of Deputies in spite of strong opposition from the finance committee, which took the ground that the granting of a half holiday to state workers would render such action obligatory among private industries.

This Premier Viviani denied. Social reform, he said, could not be imposed by legislation unless already partially adopted by custom.

Medicine Killed Him.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., July 9.—John Duba, 25 years old, a miner, won a bet at Bannock by eating three gallons of cherries. A physician, who was called later, left him medicine to be taken at intervals. Duba took all the medicine in one dose and was found dead in bed.

Dr. Coleridge Is Dead.

WOODSTOCK, July 9.—The death took place here yesterday morning at eight o'clock of Dr. James Bruce, Coleridge, former Mayor of Ingersoll, and a life-long resident of Oxford County. Dr. Coleridge had been ailing for some weeks and his death has been expected for some time. He was in his 86th year and is survived by a wife, a ten-year-old son and a sister, Mrs. J. W. McDonald, of Ingersoll, and one brother, Dr. J. G. Coleridge, of Detroit.

At 72 Murdered Husband.

LONDON, July 9.—Jealousy and crime in declining years were described on Tuesday in an extraordinary case at the Chester Assizes, where a women seventy-two years old was sentenced to death for the murder of her husband. She excused herself by alleging a love affair on the part of her husband with another woman.

The jury strongly recommended the woman to mercy, and it is unlikely that the sentence will be carried into effect.

Carried Nitro In Auto.

FINDLAY, Ohio, July 9.—Charles Armstrong and F. S. Longsbaugh, all well-shooters, were instantly killed yesterday morning by the explosion of several hundred quarts of nitroglycerine which they were taking to Buckland to shoot an oil well. The men were literally blown to atoms. Not a shred of flesh an inch square can be found, and the automobile in which the explosive was being transported, only a small piece of the axle is left.

Eight Miles of Net Seized.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., July 9.—George Tower, the fishery inspector who watches this district of the St. Lawrence river, had just returned from an official trip. His biggest haul was made near Fiddlers' Elbow where he seized six sets of gill nets and four sets of hopp nets.

So far this season he has captured 63 sets of gill nets, two sets of trap nets and 17 night lines, measuring eight miles.

Northern Japan's Famine.

Failure of the rice crop and the fishing industry have brought the districts of Tohoku and Hokkaido, northern Japan, one of the worst famines that the country has faced in a hundred years. Cold weather prevented the rice from treading out, and unusually cold currents have kept the fish at great distances from the shore. A conservative estimate places the number who are now in urgent need of food at 200,000.

ANNIE LOUISE CARY

And Her Favourite "Robin Adair"

The indisputable queen of song in her day was Annie Louise Cary. She was one of the world's famous contraltos when she retired from the operatic stage at the very height of her career in opera. She retained the sweet, wholesome characteristics of the American girl all during her musical triumphs. She made her debut in Copenhagen, although she studied in Milan. For three years she delighted European audiences before making her appearance in America. For over twelve years, with the exception of a brief European tour, she delighted American audiences with the charms of her voice and personality. But to hear her sing "Robin Adair," that simple old song, and that masterpiece of Arthur Sullivan's "The Lost Chord," and Longfellow's "The Day is Done," with the rich tones of the happy, good-natured personality that always charmed, she always left the audience breathless and speechbound.

"Robin Adair," "The Lost Chord," and many other favourites of Cary, are to be found in "Heart Songs," now being distributed to the readers of this paper. See Coupon elsewhere in this issue for terms.

There was such a demand for the Heart Songs that we had to discontinue inserting the coupon. We have now on hand a further supply, and the coupon will run for two weeks. If you desire a copy, save the coupons and together with 98c. you will get a $3.00 book.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Mastoiditis.

Mastoiditis, a bone infection not at all rare and one of the most serious of all the diseases of the ear, always requires an operation if let go too long. Failure to operate in such a case means brain infection and death. Ear specialists have long tried to impress upon general practitioners the need to recognize a mastoid infection early.

The surest symptom is tenderness to pressure in the hard, ridgelike mastoid bone just back of the ear lobe. This tenderness, combined with a "running ear" and uncertain temperatures, makes mastoiditis almost certain. In any case where these symptoms develop the sufferer should consult a physician at once.

The Last of Five Points.

The Five Points Mission House is to give way to the development of downtown New York. Its site being needed for the proposed civic center and county courthouse. To the present generation its passing will doubtless be of less concern than the closing of the Astor House rotunda lunch counter, but for New Yorkers of older growth it possessed romantic associations both as a leaven of righteousness in what was once the wickedest spot in New York, if not in the world, and because of its pioneer work of social reclamation.—New York World.

TO FREE YOUR SKIN OF HAIR OR FUZZ

(Boudoir Secrets.)

No toilet table is complete without a small package of delatone, for with it hair of from one to six months' growth can be entirely banished from the skin. To remove hairs you merely mix into a paste enough of the powder and water to cover the objectionable parts. This should be left on the skin about 2 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed, when it will be found free from hair or blemish. Be sure you get genuine delatone.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, July 8.—Belief that the government crop report would prove bearish acted as a weight today on the wheat market. The report itself, which came after trading was at an end, turned out even more adverse to the bulls than had been expected. Closing prices were heavy, 2-3c to ½c under last night. Corn prices finished 1-4c to 5-8c net higher. Oats 1-3c off to 2-3c up, and provisions varying from unchanged figures to a rise of 12½c.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, July 8.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 89 cars, comprising 972 cattle, 1767 hogs, 1911 sheep and lambs and 232 calves.

Butchers' Cattle.

Choice butchers' steers, $8.25 to $8.45; good, $8 to $8.25; medium, $7.60 to $7.90; common grassers, $6 to $7; choice cows, $6.75 to $7; good cows, $6.25 to $6.75; medium, $5.75 to $6; common, $4.75 to $5.25; canners, $3.50 to $3.90; bulls, $5 to $7.

Stockers and Feeders.

Choice feeders were quoted at $6.75 to $7; good at $6.25 to $6.50; medium, $6 to $6.25; stockers, $5.75 to $6.

Milkers and Springers.

A moderate supply met an almost indifferent demand and prices ranged from $60 to $85 each, the bulk going at $60 to $70 each.

Veal Calves.

Prices were very firm, as the demand was greater than the supply. Choice calves, $10 to $10.50; choice, extra new milk-fed veals, $11; good, $9 to $9.50; medium, $8 to $8.50, common, $7 to $7.75; inferior, $6.50 to $7.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts of about 2000 sheep and lambs caused prices to decline considerably, especially for lambs, which have been selling at exorbitant values considering the season. Light ewes sold at $5 to $6; heavy ewes and rams, $5.50 to $4.50; culls, $3 to $3; spring lambs, $8.50 to $9.50.

Hogs.

The hog market ruled steady to firm. Selects, fed and watered, $8.40; weighed off cars, $8.60 to $8.65; f.o.b. cars at $8 to $8.10.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL July 8.—At the C.P.R. live stock market prices were steady and unchanged today. Demand for butchers for small lots was fair, choice steers selling at from $8.50 to $8.75, good at $8 to $8.25, fair at $7 to $7.50 and the lower grades at from $6.50 to $6.50 per 100 pounds. The demand for butchers' cows was better than usual, and sales of choice stock were made at $7.50 to $7.75 and the more common grades at from $6.75 to $7, while bulls ranged from $6.50 to $7.75 per 100 pounds.

In sympathy with the decline of 25c per 100 pounds for hogs in the Toronto market, an easier feeling was evident and prices ruled 15c to 25c per hundred lower. Demand was fair, and sales of selected lots were made at $9 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars. The trade in small meats was fairly active, and the tone of the market was steady with no change to note in prices.

$6.75 to $7 also were sweep at $6.25 to $6.50 per 100 pounds, while spring lambs sold readily at $8 to $7 each, as to size and quality. The demand for calves was good, with sales of milk-fed at 6c to 8c, and good grass fed at 5½c to 6c per pound live weight.

EAST BUFFALO LIVE STOCK.

Veals—Receipts, 75; active and steady, $5 to $11.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 1600; active; heavy, $9 to $9.10; Yorkers and pigs, $9 to $9.10; roughs, $7.50 to $7.75; stags, $6 to $7.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 600; active; sheep, steady; lambs, higher; lambs, $7 to $8.65; yearlings, $6 to $8; wethers, $6.25 to $6.50; ewes, $5.50 to $5.50; sheep, mixed, $5.50 to $6.

THE CHANNEL ISLANDS.

Medieval Charming Groups Lying Between England and France.

In his recently published book, "As It Is In England," Albert B. Osborne devotes one chapter to a vivid description of the Channel Islands, "those beautiful bits of rock and verdure a hundred miles from England and but 12 from France, where the English flag is flown and the French tongue spoken." Here in part is his description:

"These islands are all but independent, with weights, measures and copper coins differing from the standard of all countries; with feudal laws and feudal customs still controlling men and events of the 20th century, and where a surviving medievalism yet affords the atmosphere for present day romances that seem grotesquely impossible when enacted by men in pantaloons and derbies and young women in picture hats and bobble skirts, and that are told to the world by telegraph instead of troubadours.

Jersey, Guernsey, Alderney, Sark, Hera and Jethou form the inhabited islands and on them a hundred thousand people have their homes. There is but one family on Jethou and Jersey's population is over 50,000. Alderney is seldom visited and concededly does not present enough of distinctive beauty to compensate for the inconveniences of the trip there, but Jersey and Guernsey and Sark possess a peculiar charm of landscape, life and climate that appeal irresistably to the seeker of places and people that are different.

In the oldest of times there was undoubtedly much of the same life as in Brittany and Cornwall, for dolmans still stand on the summits of some of the hills. Finally they became Normin, and politically and ecclesiastically were a part of Normandy. As a result they were exempt from the Norman conquest. Normans they have been and in a restricted sense Norman they remain.

An average change of eight degrees differentiates summer and winter, palms grow unprotected in the open gardens of the town, and rose trees, heavy with August bloom, and fuchsia trees that blossom through the year, thrive side by side with great magnolias with creamy buds; and huge bushes of pink and blue hydrangeas are everywhere.

The street names are in French and the square houses of stone or stucco look very continental. A long stone pier runs out into the sea and then, crooking its elbow at right angles, tucks away a little harbor, protected on the other side by a causeway built out of the island, where Castle Cornet stands in partial ruin. It is a very animated scene as the boats swing in. Old women and pretty faced boys carry huge wicker trays piled with the purple and white grapes, ripe figs, yellow peaches and red apples and pears that grow so well on the island. From the esplanade by the water a very long, very narrow and very crooked street climbs up the hill lined by all sorts of little shops. The sidewalks are less than three feet wide and the side streets drop simply down to the sea with a vista of brown rock, or old fortress, or the little harbor where, at ebb tide, the fishing boats lie keeled upon the sand.

Had Nervous Dyspepsia

With Frequent Sick Headaches and Much Pain After Eating — Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Cured.

This letter is from a lady who gained 14 pounds by using the great food cure. It did wonders for her in improving her general health. She is enthusiastic in its praise, and refers to her neighbours as witnesses of the splendid results obtained.

Mrs. Susan oDbson, Spring Hill Mines, N. S., writes:—"It is with pleasure that I write to you in praise of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I was troubled with dyspepsia, and could not eat without suffering much pain; also had sick headaches frequently, and my nerves were in bad condition. About ten years ago I took a thorough treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, using altogether 21 boxes, and since then can eat anything, have been freed from headaches, and my health has been greatly improved in every way. I gained 14 pounds in weight, and feel sure I owe everything to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. You may use this letter, and my neighbours can tell you of my condition before using this treatment."

Farm and Dairy Market Report

TORONTO, Monday, July 5.—What of the future? No question is being more discussed nowadays than the trade conditions of the next few months. Our Minister of Finance has assured us that the depression will soon clear away. Indications throughout the country do not seem to justify his optimism. At the present time there are thousands of men out of work and this at the very busiest season of the year. In several of our cities immigrants are coming for transportation back home. People of the West are living almost penuriously in order that they may hold on to their property and threatening to abandon it altogether. Hence the shortages in freight traffic. With conditions so depressing at the present time, what will be the conditions next winter? We have passed through an era of speculation. Conditions are now forcing us to get down to actual production.

Cattle and potatoes have been the strong point of the farm produce market during the week. Wheat has been up and down and coarse grains tend to be easy. Dairy products also continue easy.

WHEAT.

The price quoted last week, 94½c for No. 1 Northern, receded quite sharply during the week, but is now back at the old level. The new firmness is due to advances at Winnipeg and to a better demand from the Old Land. Actual trading is rather slim. Ontario wheat has receded in prospect of the harvest of the new crop. Quotations now are: No. 1 Northern, 95c; Ontario, 92c.

COARSE GRAINS.

There is a fair local demand for oats, but on the whole the market is easier. Other grains too are quiet. Quotations: Oats, C. W. No. 2, 45c; No. 3, 40½c; Ontario, 40c to 41c; corn, 90½c; rye, 82c to 84c; peas, 92c to 91.03; barley, malting, 58c to 59c; buckwheat, 82c to 83c.

At Montreal wholesale quotations are: Oats, C.W. No. 2, 46½c to 46¾c; No. 3, 45¾c; corn, 75c to 76c; feed wheat, 85c to 90c; barley, malting, 59c; feed, 54c; peas, $1.20; buckwheat, 78c to 80c; rye, 78c to 81c.

HAY AND STRAW.

Hay harvest is now on and reports from everywhere indicate a short crop. The rains of the last week will not help one appreciably. Quotations here are firm. Baled hay, choice, $14 to $14.50; No. 1, $12.50 to $13; No. 2, 00 to 00; baled straw, 00 to 00.

EGGS AND POULTRY.

Receipts of eggs are falling off and prices are a trifle firmer, although the average price paid in the country is still around 20c. Dealers are selling to the trade as follows: Strictly new laid in cartons, 24c to 25c; extra firsts, 22c to 23c; ordinary firsts, 20c to 21c.

Dressed poultry tends to lower levels. Fowl, dressed, heavy 15c to 16c; light, 13c to 14c; live, 12c to 13c; chickens, dressed, milk fed, 22c to 25c; ordinary, 18c to 19c; live yearlings, 13c to 14c; broilers, 20c to 22c; turkeys, dressed 19c to 20c; alive, 14c to 16c.

POTATOES AND BEANS.

Potatoes are now sky high, the latest advance being made on Thursday last when they climbed 15c. Ontario's sell at $1.40 a bag out of store and New Brunswick's $1.75. New potatoes are quoted $6.25 to $6.75 a bbl.

Beans here are quoted $2.15 a bus. for primes; $2.30 to $2.35 for hand picked.

LIVE STOCK.

There has been a general firming up on the live stock market. On the Wednesday market 25 steers brought a top price of $8.75, but this was above normal for the day's trading. On Thursday the top price paid was around $8.70, and many lots changed hands at $8.50. Receipts have been moderate and demand good, ending off on the final market of the week. A stronger demand is noted for stockers which recent rains and better pastures will make a better buying proposition for the farmer. Average quotations are: Choice heavy steers, $8.35 to $8.50; handy choice steers, $8.15 to $8.50; butchers' steers, good, $8 to $8.25; common, $7.40 to $8; heifers, $7.25 to $8.25; choice cows, $7 to $7.25; com. to good, $6.50 to $7; canner bulls, $6 to $7; feeders, $7 to $7.25; stockers, $5.50 to $7.15; canners and cutters, $3 to $4.50.

Milch cows were in slightly better demand this week than last but on the whole the market is dreary. Choice springers, $60 to $65; good, $40 to $55; springers, $40 to $50. Calves run from $3 to $10.75 according to size and quality.

Spring lambs are in active demand at $9 to $11.75. Other quotations are: Yearling lambs, $7 to $9; heavy ewes, $5 to $6.75; light ewes, $6 to $7; heavy sheep, $4 to $5; good grass bucks, $4.50 to $5; culls, $3 to $4.

Hogs advanced sharply on Tuesday and the week closed with f.o.b. shipments firm at $7.90 to $8.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

Kingston, July 2.—733 colored and 1,000 white boarded. Colored sold at 12 9-16c; white at 12 11-16c.

Brockville, July 2.—Offerings were 2,500 colored and 1,517 white. Sales were 1,000 colored and 1,185 white at 12½c.

London, July 4.—800 boxes offered, all sold. Bidding at 12c to 12¾c.

Cowansville, Que., July 4.—14 factories offered 763 packages of butter. All sold except one factory, at 23½c.

St. Hyacinthe, Que., July 4.—300 packages of butter sold at 23c.; 250 boxes of cheese at 12½c.

Belleville, July 4.—2,616 boxes of white and 165 boxes colored were offered. All sold at 12 12-16c.

DAIRY PRODUCE.

Commenting on present conditions in the butter market, the Trade Bulletin of Montreal remarks:—

"There appears to be less interest taken in the June creameries this year, notwithstanding that prices are about lower than a year ago. This is no doubt owing to the uncertainty of the future conditions now being quite different from those of last year at this time, when the ... demand and local requirements were sufficient to absorb the receipts, and not leave the surplus stock at present on hand. This is probably the reason why local dealers are not cleaning up the June as in former years. There is a chance of England relieving us of our surplus at present and the United States does not seem to want it. Consequently there is no inducement, dealers tell us, to invest open in June creameries at present prices. It looks as if we were in for a period of low prices, or at least lower than those obtained for some years past during the fall and winter.

"Prices in the three Northwest provinces which formerly depended upon us for their supplies of creamery butter, are now lower than ours. The following item from Regina, will partly explain the reason why prices are lower in Saskatchewan than those here: The output of the Co-operative Creameries in Saskatchewan is increasing at a very rapid rate as shown by the Government report, recently issued. In the six winter months of 1913-1914 it was 112,833 pounds of butter, whereas during the same period of 1913-1914 it was 225,349. The total increase was 192,517 pounds of butter or 70 per cent. This goes to show that the Co-operative movement in Saskatchewan is having a very good effect."

The flush of the cheese make is now over and even the recent rains cannot help materially. During the week prices have receded a fraction of a cent country boards and sales business more active in consequence.

CONTRACTS FOR IRON WORK WERE AWARDED

MEETING FRIDAY NIGHT

The main feature of interest slated for the programme of the Board of Works last night failed to materialize. That was the awarding of the contracts for street paving. The Board have announced their intention of paving the section of the City defined below, and called for tenders for the construction of the same, to be opened at last night's meeting. The tenders were opened and Ald. Johnston spent a good while figuring and calculating, but as to whose tender is the lowest is still a mystery to the members of the Board of Works, the City Clerk and the City Engineer. For that reason the tenders were not awarded last night. The reason why it was impossible to calculate which was the lowest of the four tenders is obvious. All the concerns who tendered did not give separate prices on the actual pavement, the extra cement sidewalk, the cement curb, the cement gutter, and the vitrified brick. As some are lower on one part, and higher on another it will be necessary to figure out just how much gutter, curb, bricks, pavement and extra sidewalk is going to be built. Then from the tender of each company for each of these will be estimated what the whole work will cost when done by the different concerns. The figures on the whole work will then show what tenders are the lowest.

CONTRACTS AWARDED.

At last night's meeting, however, the contract was awarded for the constructing and supplying to the City of all the man-hole tops, sidewalk grates and catch basin tops. The G. Walter Green Foundry Co. were the lowest and successful tenderers. Their tender was accepted on the motion of Ald. McIntyre and Mayor Fuller. Ald. Stratton advocated splitting the work up among the different local foundries, but the Mayor replied that that would hardly be fair after calling for tenders. The following were the tenders submitted:

Wm. Hamilton Co.—

Man-hole tops	$2.40
Sidewalk grates	3.00
Catch basin tops	2.25

Peter Hamilton Co.—

Man-hole tops	$3.40
Sidewalk grates	3.00
Catch basin tops	2.25

G. Walter Green Co.—

Manhole tops	2.25
Sidewalk grates	2.25
Catch basin tops	2.25

New Additions To The Museum

Collection of Archaeological Specimens Donated by T. Z. Webster of Katchawanooka Heights.

THE OBJECTS SHOWN

The Victoria Museum, in the City Library Building, is a fine place to spend a profitable hour, viewing the relics of past ages, which are varied. Some are very crude, while others rival in workmanship the crafts of to-day.

Among the new additions is a collection of archaeological specimens, donated by T. Z. Webster, of Katchawanooka Heights, north of Lakefield; stone axes, odd-shaped slate pieces for ceremonial purposes, flint objects, for war, which the Indian truly loved, and other objects of bone and clay; various pieces showing that the Indian, so lazy in domestic life, had the tendency of purpose to grind and carve these articles for months till they attained the desired shape and finish.

Other objects are also shown, including a sword carried by a non-commissioned officer in the American Civil War, an old, rusty French Cutlass, probably of the War of 1812. Also old flint lock guns, and a flint lock Blunderbuss of the 18th century. Not many of these weapons are in existence at the present time.

A knife cannon ball, a murderous weapon, is on exhibition. When shot from a cannon, knives expand and carry havoc among the ranks of men.

One other object might be mentioned as being worthy of note. It is a meteor or shooting star, which was seen to fall and later dug up. It is very heavy, composed mainly of iron and nickle. It is about one foot in diameter.

The Museum is open afternoons, and on Saturday nights. The Curator will be pleased to show visitors around and explain as much as possible the relics shown.

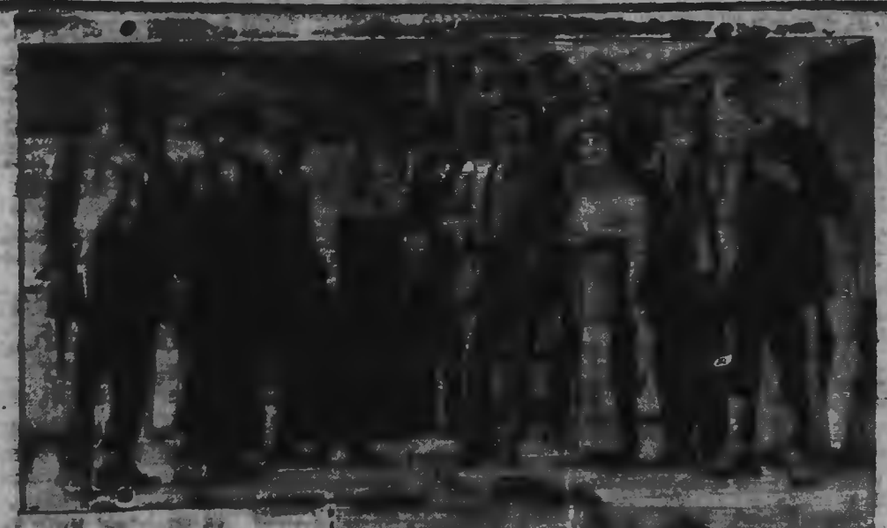
STARTLING CHARGES MAY BE EXPECTED

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, ENG., July 9. — The Daily Telegraph's parliamentary correspondent writes that a startling change may soon be expected in the political situation. "I have reason to believe that the government will after some demur accept the two crucial amendments proposed by the House of Lords in the amending bill. The disappearance of the time limit has been recognized to be inevitable. This is the first point upon which the government will ultimately accept the logic of the situation. The second point is the question of the exclusion of Ulster practically as a whole from the scope of the bill. This is a much more contentious matter and is indeed the crux of the difficulty. It is of course impossible for Redmond and the Nationalists to agree to this proposal. In that case the Nationalists will probably be supported by certain sections of the Radical party. What will follow remains to be seen.

CAPT. STANLEY LEWIS IS SOME CARTOONIST

Captain Stanley Lewis, of the Leon Washburn Shows, he who drives the red racer and facilitates the work of the reporters, is something of a wit and a cartonist. This morning while in The Examiner office referring to last night's show, it was suggested to him that the printer's devil would appreciate a pass. "Certainly," replied Captain Lewis. "We will have to give the devil his due." When the present incumbent of the traditional position of 'devil' had been called in and had expressed his thanks, Captain Lewis scratched a few lines on a pad, filled in sections here and there, and presented a good drawing to the staff. It was subscribed "Giving the Devil His Due," showing G— receiving a pass from the Captain. Then by way of a few moments' diversion he drew cartoons of Roosevelt, Wilson, Bryan, King George, Taft, Huerta, and a few other personages. Captain Lewis evidences a comprehensive versatility, and those who have met him since coming to Peterborough, acclaim him a "good scout."



To Marry and Survey in the North—The Nascopie and her passengers. The large picture shows the Captain and some of the passengers of the steamer Nascopie, which sailed from Montreal on its long trip to Hudson's Bay and the Arctic Circle. Those in the group are Captain James Meickle of the Nascopie, Miss M. Anderson, who sails to wed the Manager of a far north trading post; Mr. Jay Eaton, Mr. G. F. W. Jennigs, Mr. R. C. Ridley, Miss Reid, Mr. W. H. Welsh, Mr. D. McConnell, and Captain Cox of the steamer Othello. The smaller picture shows the Nascopie leaving Windmill Point on her trip north.

ANOTHER SIX MONTHS FOR JOHN SWEENEY

Has Been Released Only Six Weeks and is Sent Back on Charge of Vagrancy—Ben Hobson wanted "Expended" Sentence But the Court gave him His Release.

OTHER CASES

Five offenders faced His Worship Police Magistrate Dumble at this morning's session of the police court. The opening remark of the Cadi was, "Isn't Bill Anthony dead yet?" which would seem to indicate that that worthy would appear. When, however, his name was called, he was not present, but it was learned that he was an inmate of the women's cell. This together with Ben Hobson wanting "expended sentence, or wahtever you call it," and several other somewhat comical remarks which were passed, made the session an amusing one.

Robert Burns, who hails from Toronto, and who incidentally has figured in the local police court before, was charged with being found drunk in a public place. He pleaded guilty, but asked to be allowed to get out of town. This course did not seem to find satisfaction with the court. Burns has been convicted in Toronto several times since he last left Peterborough, was a statement made by Chief Thompson.

"Yes, in a place of that population there are dozen and dozens of Robert Burns."

"Yes," replied the Chief, "but you are the one."

"What's the use of going to Norwood," said the Magistrate, as he imposed a fine of $2 to be paid in 10 days. "They have got a policeman down there, too."

DISCHARGED WITH A WARNING

Joseph [illegible], who has been on remand, charged with assault, appeared before the court this morning, and when asked what he had to say made a lengthy statement, part of which is contained in the following:

"I can assure your Worship that I will not appear, that I will have no need to appear before a Magistrate or Justice of the Peace again. I have made matters right between God and myself, and my family, and during the time that I have been confined I have had time to reflect upon my actions." After consultation, the Magistrate allowed Joseph to go discharging him with a warning.

WILLIAM ANTHONY AGAIN.

"How long it it since Anthony has been here?" enquired the Court, as William stood up in the box.

"About three months," replied the Chief.

"How many times should he have been here?" the cross examination continued.

"Well, Anthony has been off the road once or twice, but when I spoke to him he seemed to straighten up for a while, but the last warning seems to have had no effect. I think I will have to ask for a remand."

Anthony was according remanded till Monday.

SIX MONTHS FOR SWEENEY

John Sweeney, who only six weeks ago completed a six months term in the Central Prison, on a charge of vagrancy, appeared in court again this morning to face a similar charge. Since his release, according to Detective Newhall, he has been practically idle, and what money he has earned has been spent to buy liquor.

The prisoner interrupted and said that he had a steady job with Mr. J. T. O'Connell, to which the Court replied, "We don't take any notice of what you say; you have no character and no honour." Since his release Sweeney has appeared in the local court on a charge of being drunk and disorderly.

He has five children, who have been

FORMER LOCAL TEACHER WAS THE SELECTION

Mr. John J. Jeffries, ex-English Master of Peterboro Collegiate, the new Principal of James Street Collegiate

MR. WALLACE PROMOTED

TORONTO, July 9.—Promotion ruled at the Board of Education meeting last night when Mr. John Jeffries, English specialist for the last seven and a half years at Jarvis Street Collegiate Institute and first assistant for the past three years, was appointed to the position of Principal of the Jarvis Street Collegiate Institute, succeeding Dr. L. E. Embree, who was recently retired when the age limit rule was introduced.

Mr. Jeffries is an honour graduate of the University of Toronto, and is a specialist in English and history, and the modern languages. Before coming to Toronto he was for seventeen years head of the English department of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute.

Mr. D. A. Glassey, B.A., head of the Department of Classics in Harbord Street Collegiate Institute, had been recommended for the position by the Management Committee of the Board of Education.

Directly the recommendation was read by the Chairman, Mr. McTaggart, Trustee Boland got up and moved that the name of Miss Gertrude Lawlor be substituted for that of Mr. Glassey. He declared that the lady applicant was better qualified than any of the men mentioned before the Management Committee. The one objection to her was that she was a woman. "It sems to me," said the trustee, "that it is a hardship that, because she is a woman, she should not be given the position."

Trustee Hopkins then moved that the name of Mr. R. Gourlay be substituted for that of Mr. Glassey. A few more of the trustees were ready with further names, but they were ruled out of order until the amendment to the amendment had been disposed of. Both the amendments were defeated, and then Trustee Dr. Steele moved the name of Mr. John Jeffries of Jarvis Collegiate to fill the vacancy.

Stick to Same School.

Trustee Dr. Noble said that the two men most freely mentioned in the matter, Mr. Glassey and Mr. Jeffries, were equal as far as academic and personal qualifications were concerned, but it seemed to him an absurd thing to bring a man from a different school when there was a man in the school in question who was thoroughly familiar with the conditions there, and who would fall naturally into the position which was vacant. Trustee Houston said that Principal Embree was the teacher of English at Jarvis. Mr. Jeffries was also teacher of English, and with his appointment there would be no disruption of the work and no disturbances of the staff.

The vote in favour of Mr. Jeffries was eight to four. Mr. Borland then moved that the name of Miss Lawlor be substituted for that of Mr. Jeffries, and called for the "ayes" and "nays" on the question. The "ayes" were only two, the mover and the seconder, Trustee Dineen.

Mr. T. J. Wallace, also formerly of Peterborough, was promoted to the position of Principal of the York Street School.

JUDGMENT FOR FULL AMOUNT AND THE COSTS

Case of Kidd vs. Amys Results in Favour of Plaintiff for $125 and Costs

INTERESTING CASE

Judgment was given by His Honour Judge Huycke this morning in the case of Kidd vs. Amys in favour of the plaintiff for the full amount of costs.

The plaintiff, K. J. Kidd claimed from the defendant, Dr. Amys, the sum of $125, being 2½ per cent. on $5,000 for commission on sale of defendant's property on Charlotte street to Robert Hicks, the plaintiff being, as he alleged, the real estate agent employed by the defendant for the disposal of the property. The defendant denied that plaintiff was employed for that purpose.

Upon the evidence His Honour found that the plaintiff had been the active agent in effecting the deal and gave judgment in his favour with costs.

The counsels were Mr. Gordon for the plaintiff and Mr. O'Connell for defendant.

REPORT TO BE GIVEN ON SATURDAY

Special to The Examiner:

QUEBEC CITY, July 9. — Lord Mersey and his commissioners will this evening sign several copies of their finding in the Empress of Ireland disaster. The document takes eleven thousand words and His Lordship will deliver it on Saturday morning. The report will declare culpability of one or the other, or both, vessels, but will leave it to the Dominion authorities and the British Board of Trade, to take action in punishment of the offenders responsible. There will also be many recommendations for the improvement of sea-going vessels and life saving regulations.

KRAFCHENCHO MET DEATH ON SCAFFOLD

Law Breaker, Sentimental Wanderer Was Hanged This Morning at 7 o'clock at Winnipeg.

WAS PREPARED TO GO

Special Wire to The Examiner:

WINNIPEG, July 9.—Despite the threats of death to the executioner, the judge and all others concerned, John Krafchencho, the jail breaker, bandit and murderer, was hanged this morning about 7 o'clock.

Rev. Mr. Heeney spent several hours with the condemned man last night and says he believes that Krafchencho died prepared to meet his fate. He would not say whether he made any confession about the murder for which he died. Certainly he made none to his guards, and offered no speech at the last moment. His only remark was that he felt very weak this morning.

New $2 Bill To Be Issued

Will Bear The Likenesses of The of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught—Is More Attractive Than Old Note.

THE COAT OF ARMS

OTTAWA, July 9.—A new two-dollar note is being issued by the Dominion Government. It bears likenesses of Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught. Canadians will have circulated among them the most agreeable souvenirs of their first prince and princess. It is decidedly more attractive than the old brown Edward note. It is far whiter and cleaner looking. The back of the note has a centre piece, the Canadian coat of arms surrounded by the arms of each of the nine provinces.

RUNAWAY HORSE CAUSED EXCITEMENT

Twice Narrowly Escaped Colliding With Same Motor Car.

The hot weather does not seem to have taken much of the "pepper" out of a horse which belongs to Mr. Sargent, Charlotte street. This morning about ten o'clock the animal took fright at something and dashed up the lane in the rear of Mr. Sargent's house, down St. Thomas street to Charlotte street at breakneck speed. Passing along St. Thomas street it very nearly collided with Mr. McCannon's automobile, so he moved the machine out to Charlotte street. The horse turned north from Charlotte on to St. Joseph street, and turned from that street into the lane that runs between Gilmour and Charlotte street. Tearing up the lane to the boundary, it ran south on the boundary to Charlotte street, and turned east on Charlotte street, and here almost collided with Mr. McCannon's automobile again, which had just a few minutes before been moved to keep it clear of the runaway animal. The horse turned up St. Thomas street, and dashed as far as the lane. Attempting to turn east on the lane the buggy collided with a post and broke, the horse dashing on without it to its stable.

The mad race of the animal was watched with interest by a lot of people, and it is a strange coincidence that Mr. McCannon after moving his car once should almost have a collision with the horse a second time.

SEVERAL THOUSAND DOLLS FOR FISH POND

Over two thousand dressed dolls have been prepared for the fish pond at the Sacred Heart Church social on Tuesday next. This booth will be a feature of the social.

The articles have been collected for months past, and the dolls alone have received a great deal of care.

TORONTO, July 9. — Live stock receipts are light, and market dull. Prices are practically unchanged from yesterday.

HITCH IN G. T. R.'S BOND GUARANTEE?

Examiner Special:

OTTAWA, July 9.— It is stated here on good authority that there is a hitch in the Grand Trunk bond guarantee at the Capital and that the Company has been given to understand that the mortgage will not be executed until it has settled with its machinists in accordance with the Arbitration Board's finding some months ago.

ASSAULT CASE DISMISSED

After hearing the evidence in the case of Charles Scriver vs. Alice Williams, a charge of criminal assault said to have been committed on about 16th June, Magistrate Edmison in the County Police Court yesterday dismissed the case.

Mr. O'Connell appeared for the defendant, and Mr. Wearing for the plaintiff.

LETTER CARRIERS HELD MOONLIGHT

Str. "Stoney Lake" Took Merry Crowd Down the River Last Night Under the Auspices of the Picnic

About one hundred people took in the Letter Carriers' Moonlight Excursion down the river last night on the steamer Stoney Lake. The boat left the wharf about eight o'clock, returning about eleven after a very pleasant sail down the river.

The contents of a splendidly stocked refreshment booth were much in demand, and the weather man smiled upon the outing as the climatic conditions during the journey were all that could be desired. Tucker's Orchestra supplied good music, and dancing was the order of the evening to many of those who attended the excursion.

Every one on board had a good time, thanks to the splendid arrangements of the committee in charge, and once again the annual event of the Letter Carriers of this city has passed, and the memories of a very enjoyable night remain with all who were present.

ROUTE OF THE ORANGE PARADE

The route of the Orange parade in Lindsay on Monday, July 13th, is as follows: The parade will leave the armouries, Central Park, at two o'clock and will proceed along Kent Street west to Adelaide Street; north on Adelaide Street to Bond; east on Bond to William Street; north on William Street to Wellington Street; east on Wellington Street over the bridge to Lindsay Street; south on Lindsay Street over bridge to Kent Street; thence west on Kent Street to Victoria Park.—Lindsay Post.

ANNUAL OUTING OF ST. LUKE'S SUNDAY SCHOOL

The annual excursion of St. Luke's Sunday school took place yesterday. The steamer Stoney Lake left the wharf at 8.30 with about two hundred and fifty on board, and sailed down to Jubilee Point, where the excursionists took dinner. In the afternoon the picnickers to Gove's Landing, where a series of races was run off, and then a baseball game was played with a Hastings team, which was on a picnic also, the Peterborough boys coming out victorious.

The boat returned to the city about 8 o'clock after everybody had spent a very pleasant day and enjoyed themselves to the limit.

PRISONER MAY BE DEPORTED

The trial of the prisoner Stevens, who was brought from Toronto to Lindsay by High County Constable Thornbury, will take place Saturday. He is charged with an unnatural crime, and in all likelihood he will be deported.

A county police court case is on the docket for Friday, when parties who figured in a fight at Fingerboard on July 6th will be asked to appear. — Post.

GROWTH OF LIBERALISM.

Liberalism grows steadily stronger in Saskatchewan. In the recent by-elections, a riding, which had been Conservative since the creation of the province, returned a Liberal member, turning a Conservative majority of 44 in the last provincial elections to a Liberal majority of more than 300. In another riding, a Liberal majority of something more than 100 became a Liberal majority of nearly 300. Throughout the Prairie West, the Liberal party is gaining with every month. In Manitoba, the Conservative cause is saved only by the disgraceful tactics of the Tory machine, the most notorious and unscrupulous political organization in the Dominion, which is now putting forth every effort of trickery and corruption to prevent the downfall of the Roblin Ministry.—St. Thomas Journal.

BACK TO THE LAND.

Toronto Globe.

For letters such as that of Superintendent Ware of the University Settlement, which will be found in another column, under the heading "Canada's Greatest Problem," The Globe gives space gladly. Mr. Ware speaks as an expert. He is in intimate touch with the non-English-speaking immigrants who may be seen just now in Toronto standing at the street corners in doleful and discouraged groups waiting for the opportunity of employment at a season when in former years everyone who cared to work was fully occupied.

Mr. Ware strongly urges that a systematic campaign be undertaken to place the surplus city population back upon the land. Most of the non-English-speaking immigrants were farmers and the children of farmers at home. The reasons why they do not voluntarily go upon the land in Ontario as stated by Mr. Ware seems to be conclusive. Lack of capital, of knowledge of the language, and of understanding of our methods of settlement would be sufficient to account for the hiving of the foreign immigration in the cities and railway construction camps, were there no other reasons. The truth seems to be that all the energy of the Federal Immigration Department has been directed to bringing in the immigrant, leaving him upon his arrival to the tender mercies of the exploiters who became rich hy preying upon the foreigner ignorant of our language and our customs.

The remedy suggested by Mr. Ware is stated very succinctly in the words, "It is not sufficient at this stage in our development merely to permit homesteading ;it is necessary for the Government to establish agricultural colonies and to place the immigrants in these colonies. The Government may go into farming, set aside tracts of land, build villages, taking mortgages from the occupants and allowing them to pay off as they are able, loan money for machinery and stock, appoint managers for the colonies, graduates of Guelph to oversee and instruct in the use of machinery, rotation of crops, and fertilizing.

Such a programme would probably be foredoomed to failure were the colonists British-Canadian or American, with their strong bent toward individualism. Mr. Ware, after a good deal of experience of the immigrants from continental Europe, believes that the system he outlines could be aplied with success in their case. For some time Mr. Rowell and his supporters in the Legislature have been urging that a more vigorous policy be pursued in the settlement of Northern Ontario. The trying out of Mr. Wade's idea in the North might prove that the foreign immigrants who are now congesting the unskilled labour market of the cities are the very men we need for the work of pioneering in the North.

PACIFIC NAVAL DEFENCE.

(Toronto Star))

The naval issues seems almost forgotten in Canada, where a year and a half ago it was not only an interesting but an exciting topic. But we observe that our grave and reverend contemporary the Round Table, in its June issue, devotes more than seventy pages to "Naval Policy and the Pacific Question." In the main it deals with Australia. We in Canada have not awakened to a sense of the importance of our Pacific interests. The Oriental question, always prominent in Australia, is in Canada not considered very deeply outside of British Columbia. Every part of Australia takes the British Columbia view. Australia's population lies almost wholly on the Pacific. There are no Atlantic provinces and no inland provinces where the Oriental question, Oriental immigration, and the danger of Oriental invasion, are almost ignored. When we become excited over naval defence in Canada, it is because of England. When Australia becomes excited over naval defence it is because of Australia. It is for this reason that Australia has a great fleet, while Canada has practicaly none.

In 1909 Australia, Canada, and the United Kingdom entered into an agreement for the creation of local fleets, acting in co-operation with the British navy. Australia has adhered to the agreement, and the result is seen in the organization of a powerful fleet. New Zealand has been virtually won over to the Australian view. But the British Admiralty has abandoned the policy of local fleets, and Canada has so far acceded to the Admiralty view as to abandon the agreement of 1909. As a consequence of this conflict btween a local fleet and a contribution to the British navy, still further confused by the talk of "emergency," we have done practically nothing.

Australia believes that there is grave danger on the Pacific—danger from Japan. Its plan is a Pacific fleet, maintained by Australia, New Zealand and Canada. We must remember that Australia, as we have said, is a group of States on the Pacific. So that any power which dominates the Pacific either protects Australia or has Australia at its mercy. The interior of Australia is hardly populated at all. Sparsity of population is one of the greatest sources of weakness and danger in Australia. But Australia feels that the admission of Orientals as immigrants would only aggravate the danger.

How far is Canada interested in the Pacific question? As a part of the British Empire, Canada is, of course, interested in Australia, and would regard the conquest of Australia by any Oriental or foreign power as a terrible disaster. But men are governed largely by what goes on under their own eyes, and in Canada, outside of British Columbia, very little is seen of the Oriental. He is separated from us not only by the Pacific Ocean, but by the Rocky Mountains.

Japan is at present the ally of Great Britain. That condition may not be permanent. But we must always remember that if Japan becomes the enemy of Great Britain, the United States would probably also be on the British side. California, British Columbia, Australia, New Zealand, have common ideas and interests in regard to the Oriental danger. Japan could not face such a combination with any prospect of success.

At the same time it would seem to be a reasonable and fair division of duty for Canada, Australia and New Zealond to take care of British interests in the Pacific. Australia asks for another conference, and that is a suggestion which ought o be considered.

PETES ONLY MADE ONE SAFETY AND ERIE WON LAST GAME BY 2 TO 0

Could Not Hit Carl Brown—Tracey Was Also a Mystery, Allowing Only Four Hits

A RECORD GAME

The Petes did not make any runs yesterday so, needless to say, they failed to grab three straight from Erie. The Sailors managed to pile up two. One Carl Brown, a big pitcher turned back by the Buffalo Internationals, was the principal reason for the failure of the Petes to come through. One hit was the net result of the Petes club swinging, a single by Welsh, in the sixth innings, robbing Brown of the proud distinction of a "no hit, no run" game. Only four Petes reached first base, in addition to Welsh, one on an error, two on passes, and one on a dead ball. Brown was hit hard in the early stages, but was given great support, notably by Dawson and Colligan, who pulled down four or five drives that were labelled for extra bases. Dawson, in particular, starred, making several spectacular catches.

Ken Tracey was on the firing line for the home crew and delivered a brand of pitching that would have carried him home an easy winner in nine out of ten games. He allowed the Yanks only four safeties, but two of them clean and with perfect fielding would probably not have been scored upon. It was the second game in succession that the Petes have failed to score a run behind Tracey.

Byrne did some star fielding at third base for the homesters, making three pretty stops of hard-hit balls, and getting the runner by speedy throws. Dolan also starred with a bare-handed grab of a wide heave from Fox.

The game was the quickest played in the local history of the game, and probably a record for the Canadian League. Just seventy minutes elapsed between the time the first ball was pitched until the last man was out, in the ninth.

The details of the play were published yesterday. Here is the box score:

New Lightweight Champion of the World.—Freddie Welsh, who won the title at London, England, defeating Willie Ritchie in a 20-round bout, was born at Pontypridd, Wales, on March 5th, 1886. He has been fighting since 1905, and is accounted one of the cleverest boxers that ever stepped in the ring. He is 5 feet, 7 inches tall and weighed in for the Ritchie bout a shade under the lightweight limit.

ROLLED PEANUT BECAUSE THE PETES LOST YESTERDAY

Alex. Atchison, the genial wine clerk of the Windsor Hotel, has considerable faith in the Peterborough Baseball Club. So strong was his confidence in them yesterday that he offered to roll a peanut from Water street to George street along Brock street, if the Petes did not win yesterday. Well, they didn't, and he did. At 8 o'clock last night armed with a toothpick, he tackled the peanut, and after half an hour's work he succeeded in covering the distance. The bet was made with Fireman Boyce of the Kew Beach Fire Department, Toronto, who is visiting in the city. They have another wager to-day. The loser to wheel the winner from Brock street to the C.P.R. station in a wheelbarorw. Alex. has the Peterborough end of the bet.

CANADIAN LEAGUE NOTES

London Advertiser.—Playing ball in the motordrome at Toronto is just like playing down a well. The big tracks form a rim around the field and the sound of the players' voices is echoed so strongly from the big wooden walls that the fans can hear every word distinctly.

The Brantford Club claims Umpire Bedford bobbed them of both games in Hamilton last week. He was so bad that Owner Tom Nelson rushed out on the field Saturday and remonstrated with him. When Tom will do this, the umps must be bad indeed. Bedford was all right here and he looked like the best official in th league.

Irwin Trout, the Beavers' catcher, booted away Saturday's game against St. Thomas, then he came back against the Saints and delivered a three-bagger that won the game. Three men were on bases when he delivered the wallop.

TORONTOS ARE HERE TO-DAY

The Toronto Ball Club arived in town at noon to-day and will open a three-game series with the Petes, the first at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Roberts will probably pitch for the Beavers, while Schettler will likely do the heaving for the homesters. Since their last appearance here the Beavers have been strengthnd by several new players, including Outfielder Kray, turned back by the Leafs, and Hunt, a young college player. Tomorrow's game will start at 3.45 o'clock and Saturday at 3 o'clock.

BASEBALL.

The De Laval team and the Red Caps played a tie game in the Mercantile League series at Riverside Park last night, the game being called at the end of the fifth with the score 4-4. The Red Caps had a three run lead in the fifth, but the Separators finished strong. The batteries were:

De Laval—Carson and Taylor.
Red Caps—Rahmel and Swanston.

The Busy Bees defeated the Rehill nine in a lively game of ball played at the King Edward grounds, the score being 16-5 in favour of the Bees. Fuller did some fine hitting, knocking two home runs, while many three base hits were knocked out by Sharpe, Graham and Schwier, of the Bees, also by Rehill of the opponents. The batteries were Sharpe and Fuller for the Busy Bees, and Rehill and Sloan for Rehill's nine.

PETERBORO LACROSSE CLUB STILL HAS FIGHTING CHANCE

The rumour has spread abroad that the lacrosse club is out of the running. The fact is that the team has a good fighting chance and intends to hang on until the last game is over. Hastings team has at present a more comfortable position, but it has to meet Norwood and Havelock yet in three or four games, and these teams are one hundred per cent. stronger than they were a month ago.

In brief, the Trent town has its hardest games before it, while the locals have two games with Campbellford and one with Havelock. Hastings will have to play mighty good lacrosse to win their remaining games. It remains entirely with Peterborough to win or lose the concluding contests. In any event the players desire to make the best bid possible for the rest of the games.

Only once this year have the locals shown their real form. In Hastings, during the second half, they showed the old game the best that has been seen in the district this year. And only in that game did they have a complete team. The defence was strong and the home was fast and shifty. In every other game the lineup has been uncertain until the teams were on the field. Some fellows may entertain the idea that when business interferes with sport they should cut out the business. This, however, is a summer when there is no taking chances with work, and anyway the players do not wish to jeopardise their positions when there is no verbal encouragement to them to take the necessary few hours for a game. In the Hastings game the "home" was Harry Donovan, Fred Kelly, Lou McCoy and George Robertson. They have not been together since. If they had practiced together and played the games the local team would have been on top. Of course, past tense "ifs" are idle and futile, but when one hears expressions of lacrosse being the national game, and suggestions for supporting it on that ground and then find a mere handful at the games, one can write a few more eligibles for the piffle league.

There are so many brands of bunk it is a shame to associate a new variety with lacrosse. Canada's national game possesses too many of the elements that make any good sport worth while to suggest that it be supported simply because it is the national game. And right here in Peterborough there are plenty of players, and young chaps, too, who would learn the game if the former found it easy to get away for the games.

The reputation that it is a rough game will require years to dissipate. In this district, so far, there has not been a bump given that would bother any player. The new regulation of putting a man off for five minutes for hitting another on the head, intentionally or otherwise, has made the defence players very careful. However, the local club did not undertake to revive the game with the idea that its restoration would be instantaneous. They do, however, desire to play out the schedule, getting as high a standing as possible and making the entry of the wedge's thin end secure for next, and succeeding years. Hence the impression that they have no chance left is denied, and it is the intention to admit such a position only when the last game has been played.

TENNIS SHOULD BE LEARNED THOROUGHLY BY NEW PLAYERS

With tennis becoming more popular every summer, and having attained its present vogue in Peterborough, there should be some effort made made to put the game on a higher and sounder plane in this district. In the city many of the churches have laid out courts, and young people are apparently playing the game.

The fact is that most of the games are simply enlarged tiddly-de-winks. The courts require wire screens at both ends, and the same provision should be extended along the sides. With this equipment the players will be encouraged to put a little steam behind their services. Merely lobbing the ball over the net with pink tea ease will not create an enduring interest in the game. The players should learn the fast service and gradually attempt the cuts. But if every ball has to be chased a block or two the enthusiasm for learning the game as it should be played will soon be expended.

At the same time it should be the duty of those who know the game to impart as much of their knowledge as possible to others.

AN ARREST SEEMS NEAR IN THE CARMEN CASE---NEW STORIES

An Indictment is Soon to be Asked for by the District Attorney

A MELODRAMA

FREEPORT, N.Y., July 8.—That the murder of Mrs. Louise Bailey on Tuesday of last week in the office of Dr. Edwin Carman is no longer a mystery is the belief of Lewis J. Smith, district attorney of Nassau county. To-morrow Mr. Smith will appear before the grand jury and will ask that an indictment be returned. Smith and Sheriff Pettitt have eliminated Coroner Norton as a co-worker in the case, it is said.

Just before the inquest was resumed to-day the district attorney announced that he had discovered an insurance agent who has said he was passing the Carman home about 8 o'clock when he heard a crash of glass, and turning, saw a woman dressed in white looking into a window of the physician's office. Then he heard the report of a revolver and saw the woman disappear toward the rear of the house.

A Sensational Story.

Detectives to-day were running down a story that a New York gunman brought the murder weapon from New York, broke the glass of the window looking upon Carman's office, handed the gun to the slayer, took it back after the shooting, and then escaped with it. A man who gave the gunman's name and said an elopment was mixed up in the plot, gave the details which seemed to be regarded by both official and unofficial investigations as more worthy of credence than many of the other wild stories which have been drifting about Freeport.

Several subpoenas have been issued ordering witnesses to appear before the grand jury. Among them is Miss Hazel Coombes, the young girl who testified at the inquest that Mrs. Carman was downstairs, fully dressed about half an hour before the shooting.

Burns is Melodramatic.

William J. Burns and his detectives made a drastic entry into the case. At 8 o'clock at night Burns and his men marched up to the Carman home. By his orders the house was brilliantly lighted up, and the shooting was re-enacted in every detail. Dr. Carman pointed out the exact position of the actors.

The curtains were drawn on the office windows. Two detectives, impersonating Carman and Mrs. Bailey, took their seats where they had sat last Tuesday night. Two detectives sat in the waiting room in the roles of Golder and Archie Post. Still two more represented the woman whose mysterious disappearance after the shooting is now being investigated.

Mrs. Carman Takes Roll.

Mrs. Carman was upstairs in her room; so was her sister, Mrs. Powell. Even Mrs. Conklin, still ill, was where testimony placed her at the time the shot was fired. Celia Coleman, the negro maid, was in the kitchen, and Platt Conklin, Mrs. Carman's father, was temporarily banished.

Burns quietly stole up to the window just at the minute the real murder had done so a week ago. He drew a 38-calibre revolver from his coat pocket. In a second he had the screen curtain propped open with a four-inch piece of shingle.

Pretended to Shoot.

In another the muzzle of his pistol was pointing through the open window, shoving the curtain lightly back and then settling to an aim. In another second the trigger clicked, and as it did the detective impersonating Carman dived headlong under the operating chair, while the one taking the part of Mrs. Bailey reeled and fell. Mrs. Powell dashed down the front stairway, ran out upon the porch and around the house to the door leading into Carman's waiting room, carrying out all details, even to the placing of the body of the supposed Mrs. Bailey upon the couch.

Why She Wanted Dictograph.

Gaston Boisseault, manager of the detective division of a company which manufactures telephone devices to record conversations, was the first witness called to-day. He told of the first call of Mrs. Carman at his office. She first said she was a dressmaker, then admitted her identity, adding that she had many domestic troubles and wanted to hear what went on in her husband's office. This was on May 19. On the same day Mrs. Carman made plans to take her husband away for two days while the instrument was being installed. She had told him about seeing a nurse kiss Dr. Carman. "She said she was so mad," he went on, "when she saw that kiss that she almost broke the window by knocking on it."

Daughter's Evidence.

Elizabeth Carman, 12-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Carman, said that after dinner her mother told her to stop running around the house, and to sit down and be quiet. She went into the diningroom and sat down. The room was dark and the curtains between it and her father's waitingroom were pulled aside. She saw two persons, a man and a woman, in the waitingroom ten minutes before the tragedy. She saw no one in the hall. Directly after the shot was fired she ran upstairs and saw her mother, her aunt and her grandmother there. Her mother, she said, was in a kimono.

CLOSING MARKET LETTER

Supplied by A. H. Stratton & Co.

NEW YORK, July 9. — —There was a little spurt of activity in the late afternoon causing some covering of shorts and a brisk rally but large interests apparently did not favour bullish operations and they supplied stock in sufficient quantity to check the rise.

Northern Pacific was a strong feature, selling up to 111 1-8 ex div., or the equivalent of 112 7-8, in response to the successful sale of $20,000,000 mortgage and refunding bonds.

Great Northern responded moderately to advance in Northern Pacific.

Southern Pacific showed considerable strength although a rumor was current that Penna. Ry. has been selling its holdings of the stock.

The Penna. took over about $38,000,000 Southern Pacific in exchange for its holdings of B. and O.

The Gould stocks continue in a very weak position, insiders continue to sell them on every sign of firmness.

Missouri Pacific and Wabash Pfd. making new low records, in fact the lowest reached in many years.

C. and O. was weak throughout the day on rumours of a cut in the next dividend if not passing it altogether.

Steel Common held steady on reports that the unfilled tonnage statement that will be issued at noon tomorrow will be more favourable than in some months past.

An improvement in the coal situation is reported.

Private wire houses continue selling New Haven, and lower levels are predicted.

It is rumoured that the bears will take hold of New York Central before the end of the year.

Foreign houses dealt in about 5,000 shares, mostly on the selling side.

HINTS TO HOUSEWIVES

Corks may be made airtight and watertight by keping them immersed in oil for five minutes.

To remove the rusty appearance from suede shoes or slippers use a mixture of olive oil and ink in equal parts.

Before washing fine lace or muslin collars and cuffs, baste them to a piece of heavier muslin and it will not be apt to stretch or tear in the process of laundering.

When wasing china with gilt upon it, never use soda. Rub a little soap on the discloth to make a nice lather, then rinse in clear cold water.

Ice cream can be kepthard for 24 hours by placing it in a paper cooking bag. Fold the ends of the bag over tightly to keep out the air and then place in the refrigerator directly on the ice.

To remove coffee stains, mix equal parts of yolk of egg and glycerine, apply to the stain, and allow to dry on. For a light silk garment the glycerine should be mixed with water instead of yolk of egg.

CADETS ARE HARD AT WORK AT BARRIEFIELD

Every Care is Being Exercised in Regards to the Boys' Welfare—Are Expected Home Saturday

News from Barriefield indicates that a most successful camp is in progress there, with between 2500 and 2900 Cadets from various parts of the Province undergoing an anual course of training there.

The Camp is pitched on the grounds which for years have been used for camping purposes. The six hundred tents, in which the Cadets are quartered, were pitched by an advance party of fifty men of the R. C. R. There are five Brigades of boys under canvas. The following are the units composing the 3rd Brizade, of which the local corps are a part.

Third Brigade, in command of Capt. Jamieson, Peterborough Collegiate Institute, Lindsay Collegiate Institute, Madoc Collegiate Institute, Omemee Collegiate Institute, Almonte High School, Pembroke Cadet Corps, Arnprior High School, Ottawa Separate School.

Major H. T. Hughes has arranged a large swimming pool in the centre of the camp grounds. The water in the pool is two and one-half feet deep. There are about thirteen thousand gallons of water in the pool. Six shower baths have been arranged in a marquee near the swimming pool. To make sure that none of the boys take any chances while in the pool a guard has been placed on duty all day long. It is the duty of the guard to see that the boys do not stay in the water too ong and also that no soap is used.

The boys will be served with their meals in four large marquees which have been arranged on the grounds. Reid and Hambrook who have the contract to furnish the meals, had everything in working order on Monday morning. Eight hundred boys will be served in each of two large marquees wihle four hundred will sit down in the two smaller ones.

Fifty women cooks are employed in preparing the meals. Eight women do the carving while four look after the cutting of the bread.

The caterers have a large canteen on the grouds, where the lads can purchase goods at city prices. Six boys are selected from each corps to wait on table.

The camp will be broken on Friday evening and it is expected that the local boys will arrive home on Saturday.

LOCAL BANK CLEARINGS FOR WEEK $470,829.00

The total clearings of the Peterborough Banks for the past week, as shown by the figures of the local clearing house, announced this morning, is $470,898.00.

HISTORIC QUEBEC PROMENADE DESTROYED

Examiner Special:

QUEBEC CITY, July 9.—A large portion of Dufferin Terrace, the historic promenade here, in front of the Chateau Frontenac, was destroyed by fire this afternoon, and the lower town is now threatened. Damage is already one hundred thousand dollars, and much more is expected. Firemen and volunteers from the ships in the harbour are trying to hold back the fire in the teeth of a heavy wind.

TWO CHILDREN WERE RESCUED

Fell out of Punt Near Sherbrooke Street—E. B. Boswell Pulled Them Out

While several children were playing in a punt at the foot of Sherbrooke street yesterday afternoon, two of them overbalanced and fell into the water. Mr. E. B. Boswell was paddling by, about twenty feet away, and hurried to their assistance. Without stopping to remove any of his clothes he jumped in and succeeded in bringing both youngsters to safety. The water was quite deep where they fell in, and had not Mr. Boswell heard their shouts, a fatality might have been recorded. As it was, Mr. Bowell had no easy task, for the children clutched him strongly.

BUCKHORN FACTORY AND THE CHEESE BOARD

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In your report of the Peterborough Cheese Board of the 8th inst., I note that "the president reported that the Buckhorn Factory desired to be listed on the Board, but reserving the right to sell only to those buyers they preferred." I beg to say that Buckhorn factory is perfectly satisfied as she is, and it is positively a misnomer to say that she "desired to be listed on the Board."

In the past 14 years, or more, Buckhorn factory has never once changed her attitude toward the Peterborough Cheese Board. In that time the Board has more than once changed its attitude towards Buckhorn and those outlying factories that felt they were placed at a disadvantage on the Cheese Board, and dared to sell their cheese in a way they considered to be to the best interests of their factory and patrons, when that way differed from the "rule" or mandate of the Board. And certain members of the Cheese Board have contended that factories selling in that way derive certain advantages from the Board for which they contribute nothing. Without attempting to argue this point, and to show that Buckhorn factiry desires, to be absolutely fair, I have told the president of the Cheese Board and others that Buckhorn factory desires, to be absolutely perfectly willing to Board her cheese, and pay all Board fees and dues on condition that she be left absolutely free to sell to whomsoever she pleases, and in whatever way she feels to be to the best interests of her factory and patrons. This is the extent of Buckhorn factory in this matter.

Yours respectfully,
A. E. KENNEDY,
Salesman etc.

SUGGESTED SOLUTION OF ACID FOR STREETS

Sanitary Inspector Spence wrote the Board of Works, last night, suggesting that a percentage of carbolic acid be introduced into the water used on the streets of the City, so as it would act as a disinfectant as well as perform its function of laying the dust.

Ald. Johnston — "I think that is just another fad. Let it go at that."

Ald. Saunders—"Six months' hoist. Put it on the bottom of the file."

Other Aldermen present expressed opinions which indicated that they did not take kindly to the idea, so the letter was received and the matter was left over for further consideration.

There Will Be No Elevator in Sidewalk for Barrie Factory

And in Light of That Board of Works Make Small Concession as to Further Use of the Sidewalk for Prism Glass

A HEATED DISCUSSION

The members of the Board of Works heaved a sigh of relief together last night, when the Mayor announced that the Barrie elevator, which, in days gone by, had been the source of much controversy and many hot words, and for which permission had been given, provided Mr. Barrie could arrange no other entrance to his new factory, would, after all, not be built at all. The elevator project was fought through the Board of Works, and was opposed strenuously by some of the Aldermen because they thought the sidewalks of the busy sections in the centre of the City should not be broken by elevator accessories which they considered unsightly, inconvenient and dangerous. So all were greatly pleased when it was learned last night that after all the elevator will not be constructed.

But the echo of the sigh mentioned above had not ceased to reverberate in the outer offices before the Board was deep in a hot discussion once again, as to whether it would be advisable to allow Mr. Barrie to take further liberties with the sidewalk in front of his new factory. Mayor Buller and Ald. Duncan were of the opinion that now the shadow of the elevator was eliminated, it would be best to grant Mr. Barrie's request to have four feet of prism glass in the sidewalk instead of three, as formerly requested and given. The prism glass would be in the centre of the sidewalk, too, instead of at the inner edge, as formerly planned. This would mean four feet of sidewalk outside and three feet inside the prism glass, which would be almost in the centre of the 11 foot sidewalk.

The prism glass was asked for in the first place, to allow daylight into the basement, and to the space that the Barrie Company are using under the sidewalk. As first requested and granted, there were to be six areas of prism glass, extending from the building line three feet out into the sidewalk, and four feet long. The plans now, however, include a steel I-beam at the inner edge of the sidewalk, which shuts off the light, and it was to overcome this difficulty that Mr. Barrie asked to have the permit changed, as described above. The Board of Works did not like the idea of having the prism glass in the centre of the sidewalk, but gave Mr. Barrie an extra foot, provided the glass did not extend on to the sidewalk more than four feet from the building line. This, they thought, would avoid unnecessary danger and serve the purpose.

If the glass is put in in the fashion suggested by the Board of Works there will be a seven-foot sidewalk outside of the glass altogether, instead of as would be the case in the arrangement. Mr. Barrie asked for three feet inside and four feet outside the glass.

Ald. Stratton was strong in opposing the granting of the request to have the glass in the centre of the sidewalk, as he was formerly, in declaring that any concession like that was a bad precedent and that concessions should not be given for the use of the sidewalk in a manner that would inconvenience and possibly endanger the citizens who wished to use the walks. The Board finally acted on the motion of Alds. Johnston and Saunders.

Mrs. Carman Faces Trial

Examiner Special:

NEW YORK, July 9. — Taken from a home of luxury and from the bedside of her dying mother, locked in Mineola jail, and facing indictment and trial on the charge of the murder of Mrs. Bailey in Dr. Carman's office, Mrs. Florence Carman looked out through the barred windows today. Dr. Carman to-day stated his wife was "as innocent as a child." The grand jury will convene at Mineola to-day but not even the officials who arrested Mrs. Carman would predict that she would be indicted.

CAPTAIN LEWIS HAS HAD AN ADVENTUROUS CAREER

HAS SEEN ACTIVE SERVICE

Considerabde attention has been attracted during the current week by the bright red racing car driven by Captain Stanley Lewis of the Washburn carnival's business staff. The peculiar construction of the car has been the cause of many inquiries: the Examiner representative questioned Capt. Lewis this morning and elicited the following information: "My car is the famous old "Mitchell Ranger," the first car ever used officially by the United States' government," said the Captain. "In June of 1910 General Leonard Wood decided to experiment with automobiles for military service as a substitute for horses and mules; and, in order to give his plan a thorough test he ordered the Mitchell company to equip a car for a transcontinental journey. A stock 1910 touring car was selected, and a Colt automatic rapid fire machine gun mounted on the dash, while the car was loaded with 1,000 rounds of ammunition, 1,000 pounds of camp equipage, four weeks' tabloid rations, the idea being to duplicate as closely as possible the conditions of actual warfare. Bearing a dispatch signed by General Wood, Capt. Lewis left Governors' Island, New York, June 10 and delivered the message to General John F. Weston at San Francisco, July 3rd. At that time there were practically no roads except the roughest trails between the Mississippi and the coast and the car was compelled to travel over 500 miles on the ties of the Northern Pacific railroad through the Rocky Mountains. The success of the trip resulted in the "Ranger" type of car being adopted by the war department, over 500 duplicates of the Captain's automobile, equipped with machine guns, being now in service along the Mexican border.

Captain Lewis has crowded into his forty years of life a great deal of eventful experience. As an author of military and railroad stories, Stanley Huntley Lewis' name is familiar to all readers of the Munsey publications. He is a retired captain of the Arizona Rangers— an organization exactly like our own Royal Northwest Mounted Police, and which in times of peace maintains a patrol of the Mexican border, their duties having been temporarily assumed by the "regulars" now encamped along the line. In 1908, as a partner of the famous "Dynamite Johnny" O'Brien, he successfully handled several "gun-running" 'expeditions to the coast of Cuba previous to American intervention: was made a Major in the Cuban "Army of Liberation" under Gernes and Maceo and was at the side of the latter when Maceo was killed. A deep "machete" slash just above the left eye and a bullet crease across the top of the skull, are "souvenirs" of the Cuban swamps carried by Capt. Lewis, and a knife-wound in the neck, just missing the jugular vein, is a remembrance of an encounter with a Mexican criminal (who was buried shortly afterward) while resisting arrest at Naco, Arizona.

During his years of lonely service in the desert, Capt. Lewis improved upon a natural talent as an artist, and is almost as well known as an illustrator as by his poems and stories. The Examiner has several original sketches from his facile pen, which now decorate the walls of the editorial "sanctum."

In passing, it may be stated that Capt. Lewis is an honorary member of the 19th Highlanders,—the Galt Kilties.

PROPOSAL FROM THE C.P.R. SATISFACTORY

At the Board of Works meeting last night a letter was received from the C.P.R. concerning the vexatious crossing at the corner of the Monaghan Road and Romaine street. They offered to move their fence south on Romaine street so that the crossing there will be a 66 foot one. The members of the Board were satisfied with this, but will ask the Company to plank the crossing for a little longer distance along the track.

HON. MR. EMMERSON PASSES AWAY

Special to The Examiner:

DORCHESTER, N.B., July 9. — Hon. H. R. Emmerson, former Minister of Railways in the government, died to-day after an illness of several weeks.

Occasionally a girl accepts the hand of an aged suitor because of what there is in it.

INDIANS OBJECT

Examiner Special:

OTTAWA, July 9.—The Iroquois Indians of the Caughnawaga Reserve near Montreal, object strenuously to the institution of the system of education on the reserve under the supervision of the congregation of sisters. The Indians do not want any white women on the reserve, and declare that the traditions of their forefathers are opposed to it. They have therefore addressed a strong petition and deputation to Dr. Roche, Minister of Interior, protesting against it.

THE WEATHER

The highest temperature yesterday was 86 degrees in the shade, and today at noon it was the same figure. The thermometer has reached 86 degrees in the shade every day now for over a week. Thunderstorms threaten but they are slow to materialize.

HUNTER STREET WEST NOT YET READY FOR PERMANENT PAVEMENT

Mr. E. G. Patterson's letter, asking why no action had been taken by the City Council as to the petition for pavement on Hunter Street, west of Aylmer Street, was considered at last night's Board of Works meeting. Mr. Patterson reminded the Aldermen that it was largely signed and deserved the attention of the Council.

In reference to the matter the City Clerk was instructed to write Mr. Patterson, explaining that there would have to be a lot of work on Hunter street, west of Aylmer street, before a permanent pavement could be laid. Sewer connections, surface drainage, underground wires, etc., would have to be completed before the street could be paved. The Board however, will consider the above-mentioned section of Hunter Street, with the next streets that are to be paved on the completion of the work, on those for which tenders have already been received.

BROTHERS DISAGREE ABOUT SIDE WALK

Ald. Saunders brought up the question last night about putting a crossing in front of Mr. Desautel's residence on George Street south. The City Engineer replied that as the sidewalk had been advertised for, the crossing would go in without any special direction, as it would be built in the course of the construction of the sidewalk. Whereupon the Chairman reminded the Board that the sidewalk in question was designed to serve the two Desautel Brothers. One of them was anxious to have the sidewalk put in, and had asked for it; but the other was very anxious not to have one built, and had requested not to have it. The Chairman told the Board that he had explained to the latter that it was not customary to allow one man to hold another up in the matter of a sidewalk, but he thought perhaps the matter might be amicably arranged.

Ald. Saunders did not relish the idea of dropping the building of the walk altogether, and Ald Johnson thought it would be well to go on with it. Finally it was decided that before to-morrow night the members of the Board will visit the site in question, and become familiar with the condition of things. One reason why they are questioning the advisability of putting the sidewalk there is because it will have steps at each end of the block, and will be hard to plough in winter.

36 MURDERS DONE BY AXE MAN IN MIDDLE STATES

CHICAGO, Ill., July 9.—That the mad axe man whose trail of tragedy runs through five States had left his mark on the outskirts of Chicago, was the belief today of the first deputy Chief of Police Schuettler, as a result of the quadruple murder in Blue Island, a suburb,, of Jacob Mislich, his wife, their daughter and her infant, who were found in bed with their skulls crushed. In the murders the assistant chief sees the pitiless hand of the degenerate slayer sought by the police of the country for 33 similar crimes.

A bloody axe which had been taken from the yard of a neighbour and left in a bed room of the Mislich home is the only clue thus far discovered by the authorities.

The police to-day pointed out the fact that in nearly every case the axe man has committed the crime on Sunday night. The details of all the murders are similar and in most cases the murederer's axe has wiped out entire families.

Another point connecting the axe slayer with all the crimes is seen in the fact that his victims were killed when the moon was passing from the last quarter into the dark, or entering into the first quarter.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Dr. Greer desires to announce that during the months of July and August (except on Saturdays), his office will be closed from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. 86d-4 taken over by St. Vincent's Orphanage, and it has been learend from a reliable source that his wife does not wish to have anything more to do with him.

Detective Newhall was placed in the box and gave evidence as to the general character of the prisoner, saying that he had only done an odd job or two since his release from the prison.

Magistrate Dumble—"You don't get much on the farm?"

Prisoner—"Not much."

Chief Thompson—"Not much?"

Prisoner—"None at all."

During his term in prison Sweeney earned $10.60, which the Magistrate said, showed that he could work.

"If you keep on the right side of the government you can earn honest money," was the parting injunction of the court.

Sweeney was sentenced to a further term of six months at the Ontario Government's farm.

Benjamin Hobson, who works on a farm, never pays a visit to the city but he also visits the police court, and was this morning charged with being drunk. "Give me 'expended' sentence or whatever it is, and let me go back to work," said Benjamin. "Your Honour, if someone would keep their tongues in their heads and not ask me how many Papists I am going to kill on the 12th of July I would not land here."

THE TURF

Geo. Lachnda, the Toronto horse, provided the surprise of the afternoon yesterday, when she finished 2nd in the second heat of the 2.30 race, and 3rd in the final heat. In the final heat it looked as if the Toronto horse was pocketed by the two Peterborough horses. This, McDowell, the driver, did not complain of, but he claimed that the driver of Susie Hal whipped Lacona over the head coming down the turn on the home stretch. McDowell had the sympathy of the crowd in this heat, and it took some time for the judges to decide the event.—Lindsay Post.

NAME WAS OMITTED.

In giving the names of those who formed the committee in charge of the George Street Sunday School excursion in yesterday's paper the name of Mr. J. H. Renwick was inadvertently omitted. The committee consisted of Mr. George Robertson, Mr. T. E. Pratt, Mr. S. A. Oke and Mr. J. H. Renwick.

ALL AT WRANGEL ISLAND.

Capt Bartlett Says Ottawa Despatch Gave Wrong Impression

SEATTLE, Wash., July 10.—The revenue cutter Bear with Capt. Robt. A. Bartlett, late of the Stefansson exploring ship Karluk will sail from Nome, according to advices received yesterday, probably within a week, for Wrangel island, off the coast of Alaska, to take off 18 white men and four Eskimos, one of them a woman, who have been on the island since March 10 when they arrived from the scene of the wreck of the Karluk.

Bartlett says the whole party were safe at Wrangel Island when he left, the two parties reported missing in Ottawa despatches having reached the island.

ANNIE LOUISE CARY

And Her Favourite "Robin Adair"

The indisputable queen of song in her day was Annie Louise Cary. She was one of the world's famous contraltos when she retired from the operatic stage at the very height of her career in opera. She retained the sweet, wholesome characteristics of the American girl all during her musical triumphs. She made her debut in Copenhagen, although she studied in Milan. For three years she delighted European audiences before making her appearance in America. For over twelve years, with the exception of a brief European tour, she delighted American audiences with the charms of her voice and personality. But to hear her sing "Robin Adair," that simple old song, and that masterpiece of Arthur Sullivan's "The Lost Chord," and Longfellow's "The Day is Done," with the rich tones of the happy, good-natured personality that always charmed, she always left the audience breathless and spellbound.

"Robin Adair," "The Lost Chord," and many other favorites of Cary, are to be found in "Heart Songs," now being distributed to the readers of this paper. See Coupon elsewhere in this issue for terms.

There was such a demand for the Heart Songs that we had to discontinue inserting the coupon. We have now on hand a further supply, and the coupon will run for two weeks. If you desire a copy, save the coupons and together with 98c. you will get a $3.00 book.

DEATH OF THE LATE MINISTER OF RAILWAYS

Prominent Liberal Passes Away After a Long Illness—Death Was Not Unexpected.

A FORMER PREMIER

DORCHESTER, N.B., July 10.—The Hon. H. R. Emmerson, former Minister of Railways in the Laurier Government, and at one time Premier of New Brunswick, died at his home here yesterday morning.

Mr. Emmerson had been ill for some time and his death was not unexpected.

Hon. Henry Robert Emmerson was of U. E. Loyalist descent and was born at Mangerville, N.B, Sept. 25, 1851. He was educated at Amherst Academy, Mount Allison Academy, St. Joseph's College, and Boston University. He was a prize essayist and bachelor of law at the last named institution, and honorary doctor of law of the New Brunswick University. He married in June, 1878, Emily C. Record, who died in 1901.

Mr. Emmerson practiced law here and was made a K.C. in 1899. He was at one time manager of the Merchants' Bank of Halifax, and connected with a number of other important commercial enterprises. He was for long a power in politics in this province. He was a vice-president of the Maritime Liberal Association. He unsuccessfully contested Westmoreland for the House of Commons in 1887, and sat for Albert in the New Brunswick Legislature from 1880-1890, and was a legislative councillor from 1891-93. Then he returned to the representation of Albert. He was Minister of Public Works in New Brunswick from 1892 to 1897 and Premier and Attorney-General from 1897 to 1900. Since that time he had sat for Westmoreland in the House of Commons. He was appointed Minister of Railways and Canals in the Laurier administration in 1911, resigning after an inquiry into Departmental irregularities. Mr. Emmerson came into prominence recently by his part in the night debate of 1913 and his protest against the appointment of the Duke of Teck as Governor-General of Canada.

Mr. Emmerson favored the utmost freedom of trade along the British lines. He was a leading Orangeman in his province and a Baptist in religion.

He is survived by four daughters —Mrs. F. H. Deacon, Toronto; Mrs. Harry K. Bowes, Ottawa; Mrs. Julian Cornell, Amherst, and Miss Bernice. His mother, Mrs. Emmerson, also survived. She is 83, and has been prostrated by the shock of her son's death.

The cause of Mr. Emmerson's death was heart failure.

DESPERADO FOUND DEAD.

Body of Joseph Morand Discoverid In Hut In the Woods.

QUEBEC, July 10.—Joseph Morand, the demented bandit, who since he ran amuck with a gun and shot three men on Thursday, July 2, has terrorized the village and district of Villeroy, in the County of Lotbiniere, was found dead yesterday in a hut in the woods, according to information received here yesterday afternoon by Provincial Police Chief McCarthy.

Morand's body was found by one of the posses of provincial police, who since the bandit did the shooting last Thursday, have been scouring the woods about Villeroy, armed with Ross rifles, and prepared to take the desperado dead or alive. Whether the fugitive took his own life or whether he died from wounds received in the fusillade which the police poured into a hut in which he was hiding on Tuesday, and from which he wounded Peter Brown, a guide, in the employ of the police, is not yet known.

NO PARLIAMENT PLANNED.

Ulster Provisional Government Not Meant to Be Permanent, Says Craig.

BELFAST, July 10.—The first meeting since it was formed of the Ulster provisional Government has been called for to-day at the request of Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster Unionist leader.

According to Col. James Craig, the result of the meeting will have an improved bearing on the Irish situation, but he declared that there is no intention on the part of the Ulsterites, whatever happens, to set up a Parliament for themselves in Ulster. They claimed the right merely to hold the province in trust for the constitution of the United Kingdom in order that Ulster should continue to be an integral portion of the British Empire.

Th clauses of the constitution of the provisional government, which until now have not been disclosed, expressly provide that "upon the restoration of the direct Imperial Government, the provisional government shall cease to exist."

Death of S. B. Fuller.

WOODSTOCK, July 10. — Word reached Woodstock yesterday of the death in Ottawa of S. B. Fuller, formerly manager of the Northern Crown and Imperial Banks here, and for the past four years inspector of ports under the live stock branch of the Dominion Agricultural Department. Mr. Fuller was a son of the late Bishop Fuller of Niagara, and was in his 62nd year.

Another Sensation In The Investigation

Government Expert Who Inspected Accounts of Southampton Railway Testifies.

DOUBLE SUBSIDY

FREDERICTON, N.B., July 10.—Another sensation in the Southampton Railway investigation was sprung yesterday when Commissioner Pringle called upon E. V. Johnson, the the inspecting engineer, upon those certificate the Dominion double subsidy was paid to take the witness stand.

Commissioner Pringle had previously stated that he was dissatisfied with the evidence of David W. Brown, who had been chief engineer on construction of the railway, and had further remarked that he had made up a preliminary estimate on the cost of the road to be submitted to the Department of Railways, "anticipating a double subsidy when he made up the figures." The Commissioner had also said that after sitting here for several days, conducting the inquiry, he had come to the conclusion "that there was a colored gentleman in the wood-pile somewhere." At to-day's session, when Mr. Brown has been requested to be present to go on the stand for an examination by Mr. Pringle, is looked forward to with much interest.

Mr. Johnson said that he visited the Southampton road once in 1912, during the construction, and once in 1913, when it was supposed to be completed. "He got his information regarding the cost of the road from Mr. Brown. He did not learn whether proper accounts were kept, according to the subsidy contracts. Mr. Brown gave the information to the witness in writing, and the witness produced the memorandum.

Chairman Pringle then went over the memorandum with Mr. Johnson, and to each item considered, the inflated figures were ascribed by witness to Engineer Brown, who had endeavored, according to the evidence to persuade Johnson that the figures were correct.

KRAFCHENKO IS HANGED.

He Insists to the Last That He Did Not Kill Arnold.

WINNIPEG, July 10.—John Krafchenko, convicted of murder, was hanged at 6.59 yesterday morning in the provincial jail. He died as he had lived, a man of iron nerve, and went to death unflinchingly.

John Krafchenko died penitent. He proved to his spiritual adviser, Rev. Bertal Heeney, during the silent watches of Wednesday night, that had he wished he could have left his cell, could have broken out as he had out of the "old kitchen," and a beat, battered old teaspoon was the simple implement he used to pick the massive lock of his cell before the eyes of the astonished clergyman.

Mr. Heeney entered Krafchenko's cell at 21 o'clock Wednesday night, and throughout the night he and the prisoner prayed every hour. At 6.55 he was brought from his cell to the place of execution by two guards. He mounted the twenty or so steps to the scaffold, and when half way up he sadly smiled and and murmured to one of the guards that he did not feel very well. He took his place on the drop. In a moment the black cap was in and the noose adjusted. Mr. Heeney began to recite a last prayer, and within a few brief seconds and while the clergyman's lips were still moving, Arthur Ellis suddenly threw over the lever, the drop was sprung and Krafchenko died.

TO TAKE CENSUS.

Study of Traffic Near Towns Is Part of Good Roads Scheme.

TORONTO, July 10—The program of the Ontario Highways Commission is rapidly taking shape, and officials expect that by the end of the summer preliminary construction gangs will be sent out on the roads. In two weeks a temporary staff of traffic census-takers will be distributed among the cities of the province to study the demands of the different centres and to determine the share which each city should take in the support of the highways running out into the respective counties.

These men will be especially detailed to settle the size of the suburban areas containing roads which are of unusual importance to city business, and for which the civic councils will be expected to provide maintenance.

The staff of census-takers will be supplemented as occasion demands and a chief officer will be stationed at commission headquarters to tabulate reports for final consideration. The census taken prior to the published plans was designed altogether form a rural standpoint. The idea in view was to gain information as to the needs of the farming community in the getting of their products to the nearest market centres. In the tabulation no notice was taken of automobile traffic. This, however, is increasing daily in Ontario, and is being recognized as one of the most important factors to be dealt with.

As far as actual construction in the province is concerned, activities this summer will be slight, the energy of the regular Government Department and the commission merging towards the one end. A Government demonstration highway is now nearing completion in the vicinity of Aylmar.

Spring-Rice Joins R.N.W.M.P.

OTTAWA, July 10. — Private Spring-Rice, a near relative of Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, British Ambassador to the United States, and said here to be the ambassador's nephew, is the newest distinguished recruit to the Royal Northwest Mounted Police.

Young Spring-Rice spent the winter in Ottawa, where he lived quietly, and was known to only a few by name, but was a familiar figure on the streets and in the Parliament Buildings grounds, where h was frequently seen accompanied by three bull dogs.

WILL TRY TO AVOID STRIFE

Lord Lansdowne Sending Efforts to Prevent War

LONDON, July 10.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The committee stage of the amended bill closed last night. Nearly all of the most important amendments had been disposed of on Wednesday, and the greater part of last evening's sitting was spent in discussing the proposals which the opposition leaders do not regard as essential for meeting the great need of the moment, the prevention of civil war.

On this point Lord Lansdowne made an important statement. He told the House that he and his friends had considered whether they should put down amendments for safeguarding the interests of the Unionist minority in the south and west. They had come to the conclusion that in view of the present situation in Ireland it was in the public interest that they should concentrate their amendments entirely on the question of avoiding civil strife.

"We should complicate the issue and divert public attention from the main question," he said, "if we made ourselves responsible for a number of other proposals designated to protect the Unionists in the south and west."

He reserved the right of supporting any of the other amendments, but he pointed out that the responsibility of his friends and himself for such other amendment would be wholly different from their responsibility for the amendments that they had themselves put down.

"To the amendments," he said, "we shall certainly adhere as being absolutely vital. With regard to the others we can only give them our general support."

Lord Lansdowne did not say whether he included among the absolutely vital amendments the proposals made by Lord Halsbury the previous night to set aside those provisions of the bill which mentioned the appointment of judges by the Irish Parliament and the substitution of appeals to the Privy Council for appeals to the House of Lords.

Discussion of this proposal was now resumed.

Lord Middleton expressed the opinion that justice in Ireland would become a sham if the appointment of judges was given to the Irish Parliament. He wanted to know why if Ulster was to be excluded, Ulstermen should not have the same appeal as they have at present to the House of Lords.

Lord Crewe, for the Government, would not hold out any hope that this appeal would prove effectual. He remarked that an Irish executive would be set up to look after peace, order and good government. It would be difficult to persuade Home Rulers that Parliament ought to withdraw from them the appointment of the judiciary. The amendments were carried by 66 to 42. Another amendment carried was that the control of the Royal Irish Constabulary should not pass to the Irish Parliament.

JURY BLAMES CHAUFFEUR.

Miss Waller's Death Due to Negligence of Driver of Motor Car.

TORONTO, July 10.—"That Miss Ella Waller came to her death from injuries received by being crushed when a train struck a motor car in which she was riding, and that the said injuries were caused by reason of the negligence of the said motor car driver, and that the said Samuel D. Kennedy did in the manner aforesaid unlawfully kill and slay aforesaid Ella Waller, and we, the jury, further state that the crossing where the accident occurred is an exceptionally dangerous one and strongly recommend the city authorities and the Railway Commission to take proper steps at this crossing in order to safeguard the general public."

Such was the verdict returned last night by the jury investigating the McClennan avenue crossing accident. Witnesses varied a good deal in regard to the rate of the speed of the train, but all were agreed on the fact that the chauffeur allowed the car to proceed backward down the hill without power till it arrived at the track.

Guadalajara Is Captured.

NOGALES, Sonora, Mexico, July 10.—Guadalajara, the second largest city in Mexico, has fallen before the attack of Gen. Alvaro Obregon, according to Constitutionalist officers here today. Guaymas, a seaport of the State of Sonora, which has held out for more than a year is about to be evacuated, according to the same source of information.

Mistake In Charge.

MONTREAL, July 10.—Vassil M. Delmege, former bank clerk, charged with having stolen $7,022 from the Merchants' Bank of this city, was taken before Judge Lost yesterday for voluntary statement. He entered a plea of not guilty. It developed that in one of the five charges against Delmege there was lacking the declaration of crime.

Second Wife Dies Tragically.

ROME, July 10.—The second wife of the distinguished Italian sculptor, Filippo Cifariello was accidentally burned to death yesterday through the explosion of a lamp.

Cifariello in August, 1905, shot and killed his first wife in a fit of jealousy. He was acquitted after a sensational trial.

STRENGTHENING PACT.

Britain and U. S. Have Concluded New Peace Treaty.

LONDON, July 10.—American Ambassador Page, speaking at the Peace Centenary meeting in the Metropolitan Tabernacle last night, made reference to a new treaty between the United States and Great Britain.

Mr. Page said it was the policy of the American people to have an alliance with none; where there was perfect friendship alliances were not needed.

The old arbitration treaty between the two countries, however, had been renewed for another period, and he was free to announce that a new treaty was being concluded whereby a commission was to be set up, to which either Government could refer any question arising between them. Both Governments, he added, promised not to begin hostilities until this commission had investigated matters and submitted its report.

That treaty the ambassador declared, was now virtually completed. The announcement evoked a great outburst of cheers.

"PEBLO"
The Glass of Quality
We have at any doubt but that most people value their eyesight sufficiently to want to take the best care of it. That is why we want to the expense of securing for our Optical Trade the Highest Grade of Lenses there can be made and which we handle exclusively under the trade mark "PEBLO." We believed our patrons would appreciate having their eyeglasses fitted with this superior quality lens, and after two years exclusive use of "PEBLO" Lenses, we are well satisfied with the result, judging by the hundreds of satisfied customers whom we have fitted with these beautiful lenses. It is interesting to know that in spite of the expense of procuring "PEBLO" Lenses the prices to our patrons are no more than when we used other makes of lenses, this being due to the large quantity we buy at a time. We manufacture these "PEBLO" Lenses from the finest "PEBLO" glass, in our own lens grinding department.

PERILOUS CARGOES

Sailors Dread Ships That Carry Sugar, Coffee or Cotton.

ACIDS ALSO ARE DANGEROUS.

Dynamite and Other Explosives Are Tame In Comparison With Chemicals That Are a Constant Menace to the Vessels In Which They Are Stored.

"Deliver us from a cargo of sugar or coffee or cotton," is the prayer that many sailors send up when they are in doubt as to what fate will l ng them next in the cargo line. They welcome, almost gladly, a cargo of dynamite or other explosive, but they dislike the positive discomfort and danger that come to them with the cargo of sugar, coffee or cotton.

At first sight it seems that dynamite would be a cargo to be carefully sidestepped, but from a sailor's point of view more things than the mere danger involved are to be considered. A cargo of sugar is bad. Put hundreds of tons of cane sugar in casks in the hold of a vessel and let the ship steam through a belt of hot weather. The odor is sickening. The sailors cannot get the sweet taste out of their mouths. They crave vinegar or lemon juice—anything sour. They lose their appetites and are always glad when a voyage on which the cargo was sugar is over.

Coffee is as disagreeable as sugar, in addition to being really dangerous. A cargo of green coffee is not at all unpleasant at first, but the odor rapidly palls on the olfactory nerves. In damp weather it becomes dreadful. It seems to impregnate everything in the ship and eventually the crew lose all appetite and sometimes become seriously ill.

Cotton is a really dangerous cargo. If a little oil happens to touch raw cotton the result is what is called spontaneous combustion. A single bale of cotton saturated with such an oil as boiled linseed, and lying at the bottom of a hold, can be compared only to a slow match attached to a bomb. In fact, it is even more dangerous, because while there might be ninety-nine chances out of a hundred that something might happen to prevent the explosion of the bomb, there are about 999 chances in 1,000 that the cotton will burn.

Onions also cause sailors much discomfort. The French steamer Yarra, with a cargo of onions from Alexandria to England, lost one man and had three others rendered insensible by fumes rising from the tons of onions in her hold.

Acids and other chemicals form dangerous cargoes. Carbide of calcium, for instance, is more dangerous than dynamite. Acetyline gas is made from this chemical, and the gas is constantly given off if the product is exposed to air. Some time ago the Hamburg bark Hebe was towed into Plymouth sound, England, in a disabled condition. Her cargo was 200 tons of calcium carbide. When the commander in chief at Devonport learned the nature of the disabled bark's cargo he ordered all the war vessels in the sound to take refuge at Hamoze and forbade the Hebe to stand in for repairs until all her perilous cargo had been removed by a barge of the war department.

The Volturno, which burned at sea, had a cargo which included rags, peat moss, barrels of spirits, tar and oils, together with drums of various chemicals. Water could have little effect on the flames from such a combination when it had caught fire.

Nitric and sulphuric acids are dangerous cargoes and add to the dangers of the sea when carried aboard ships. Some years ago the Phoenix liner Michigan was caught in a gale while coming to this country. She had a deckload of sulphuric and muriatic acid in metal drums. A huge sea washed over the forward deck and broke a number of the acid drums from their lashings, sending them crashing around the deck. Volunteers were called for to heave the drums overboard. The crashing of the sea and the rolling on the deck had split some of the containers and the acid burned the flesh of the sailors who responded to the call for volunteers. The battle with the deadly acid drums waged for an hour. Man after man was forced to fall out from the line of battle and go below to have his wounds dressed. When the situation was becoming critical the danger was eliminated the way it had come—by another wave washing over the vessel and carrying away the unfastened drums and part of the lee rail.

Shipmasters dislike carrying drums of acid where they cannot be reached readily. A Chilean ship put in at the Falkland islands leaking badly. Her cargo was made up of drums of acid and chalk. The acid had leaked from the drums and mixed with the chalk, forming carbonic acid gas in the hold. This gas is deadly and the crew could not make repairs. Meantime the acid had gathered at the bottom of the hold and eaten away the iron frames of the ship.

Good Sleep Good Health

Exhausted Nerves Were Fully Restored by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

When the nerve force expended in the day's work and in the act of living is not replenished by restful sleep at night you have cause to be alarmed, as physical bankruptcy stares you in the face. This letter directs you to the most satisfactory cure for sleeplessness.

Mr. Dennis Mackin, Maxton, Sask., writes:—"I have just finished using the sixth box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and I must say that when I commenced using it my nerves were so bad that I could scarcely get any sleep. I would lie in bed nearly all night without sleep, and anyone who has this trouble knows the misery of sleepless nights. The Nerve Food helped me from the start, and has built up my nervous system wonderfully. I now enjoy good, sound sleep, and instead of feeling tired in the morning I am strong and healthy, and well fitted for my daily work."

For His Own Use.

A small boy who was sitting next to a very haughty lady in a crowded omnibus kept on sniffing in a most annoying manner. At last the lady could bear it no longer and turned to the lad.

"Boy, have you got a handkerchief?" she demanded.

The small boy looked at her for a few seconds, and then, in a dignified tone, came the answer:

"Yes, I 'ave, but I don't lend it to strangers."—London Mail.

Howling Howlers.

School "howlers" are becoming a little tiresome, but the following, which come from Cardiff, are really good:

The people of India are divided into casts and outcasts.

During the interdict in John's reign, births, marriages, and deaths were not allowed to take place.

The King was crowned in the Crystal Palace with his sepulchre in his hand.

Sheridan Made the Rime.

The Prince Regent, afterward George IV., once offered $150 to any one who could find a rime for "porringer." This was merely child's play to Sheridan, who happened to be present. With scarcely a moment's thought he said:

The Duke of York a daughter had.
He gave the Prince of Orange her.
And now, by sounds, I'll take your pounds,
For there's a rime to porringer!

Irish Linen.

Though the Irish undoubtedly made linen before the time of James I., its manufacture was not carried on to a great extent until the time of Charles II. The Scots in Ulster first established linen manufactories during the reign of James, and from this beginning has the business of the present day developed.

THIRTY YEARS AFLAME.

Coal Mines That Are Doomed to Burn Themselves Out.

Human ingenuity has been baffled for thirty years by fires in the great coal mines in Perry county, O. In 1884 when the veins began to burn all vents were closed in an effort to smother the fire, but without avail. The nearness to the surface of coal deposits, topped by a rocky cap, permitted air to filter in and feed the dull blaze. It is estimated that millions of tons of fine coal have been destroyed, and there appears to be small chance of ever reopening the mines.

For many years breaks have been occurring in the hillsides where the roof would cave in and the ground drop. In each case after such an occurrence the smoke would increase in volume, the gas discharge would be very noticeable all over the community and the fire would greatly increase. Now the gases generated have invaded other mines and made parts of them unworkable.

A large section of the Martin & Rowe mine on the same vein has been blocked off and development stopped because the gases coming through the fissures made work in the mines exceedingly hazardous. Three other mines near by, including the old Straitsville mine, now known as No. 33, have also been walled off and development work toward the burning field entirely stopped.—Argonaut.

How Villa Paid a Bill.

"We recently sold a waterworks motor to General Villa," John Gibson, the local manager of a machinery house, told me. "Our people at El Paso were to deliver the machinery, but told the general they needed the cash in advance."

And he did. Huerta's arch enemy sent a band of his soldiers through the gambling district of a Mexican town on the border and collected the price of the motor—$800 in silver. A couple of soldiers brought the money in a wheelbarrow to the company's office.—Philadelphia Ledger.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Nature of Cancer.

Cancer is almost invariably at first a local disease.

It is easily cured if promptly recognized and at once removed by competent treatment.

It is practically always incurable in its later stages.

The disease usually begins in some unhealthy spot or some point of local irritation.

In external cancer there is something to be seen or felt, such as a wart, a mole, a lump or scab or an unhealed wound or sore. Pain is rarely present.

Cancer inside the body is often recognized by symptoms before a lump can be seen or felt. Persistent indigestion, with loss of weight and change of color, is always especially suspicious.

Persistent abnormal discharge from any part of the body should arouse the suspicion of cancer, particularly if the discharge is bloody.

The early and hopeful stages of cancer are usually painless.

A Curious Story.

The queen of Hanover, wife of King Ernest Augustus of Hanover (better known as the Duke of Cumberland, son of George III.), died at Hanover about 1842 of an illness which baffled the skill of her doctors as to its real cause. During her illness a clairvoyant was consulted, who wrote certain curious signs and words on the door of her bedroom; but, although these mystic words were repeated over and over again, the queen died. The king of Hanover after his wife's death gave orders that her bedroom should always be kept as though the queen would sleep there at night. The bed was turned down, the pillows reshaken, hot water brought and the daintiest slippers laid in readiness for her.—London Tatler.

Ancient Gallantry.

The respect and veneration paid to the fair sex formed an essential ingredient in chivalry. Principle of female adoration so predominently displayed in every aspect of chivalry extended its influence to the laws of the times, for we find James II. of Aragon ordering in this manner: "We will that every man, whether knight or no, who shall be in company with a lady pass safe and unmolested unless he be guilty of murder."

And Louis II., Duke of Bourbon, instituting the order of the Golden Shield, enjoins his knights to honor, above all, the ladies and not permit any one to slabber them, "because," adds he, "from them, after God, comes all the honor that man can acquire."

The Suicide Symphony.

The idea that music may be harmful—that it can create a fever in the blood dangerous to life and reason—will come as a revelation to many. Friedrich Nietzsche, the well known German philosopher, declared that there is something in some music, most notable in Wagner and Tschaikowsky, which acts unfavorably on the brain and nerves of many people. Tschaikowsky's baleful influence cannot be denied. He destroyed himself after composing his famous "Sixth Symphony," and as several have died by their own hands after playing it it has come to be known as the "suicide symphony."

The Homeric Poems.

No one of any literary pretensions believes any longer in the one time prevalent opinion that the "Iliad" and "Odyssey" were composed by a single poet, be he Homer or some one else. Wolf away back in 1795 proved that the poems are the result of many minds, being made up of many epics of many periods and finally collected and arranged by Peistratus about B. C. 550.—New York American.

The Future of Nations.

H. G. Wells' new book, "Social Forces in England," is full of striking ideas.

Mr. Wells believes that the future lies in the hands of that nation which proves sensitive to modern achievement in science and invention, that nation which will encourage its great men in the work they are capable of doing, and which comprehends the demands of the masses. He forsees an entirely new attitude toward labor, and perceives, in Prof. William James' conception of a labor conscription, by which each man will be obliged to give a year or two of his life to performing the irksome work of the world, an answer to a difficult problem."

YOUR BLOOD is the canal of life but it becomes a sewer if clogged up. All life consists of building up and tearing down and just in the same manner that the blood carries to the various parts of the body the food that the cells need for building up, so it is compelled to carry away the waste material that's torn down. These waste materials are poisonous and destroy us unless the liver and kidneys are stimulated into refreshed and vigorous life.

DR. PIERCE'S Golden Medical Discovery is the balancing power—a vitalizing power. It acts on the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition—on the purifying filters which clean the blood. Thus fresh vitalised blood feeds the nerves, heart—and brain. This well known alterative relieves catarrh of the stomach and headaches accompanying same, and has been successful for more than a generation as a tonic and body-builder. It builds up the rundown system. You need it—if you are always "catching cold"—or have catarrh of the nose and throat. Old London Cookshops.

Mediaeval London, besides being a "city of taverns," was famous for its cookshops, such as the place on the river bank described by Fitzstephen in the thirteenth century: "There every day ye may call for any dish of meat, roast, fried or sodden, fish both small and great, venison and fowl. If friends come upon a sudden wearied with travel to a citizen's house and they be loath to wait for curious preparations and dressings of fresh meat let the servant run to the water side, where all things that can be desired are at hand." This particular place of public cookery apparently did an indoor as well as an outdoor trade, for Fitzstephen further described it as being used both day and night by "multitudes of soldiers or other strangers who refresh themselves to their content on roast goose, the fowl of Africa and the rare gudwit of Ionia." But what were the two last mentioned viands?—London Standard.

ECZEMA ON THE HEAD

Mr. Peterson, South Bay, Ont., writes: "For years I suffered a sort of eczema on the head. I tried four different doctors, giving each a fair trial, but the disease grew worse and spread to my arm. TOY DOGS.

Pathetic Pampered Creatures, All Eyes and Nerves.

An English writer moralizes on the present cult of little dogs and the inordinate lengths to which it is carried by smart women.

There is a certain melancholy attaching to shows of toy dogs, he says. Not that toy dogs are themselves melancholy—indeed it is their sprightly unconsciousness of their degeneracy that most confounds the moralist—but that they suggest melancholy reflections.

It is not without misgiving that one watches the process of minimizing the dog, or a large proportion of him, in an eager competition to crib, cabin, and confine the great soul in the smallest possible body, until, in place of the dignified friend and ally of man, there will be left nothing but, at worst, a pampered toy; at best, a pathetic creature, all eyes and nerves, whose insurgent soul frets the puny body to decay.

Where will the process end? Already we have held up to the admiration of the world a Pomeranian puppy which, at the age of three months, can be comfortably bestowed in a tumbler, over the edge of which his picture shows him looking, with shy eyes and apprehensively, at the disproportionate scheme of things. Presently, maybe, we shall have a childhood's dream realized and really see the little dog of the fairy story who was hidden by art magic in a walnut and, when the shell was cracked, leaned forth barking and wagging his tail to the delight of all the noble company.

For years past, owing to the multitudinous presence of small dogs, walking in the public parks has been a feat comparable to a sword dance—more difficult indeed, for in a sword dance the swords are at least stationary, while little dogs are not.

This question of the small dog is of wider and more permanent import than might at first sight be gathered. It will be noted that the owners of the prize winners at toy dog shows are overwhelmingly women. Toy dogs are not, to speak generally, favored of men.

Men are apt to resent the existence of these pampered pets, on whom are too often lavished terms of endearment which they think should properly be reserved for themselves. For women they are often the excuse for the lavish display of a maternal instinct otherwise starved, the toy dog becoming for the grown woman what the doll is for the little girl.

It may be doubted, indeed, whether in any age, since dogs small enough to sit in laps were evolved, this tendency of women to make nurslings of them did not show itself. It may be doubtful also whether at any time men looked upon these nurslings with a favorable eye. There is evidence, too, that very early women themselves were occasionally afflicted of this particular weakness of their sex; for indeed to spoil a dog through excess of sentiment is only less cruel than to spoil a child.

Thus it is recorded of the Lady Eva, wife of William Crispan I., who became a nun in the great Abbey of Bec, that after her death she appeared in a dream to her brother, Rodulphus, and told him that she had been assigned 60 years of penance in purgatory "because I loved little dogs and other things of the sort, which men think nothing of, and beyond measure delighted to them; wherefore I received such a penance."

This is a tale which, coming from so authoritative a source, pious ladies of the present age might well take to heart. Let them beware how, disputing the criticism of their male acquaintance, they set their affections on toy spaniels, pygmy "pomps," griffons, Japanese and Pekingese.

Fourteen Years For Theft.

The diary of an officer who accompanied the first convict transport to Botany Bay in 1787-88 will be sold at Sotheby's on July 16—just 126 years after the ship landed its cargo of 998 prisoners. The author is Ralph Clark, a young lieutenant of marines, and his diary has been catalogued as "a document of blood and tears."

It is a faithful chronicle, beginning with a list of the convicts, their ages and offences, and their savage sentences. For stealing a tea kettle in Shrewsbury a man of 60 was awarded fourteen years. For housebreaking a lad of 18 got seven years. A woman won five years for 18 pence and another, who proved herself to be the worst fiend imaginable on board ship, had seven years for 9 guineas.

London's Once Fashionable Church.

St. James', Piccadilly, once the most fashionable church in London, was built mainly at the expense of Henry Jermyn, the Earl of St. Albans, who gave his name to neighboring Jermyn street and probably married Queen Henrietta Maria, the widow of Charles I. It is hideous externally, but the interior, for which alone Wren was really responsible, is considered one of the great architect's masterpieces. Few parishes have had so many distinguished rectors, among them being several archbishops and bishops and Dr. Samuel Clarke, the eccentric divine, who took his daily exercise by jumping over chairs and tables.—Westminster Gazette.

Taking Dogs Abroad.

In Great Britain there is a strict prohibition against the admission of dogs from other countries. The only way in which a dog can be landed in Great Britain is through a permit from the British Agricultural Department, which must be secured before the dog can be taken ashore on British soil. The quarantine against dogs in other countries, too, is more or less strict, but little difficulty will be encountered in getting them landed. The usual fee for the transportation of a dog across the Atlantic is $10.

Children are to be enlisted in a pure food war. Then babies will probably insist upon sterilized poker handles to chew.

You can never tell by appearance. Many a man who looks run down at the heel is very often mighty well heeled.

Don't waste any time looking back at your mistakes. There is more fun in looking up the mistakes of other people.

Paris has applauded an opera without words. Let us be grateful, however, that they'll never take the score out of baseball.

WHAT DYSPEPTICS SHOULD EAT

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE.

"Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble are, nine times out of ten, due to acidity; therefore stomach sufferers should, whenever possible, avoid eating food that is acid in its nature, or which by chemical action in the stomach develops acidity. Unfortunately, such a rule eliminates most foods which are pleasant to the taste as well as those which are rich in blood, flesh and nerve building properties. This is the reason why dyspeptics and stomach sufferers are usually so thin, emaciated and lacking in that vital energy which can only come from a well fed body. For the benefit of those sufferers who have been obliged to exclude from their diet all starchy, sweet or fatty food, and are trying to keep up a miserable existence on gluten products, I would suggest that you should try a meal of any food or foods which you may like, in moderate amount, taking immediately afterwards a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia in a little hot or cold water. This will neutralize any acid which may be present, or which may be formed, and instead of the usual feeling of uneasiness and fullness, you will find that your food agrees with you perfectly. Bisurated magnesia is doubtless the best food corrective and antacid known. It has no direct action on the stomach; but by neutralizing the acidity of the food contents, and thus removing the source of of the acid irritation which inflames the delicate stomach lining, it does more than could possibly be done by any drug or medicine. As a physician, I believe in the use of medicine whenever necessary, but I must admit that I cannot see the sense of dosing an inflamed and irritated stomach with drugs instead of getting rid of the acid—the cause of all the trouble. Get a little bisurated magnesia from your druggist, eat what you want at your next meal, take some of the bisurated magnesia as directed above, and see if I'm not right."

THE WHITE FLAG.

I sent my love two roses—one
As white as driven snow
And one a blushing royal red,
A flaming Jacqueminot.

I meant to touch and test my fate.
That night I should divine
The moment I should see my love
If her true heart were mine.

For if she holds me dear, I said,
She'll wear my blushing rose;
If not she'll wear my cold Lamarque,
As white as winter's snows.

My heart sank when I met her.
Sure,
I've been overbold,
For on her breast my pale rose lay
In virgin whiteness cold.

Yet with low words she greeted me,
With smiles divinely tender.
Upon her cheek the red rose dawned—
The white rose meant surrender.

SLAVERY.

Mr. President, I have yet to learn that one man can make a slave of another. If one man cannot do so no number of individuals have a right to do it. And I hold that all laws or compacts imposing any such condition upon any human being are absolutely void because contrary to the law of nature, which is the law of God, by which he makes his will known to man, and is paramount to all human control.—Rufus King in United States Senate, 1821.

A Surprise

By AMBROSE NEFF

"You can't go on this coach," said the agent.

"I've got to go on this coach. There's no other till tomorrow noon, and I've got to be in D. in twelve hours."

"Nevertheless, you can't go!"

He turned away from me resolutely and stalked into the office. The coach was standing at the door, with six horses attached. I asked a lounger when it would start, and he said it would probably not get off for an hour.

I determined to go on that coach. I struck out on the road in the direction the stage would pursue, intending to do a few miles, then wait till it came along, trusting to a five dollar bill for the driver to take me on. I carried out this resolution, and when the coach reached me asked the driver to pull up. Passengers within put their heads out of the windows, as though they thought the stop was a holdup. I asked the driver to take me on. To my surprise he said I might get on if I liked, but he would advise me not to since it was very probable the coach would be attacked by road agents.

I was somewhat set back by this information, but I was bound to be in D. the next morning and had no other way of getting there. Pulling open the door, I climbed into the coach, the passengers looking at me as if they thought I was going through them for their valuables. There were two men and two women, one of the men wearing the white cravat of a clergyman, the other being a quiet, meek looking little chap, with a high keyed voice. This was in contrast with the women, who were the queerest looking persons I ever saw, both of them having voices rough enough for the driver of an ox team.

"No," I replied, "I am not."

"I've got two guns. I' kin have one on 'em if y' like."

"No, no!" said the clergyman. "Don't give him a gun. If we have a fight he'd start in before we're ready."

"I don't want a gun," I said. "I've lived in these parts five years and never have been in a holdup yet. I don't believe there's going to be any holdup. When road agents come down on a coach they don't tell people beforehand."

"Like enough," granted one of the women.

I had been traveling nights and was tired out; so, resting my head against the cushion, I fell asleep. I was awakened by the stopping of the coach and the flinging open of both doors. A man stood at each door with a short rifle, and one of them told us to stay where we were, not make any fuss and no one would be hurt. They didn't want our valuables, but they did want the treasure box. Notwithstanding this assurance the passengers seemed to be beside themselves with terror. The clergyman begged them not to kill him, the squeaky voiced man asked them to consider his wife and children, and both the women shrieked hoarsely.

The treasure box was taken off the boot and laid beside the road. Two men attended to that, and one of them was trying to get the cover off to make sure they were getting what they wanted. The door guard on that side turned to see what they were doing when the man with the squeaky voice cried:

"Shoot!"

Quick as a flash one of the women raised a cocked revolver she had concealed under a fold of her dress and shot the door guard on her side dead. There was a simultaneous crack, and the other guard fell at the hands of the other woman. Before the men who were trying to open the treasure box could get their guns to bear both fell—one shot by the clergyman, the other by the squeaky voiced man. Then both the men jumped out of the coach and finished those who were only wounded.

While they were doing this the women were tearing off their dresses and flinging their ribbon bedecked hats on the floor, both appearing as stalwart men. Having divested themselves of their tawdry finery, they, too, left the coach and stood looking down upon their victims. I asked the clergyman what it all meant.

"It means," he said, "that this is Bill Owens' gang. That's Bill over there. They have been terrorizing this yere country for months. The sheriff—that's him over there"—pointing to the squeaky voiced man—"he organized this party to get rid of 'em. The express company arranged to send a big lot o' gold over the road and let it leak out that it would go by this coach. But that box hain't got no gold in it. It's full o' sand. In order to trap 'em we traveled as ordinary folks, two of our men making themselves fine ladies."

I saw it all except the fine ladies, who did not play the parts of women overwell. I failed to get to D. on that coach because it was not intended to go any farther than the meeting with the robbers and was now needed to take their bodies back to the starting point. So I said goodby to all and, when I saw them lumbering out of sight, started off to continue my journey on foot.

About sunset I found a house by the road, where I got some supper and succeeded in hiring the owner to drive me into D. the next morning. The news of the trapping of the robbers had preceded me, and my coming was looked upon with surprise. I told the story to gaping audiences.

Euler's Wonderful Memory.

Leonhard Euler, who was born in 1707 and died in 1783 at St. Petersburg, where he spent his life as a teacher of great power and as a prolific writer, was an instance of the genuine mathematician endowed with almost superhuman powers. He left more than 200 manuscript treatises on his favorite subject, and the bulk of the works published by his academy between 1727 and 1783 were from his pen. In his old age he was totally blind. Then he carried in his memory a table of the first six powers of the "series of natural numbers up to 100."

It is related that on one occasion two of Euler's students attempted to calculate a converging series. As they advanced they found they disagreed in the result by a unit in the fifteenth figure. The question was referred to Euler, who decided to make the calculation. He did this mentally, and his result was found to be correct.

Queer Publication.

"In our last number, as we discovered unfortunately too late for correction, we announced that Mr. John Stuart Mill's inaugural address lately delivered before the University of St. Andrews had since been published by him 'in the form of a five shilling elephant.' Even the most ardent believers in Mr. Mill's powers among our readers will probably have received this announcement with some incredulity. The fact is that by an error of the press the word 'elephant' was substituted for 'pamphlet,' and the mistake, although the proof was read and reread, unluckily escaped the corrector's eye."

Taking Advice.

"Take a tonic and dismiss from your mind all that tends to worry you," said a physician to a man who was suffering from nervous troubles. Several months afterward the patient received a bill from the physician for these guineas and a note asking him to remit. He answered it thus: "Dear Doctor—I have taken a tonic and your advice. Your bill tends to worry me, so I have dismissed it from my mind."—London Express.

It is announced that none but American bunting will be used on American warships, and from the patriotic bosom of the country comes a huge sigh of relief that no foreign stuff is exploited in our flags.

Waiting For Emmeline.

From Bolshazar court to the theater district is only a thirty minutes' ride in the subway, but usually we reach the theater a few minutes after the rise of the curtain. Why this should be I have never been able to explain. It is a fact that on such nights we have dinner half an hour early, and Emmeline comes to the table quite ready to go out, except that she has her cloak to slip on. Nevertheless we are a few minutes late. While Emmeline is slipping on her cloak I glance through the editorial page in the evening paper, answer the telephone and recall several bits of work I overlooked at the office. I then give Harold a drink of water in bed, help Emmeline with her hat, clean out the drawers in my writing table, tell Harold to stop talking to himself and go to sleep and hunt for the theater tickets in the pockets of my street clothes. After that I have time to read a page or two of —— —— and go in to see that Harold is well covered up. Emmeline always makes me save time by having me ring for the elevator while she is drawing on her gloves. Nevertheless we are a few minutes late for the first act.—Simeon Strunsky in Atlantic.

Sleep.

Science has this in the London Globe:

Sleep begins in its first phase by a state of distraction. * * * Immediately afterward, in a second phase, these states of distraction pass into a very delicate motor disturbance, due to the absence of parallelism in the axes of the eyes or by the deviation of their conjugate movements.

And poetry this:

Sleep hath its own world,
A boundary between the things misnamed
Death and existence. Sleep hath its own world,
And dreams in their development have breath
And tears and torture and the touch of joy.

And Shakespeare's "Sleep that knits up the ravell'd sleave of care." And a host of others that you can get glimpses of in the anthologies.

As between science and poetry, which gives you the truer idea of sleep?—Kansas City Star.

By CONSTANCE BINE.

NEW YORK, Saturday.

NANCY had felt much aggrieved at not being included in the Ellis Island trip, but it was in vain that she had pleaded to go. Her grandfather had felt sure she would "catch something," and in that case "the Board of Health would come and live with me for a month," he solemnly told the little girl. So, to comfort her, Prudence had promised her a morning at the Museum of Natural History, that wonder house which New York children love so dearly.

"What part shall we see to-day, Nancy?" asked Prudence, as they crossed the sunny lawn and gained the welcome shade of the entrance hall.

"Well, I already know a good deal about birds and butterflies and animals," mused Nancy, "and I don't care much about shells, except at the seashore; and the rocks and bones are meant for boys anyway, so I believe I'll choose the Indians."

Prudence could not repress a smile. It was so characteristic of the sociable little girl to be interested most of all in people.

[illegible] Prude[illegible]ce had not to see those cunning little Italians and gypsies and Turks at Ellis Island, but I s'pose Indians are the next best things."

Her sister laughed heartily at this, and replied:—"That suits me exactly, Nancy. I have just been reading two such fine books about 'Indians of the Plains' and 'Indians of the Southwest,' and I feel as wise as an owl about Indians."

"Indians are very interesting people," observed Nancy sagely. "When Aunt Maria read me 'The Last of the Mohicans' I nearly cried my eyes out. It was so sad." C

"Well, we won't see anything sad today," said Prudence reassuringly. "First of all, let's look at this wonderful Haida canoe, which the Alaska Indians made a hundred years ago."

The ceremonial canoe of the Chilkat Indians is the most interesting object in the North Pacific hall on the first floor. It is a superb "dugout," carved from the huge trunk of a single cedar, sixty-four feet long and large enough to hold forty people with their baggage. It is painted black and fantastically decorated in bright buff, with a gargoyle-like monster for figurehead.

"Oh, Prue, how did the Indians make this big boat out of a tree trunk?" asked Nancy, as she stood on tiptoe and eagerly peered over the side.

"After the log was hollowed out and roughly shaped they filled it with water, dropped redhot rocks in it to heat the water, and when the wood was soft they put thwarts across the inside and pressed the sides out. The men rowing are the slaves, and that strange man in the stern is the 'medicine man;' he has on a false face like a big lizard's head."

"Where were they going, Prue? They look like they were dressed up for a Mardi Gras festival."

"They were going to a 'potlatch,' a festival given in honor of their dead. The medicine man directed the ceremonies. Now look behind the other end of the canoe and you will see a model village of these Indians."

Nancy skipped around behind that part of the canoe where the big bear danced and the musicians pounded their drums, and cried out gleefully at the cunning little model of an Indian village from Vancouver Island.

"I thought they always lived in tepees," she exclaimed.

"Oh, no! Some lived in grass huts, some in skin tepees, some in clay covered tipis and some, like these, in timber huts. See the pretty decorations carved on the posts of the huts. These Indians were very skilful woodcarvers and these figures are their family crests. You can see an eagle and a sea lion."

"What is the big carved post in front?"

"That was supposed to be presented to the owner of the house by the spirit of the sea. That queer figure on it represents a fabulous creature of the woods, who carried away children in his basket."

"Like our old 'raw-head-and-bloody-bones' who lived under the stable," said Nancy in round-eyed awe.

"Yes, even Indians had bugaboos to frighten bad children," replied Prudence, laughing.

"I can't guess. What?"

"Drying berries and making cakes of them for winter use. And the men on the other side are having a 'potlatch.' Now shall we pass on to the southwest wing and see the Indians of the Woodlands?"

"Yes. What a nice name. It makes me think of 'Hiawatha.' Did they make pretty birch bark things?"

"Yes, indeed. They worked in birch bark, beads and porcupine quills. Before we leave the Northwest Indians, look at their fine 'totem poles,' carved so well and painted so gayly. Here is a 'grave post' with a big owl carved on it. The owl protects the families of the dead."

"I must tell Mammy Jane that when I go home. She's afraid of owls. She says they're 'haunts' and it's bad luck for one to hoot in the yard."

"I'm afraid old Mammy Jane will laugh at you and say 'Lo, chile! Doan' ole Mammy Jane know more 'bout screech owls in a minit than dem fujuns knowed in a lifetime?' "

"Well, Prue, show me something special to tell Mammy Jane about," begged Nancy in the tone of a conspirator.

"These false faces are the very things," replied her sister, as they stopped before a case of hideous wooden masks with long, coated hair.

"I wish I had one, wouldn't I scare her!" cried Nancy, clapping her hands. "What did they do with these masks?"

"They were worn by the Indians in their 'societies' for preventing the bad tricks of evil spirits. Here is a picture of the man dressed in their masks and doing a dance to frighten away the bad spirits."

"And here are some masks made of corn shucks," said Nancy. "Weren't they smart to plait the husks so carefully? I think these masks are the best of all."

"They are the masks of the 'Husk Face Society.' The wooden ones mark the 'Witch Society.' Women belonged to these societies, and also to the political societies. The women of the Iroquois were very important. They owned property apart from their husbands; they sat in council and they could end a war. They were real suffragettes!"

"Where did these woodland Indians live, Prue?"

"In the States east of the Mississippi. They were all connected with the history of our colonies, and the Oneidas of the Iroquois tribe were loyal to the Colonists in the War of the Revolution. The Delawares lived around New York, and remnants of their pottery and utensils have been found on Manhattan and Staten islands."

"Is there anything here about our Southern Indians?" asked loyal little Nancy.

"Yes, here is a Seminole exhibit. Their things are very rare, because the Seminoles have never been entirely conquered. You know they live in the Everglades of Florida and they are still shy of the white man. You see their dresses are of calico; they could not wear skins in the hot swamps."

"What are these turtle shells?" asked Nancy, as she pointed to a case full of mottled shells run through with thongs of leather.

"The women tied them to their ankles in the dance. I want you to notice some of the other things the women made and wore."

Prudence led the little girl to a case of wonderful bead and quill work. The bags and belts were embroidered with beads in beautiful designs of flowers and geometrical figures in all the colors of the rainbow. The quill work was done upon heaver skins with the quills of the porcupine. These beautiful skin pouches were regarded as sacred by the Indians and it was a hard matter for the trader to acquire them.

"Notice the snake embroidered on the toe. That was to prevent the child being bitten by snakes," explained Prudence.

"You will find different kinds of moccasins in different tribes. The Indians of the plains wore hard soled and those of the woodlands soft soled moccasins. Each tribe had some other special feature on their moccasins, such as bead fringes, toe forms, &c. The old frontiersmen used to say that by examining carefully the tracks of a war party they could distinguish the tribes."

"Were the Indians always fighting?" asked Nancy, with a gleam in her eye which indicated that she hoped they were.

"Oh, no, they had time to play games. They loved to play lacrosse and shinny. They played in honor of the Thunder Bird and the Sacred Sister of the Eastern Sky. Here is a case of the things they played games with. See the dice and the bone and sticks. Did you know Indians liked to play 'hide the button'?"

"No-o-o! Did they play 'Many, many stars'?" C

"I don't believe so," said Prudence laughing. "Indians didn't know how to kiss."

"Oh, the poor little Indians! How did they tell their mammas goodby?"

"I can't imagine. Maybe they rubbed noses."

"All right. There is one in the Southwest Pavilion. It is a Blackfoot teepee, and is like all those used by the Indians of the plains."

The girls passed out of the southwest wing and drew near the "medicine man's teepee" from Montana. "This teepee belonged to a medicine man who claimed to have miraculous help from the others, so he painted others on the sides of his house. See the altar with incense burning on it. Maybe that was for the others."

"What is the teepee made of?" asked Nancy.

"Of buffalo hide. The Indians of the plains were very dependent upon the buffalo. They ate his meat, they dressed in his hide and made their houses from it; they also made cooking utensils of the skin and implements from his horns. They looked upon him as the good spirit and invoked his aid to cure sickness. So these Indians of the plains were called 'Buffalo Indians.' "

"I do wish I had a buffalo teepee," sighed Nancy, "I never would sleep in a house again."

"Yes, you would," teased Prudence. "If the owls hooted and the acorns dropped one by one on your teepee and the little field mice rustled in the leaves, and a dog howled, then you'd run as fast as you could to your little bed."

"You mean thing! You don't know how brave I am. I'm a regular daredevil!" boasted Nancy, as she nodded her head vigorously.

"Are you enough of a daredevil to do a 'sun dance?' " asked Prudence, as she led her little sister to a fine model of the Arapahoes engaged in their sacred dance.

"Was that very brave?"

"Yes, indeed. This dance lasted three days and the men could neither eat nor drink during that time."

"Oh, I didn't say anything about fasting. Of course I have to eat to grow," replied the little girl importantly.

"I think we have only one more division to see, little 'daredevil,' and that is given to the Indians of the Southwest. They lived in adobe houses called kivas and made beautiful blankets, pottery and baskets. They dressed in robes of buffalo or rabbit skin, or of net interwoven with turkey feathers. The women's dresses were made of Yucca fibre and they washed their hair with the suds of the Yucca root. I want you to see the wonderful Kachina dolls of the Hopis. Here they are in this case."

"Oh, my! Did anybody ever see such dolls? I thought my old hickory nut doll and my dried apple dolls were the funniest dolls in the world, but these are funnier."

"These dolls represented the Kachinas, who were supernatural beings and in whose honor the Indians danced and carried these dolls. After the ceremony the dolls were given to the children. See if you can read the names."

" 'Lizard Kachina, who fights with the clowns,' 'Corn Kachina,' 'Baby Kachina,' 'Rattle Kachina,' 'Skeleton Kachina' and 'Kachina Maiden, most sacred of all,' " read Nancy.

"Now if you had one of those to take Mammy Jane she would use it as a 'charm.' "

"I do wish I had one. I think they are too cunning," said Nancy, enviously.

"When the little girls grew too large to play with their dolls, they took part in ceremonials which were supposed to bring them good health and good fortune, and they were given new names which they kept for life. Suppose you were going to get a new name, what would you choose, Nancy?"

"Yes, I would. A nice Indian squaw, with a cunning little papoose."

"Very well, Minnehaha. Now come see how an Apache squaw builds her house. I forgot to tell you that the wandering tribes of the Southwest built in grass houses and tepees." Prudence showed Nancy a picture of two Indian women building a dome shaped hut of bent saplings, which they would later thatch with grass.

"I think it would be lots of fun to build a house like that. Don't you remember how we used to build make houses in the woods, just that same way?"

"Yes, little squaw. Now see your Navajo sister weaving a beautiful blanket. It is very much like the one we have at home."

And the two girls looked at a number of pretty photographs of the Indian looms and weavers, and then examined the handsome blankets in the cases. Prudence told her little sister that the diamonds in the designs represented the morning star, the zigzag lines the lightning, and triangular masses stood for clouds. They also admired long, bright sashes worn on "best beens."

"Won't I have a lot to tell Mammy Jane about the Indians!" she exclaimed, with sparkling eyes. "Guess what I'm going to ask her to have for my lunch when I get home; a buffalo steak, some dried berry cakes and some wild rice. What do you think she'll say?"

And Prudence replied, "I think she'll say something like this, 'Lo, honey, is yo' bald chain turn by dem fujun folks? Whar ole Jane gwinter git dat buffalo steak an' dat wile rice? 'Cause ah heah an' eat yo' reg'lar victles. Ca'n head an' turnip greens an' fried ritchegs good enf fer any w'ite chile?' "

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Persistent Poisoner

By LOUISE B. CUMMINGS

The use of the poisoned needle is not new. In the early part of the seventeenth century a man named Tebaldo in Venice invented an instrument in the form of a key from which he shot a tiny needle into the flesh of one he wished to kill.

In Rome during the period when the use of poisons was an art in Italy there occurred a similar case to that of this Venetian. One Lorenzo Luchese went from Florence to Rome, taking with him a more minute knowledge of poisons and poison methods than existed anywhere except in the city on the Arno. There was something uncanny about him that soon turned the Romans against him. A certain young lady, Bianca Ranzine, attracted the attention of the stranger, and he was observed to cast longing eyes upon her. But she was betrothed to a noble Venetian, Ricordo Mantel, and it was assumed that Luchese's love was hopeless. But one day Signorina Ranzine's lover after having mingled with a crowd witnessing a race on the Corso was seized with a sharp pain and died within a few hours. It was supposed he died of heart disease.

Not long after this Luchese proposed to Signor Ranzine for the hand of his daughter. The application was declined on the ground that the lady's heart was buried with the lover she had lost and she would never marry. Luchese said that he would not give up hope and took every means to ingratiate himself with Signorina Ranzine. But she took a dislike to him and would have nothing to do with him.

After awhile the young lady met a man named Francesco Demetrio, a handsome and in other ways a charming man, who fell desperately in love with her and won her from her intended celibacy. They became engaged, and Bianca's friends rejoiced that the heart of one so young would not after all be buried. Demetrio had heard something from Florence about Luchese that put him on his guard against the man.

Every one knew that Luchese had cast longing eyes on Bianca Ranzine before the death of her betrothed and that he had proposed for her hand soon after his death. Moreover, poisoning being much in vogue at that time, there were those who believed that Ricordo Mantel had not died [illegible] disease, but had been secretly poisoned. Demetrio after hearing the reports from Florence about Luchese strongly suspected not only that Mantel had been poisoned, but that Luchese had been the poisoner.

However, he kept his own counsel and at the same time a strict watch on Luchese. If Demetrio was in any room where Luchese was present he would immediately leave. On several occasions he noticed that the Florentine tried to get near him, but he had always prevented his doing so by moving away. One day Demetrio was talking with a friend on a street on a fete day when a procession of the church was passing and suddenly felt a sharp pain in his arm. Turning, he saw Luchese pushing his way from him among the crowd.

"Seize that man!" Demetrio said to his friend. "He has punctured my arm and doubtless poisoned me."

The friend gave chase and caught Luchese. As soon as he laid hands on him he felt a sharp pain in his hand. There happened to be a doctor in the crowd, who, learning what had occurred, asked Demetrio to show him where he had been pricked. So small was the wound that it could scarcely be discovered, but the doctor whipped out a lancet and cut away a piece of the flesh. Demetrio's friend, having turned Luchese over to an officer, came reeling back, and the doctor, learning that he, too, had been pricked, treated his hand as he had treated Demetrio's arm.

The doctor took both pieces of flesh to his house, and on cutting them into bits found in each a small needle not half an inch long. Whether there had been poison in either of them he could not tell, but the evidence was strong enough against Luchese to insure his conviction. He was searched as soon as arrested, but nothing incriminating was found on him. His house was searched, and in it were found a variety of poisons and a little box containing needles similar to those that had been put into Demetrio and his friend. The instrument with which he had shot the needle into the flesh was picked up on the street near where the attempt had been made. It was simply a small brass tube with a spring in it, which could be loosened by a pressure of the thumb.

Luchese was tried and executed. Demetrio suffered but little from the effects of the puncture, but his friend was ill a long while.

The fact that Mantel had doubtless been poisoned by the man who wished Bianca for himself was kept from her. Indeed, she was not informed that Luchese had tried to poison her second lover. After Luchese's execution she and Demetrio were married, and great interest was manifested in the wedding, for every one except the bride knew that one lover had been murdered and the second had nearly met the same fate.

But it was not to be expected that what was common property could be kept from her always. She learned in time and in consequence always dreaded that her husband might fall at the hands of some secret enemy.

DUSTBANE

Makes All The Difference!

ORDINARY sweeping stirs up clouds of fine, gray, microbe-laden dust, which settles back on furniture, curtains, picture-frames and wherever else a minute particle can find a resting place. It is breathed into the lungs of the people in the house, carrying danger of disease.

Sweeping with Dustbane is vastly different. The clean, antiseptic powder is propelled ahead of the broom, falling on and absorbing all the dust before it gets a chance to fly. All the germs are killed, the air is purified, and floors and carpets are left fresh and clean. There is practically no dusting to be done afterward, and most of that work is saved.

Every woman ought to know how Dustbane makes sweeping easier and more healthful. You can test Dustbane in your own home, free of cost, through our

BUY THE LOT.

The gala performance in London in honour of the visit of the King and Queen of Denmark recalls the story of the Shah of Persia.

The Shah didn't care twopence about music, but all the same he was taken to the opera. He fell asleep, very bored with the entertainment, and at intervals they roused him, telling him to look at this or listen to that. This bored him more than ever, for the only thing that really interested His Majesty was buying things in shops.

At last he was roused in the middle of a chorus, and, on opening his eyes to look at the stage and the group of ladies thereon, he said fervently: "Buy them all! Buy them all!" and straightway went off to sleep again.

Blackmail Demanded.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., July 10.—Awakening at an early hour yesterday morning to find his garden destroyed and a card placed in a conspicuous spot threatening the members of his family with death providing he did not meet a demand for $1,000. Mike Paris, a prosperous west end Italian merchant, placed the matter in the hands of the police, who are now working on the case. The letter stated that the money must be placed at a spot designated on "the road to the cemetery," and unless it was done at a certain time his entire family would be wiped out and his property destroyed.

Two Months For Sailor.

MONTREAL, July 10. — Manuel Chute, the Storstad sailor who tried to cash money orders he picked up while rescuing the survivers of the Empress of Ireland, was yesterday given two months in jail by Judge Choquette in the Sessions Court. Chute will be deported after serving his sentence.

Privileges of London.

London still retains its picturesque ancient rights and privileges, and as an instance it may be mentioned that whenever the ruling monarch pays a formal or state visit to the city it is customary for the lord mayor and sheriffs to meet the sovereign at the boundary of the ancient city, where he will enter. A sword is extended to the king (implying that permission to enter is given), who touches it and returns it to the mayor. By ancient right, upon the decease of the sovereign and until the proclamation of the new monarch, the lord mayor is nominal head of the state, with full authority and powers.

Relief at Once Cure Certain

Conclusive Evidence That Dr. Chase's Ointment Cures Itching Piles.

Mr. John G. McDonald, Pictou, N.S., writes:—"I used Dr. Chase's Ointment for itching piles, and found that the first application gave relief. After using a few boxes of the ointment I was completely cured, and can recommend it highly to all sufferers from this disease. You have my permission to use this letter for the benefit of others."

Mr. James M. Douglas, Superior Junction, Ont., writes:—"For about six years I suffered from piles, and often could not work for two or three days at a time, so great was the suffering from pain and itching. Doctors treated me in vain, and I tried many treatments before I came across Dr. Chase's Ointment. Two boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment cured me, and for several months I have had no return of this annoying ailment."

There can be no doubt that Dr. Chase's Ointment is the most effective treatment obtainable for every form of piles. 60 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, July 9.—Corn took the lead on exchange today, both in activity and strength. Drought damage as well as the bullish construction placed on the government report prepared the way for a decided bulge. The market closed to-night 5-8c to 2¼c above last night. In wheat the outcome was unchanged to ¼c lower, and for oats a gain of 1-4c to 3-8c. Provisions wound up with 2½c to 62½c net advance.

QUEENSLAND WITCHES.

Australian Aborigines Have Some Queer Beliefs.

Queensland has a department of the administration devoted to the protection of the aboriginal inhabitants of the land still left. There are 33 "protectors" throughout the state who look after the interests of the blacks, give permits for their employment, see to their wages, and generally look after their well-being. Many of the cattle stations in the north are worked entirely with aboriginal labor. The wage runs from 10s. to 25s. per week. The blacks are also in demand for sugar farming. Round the towns of Queensland camps of nomadic blacks are to be found, who do odd jobs for the inhabitants. The police department of Queensland employs 94 natives as trackers. There are nine mission stations on the north coast of Queensland, where about 200 natives are trained and brought up to useful work, also there are aboriginal reserves.

In every way the Queensland natives are well protected, and the aim of the Government is to give the small remnant of the wild blacks a share in the benefits which have accrued under civilization. The aboriginal makes a splendid horseman and groom, and of course he is a born bushman. One of the features of the system under which Queensland sees to the comfort and well-being of the original inhabitants of the soil is the annual distribution of blankets on the approach of cold weather. The report contains the following interesting notes: "Internal diseases are uniformly ascribed to witchcraft, or sorcery; some blackfellow, it is alleged, ill-disposed towards the patient, has swallowed a stone, or a bone, and vomiting it up again, has spat it out at him, a process which is sure to make him ill, if not to kill him. The wizard is supposed, moreover, to possess the power of conveying himself underground to the object of his deadly malice, and when the charge of sorcery is thus fixed upon a particular individual by the supposed injured party, he is given up to death by his own tribe, and no injury is inflicted on the avenger who puts him to death. In cases of disease, the practice of some tribes is to place the skin of the dead man either under or over the patient. This is supposed to be a powerful specific against sorcery or witchcraft; but the most frequent specific employed by the natives in the case of internal diseases is as follows, viz.: Proceeding on the supposition that the patient is under the influence of sorcery on the part of some hostile or ill-disposed native of some other tribe, his wife, sister, mother, or some other near female relative (for it is generally a female who officiates on such occasions) undertakes to deliver him from the malign influence by a kind of incantation, in the efficacy of which they have unbounded confidence.

For this purpose, the patient is extended on his back, and a narrow belt of the skin of some animal, such as an opossum, bear, or flying fox, which sometimes the natives wear around their bodies as a girdle, is bound around his body, or head, according as the one or other is affected. A vessel containing water is next placed beside him, of which the operator takes a mouthful; then seizing the end of the belt with both hands, the operator rubs it violently along her gums till the blood flows, over and anon spitting out the blood into a small hole dug in the ground to receive it. Under this process the disease or malign influence is supposed to pass out of the body of the patient, along the belt into the mouth of the operator, who spits it out with the blood, the attendants chanting all the while.

Tea Table Etiquette.

A hundred years or more ago there was a quaint tea table etiquette. It was considered a lack of courtesy to take much cream or sugar in one's tea. Etiquette demanded that the tea should be tasted from the spoon and that the hostess should then inquire, "Is your tea agreeable?" Modern women would be shocked by a fashionable lady of those days who cooled her tea with her breath, yet Young wrote of a certain bewildering Lady Betty:

Her two red lips affected zephyrs blow
To cool the Bohea and inflame the beau,
While one white finger and a thumb conspire
To lift the cup and make the world admire. —London Standard.

The Price of Plots.

The prospectus of a London literary bureau shows that plots of love, humorous and sensational short stories are on sale for 2s. each. Other lines are ideas for humorous, interesting, instructive, and personal articles, 2s. each; jokes suitable for illustration, 2s. each; notes for speeches, sermons, and addresses on any subject, 2s. per 100 words; and scenarios and synopses for plays, 2s. per 100 words. A bright man with such wares for sale from a kiosk in Fleet street might do brisk business in the dog days, "The Chronicle" thinks.

Ghost Plant of Oregon.

The ghost plant was known and much prized by the Indians of Oregon in times past and is sometimes known as the Indian pipe plant. It is said the Indians believed that it had great remedial qualities and made from it a lotion which they considered curative for diseases of the eye. It is a tall, waxlike plant about eight inches high, and its bloom resembles a waxen cup. —Portland Oregonian.

Sorting Lost Jewels.

A new treasure is to be sought for by a London syndicate which has been formed for the purpose of trying to discover King John's treasure, including the crown and regalia, lost in what was then the Wash; the land has since been reclaimed. It is believed that the royal property disappeared in a journey from Kings Lynn to Crowland, and that it may be found in the neighborhood of Sutton Bridge and Wingland, where the crown land is now a smiling colony of small holdings.

John Marshall's Eloquence.

Chief Justice John Marshall was not an orator of the "spellbinder" type, but after he began practice at the Richmond (Va.) bar, he was recognized as a convincing speaker. William Wirt, one of the great lawyers of the day, though several years younger than Marshall, said of him: "This extraordinary man, without the aid of fancy, without the advantages of person, voice, attitude, gesture or any other ornaments of an origan, deserves to be considered as one of the most eloquent men in the world, if eloquence may be said to consist in the power of seizing the attention with an irresistible force, and never permitting it to elude the grasp until the hearer has received the conviction which the speaker intends." Whether an eloquent advocate or not, Marshall must have been rated a great lawyer, for Washington offered him a position in his cabinet as attorney general, which he declined, and President Adams, in 1800, offered him a place on the supreme bench, which was also declined before he was finally in 1801 appointed chief justice. —Philadelphia Press.

Not Without Honor.

William Phelps Eno, who devised the system of traffic regulation now practiced in New York and who has been called the "father of street traffic regulation," had a hard time at first impressing his ideas on public officials. Foreign cities appreciated them more than American cities. Paris, threatened with a strike of the cab drivers unless the system Eno were put in effect, adopted it. Then Buenos Aires sent for Mr. Eno, asked him to work out a plan for its traffic and agreed to every suggestion he made.

A year or two later Mr. Eno was introduced as a traffic regulation authority to a much traveled resident of Washington.

The globe trotter shook hands with him and then said in a rather patronizing manner:

"If you want to know what's what in a street traffic system, Mr. Eno, you ought to see the way they do the trick in Buenos Aires."

The Fungous Plant.

All the energies of the fungous plant seem to be directed to the production of germs for propagating its kind. Their number is often almost incalculable. You have doubtless observed that the common puffball when mature is filled with a fine dust, and this consists entirely of spores corresponding to seeds, which are eventually diffused in the air by the bursting of the puffball. In a single puffball more than 10,000,000 of them have been counted, and when these minute bodies are once set afloat in the atmosphere they are distributed abroad over an indefinite space, being so small that it is difficult to conceive of a place from which they could be excluded. Their astonishing fertility and rapidity of growth are among the most remarkable characteristics of this vegetable tribe.

Real Shaves in India.

The natives of India go in a great deal for shaving and do not confine themselves to merely shaving the chin, but on occasion will shave the eyebrows as well, and in the case of certain rites and ceremonies the head, too, is completely shaved. No soap is used, but the beard is softened by being rubbed over with a little cold water. The razors employed are generally of native manufacture and have fixed handles that do not fold. Moreover, they are very much heavier than those of European make. The strop consists of a small piece of leather the size of a man's palm and is held in the open hand during stropping. The recognized cost of a shave is 1 pice, which is the exact equivalent of 1 farthing.

Repeating the Text.

A little girl heard a sermon from the words "My cup runneth over; surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life." On returning home she was asked if she could remember the minister's text and replied: "Yes, indeed. It was 'Mercy! Goodness! My cup's tipped over.'"

Queer Fish.

Some curious fish found in South American waters breathe with lungs as well as gills. During the dry season the fish curls up at the bottom of a burrow, with its tail over its face, and remains there until the rise of water dissolves the plug with which it stops the entrance to the burrow.

Mis-Mistake.

"I understand you entertained a number of people at dinner last night."

"That's what I thought," replied Mr. Cumrox, "but my wife says it bored 'em."

A Concession.

She—You don't allow me to do anything I want! If it goes on much longer I shall go home to mamma. He—What I will allow you to do.—Figaro Illustre.

Corrected.

He—Darling, refuse me, and I shall never love another girl. She (tearfully)—What I want is a man who will promise me that if I accept him.—Judge.

Swords That Snapped.

A great many swords were brought home after the war between the states welded in the middle, because the young officers who owned them had bragged about their elasticity and had broken them in trying to demonstrate it. The tragedy happened in this way:

The young officer is setting out for the war had been given a fine sword by his admiring friends at home. He was told and made to believe that his sword was of tried Damascus or Toledo steel and that it would bend double without breaking. In camp somewhere the young captains and lieutenants would fall to vaunting their trusty blades, and on a bet one of them would stick the point of his sword into a tree and begin to bend the hilt around to meet the point. And just as the hilt came around the blade snapped in two in the middle. (Very few of these presentation swords were as Damascus or as Toledo as they were supposed to be.)

After that the two parts of the sword had to be welded, and the weapon shows the welding to this day.—New York Mail.

Nothing Heroic About Him.

She was very romantic, and when she saw the scars on his face she jumped at conclusions.

"I think I have discovered your secret," she softly said. "You are a Heidelberg duelist and likewise a German baron."

"I am not a baron," he said, "and I never heard of Heidelberg. I'm only the fellow the students practice on at the barbers' college."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

In a Dilemma.

One of London's charming young suffragettes said: "I want to get married just to prove that I can, and I don't want to get married just to prove that I don't have to. If I don't they'll say I can't; if I do they'll say I have no more independence than any other woman."—T. P.'s London Weekly.

All in the Game.

Stern Parent—William, how did you tear your trousers so? Future Star (tearfully)—I—I—I—was practicing the fallaway slide. S. P.—Is that so? Well, you come out in the woodshed and I'll give you a demonstration of the hit and run.—Buffalo Express.

Improved.

"How do you like your alarm clock?" asked the jeweler.

"First rate."

"You didn't seem pleased with it at first."

"No, but it's broken now."—London Tit-Bits.

Truthful.

"I hadn't been talking with him three minutes before he called me an ass. What sort of a person is he?"

"Well, I never knew him to tell a lie."

The soap things of this world are not engineered by staggards.—James T. Fields.

Her Triumph.

Penelope (triumphantly)—I heard last night that Jack was head over ears in love with me. Grace (jealously)—You cannot believe all you hear, Penelope—No, but I should not wonder if there was something in it. Grace—Why! Who told you? Penelope—He did.

PETERBOROUGH, FRIDAY, JULY 10, 1914

HOUSES IN DIFFERENT PARTS OF THE CITY WERE ROBBED LAST NIGHT

Watches, Money and Clothing Taken—In Several Cases Inmates Wakened in Time to See the Thieves.

POLICE ON THE JOB

HOUSES ENTERED.

Mr. Richard Sheehy, 269 Rubidge Street, 2 gold watches missing.

M. G. Martin, of 164 Aylmer Street, 2 watches and fobs missing.

Mr. B. F. Ackerman, 222 Dalhousie Street, nothing missing.

Mr. D. Leal, 247 Aylmer Street, clothing missing.

Considerable excitement was caused last night and this morning among residents of the south and west of the city by reason of the operations of unknown marauders who were successful in relieving some of the citizens of certain of their possessions.

Many of the houses were broken into with unbridled audacity, the intruders apparently little whether they were seen or not. In one case a nocturnal visitor actually turned on an electric light which lack of discretion rendered him plainly visible. As yet no one has been taken into custody who can safely be charged with implication in the robberies.

Apparently, although much clothing was taken money was the desired object for in many cases the pockets were turned out and the apparel then thrown aside. Two men were seen by certain of the victims, one being described as a coloured man wearing a light grey suit, and the second a man of sandy complexion and wearing dusty blue clothes. Both are said to be short and stout.

The house of Mr. J. H. Lidell, corner of Wolfe and Aylmer Streets, was one of the many that were entered by the marauders, last night, but fortunately none of his property, personal or otherwise was found missing. The intruder gained access to the house about 3 a.m., via the woodshed, and passing through the downstair rooms proceded, as though he was a legitimate occupant, up the stairway where he probably thought that booty awaited him. To this end, however, he was doomed to be disappointed. In fact, he did not even gain admittance to one of the bedroms, owing to the watchfulness of Mr. Liddell's son, who was lying in his bedroom, which is immediately opposite the top of the stairs, when a black curly head appeared. Without waiting to look before he leaped, Mr. Liddell's son made a jump at the intruding form, but the negro, for such he proved to be, was also alert, and made a safe, though rather hurried exit. As before mentioned, nothing was missing. Mr. Liddell describes the negro to be of short, thick appearance.

Stole his Trousers and Shirt.

Among the many other cases reported is one which though annoying, is somewhat amusing, inasmuch that personal apparel formed a part of the burglar's haul. The loser was Mr. D. Leal, of 247 Aylmer Street. Shortly after entering Mr. Liddell's residence it would seem, the thieves apparently passed in a northerly direction, and picked upon Mr. Leal's residence as a suitable and likely place for their work in the shadows. This time, entrance was obtained through the front door, which was not locked, and which is expained by the statement made by him to an Examiner representative this morning, to the effect that they had "nothing to take, anyway".

However, before the household was awakened the negro, for it proved to be that worthy at work again, had succeeded in grabbing a pair of trousers and a shirt. Mr. Leal, on becoming awakened, immediately gave chase, but was unsuccessful in his efforts. On his way, however, he left one boot on the stairs, and a heap of his father's clothes, in the hall, which from circumstances, would appear to have been left in a hurried flight. This intruder was a negro, dressed, Mr. Leal stated, in a light grey suit. He was rather thick set and short.

Another House Entered.

The residence of Mr. B. F. Ackerman, on Dalhousie Street, was one of the houses visited by the housebreakers, last night or early this morning. The burglars effected an entrance down stairs and, going upstairs, went into one of the rooms and turned on the electric light, which awoke the occupant. The intruder then became frightened and beat a hasty retreat down stairs. The occupant of the room then awoke the other members of the family who tried to catch the culprit, but he was nowhere to be seen. When making his escape he bumped into a chair or table down stairs, but this did not hinder him. The awakened sleeper says that the man is short and fair.

WITH THE S.A. TEMPLE BAND IN ENGLAND

The Peterboro Organization Has Been in the Forefront of the Activities in the Old Land.

HONOURS FOR BAND

LONDON, Eng., June 27, — Since writing you we have been very busy. After a successful day at Tunbridge Wells we came to London, and on Wednesday at noon we played on the Temple Garden Band Stand. This is situated on the Thames embankment, and it is only on rare occasions that any band except one of His Majesty's regimental bands, played there. But the London County Council gave the Army special permission during the middle week of our Convention to pick out five of its band, and it fell to our honour to play on the Wednesday. There were thousands of people to hear us. Thursday we were at a large musical festival held in the Strand Hall. The music was given by the leading London bands, the American Staff Band, the Swedish Staff Band, the German Staff Band and Peterborough Band. There were about 5,000 people present, presided over by the General. Friday we were at the Kingsway Hall, to a demonstration given by the South African party. Peterborough Band was picked out to supply the music. The meeting was presided over by Commissioner Eadie, who was one of the first Army Officers in Peterborough. He was delighted to see us, and kindly reference was made to the Electric City. There was a great crowd. The hall is one of the best in London, seating about 5,000.

Saturday we were at Kilburn, the Home Coops of the late Arthur Jones. We met many old friends of his there, and held a very successful festival.

Sunday, all day, we were at the lovely suburban district of Ealing. The meetings all day were held in a large picture palace seating about 2,500. The whole Canadian party was present, and as usual created a large interest. The Band did well. Two of the leading churches at Ealing undertook to entertain the whole of the Canadian party, and we were entertained at some of the very best homes in lovely Ealing.

On Saturday 500 delegates to the Congress were picked out to spend the day at Mr. Astor's country seat at Clievden (near Taplow). He is a brother to the late Jacob Astor. There were no bands selected as Mr. Astor had engaged the Coldstream Guards Band to supply the music. Of course a party of Canadians was amongst the number, and Peterborough was represented by our worthy leader, Adj. McElheney. A special train was chartered from London and return. On arrival at Haplow motor 'buses conveyed the party to Clievden Estate. There the party, which was headed by General Booth, were received by Mr. and Mrs. Astor, and a large party of friends. Conducted parties were taken over the beautiful estate (comprising nearly 2000 acres). Also a motor boat trip on the beautiful Thames. The party landed back in London about 7 p.m., after a most profitable and enjoyable outing.

Monday, by special request we paid a return visit to Camberwell, to give a musical meeting. There was a band from Belfast present, who were attending the Congress. They gave us a great welcome.

Tuesday was the great day at the Crystal Palace. It was truly a big day. It was estimated that there were about 75,000 people present. Our band took part in several meetings. In the great march past there were 20,000 people. There were about 200 bands. Peterborough headed the Canadian party, and we came in for a good deal of cheering. We played the "Maple Leaf for Ever," and everybody was "hat off to Peterborough." At night there was a great Musical Festival in the central transept. There must have been 20,000 people present; the orchestra was crowded with bandsmen. There was several pieces by the invited bands, and six of the leading bands played a piece by themselves, and Peterborough was honoured to be picked to play alone.

Wednesday we travelled to Reading, played on the bandstand in the Forbury Gardens in the afternoon, and at night we gave a musical in the large hall which was crowded.

Thursday we broke up two days, and then assembled in London for a trip to the north, there to visit Leeds, Bradford, Shiply, Keigley, Halifax and Liverpool. Sail for home on July 3rd.

CLAIMS AGAINST CITY AMOUNTING TO ALMOST $400

Were Dealt With by the Legal and Reception Committee at Meeting Last Night.

WATER IN CELLAR

At the meeting of the Legal and Reception Committee last night a letter was read from Robinette, Godfrey and Phelan, claiming $43.80 for the Toronto Free Hospital for Consumptives for the maintainance of Bessie Montgomery, of this city, up to June 30th. Mr. Gordon reported that on the facts and information he had received, the city was not liable in his opinion. The City Solicitor will contest the claim if necessary.

Messrs. O'Connell and Corkery wrote the Council claiming $50 damages for Mrs. Jane Welsh, who sustained injuries by falling on the sidewalk in front of Dr. Amys' residence on Charlotte street. The matter was referred to the City Solicitor.

A claim was read from E. J. Hickey for $150.00 for damages on account of an accident on George street. On the motion of Aldermen Johnston and Saunders the City Solicitor was instructed to report on the matter.

A letter was read from O. de Laplante on behalf of the Peterborough Hardware Co., claiming $100 damages for injury by water in their cellar on Jan. 27th and 28th. The matter was referred to the City Solicitor for a report.

ARMED MEN MET CARSON

Head of Provisional Government Cheerfully Received.

Special Cable to The Examiner:

BELFAST, Ireland, July 10.—In open defiance to the law respecting the carrying of arms, four hundred Ulster volunteers, carrying rifles with fixed bayonets, and with cartridge-filled belts, greeted Sir Edward Carson to-day when he arrived from London. Lord Londonderry and Captain Craig met him with another escort of forty armed motor cycle despatch riders and Carson was motored to Craigavon.

The wildest enthusiasm reigned and there were crowds on the streets. It is believed here that to-day, Saturday and Sunday, which happens to be July 12th, will mark the crisis of Ulster affairs. At Craigavon to-day will assemble the "First Provisional Government" of Ulster, with Carson at its head. It is understood that their constitution will be drafted and a "Ulster resolve" will be promulgated possibly on Sunday. However, much depends on Asquith's attitude towards these demonstrations. If it is one of good-natured tolerance as is likely, it is not expected there will be bloodshed.

MANY HOUSES NEVER LOCKED

Doors and Windows Left Open During Summer Months for Various Reasons

CARELESS OR UNAFRAID

The news of last night's housebreaking brought out the fact that a number of the city's residents take little precaution against porch climbers, and even ground floor workers. A number of enquiries made this morning elicited the fact that many heads of families retire without bolting a door, turning a lock or turning a catch on a window. This sense of security arises from a belief that there are no sneak thieves in the city or from a realization that there are no valuables in the house, and everyone is aware of the fact. One man said his family did not even take the trouble to lock the door, day or night. The screen door swings freely on its hinges, and there is no other obstruction to any one who wanted to enter. Numerous houses were mentioned whose doors are unlocked most of the time, and some of the people have either lost or never had keys. And, as for screens: apparently there are hundreds put into use in June and remain undisturbed until the cold weather comes. One man, a retired farmer, said he never locked up his house. "We never locked a door in large number of city's residents take son for not locking the cat out in the city.

TEMPLE BAND HOME TO-NIGHT

Has Arrived Safely at Quebec

Quebec, July 9.

"Arrived at Quebec all safe, expected to land to-night, but got to stay aboard till morning. We expect to arrive Peterborough late Friday, or early Saturday. Will wire from Montreal. All the boys are well and anxious to get home.

"E. HENSLEY."

MANITOBA ELECTION RESULTS

There is keen interest being taken in Peterborough over the Manitoba election fight to-day, and in order to give its friends early and comprehensive news The Examiner has made arrangements for special telegraphic service. The results from the different ridings will be bulletined in front of the office as soon as they are received.

ARE SATISFACTORY

Dr. Clinton, District Officer of Health leaves to-day for Belleville, after spending three days in the city. Sanitary conditions are, he says, on the whole, very satisfactory.

Speaking to the Examiner he paid a compliment to Sanitary Inspector Spence, by saying that if matters pertaining to the public health, were looked after as well in other places as they were in Peterborough, he would have no cause to worry. He left with the Inspector, a set of strictest rules governing slaughter houses, which will be applied locally.

FREE DRINKS IN WINNIPEG

Eve of Election Sees a Wild Orgy in the Manitoba Capital With "Hard Stuff" Flowing Freely

THE TEMPERANCE ISSUE

Special to The Examiner:

WINNIPEG, Man., July 10. — The liquor interests and the "Banish the bar" advocates in Manitoba are to-day facing a crisis. The paramount issue as the polls to-day before the electors of Manitoba is a continuation of the liquor traffic. The Opposition to the present Roblin Government has promised if given a majority of members in the Legislature they will submit a referendum of the question to the people for their opinion. The streets were crowded with drunken men last night. Free liquor being given at all low grade hotels and clubs and at Government committee rooms in glasses and flasks. It was an orgy never to be forgotten. Automobiles packed with Government supporters flushed with liquor went from one committee room to another enthusing the crowds. The Government is, however, handicapped by the revelations made yesterday by Chicago detectives, hired by temperance forces, and who have been working in the centre of the Government forces since last February, and secured an intimate knowledge of methods to be used to-day to plug ballot boxes.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 10.—After a brisk campaign and a fighting finish, Manitoba is voting to-day for a new Legislature. Rain threatened this morning, but it is probable, despite this fact, that a very heavy vote will be polled. Both parties appeal to their supporters to guard the polls and to vote early. There are fewer expressions of absolute confidence in the result this morning, and possibly most people expect a closer finish than in some previous elections. However, Hon. Dr. Montague, the only member of the Government in town last night, declared that the contest looked most satisfactory for the Government forces.

SUCCESSFUL DANCE AT CHEMONG PARK

The second dance of the season was given by the Chemong Regatta Club in the pavilion at Chemong Park last evening. Quite a number were present, but the pavilion was not crowded and everybody had an enjoyable time. The young people from the cottages were well represented and a number motored out from the City, returning after the dance. Mr. Asa Huycke furnished the music and played the latest pieces in an able manner. The indications are that the dances will be largely patronized and just as popular as last year.

CIVIC DRIVEWAY FOR NEXT YEAR

Committee Decided Not to Begin Undertaking This Summer

A meeting of the Committee that was appointed earlier in the year, composed of members of the Horticultural Society, the Ad Club and Board of Trade, met last evening, and decided that owing to the lateness of the season and the extent of the project, the driveway, as mapped out at the banquet, some time ago, would not be undertaken until next season, and that all those who had taken up the proposition be advised, and any cheques received be returned. The members of the Committee feel that it is too big and worthy an undertaking to be taken up in any but a systematic and earnest manner, and, in the meantime, several propositions are being thought out that may be placed before the public, later.

CONTRACT FOR FINAL LINK OF TRENT CANAL

HORSES BOLTED YOUTH HAS LEG BADLY BROKEN

Alfred Parker of Ennismore Thrown From Rake When Team Run Away and Sustained Serious Injuries.

IN NICHOLLS HOSPITAL

As the result of his horses running away yesterday afternoon and throwing him from the rake, Alfred Parker lies in Nicholls Hospital today suffering from severe injuries.

Parker was driving the horse rake on the farm of Mr. David McMann, Emily Township, yesterday afternoon, when the team of horses drawing the machine got beyond his control and started at a terrific speed down a laneway leading from the field in which he had been working. Before they had passed the whole length of the lane, however, the outfit struck a post, and Parker was thrown with tremendous force to the ground. The horse dashed on down the lane.

There were several people near the field and when the outfit crashed into the post they ran to Parker's assistance. He was taken to the house, and Comstock's ambulance from this city, was summoned. Dr. Thompson, of Omemee, was also called and attended the young fellow. He was brought to the Nicholls Hospital yesterday afternoon, and is this morning doing as well as could be expected. Dr. MacPherson is attending the injured lad.

The young fellow in his fall from the machine, sustained a compound fracture of the leg, between the ankle and the knee, and he is in a serious condition, though his recovery is looked for.

PET EXTRAVAGANCES

Every man and woman has his or her little pet extravagance (says an American writer.) But there are usually a good many points in favour of woman's economy in the long run, and, though a man may preach economy and spend unpleasant moments over the "foolishness" of his wife's extravagance it will also usually be found that in the end he spends more money than she does.

Two causes particularly tend to prevent women from being extravagant. In the first place, both Nature and training give women the idea of taking care of things—a strong point leading towards conomy. In the second place, women are not usually well off in respect to the position which they are trying to uphold. Consequently they are obliged to think a good deal about spending what they do to the best advantage. This is as true of the very rich as of the very poor.

There is hardly a woman in existence who is not constantly striving to reach a higher plane of social life. To this end she must study how to get the most out of every shilling she can command. To do this she must have good brains, and a greater amount of common sense.

Women are accustomed to a daily handling of matters of detail which teaches them the exact price of things; and even when induced to make some little unnecessary expenditure, they usually manage to get the most for their money. On the other hand, some women are as the old English saying has it, "Penny wise and pound foolish." Witness this fact on a pouring wet day. A woman will gather her skirts about her and stand in the wet, entirely ruining a best dress, when a man will hail a cab, save his suit of clothes, his temper, and reach his destination in half the time; but the very next night he will spoil our good opinion of him by staying in town when caught by an engagement too late to go home and expending his earnings on a handsome dinner; when a woman in such circumstances would content herself with a cup of tea and a sandwich, and be several shillings ahead.

Habits of carelessness arise in women from the fact that for generations men have gone out into the world and spent what they have lawfully earned, while women have for the same generations been obliged to get along on the mere pittance doled out to them. Of course, we are changing all this, but the fact, nevertheless, remains that woman's extravagance is yet in its infancy.

Willie Wants to Know.

Mother (cooking). Phew! That's a bad egg.

Willie: Why don't you make it good?

Mother: I can't make a bad egg good, my son.

Willie: Why, I heard the grocer tell you if you found any bad ones he'd make 'em good; and if he can, why can't you?

Randolph Macdonald Company Will Build Section Three of the Severn River District.

FINISH NEXT YEAR

OTTAWA, July 9—The contract for the final link in the Trent Canal System was let to-day to the Randolph-Macdonald Company of Toronto, at $933,141.

This is section three of the Severn River division, and the letting of the contract means that in little more than a year the Trent Canal will be completed from Lake Ontario to the Georgian Bay.

The Trent Canal will develop a large tourist traffic, besides helping in the grain movement.

TWO THOUSAND ORANGEMEN FROM PETERBOROUGH

Will March With Other County Lodges in Lindsay on Monday Next.

On Monday next, July 13th, participating in the celebration of the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne, the population of Peterborough and the immediate vicinity will be depleted to the extent of about two thousand residents, who will have boarded one of the special trains to Lindsay to take part in the celebration in that Town.

The three City lodges, No. 89, No. 1135, and No. 89, will be largely represented, as well as No. 231, from Downer's Corners, 496 from Nassau, the Brooklown Lodge, Lakefield Lodge, Fraserville, Millbrook, and many other branches of the Order. The celebration will be attended by Orangemen from Victoria, East and West Durham, Peterborough, and Hastings Counties, and it is impossible to estimate even approximately the number who will invade the Sengorville town next Monday. The day will certainly be a memorable one for Lindsay citizens and Orangemen, alike, and reports have been received at local headquarters that the Lindsay authorities are preparing in every way possible to meet the convenience of and entertain the thousands of visitors.

Special trains on both lines will run to Lindsay on Monday. The Campbellford special leaves that town at 7.30 a.m. and passes through Peterborough at 9.10 o'clock. The Cobourg special leaves there at 7 o'clock, and the Fraserville special leaves Fraserville at 7.20 o'clock and Peterborough at 7.50 o'clock. The Millbrook special leaves Millbrook 9.20 a.m. The local special leaves the G. T. R. Station at 9.50 after the arrival of the Lakefield train. The fares charged will be regular single fare with 5c. and 10c. added. Special trains also leave Omemee and Whitby Junction. Extra accommodation has also been arranged on the Haliburton train.

A COLEMAN WINDOW

The north window of Coleman Bros. confectionery store, 426 George Street, has an attractive dressing of Patterson's "Private Stock" Chocolates. The goods, the bon-bon boxes and the pleasing colourings all combine in blending delicioumess and elegance with artistic skill. See the unique window effect, read the two-column Paterson Chocolate advertisement, in another column, and take a box home with you to-day.

Mr. R. J. Dewey Met With An Accident

Mr. R. J. Dewey met with a serious accident last night on St. John's Church while walking to the motor of the organ. The flap leading to the basement had been left up, and Mr. Dewey fell to the floor, sustaining a severe strain to the left knee and numerous bruises.

THE STREET PAVING.

The Council acted wisely in deferring for a few days the letting of the new street paving contract. The importance of the project and the amount of money involved demand from the Council careful consideration of the tenders received. Having in mind the main desiderata of quality of materials, permanency of work, and a satisfactory price, the ratepayers' representatives should see to it that they are sufficiently informed on these points. The average citizen is not concerned with who receives the contract, although it would no doubt be a matter of satisfaction if the whole or any part of the work was awarded to a fellow-citizen on the merits of his tender and his previous record as a contractor. But beyond this consideration of personalities the individual ratepayer is not interested. But, it does concern him, and particularly during this present financial quietude, that economy be carefully exercised in the expenditure of the large sum of money involved in the street paving, now under contemplation. The element of cost is of paramount importance and is a factor that should receive the gravest attention from the members of the Council, this evening, when the contract for the proposed work is expected to be let. The companies which have submitted tenders are known to have been more or less active since the City announced its intention to extend the area of permanent roadways. However, when the Council decides in favour of a particular tender it is felt they will give first attention to the financial aspect of the agreement. The calling of tenders for separate units of the work, for example, the base separate from the top surface, suggests the possibility that the entire contract may be divided. If this plan is followed the Council must remember that responsibility for any defects that may be found in the work, could be dodged by both contractors. If the top finish was found to be faulty the firm that laid it could evade any share they may have had in the deficiency, and it would require a royal commission to fix the responsibility. Hence, if the Council adopt this plan, if they split the contract, they should be extremely careful to protect the City's interest against possible issues of the character just referred to.

LIPTON'S BARRED.

The British Government has taken Sir Thomas Lipton's Company by the hand and gently escorted it out of business relations with itself.

No matter if Sir Thomas is seeking to lift the cup and win glory for the country by so doing, his agents are not permitted to bribe government buyers in order to sell tea for army and navy use and, therefore, without the least compunction, without regard to the sportsmanship involved in the case of the head of the great house, Lipton's is removed from the list of those authorized to contract for the British Army.

Of course, any self-respecting government would do the same thing, but it often happens that when men are of the prominence of Lipton and have given largely to charity, and have sought to maintain national prestige in sports at great cost, the tendency is to be easy. It seems that is not the British way.—Buffalo News.

ARMS AND THE MAN.

(Toronto Star)

"This will not be the first time I have calmly faced the wrath of a fifty fanatics," says the Minister of Militia. So solemn a declaration might be supposed to refer to the defence of some grand and eternal principle of liberty. But the question at issue is whether a Regiment shall carry rifles. The importance of the incident is hugely exaggerated by Col. Hughes as well as by his assailants. What does it matter whether the men carry rifles or not, or whether the rifles they carry are their own or the property of the State?

A question does arise as to how far the State shall recognize a particular religious body by allowing soldiers to take part in its services. But if soldiers do take part, wearing their uniforms and carrying side arms, it does not make a particle of difference whether they also carry rifles or not. Nobody supposes that they will "shoot up" the congregation, or gather Catholics up and drive them into Protestant churches, or vice versa. We can see no reason for the prohibition of rifles in Church services except that it is difficult for a man to take care of a rifle while singing the hymn or listening to the sermon, and that the handling of the arms might make an unseemly racket in the Church.

It seems that a Protestant officer in Montreal made an even finer distinction. He said that a soldier might carry a gun to Church if it was his own gun. So that if he appeared with a Government tunic, Government trousers, Government cap, Government bayonet, and a private gun, the law and the constitution, civil and religious liberty, would be in no danger.

To be fair to Col. Hughes, however, he does not avail himself of this legal distinction, but expresses the opinion that, for the future side arms only ought to be carried. Possibly in this way, having braved the wrath of the "fanatics" he will appease them. He adds:

"It is rather amusing to me to see the attempts to stir up, on the one hand, Protestant fanaticism, and, on the other hand, Roman Catholic."

The Colonel seems to have restrained his mirth during the last general election, when Sir Wilfrid Laurier was accused in Ontario of being the author of the ne temere decree, while in Quebec he was described as the ally of the Orangemen. However, it is worth while putting a man in office if it enables him to perceive the difficulty of harmonizing the various elements of the population.

THE SPREAD OF ADVERTISING.

(Ottawa Journal.)

In the recent political campaign in Ontario, a considerable use of advertising space in newspapers was made by both parties, in a way not customary until lately—namely, use by each party of advertising in newspapers of the opposite political stripe. This was a sensible enough move on the part of the political executives, and it was a fair use of newspaper space wherever, as was the case in nearly all instances, the use of the space was headed "political advertising," so that readers were under no misapprehension. A similar tendency is evident in the Manitoba campaign now going on. For instance, the Winnipeg Free Press, Liberal, recently contained in the same issue a two-page advertisement inserted by the Conservative party, setting forth the record and programme of the Roblin Government, and a full-page advertisement from the Liberal provincial executive, stating the platform of the Liberal Opposition.

In drawing attention to the opposing statements, the Winnipeg Free Press points out that the employment of newspaper space for advertisements other than those of merely commercial or financial character has been very much broadened in the past few years. Public service corporations, notably the holders of great street railway franchises, find it advantageous to use advertising display space in the daily newspapers to talk to the public, to state why their service at certain points and at certain hours was interrupted, to express regret to their patrons, the public, when they suffered inconvenience through certain temporary delays. Full explanations are given for these delays and the irritation of the public thereby delayed.

The "public be d—ned" policy has been found by corporations to be exceedingly unprofitable. Up to date cities now create and foster interest on the part of the citizens in great civic undertakings by campaigns of display advertising in the newspapers. The City of Winnipeg carried out such a campaign in the newspapers of Winnipeg in connection with its hydro-electric power and lighting plant and the wisdom of the civic authorities' action was demonstrated by the result.

Advertising space in daily newspapers is also being utilized to arrest the attention of the public and to carry on educational work on questions which affect the public welfare, such as town planning, the acquirement of additional parks and the evils of the liquor traffic; and even clergymen are acknowledging the power of advertising in furthering the work in which they are engaged. "Had the English suffragettes," remarked the manager of a large general advertising agency, "confided to me a moderate amount of money, a sum small compared to what they have expended, I would have undertaken through a campaign of public advertising in the daily newspapers of Great Britain to have so educated the public that they would have achieved before now what they are fighting for."

Another striking illustration of this kind is the extensive advertising the Russian Government carries on in the press of Great Britain and France. Russia, like Canada, is a heavy borrower for development purposes, and its government finds it pays to educate the investing public of the two countries mentioned on the subject of its great natural resources, of its financial requirements and even of the purposes to which such borrowed capital is put, extending to official treasury statements as to how and under what safeguards the money has been allocated.

Political advertising is a logical development of this recognition of the uses to which the advertising columns of daily newspapers can be put. But the essential to it of course, so far as the just sale of space by a newspaper is concerned, is that all such matter shall be clearly specified as advertising.

Stock Markets

A. E. Stratton & Co., Brokers, report the following:

GRAIN

S. B. Chapin & Co.—With wheat prices at this level, the foreign demand is good, and the spring wheat crop still in the making we look for a two sided market for next weeks.

Corn market will depend largely next few weeks on the weather conditions.

Bartlett, Frazier & Co.—We continue to look for a trading market, as there seems to be nothing in sight at the moment to make any radical price change. We continue friendly to corn but are inclined to go on slow on this rally.

Finley, Barrel & Co.—In our opinion sales of wheat should be made on all hard spots; unless rain comes to the relief of corn we look for higher prices. Sept. oats should be bought on all recessions.

HOW THE CHURCHES STAND IN POLITICS

AN INTERESTING STUDY

At the Provincial election just over the organized influence of the churches, as a whole, found expression on the side of the liberals. But "'twas not ever thus." How do the churches, or their members in Ontario ordinarily align themselves in party conflict? The Toronto Star Weekly put this question to one second to none in his knowledge of political conditions in Ontario, and, indeed, in this country. His reply was as follows:

"While any estimate must be speculative, I should think that, normally, in Ontario, the Conservatives get at least 70 per cent. of the Anglican and 60 per cent. of the Methodist vote.

"Probably the Liberals get something more than 50 per cent. of the Presbyterian vote—one would be inclined, on the face of things, to say a good deal more than that, were there not some reason to think that, of late the Presbyterians not having produced an outstanding leader of the George Brown or of the Oliver Mowat type in either dominion or provincial politics, a certain proportion of old-time Presbyterian Grits silently use their vote and influence on the other side. Of the Baptists and Congregationalists, about 90 per cent. possibly, are liberals—but the numerical adherence to these churches is comparatively small. The Roman Catholic vote is the most uncertain factor of all. Sometimes it is the natural tendency of the Roman Catholics to vote Conservative, unless they have been particularly 'baited' by the Orangemen."

Catholics Attacked.

There are historic reasons for the way in which the various churches align themselves in politics. The early Conservative party in Ontario was largely Anglican, and held the view that "the episcopal system was inter woven and connected with the monarchical foundations of our government." Bishop Strachan, a Tory of the Tories, was a great church-and-state man. He and those who thought with him supported the maintenance of the act of 1791, which provided that there should be reserved for the "Protestant clergy" in Upper and Lower Canada, "a quantity of land equal in value to a seventh part of grants that had been made in the past, or might be made in the future." The law was unjust. Even if the expression "Protestant clergy" signified clergy of the church of England only — an assumption, to say the least of it, debatable—it was unreasonable that the members of that church, who were certainly not more than a third, and probably not more than a fourth, of the population of Upper Canada, should have this exclusive privilege. This law of 1791 had been framed by the then dominant caste in Canada, which had the ear of the authorities in England.

Then again the Anglicans favoured denominational education— a system which was detested by George Brown and the Grits. "I can conceive nothing more unprincipled," 'exclaimed George Brown, "than a scheme to array the youths of the province in sectarian bands, to teach them, from the cradle up, to know each other as Methodist boys, and Presbyterian boys, and Episcopal boys. We have enough of this most wretched sectarianism in our churches without carrying it further.

Brown and Presbyterians.

George Brown was a Presbyterian. And his sturdy opposition, whether on the platform or in the columns of his newspaper, to the exclusive claim of the Anglican church and to the pretensions of the dominant caste which adhered to it, made a powerful apeal to the independent spirit of Presbyterians, although as regards the question of the "clergy reserves" a minority of them would have acquiesced in a settlement of the question which would have given part of these to their church. Sir Oliver Mowat was a Presbyterian, and Presbyterians have always been the backbone of the Liberal party in the province.

"The Clergy Reserves" question aroused almost as much ire among the Methodists as it did among the Presbyterians. And Egerton Ryerson, whenever that question was raised, was in the forefront of the battle for religious liberty and civil rights against a state church and a political oligarchy. Also he took up the cudgels against Bishop Strachan when the latter took occasion, in public sermons, not only to advance the claim of the Anglican church to be the established church of Canada, but also to disparage other religious bodies as being imbued with republican and levelling opinions.

But Egerton Ryerson was no radical. While he sought equal rights for all churches, and efficient education for all the people, his political sympathies were with a moderate Conservatism. As a United Empire Loyalist, he viewed with distrust the radical wing which he conceived Canadian Liberalism to have developed. It was his boast that not a single member of the Methodist church in Canada was implicated in the rebellion, and it was his object to awaken the loyal fears of Methodists to what he thought the dangerous objective of a section of Canadian Liberalism. It was largely owing to his influence that, once equal religious rights were established for all, the majority of Methodists joined hands with the Conservatives.

Reasons Are Historic.

Despite the fact that, in later days, the Hon. Sandefild Macdonald, the first premier of the province, was a Roman Catholic, the Roman Catholics were at first arrayed against the Conservatives. But George Brown's anti-papery correspondence drove them into the ranks of the Conservatives for a good many years. However, Edward Blake and Sir Oliver Mowat were both always very conciliatory and diplomatic in their dealings with Roman Catholics, but in 1883 the Conservative party probably still held the majority of them. In 1889 the Conservative party made a rather ill-advised attack on the Mowat government not only for giving special privileges to the Roman Catholics in Separate schools, but also for truckling to them in other schools — a lot was made of the exclusion of "Marmion" from these schools because (it was alleged) of passages in it offensive to Roman Catholics. At the same time, Mowat's Presbyterian support never wavered, and he used that as a defence to the charge of truckling to Roman Catholics—for instance. Principal Caven, of Knox College, was staunch in his support, as were the two Blakes, who, though Anglicans, were regarded as leaders of Protestantism.

Sir James Whitney, on becoming Conservative leader, dropped the anti-papist attitude of his predecessors and there is little doubt that at each provincial election he receives a large measure of Roman Catholic support. The Baptists and Congregationalists of Ontario, while almost unanimously Liberal, are so rather by reason of their general outlook on life and doctrine than by reason of any historic association, although it is true that the Hon. Alexander Mackenzie was a Baptist. In the maritime provinces, however, for various reasons, a very large proportion of Baptists are Conservatives.

Aged.

"Why, look here," said the merchant who was in need of a boy, "aren't you the same boy who was in here a week ago?"

"Yes, sir," said the applicant.

"I thought so. And didn't I tell you then that I wanted an older boy?"

"Yes, sir. That's why I'm back; I'm older now."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

(Copyright, 1914, by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D. D.)

Greatness Through Service. Mark x:32-45.

Golden Text—The son of man also came not to be ministered unto, but to minister and to give life a ransom for many. Mark v:45.

1. Verse 32—May we or may we not arrive at a condition in this life where no revelation or realization of any present or future event will be able to "amaze" or make us 'afraid'? Why?

2. Did Jesus know from the beginning of his rejection by the Jews; also why did he not refer to his passion until the last year of his ministry

3. Verses 33-34 —How did Jesus know at this time, in advance, so precisely what the chief priests and the scribes were going to do him

4. Did Jesus plan to have them reject and crucify him, or did he do his best to persuade them to accept him? Give your reasons.

5. Verse 35—Why is it that really good people sometimes manifest a spirit of selfishness in their prayers?

6. Among what class of present day Christians would you place Jesus and John at that time?

7. Verses 36-37—Is there any danger that God will ever answer a prayer that would be hurtful, if it were prayed by a good man? Why

8. How may we be saved from praying foolish prayers?

9. Verse 38—Why was their prayer impossible of being answered?

10. Verse 39 — What did Jesus mean by drinking of the cup as he did, and being baptised with his baptism?

11. Would you say or not and why, that suffering is just as certain to-day as in that day, if we would be true followers of Jesus?

12. Verse 41—Were the ten blameworthy or not, and why, for being so much displeased with James and John?

14. How could the ten, and how may we, be proof against manifesting improper anger?

15. Verses 42-44—Has a bishop, or a popular pastor of a large city church, or an extensive employer of labour, any right to feel that he is a superior being to the humblest good man in the community? Give your reasons for your answer.

16. What is the true sign of greatness according to Jesus?

17. Why is it impossible to be a Christian if we are not rendering loving service to our fellows?

18. Verse 445—What would you say is the chief characteristic of Jesus and why?

Sets Out For Farthest Post

MONTREAL, July 8.—It is a long trip from Montreal to Labrador, which the Hudson's Bay Company's boat, Nascopie, commenced at 9.30 this morning, carrying a large and varied cargo for the Company's trading posts in that remote region. It is the annual trip, only one of which can be made every year, owing to the difficulties of navigation, and the Nascopie, a boat of 1,000 tons, specially constructed for the ice which prevails most of the year in the Hudson Bay, carries, in addition to a cargo of about 2,500 tons, forty-two people, including the Captain, J. Meickle, several of the Hudson's Bay Company's employees, a lady passenger, Miss Anderson, bound for Davis Inlet, and the crew.

Miss Anderson, who has previously visited Hudson Bay, is on this occasion, leaving to be married to Mr. R. J. Handford, Manager of the Hudson's Bay Company's post at Davis Inlet, Labrador. Last year Capt. Meickle made the same trip for the company. He will sail by way of the Straits of Belle Isle, calling at Port Burwell, Fort Churchill and also at other points in James' Bay, returning to St. John's Newfoundland, at the latter end of September with a cargo of furs.

Last year, he said, they brought back a large and valuable consignment of furs, and on that occasion, the Hudson Bay Straits were only open for about six weeks. They met with ice half way up the Straits and, returning, also met with heavy ice. The region, he said, is mostly inhabited by Polar bears and Esquimos.

Among the cargo carried by the Nascopie are about a hundred canoes, all of which are consigned to different Hudson Bay posts. During the winter the Nascopie is engaged in the sealing industry, being one of the Newfoundland fleet and another vessel belonging to this fleet is the Belamentine, which has been purchased by the government for service in the Hudson Bay.

LADY ALARMED BY ACTIONS OF STRANGE MAN

Lady residents living in the north-eastern section of the town were alarmed yesterday afternoon when they noticed an ill-kept man walking up and down the streets and apparently interceding with children and coaxing them to go along with him.

Becoming somewhat alarmed one of the ladies 'phoned Chief Short, and acquainted him of the presence of the man, and the Chief immediately mounted his wheel and proceeded to investigate. He discovered that nothing serious resulted from the man's apparently harmless wanderings about the ward in search of a house, as the stranger claimed.

It is learned that at one house he walked in and proceeded to examine the interior without even going through the customary ceremony of ringing the door bell, or otherwise announcing his presence. And it was little wonder that the lady of the house became frightened on beholding a stranger of uncouth appearance in her place of abode. The explanation given by the wayfarer was that he had seen the house advertised for sale by an agency bureau, and he thought he would like to look through the house. The landlady, however, informed the stranger that the house was not for sale, and she was not aware that it was in the hands of any agency.

If this particular individual further intereferes in the smooth running of the domestic wheels, Chief Short should be immediately communicated with.—Lindsay Warder.

CANOEISTS MET WITH A MISHAP

A canoeing party passing through here on Tuesday soon of last week met with a mishap on leaving the town, by which they lost their camping supplies. When taking their craft to portage by Ranney Falls it slipped from their grasp and went over the falls, and though the boat was none the worse they were forced to buy new supplies here.

The party consisted of Mr. Gordon Graham, of Lakefield, and two Peterborough boys, J. F. Davidson and Donald Cameron, who are making a 1,000-mile trip by canoe to New York city. They were observed having passed through Belleville, and intend going down the St. Lawrence to Sorel, down the Richelieu river to Lake Champlain and on down the Hudson river, then to New York. They are equipped with a complete camping outfit, in a seventeen-foot canoe.—Campbellford Herald.

Expect 15,000 Visitors In Lindsay Monday

(Lindsay Post.)

Arrangements have been practically completed for the Twelfth of July celebration in Lindsay next Monday. The energetic committee having the arrangements in hand, has been working overtime and the demonstration promises to attract an immense crowd to the town.

The Ladies' Auxiliary Board of the Ross Memorial Hospital will supply meals in the Council Chamber.

Other charities will have special arrangements, and meals will be served at the Queen Street Methodist church, and the Salvation Army barracks. Extra stable accommodation will be made, so that the crowd that come in will have their meals or be able to leave their horses in places of safety.

The brethren in Lindsay will attend divine service at Queen street church next Sunday morning, when a sermon will be preached by Rev. Mr. McMullen.

It is expected that over 15,000 visitors will be in town on Monday, as invitations have been extended to lodges in Haliburton, Durham, Northumberland, Hastings, Peterborough, Ontario, Simcoe and York Counties, and also to lodges in the City of Toronto.

THE C. P. R. AND THE EMPRESS DISASTER

As the enquiry into the cause and particulars of the Empress of Ireland disaster is now practically over, the proper time seems to have come, no matter which of the parties may be found in fault, to recognise and pay public tribute to the splendid work done by the C.P.R. officials with the financial backing of their Company, in relieving the distress of the survivors of the terrible calamity and in supplying them with every conceivable requisite for their comfort, and for facilitating their return to their homes or their original destinations. In fact, the Company and its officials did everything in their power or that money could do to lighten the blow to those who escaped from the awful fate of their less fortunate companions. They were not only supplied at the Company's expense with everything they needed in the way of clothing, valises, trunks, etc., but they were also furnished with transportation to any point they desired, either by steamer or rail, together with the best hotel accommodation on their routes.

We have had occasion to meet many of the survivors during their stay in Quebec, and they were all loud in praise of the Company and its officials for the kindly and courteous attention paid to them, for their boundless sympathy and for their tireless efforts to do everything to comfort and help them in their sad predicament.

Of Captain Walsh, the Company's efficient and popular Marine Superintendent who had special charge of this good Samaritan work, they could not speak too highly. He acted towards them as if they were members of his own family in distress, going from one to the other, and personally seeing whether they had been passengers or members of the crew, that they had everything they wanted and were well looked after. And almost every citizen of Quebec can vouch for that sympathy and respect shown by the Company and its officials to the memory of the dead and the harrowed feelings of their relatives and friends in the imposing funerals bestowed upon the victtims of the disaster who received burial in our midst.

Altogether it may be justly said that the C.P.R. did nobly in the great emergency which tried so many souls at home and abroad. The question of its own heavy loss and its own heavy expense was never considered. It is all very well to say that the C.P.R. is a big and wealthy company, and could afford to do things of that nature, but the big companies do not always do them as a rule, and when they are done, it is only right that they should be acknowledged and full credit given for them where it is due. But this is only one of the instances of this company's big-heartedness and sympathy with misfortune These are hundreds of cases of distress and acts of great charity which the Company has performed, and which have never been allowed to come to light.—From the Quebec Daily Telegraph.

STEAMSHIP OWNER WILL HAVE TO PAY

Examiner Special:

TORONTO, July 10.—The Provincial License Department has swooped down on the Canada Steamship Company, and the result is that that corporation will have to make its annual visit to the police court on a charge of selling liquor on its fleet of steamers without a license. This covers seven boats running out of Toronto, four on the Niagara Division, and three on the R. & O. Line. The summonses, which were sworn out to-day by Chief Inspector Barrows, are returnable on Monday before Magistrate Denison. If, as in former years, the company pleads guilty, it will hand over probably $1,400 in cash to pay the fines. The commander of each boat being fined $200 for unlicensed privilege. This fining of the navigation people for liquor selling is an annual affair.

No Place for Ladies.

A famous foreign newspaper correspondent, a German, was stopping at a seaside hotel where the dining-room helpers, following the New England custom, were nearly all college girls, working during vacation in order to keep themseves at school the rest of the year.

The spectacled young person who presided over the table where the German newspaper man ate was indoubtedly of excellent breeding, but she never seemed able to remember whether the eggs were to be fried on one side or scrambled on both.

Finally, one evening, after he had been served with a meal entirely different from the one he had ordered, the foreigner lost his temper and spoke rather sharply to the young woman.

"Easy there," admonished his table mate, an American writer. "She's a lady, you know, old man."

"But I do not vant a lady," said the German plaintively. "I vant a vaiter!"

Will Appeal To The Premier

Examiner Special:

TORONTO, July 10.—After a long discussion the Canadian Press Association to-day decided to appeal to Premier Borden against Postmaster-General Pelletier's order raising the newspaper postage rates.

"Y" Boys Have Exciting Time Helping To Break a Log Jam

Took Trip to Eel's Creek and Spent an Enjoyable Time—Ran the Rapids in Rivermen's Punt.

VISITED COOKERY

Tuesday was red-letter day for the boys of Y-Camp '14; a day full of interest and excitement, and one long to be remembered.

Sharp at 9.30 the "Comet," with the war canoe and two skiffs in tow, left Sandy Point, loaded with boys bound for Eel's Creek. The sail was made through the winding, narrow channels of Boschink, and Grubb's Island reached at eleven fifteen.

A boom lay stretched across the mouth of the creek and was fast filling up with logs. The yacht was tied to the boom while the war canoe and skiffs passed over and on top of the landing on the point. By following the path the boys reached the shore opposite the first falls, where dinner was served. The lads ate heartily but were much interested in seeing the logs tumbling over the falls, under the guidance of some river drivers who tripped lightly over the rolling, slippery logs, as they travelled round and round the eddy.

After lunch the boys made their way to the 2nd falls, where the tail end of a drive of 125,000 logs was passing over. Shortly after they arrived a jam formed and soon the logs were piled high, blocking the water back almost to the 3rd falls. At this point a coffer dam had been built in the early spring to speed the timber on its way over the rapids. The boys were fortunate in arriving here just as the river men were preparing to run the pants over the rapids. Several of the boys jumped aboard as the last of the logs passed out from shore and, ducking their heads as they passed the coffer dam, they made the descent in a few seconds.

When falls number two were reached the boys had their pictures taken on top of the jam of logs. Soon the river drivers attacked the jam. With one dextrous pry with his peeve one of the men moved a huge log which held the others and away went the whole mass tumbling over the rocks Several smaller jams occurred and the boys considered it great sport to man the peeves and pike poles. When Reuben Head and his band of stalwarts got after the logs something had to move.

The chief incident of the whole day occurred at this point, namely, the shooting of the falls in the big punt There were not so many applications for positions in the boat as at the former "shoot" but Mr. Galley decided to brave the dangers of the rapid and with him went Devins and Thorndyke. Mr. Galley went into the sport with great zest, for it reminded him of his boyhood days when he use to shoot the dams with the river drivers in Peterborough. The boys showed great pluck, for just a few minutes before two skilled river men made the same passage in a smaller punt and were swamped at the foot of the falls, their boat turning over several times, which provided much amusement for the visitors.

Slowly the long boat was swung out from the shore, Mr. Galley in the centre balancing himself with a long pike pole. Below the falls the bulk of the party awaited in breathless excitement for the "passing of the Styx." Seated in the stern was an experienced river driver with paddle in hand ready to steer the craft on its perilous trip. As the bow swung about it caught on two projecting logs; Mr. Galley turned turtle and was precipitated into the rushing waters. The stunt was done so slowly, and so deliberately, (to everyone except Mr. Galley) that a mighty roar of applause rent the air as he was pulled back into the "ship."

Once more the navigators assumed their positions and this time the huge craft with its quartette, shot over the falls. Cheer after cheer resounded from the short as they reached their mooring below the falls.

A swim was the next thing on the programme.

During the afternoon several of the boys visited the "cookery," where they sampled the raisin pies.

Mention should be made of the kindly way in which the boys were treated by the men on the drive. Foreman Windsor did everything possible to give the boys a good time. One of the men, Mr. Johnston, was very attentive. He transferred the boats to the outside of the boom out of the way of the oncoming logs and showed the way to an excellent spring.

At 3.30 the return journey commenced. A stop was made at Juniper, and camp was reached at five thirty.

Thus ended one of the best days of this year's camp.

A CENTRAL LABOUR EXCHANGE

Examiner Special:

TORONTO, July 10.—The appointment of a special sub-committee of the City Council to confer with the Provincial Government on the unemployment problem with the object if possible of having a Central Labour exchange for the entire province so that men out of work in one trade in Toronto may find jobs in some other jobs in some other place and other place and vice-versa, was recommended by the Board of Control to-day.

A desirable thing to know is how best to sweeten the bitters of life with mirth.

SPECIAL SERVICES AT GEORGE STREET

The services at the George Street Church on Sunday will be appropriate with the occasion of the 12th of July. In the morning, the Rev. R. G. Poever will preach, taking for his subject "What is Protestantism?" In the evening, he and the Rev. H. J. Keith will exchange pulpits. All who know these two pastors will likely be anxious to hear the two splendid sermons at the George Street Church.

Italian Claims $200 Damages

But Utilities Commission Breathes Freely as Liability is on shoulders of Liability Company

The Utilities Commission is beginning to experience already the relief of having the responsibility for all accidents and injuries to employees in their service, resting upon the shoulders of another organization altogether. It is not very long since the Commission entered into an agreement with the Employers' Liability Corporation, to have the latter Company assume the responsibility for all injuries to employees injured while doing the work of the Commission.

A short time ago Victor Calo, an Italian, had his collar bone broken when a water trench caved in on him, in the south end of the City. He was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital and was treated by Dr. Amys. He is now claiming the sum of $200 and $44 expenses. While the Company claim there is no liability, they offer to settle to the extent of $50. But whether the man deserves $200 or nothing the Commission may breathe freely, for the liability is with the above-mentioned Company. It was only yesterday that Calo came out of the Hospital and it is said that he will not be able to resume work for a month.

MILLINER SETS CAP AND WINS RICH MAN

SUNBURY, Pa., July 9.—To become the bride of a man she never saw, Miss Mary McCormick, 18 years old, of Point township, Northumberland County, left recently for a 3,000 mile trip to Portland, Ore., where she will wed John O'Donnell, a well-to-do apple grower.

More than a year ago the young woman, then employed in a Northumberland cap factory, just for fun placed her name and address under the band of a cap. O'Donnell got it, and wrote her a letter. She did not answer it.

Persistent wooer that he was, he sent his photograph next time, and Miss McCormick took up the correspondence, which resulted in a proposal, with Uncle Sam as Cupid's messenger.

Miss McCormick declared to-day that she had not accepted him until he had assured her he did not drink and went to church. She was not afraid, nor was she doubtful of her future happiness, for, she said, "No man could treat a woman badly who writes letters like John does."

SOME THINGS AND A FEW OTHERS

The police have a real job on their hands.

A locked door may keep out cool breezes, but—safety first.

The city editor remarked that he had an ear frost-bitten this morning.

And that assertion is on a par with Capt. Lewis' story of what elongated Edward.

The pussy-footed prowlers were nicely active. You have to hand it to them on that score.

The burglar alarms will be switched on to-night and there will be no one to disturb them.

By the way, where was the bicycle squad?

If the burglars had only entered the zone populated with night police they might have been caught.

Remember the first week in July, 1911, and thank the celestial fires for their caloric temperance.

And the probs say decidedly warm to-morrow. That must mean cooler than to-day's weather.

The boys and girls and the old folks, too, have had a great week's fun at the Fair grounds.

We should worry about the girl who dives, but for the present week we do.

Talking of 15 cent shaves, where's that safety razor we had last winter?

When the Sanitary Inspector enforces the regulations for slaughterhouses left by Dr. Clinton, there will be big changes in most of the premises.

DOCTORS ON CARPET

TORONTO, July 6. — Sir James Grant of Ottawa moved a resolution at this afternoon's session of the Ontario Medical Council of the College of Physicians and Surgeons which may have an important effect on the work of physicians in Ontario. Sir James pointed out the statement of Sir Wm. Osler at Leeds that ninety per cent. of humanity carried the tubercular germ. He recommended that physicians include in their duties the delivering of short lectures in schools and churches to children, describing the evils of alcohol and the dangers of the tubercular germs and showing them how to avoid it. Cleanliness was next to Godliness, said Sir James. The circulation of brief printed statements would also help to draw the attention of the young generation the evils of alcohol and the dangers of unsanitary conditions. The motion was seconded by Dr. T. W. H. Young and carried unanimously.

PHYSICIANS ACCUSED.

Dr. Arthur Jukes Johnson reported that complaints had been registered against Dr. C. W. Walker, who conducts the Ontario Medical Institute; Dr. Turofsky of Spadina Avenue, and Dr. A. D. MacArthur of Blackstock.

Dr. Johnston did not think that the cases cited should be dealt with by his committee and on his recommendation they were sent on to the executive. The complaint against Dr. Walker is that he employs persons for purposes for which they are not qualified.

The report of the finance committee showed a balance of $6,000.

ALGONQUIN PARK.

The attractions that are found in the Algonquin Provincial (Ont.) Park, situated 200 miles north of Toronto and 175 miles west of Ottawa, should appeal to Canadians who desire to summer-out in a district where health and pleasure abound.

Algonquin Park is 2,000 feet above the sea level, has the best fishing in Ontario, including small-mouthed black bass, salmon trout, lake trout, and speckled trout.

The "Highland Inn" accommodates 180 people and is situated on one of the most beautiful lakes in the Park. If a more restful place is desired "Nominigan Camp," situated on Smoke Lake, 7 miles from the railway, is available, of "Camp Minnesing" on beautiful Island Lake, 10 miles from the railway.

These camps are built of cedar logs, accommodate 60 people each, and offer unrivalled attractions in the way of fishing.

Those who require rest and city comforts in the wilderness are also recommended to these camps.

Get a copy of the Algonquin Park folder issued by the Grand Trunk and see the nearest Grand Trunk Agent and make your reservation for the summer, or write C. E. Horning, District Passenger Agent, Toronto, Ont.

ENJOYABLE LAWN SOCIAL AT ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH

A Very Pleasant Function Last Evening in South Peterborough

A summer's evening, tempered with a gentle breeze, was sufficiently ideal for the very pleasant function which had its locale last evening on the grounds surrounding St. George's Anglican church on Braidwood Avenue, South Peterborough.

The occasion was the annual lawn social or garden party—call it what ye may—held in connection with this young, vigorous growing church. Notwithstanding counter-attractions some one hundred and fifty people were present. There were stalls or booths for the sale of fancy work, and other work of a more utilitarian nature: for the dispensing of ice creams, soft drinks, etc.; for the sale of cakes, candies, fruits and so on, and of course must not be omitted the fish-pond.

The grounds had been very tastefully and prettily decorated with flags and coloured electric lights. Many of the members of St. John's church, who are in sympathy with the work done by the daughter of the Mother church, were present.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., was to have presided and make an opening speech, but as he was unavoidably and unexpectedly called out of town, Canon Davidson, rector of St. John's, supplied his place. In a short speech he eulogised St. George's church and people and rector, the Rev. Jas. Price. Mayor Buller then followed, declaring the bazaar opened.

Mr. E. A. Peck proposed a vote of thanks to the President and the Mayor.

Mr. F. D. Kerr, always a good friend to St. George's, then made a capital speech, brimming over with humour, in which he seconded the vote of thanks which, he averred, should include all who assisted in selling and all who had come to assist by purchasing. Mr. Price then followed with a few facetious observations which put every one at ease and in good temper.

The band of the 57th Regiment, under the conductorship of Lieut. Gliddon, was present and enlivened the proceedings materially by the good music presented. Mr. Minnecolo also sang a solo.

Here it must be mentioned that the members of the band most generously offered their services to this function gratuitously as a mark of their appreciation of the useful work being done in South Peterborough in connection with the Anglican church in that district.

The following ladies took an active part in the proceedings:

Fancy and work stall—Mrs. Price, Mrs. J. Holmes.

Tea Room—Miss Mills and assistants.

Ice cream booth—Mrs. Cooper and Miss Smith.

Fruit etc., stall—Misses Jabb, Wilson, Sheward, Lesurf, Mills.

Mr. Albert Pitchford and assistants looked after the fish pond, where many anglers threw their hooks in faith without the faintest conception of what species they might be likely to land.

Altogether a very pleasant evening was passed, each and all expressing themselves as thoroughly pleased with the entertainment provided.

The Peterborough Street Railway authorities generously provided special street cars, back and forth, free of any charge, for the conveyance of the members of the band and their instruments.

First Meeting Of Salvation Army 49 Years Ago This Month

Forty-nine years ago this month the world's first meeting of the Salvation Army was held. It took place in an old patched tent erected in an ancient burial ground in the Whitechapel district of London. The first preacher was William Booth, a clergyman who was at that time without a church. He had been called upon to take the place of the regular minister, who was lying ill at his home. The first congregation was made up of a "mass of poor people, many of them evidently without God, or hope in the world." After the meeting Booth hurried to his home and exclaimed to his wife: "Kate, I have found my destiny! As I passed by the doors of the flaming gin palaces to-night, I seemed to hear a voice sounding in my ears: 'Where can you find such heathens as these and where is there so great need for your labours?' And there and then in my soul I offered myself and you and our children up to this great work." This was the beginning of a world-wide organization. From that day meetings were held regularly. On the third Sunday the tent blew down and was wrecked beyond repair. Having no money for another and without funds to rent a building, Booth preached in the open air. Finally he secured the use of an old dance hall that was not in use on Sundays. Week-day meetings were held in a dilapidated shed, formerly a storehouse for old rags. As the army grew it was forced into the streets; narrow alleys, abandoned saloons or unoccupied theatres became Salvation Army chapels.

As It Is Now.

To-day the Salvation Army is the greatest evangelistic organization in the world. The poke-bonneted army lassie is a familiar sight in every country on earth with the single exception of Russia. They are "waging God's battle" even in Iceland. They have laid siege to Russia and it is reported that even that empire is on the point of capitulation. Their battle cry is heard in every commonwealth in the United States; more than 900 "outposts" or missions are located in nearly every city and town. In these meeting places more than 10,000,000 Americans gather during a year's time to listen to the exhortations of nearly 7,000 officers, of both sexes, that make up the Salvation Army in the United States. The street corner meeting is a familiar sight in every part of the world. More than 150,000 of these are held every year in this country at which over 50,000 recruits have been gathered in a twelve-month to the army's ranks from the congregations. "Our war is a war of mercy," they proclaim, and it is witnessed by the world-wide charity of the organization. It has established in the United States nearly 100 workingmen's hotels which accommodate annually more than 2,000,000 persons; over 120 industrial homes where about 3,000,000 meals have been served in a year; about 30 rescue and maternity homes where 6,600 girls and children find shelter.

ORANGE DEMONSTRATION LINDSAY

In order to take care of the large crowds that will be attending the above celebration, the Grand Trunk Railway system have arranged for the following special trains to leave Peterborough Monday morning, July 13th: 7.50 a.m., 9 a.m., and 9.50 a.m.

In addition to the three special trains there will be two morning regular trains leaving Peterborough at 7.10 and 8.20 a.m., on which the excursion tickets will be valid.

Returning special trains will leave Lindsay at 4.20, 4.40 and 6.45 p.m., respectively, and the regular trains will leave at 8.15 and 9.32 p.m. Tickets are on sale at the City Ticket Offices from now on, and the fare is 80 cents return. Tickets can be secured at the Lodge room Monday morning. 2d-8

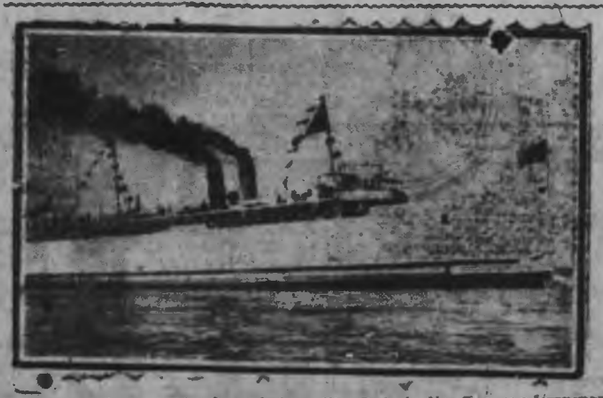
Two Little Boys And A Little Green Car

A chubby little chap of two or three years had lost a dirty old cord ball in the long grass that fringed the sidewalk. His short, brown curls were almost hidden as he carefully looked and felt for his treasure. So intent was he in his search that he scarcely noticed the approach of a pedalled automobile. When it was about thirty feet distant he glanced up. Immediately his expression became immobile and fixed as he beheld the wonder car draw near. It had a long, green, rakish body, and on the radiator hood was a Union Jack that flapped jauntily. Behind the miniature steering wheel was a boy of about four or five seated as easily as if a small motor supplied the motive power. But, hidden in the body of the miniature automobile a pair of youthful feet propelled the dainty machine with but little exertion. It was a "big little wonder car" for boys, a regular 15 model Mercedes, the smartest, the largest, and the fastest that a few small boys receive. And the youngster at the wheel rolled along on his rubber tires oblivious of the other little chap bespoke parental his head as the vision sped by. The youthful driver's hair showed the results of careful brushing, his clothes were light, but they had not been picked from a bargain counter. The boy and his green car breathed money and home attentions. The other little chap bespoke parental love, but very ordinary parental finances. When the little green car was several houses down the street the little chap suddenly sprang to life as if something had whisked him on to the sidewalk and started his pudgy little legs skipping after the wonder car. Probably he feared to lose sight of it, or may be just wanted to touch and feel it, to make sure it was real. But the little three-year-old chap and his bare feet were too slow. The green car drew farther away. Little Bertie unconsciously slowed to a walk. Just then the car turned the corner into Alfred street, and in a moment was lost to view. The little chap held his gaze in that direction for a moment, gently and aimlessly punched his cheek several times with a fat finger—then his sister called him. He toddled slowly home, his reverie, if such it was, still unbroken, and the old cord ball forgotten. Probably it is still somewhere in the fringe of unkempt grass along the sidewalk.



Largest Car Ferry on the Great Lakes—The Ontario No. 2, a car ferry now in course of construction in Toronto shipyards, will, when completed, have the distinction of being the largest vessel on the Lake. It will be 348 feet in length, 54 feet moulded breadth. She has room for 28 cars on four tracks. The upper decks are for passenger accommodation, of which she will carry 1,000. She will likely be launched before the fall season.

The Cressman Co's Annual Outing Held Yesterday

Str. Geneva Carried Employees to Gore's Landing—Baseball Match and Races at Highland Park

THE BEST YET

The seventh annual outing of the employees of the A. W. Cressman Co. was held yesterday to Gore's Landing on the steamer Geneva, and as in past years proved an enjoyable and successful event. The harmonious feeling existing between employer and employed, that as a striking characteristic of this store, was much in evidence yesterday. Consequently the best of good times prevailed, and throughout the day the eighty or more on board were in the happiest frame of mind. Before leaving the new government wharf yesterday morning a photograph of the picnickers was taken. An orchestra accompanied the party and an abundance of good music was provided.

The trip down the winding Otonabee with its wealth of beautiful scenery, was much enjoyed, and the cool breezes on the trip across the lake to Gore's Landing, served to sharpen appetites for dinner. On arrival at the above resort little time was lost in preparing the tables, which soon were laden with choice and palatable viands. Before commencing luncheon Master Storey presented Mrs. A. W. Cressman with a lovely bouquet.

AT HIGHLAND PARK

After dinner the steamer was again boarded for a cruise around the lake, and on returning up the river a stop was made at Highland Park, where the sports were run off. A baseball match between "A.W.'s" team and "Fred's" team was an amusing feature of the day, the former winning by the score of 2-3.

Mr. Max Schlueter again displayed his versatility by carrying off the prize in the needle race.

The events were as follows:

1. Sack Race—C. McBride.
2. Peanut Race—Miss Sheppard.
3. Needle Race—"Germany" Schlueter, and Miss Long.
4. Biscuit Race—Edith Bailey.
5. Boot and Shoe Race—G. Emery.
6. Henderson's Challenge Race—V. Raynar.
7. Girls' Race—Edith Price.
8. Boys' Race—Gordon Manning.
9. Children's Race—1st, Hedley Vicars, 2nd, Maglie Vicars, 3rd, David Grant.
10. Boys' Race—Stanley O'Brien.

After the races the start was made for home, tea being served on board. The trip up the river was enlivened by song and story, and when the wharf was reached at ten o'clock all had agreed that the outing of 1914 was the best yet. Hearty cheers were given for the Messrs. Cressman and Mrs. Cressman, and the National Anthem was sung.

THE WEATHER

Decidedly warm conditions prevail at the present time all over Ontario, and no cool weather is yet in sight. To-day at noon the thermometer was up to 80 degrees, a trifle warmer than yesterday.

POISON PEN SHOWS PERIL LURKING IN EVIDENCE OF CIRCUMSTANTIAL NATURE

LONDON, July 9.—A poison-pen case has just startled England into a realization of the untrustworthiness of circumstantial evidence and of handwriting evidence. From April 28 to May 9, anonymous and malicious letetrs fairly rained into a house at Brunswick Place, Hove. The occupants were Col. Gardiner, an elderly army man living alone, and his tenant, Mrs. Woodward, who occupied the ground floor.

Girl Advised to Leave.

Col. Charles Henry Gardiner, retired, a well-preserved man of 70, has lived in Hove for several years. He is highly respected, and the author of several books. Mrs. Woodward is living apart from her husband with her little daugther. The only other person in the house, except the servants, was Miss Kathleen O'Brien, the child's governess.

Miss O'Brien is a pretty girl of 22 with blue eyes and yellow hair. The daughter of a naval officer who died 16 years ago, she lived until recently with her widowed mother at Plymouth. There Mrs. Woodward met and engaged the gentle-mannered girl. Some weeks later Miss O'Brien became ill and went home to recuperate, returning in March.

Two weeks later the anonymous letters began to arrive. Their character prevents publication. Libellous and salacious, they grew threatening. The first, addressed to the unhappy girl, read:

"Miss O'Brien had better be advised to leave Brighton. Notice of her character, thieving, drunkenness, and other vilenesses has been sent to her friends in Brighton and Hove."

That fact focussed the suspicions of the police on Colonel Gardiner. Investigation indicated that several circumstances pointed to his guilt. The colonel exhibited a fixed antipathy towards Miss O'Brien. On the advice of post office inspectors Miss O'Brien wrote the suspected man a trap letter:

"Col. Gardiner,—Sir, surely Miss O'Brien is not living in your house. Should not Mrs. Woodward be informed she is a demi-mondaine."

That letter, posted in the presence of a detective inspector, was answered within six hours by a communication which referred to Miss O'Brien as a demi-mondaine. On a warrant sworn by the governess, Col. Gardiner was taken into custody, charged with maliciously publishing a defamatory libel.

The colonel vehemently protested the proceedings as a nefarious plot.

Jekyll and Hyde Story.

Circumstantial evidence and handwriting evedence were against him. The Hove police court sat for three sessions taking testimny. Miss O'Brien, in the witness box, was self-possessed and lucid, obviously unwilling to prosecute, only anxious to defend her character. Mrs. Woodward was frank and convincing. No doubt remained of the prisoner's guilt.

Col. Gardiner came into court for sentence. Instead, he heard such a Jekyll and Hyde story as modern science cannot explain.

The prosecutor rose to express deepest regret that he should have been instrumental in persecuting an honourable man.

"I hold in my hand," acknowledged the solicitor, "a letter similar in character to the poison-pen letters in this case. Yet the letter I hold was written, gentlemen, by Miss Kath- written gentlemen, by Miss Kathleen O'Brien to herself. I call upon Dr. Nethersole Fletcher to testify."

"Tis unfortunate girl was my patient for some months," declared the alienist. "While in my care she wrote defamatory letters about herself. Her state of mind is such that she would not be conscious of doing wrong in writing such letters. It is case of dual personality, of hysteria, and self-persecution, of cunning only described as demonideal. The victim is an invalid, not a criminal."

But what of circumstantial evidence?

THE SNAKE WAS STRETCHED BUT THIS STORY ISN'T

"Edward the Great," the gigantic serpent, which has been one of the centres of attraction at the Washburn Carnival, has an interesting history, according to Capt. Stanley Lewis, the publicity manager of the organization. It seems that "Edward" was originally a Texas "bull snake," a species possessing unusual intelligence and a length of some 3 or 4 feet, but considerably thicker than the average snake. This one in particular was especially affectionate toward his trainer, Miss Marguerite Still, (who exhibits and lectures on him), and would follow Miss Still about the show grounds like a pet dog.

The Carnival train was making a "night run" from Harrisburg, Pa., to Olean, N.Y., last spring, several heavy grades in the Alleghany Mountains, necessitating the use of two engines. About 2 a.m. "Edward" in his box in one of the forward cars of the train, became lonesome, and forcing the cover off his prison by main strength, started crawling back over the train in search of Miss Still, who was soundly slumbering in the rear Pullman.

Over flats and box cars, through the aisles of sleeping cars, whose drowsy occupants made no note of his passage, "Edward" wriggled his sinuous way till he reached the space dividing the rear Pullman from the one preceding it. Then, as his head was on one platform and his tail on the other, the "double-header" gave a sudden jerk, and the coupling parted directly under the snake.

Mark, you, now, the sagacity of "Edward" Realizing in his reptilian mind that the rear car would roll backward down the grade to the destruction of itself and occupants, (including his well-loved trainer), the serpent promptly wound his head about one brake-staff and his tail about the other, and by sheer tensile strength, held the Pullman to the rest of the train till the grade was surmounted and a brakeman arrived to release "Edward" from his predicament.

We have stated that he was only three or four feet long. It was discovered on his release that the terrific strain had stretched "Edward" to a length of over 30 feet, and he still retains the proud position of the "largest snake in the world."

The above veracious tale is vouched for by Captain Lewis, who showed us, as evidence, not only the 30 foot snake, but the box from which he escaped.

He Had Been Looking.

"Mother," said Bobby, after a full week of obedience, "have I been a good boy lately?"

"Yes, dear," replied his mother. "A very, very good boy."

"And do you trust me?" he continued.

"Why, of course, mother trusts her little boy!" she answered.

But the chastened child was not pacified. "I mean really, really trust me, you know," he explained.

"Yes, I really, really trust you," nodde his mother. "Why do you ask?"

"Just because," said Bobby, diving his hands into his pockets and looking her in the face. "If you trust me like you say you do, why do you go on hiding the jam?"

One Continuous Round Of Pleasure For The "Y" Boys

The boys are having the time of their lives at Sandy Point. Clear lake. The cottagers along the shore have been particularly kind in adding to the pleasures of the lads.

Saturday night the boys were treated to a sail around the lake in Mr. Robb's yacht, "Comet". As they passed the lsands of their friends they made the rocks re-echo with their camp yell:

"Hobble gobble,
Hobble gobble,
Zis, boom, bah,
Y-camp, Y-camp,
Bah, rah, rah".

As soon as camp was reached, on the return the large bon-fire on the point was surrounded by the boys, and, as it burned, camp songs were rolled off.

Sunday the boys attended Church at Juniper Island pavilion, having been towed there by Mr. Stock's launch, "Hiawatha."

In the evening, by invitation of Mr. Ivor Brock, they attended a song service held at his bungalow. The special feature of the occasion was the singing of Miss Pearl Brock, and Miss Neill.

Monday evening the boys had a corn roast, and retired early, to be in readiness for the trip to Eel's Creek on Tuesday, where they paid such a large time that the particulars require a separate article.

On Friday afternoon they strike camp, and will make the trip to Peterborough on the steamer "Manita," which will end "Camp '14," one of the most successful in the history of the Association.

HOUSES IN DIFFERENT PARTS OF THE CITY WERE ROBBED

Saw the Burglar.

By entering the home of Mr. Richard Sheehy, 269 Rubidge Street, at 4 o'clock, this morning, by a side window, and opening a side door, to ensure a safe means of escape, in case he was disturbed, another visitor laid effective plans for a robbery which to him was very successful, he securing possession of two valuable gold watches and a fob. It would appear that money was the chief objective that the marauders of last night had in view, discarded clothes being the only remaining traces of visits that had been paid to local residences. Before proceding upstairs, the pockets of some coats which were hanging downstairs, were very effectively searched and discarded, there being no booty of a valuable nature found in the personal apparel. In the upper portion of Mr. Sheehy's residence, however, the intruder met with considerable success. It would appear that after going into a room in which two of Mr. Sheehy's sons were sleeping, and politely lifting two gold watches, one of which was the more valuable on account of it being a present, the burglar passed into the room in which Mrs. Sheehy was sleeping. Here, also, a thorough search was conducted during which operations Mrs. Sheehy awoke, and, hearing noises, and seeing a figure in the room, asked if it was her son. There was no reply, and Mrs. Sheehy noticed a form disappearing along the side of the wall and immediately aroused her husband, who jumped out of bed in his night attire, promptly proceeded downstairs, and out of the front door, to cut off his unknown visitor should he attempt to make an exit by the front door. This, however, he was far too wary to do, and made a bee line through the back yard, scaling fences, etc., until (as was shown by circumstances, which afterwards presented themselves) he reached Park Street. The circumstances referred to is that Mr. Sheehy afterwards discovered a pair of trousers and a shirt, which belonged to him, on Park Street. In the pockets of the trousers was a plan which Mr. Sheehy had prepared, and it is conjectuured that the burglars thought by the feel of the paper, in the semi-darkness, that it was paper money. Emphasis is lent to the theory that two men were operating at this particular junction, by the fact that when the intruder made a hurried exit over fences, he had nothing in his hands, and, as stated, clothes were afterwards found in another vicinity.

Missed $82.

Had Mrs. Sheehy not awakened at the time she did there is no doubt that the visitor would have appropriated the sum of $82, which was in a pocket of some trousers, lieing only an arm's length from the place in which he was operating at the time he was disturbed.

As in other instances, clothing was found on the stairs and in the hall of the residence. The Police were notified directly after the affair had taken place. Mr. Sheehy is of the opinion that the burglary was perpetrated by some one who knew the vicinity well.

Mr. Sheehy describes his "friend" as being of medium stature, wearing a dark suit and dark felt hat.

Watch Was Stolen.

Mr. W. H. Hubel, the grocer, of 238 Lake street, awoke this morning to find that during the night nearly every room in the house had been ransacked. He missed a gold watch and chain, some money and some of his goods. He did not hear anything during the night, but this morning discovered that the visitor or visitors forced the lock and entered by the back door.

Saw the Intruder.

Mr. G. Martin, of 104 Aylmer street, was another victim of the workings of the men. Mr. Vernon Morphet, son-in-law to Mr. Martin, stated that he slept last night in the tent on the lawn. He awoke about 2:15 and saw a man peer through the opening. He instantly arose and went out into the yard, but the intruder disappeared with almost marvellous alacrity, and so silently as to suggest that he wore soft shoes or none at all. The visitor was a short stout man of sandy complexion, and wore dusty blue clothes. Mr. Morphet, when he emerged from the tent heard a noise at a neighbour's house and learnt afterwards that Mr. Kennedy's door had been tried.

Entering the house Mr. Morphet discovered that everything was turned upside down. He missed his watch and fob, and also that of his brother-in-law, Mr. C. H. Martin. Some loose money was also missing, the pockets of Mr. G. Martin's clothes having been turned inside out.

Esturion Entered.

The steamer Esturion, which is lying tied up at the Mark St. Wharf, was broken into on Wednesday night by some marauders, but as far as can be ascertained nothing was taken.

Inhuman Monster.

Madge: He broke her heart, the wretch.

Marie: Did he jilt her?

Madge: No, he insisted on her keeping her engagement when she had a better offer.

PETES LET VICTORY TRICKLE AWAY AFTER GETTING A THREE RUN LEAD

Had Toronto Beaten 3 to 0 Yesterday But the Beavers Came From Behind and Finally Won Out by 5 Runs to 4.

A SCRAPPY BATTLE

In one of the scrappiest games of the season the Toronto Beavers came from behind and beat Peterborough, yesterday, by 5 runs to 4. The Petes got away to a flying start when they nicked Bauswein, the Beavers' new twirler, for four hits and three runs in less than three innings, but Robbins whom Acting Manager Ort sent in as a relief pitcher, held them to one run for the balance of the game. Meanwhile the visitors kept after Schettler until they tied the score in the sixth and went ahead in the seventh. The homesters evened up in their half, but a hit and two errors, after two were out, in the eighth, gave Toronto the winning counter. Schettler was not as effective as usual. His curves were not breaking well, and he had to depend upon his fast one. At that he might have got by if it had not been for a couple of bobbles behind him. Owing to an injury to Fox, and Kelly's illness, Manager Blount had to send out a make-shift lineup, Dolan being moved to second and King to short, while Rooney covered first. Dolan booted a couple in the eighth that were costly, but the last one, especially was excusable, the base-runner blocking his view of the ball until it was on top of him.

Umpire Bedford had a real bad day, and both teams kicked strenuously at his decisions. He started out by calling Dad Stewart out on a sacrifice bunt, when Schultz's foot was clearly off the bag. He gave this one back to the Petes when he declared Blount safe on a tap to Ort, when the ball beat the runner in by a couple of feet. His Umpe. went back in the other direction again when he called Isaac safe at second, after Schettler's peg to King had apparently forced the runner. Then he called Schettler out at first on an infield grounder, only to reverse his decision when the Petes claimed that Roberts, in running over to cover first, had interefered with the hitter. Ort kicked vigorously at the last decision and finally was chased out of the Park. Both teams kicked on Bedford's work on balls and strikes.

First Innings.

Toronto—Blount made a fine running catch of Kroy's hard low smash to short centre. Miller nailed Burrill's foul fly. Ort grounded to Dolan. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough — Blount walked. Welsh sacrificed, Trout to Schultz. Ort made a fine stop of Dolan's drive, Blount going to third. Stewart grounded to Isaac. No runs, hits or errors.

Second Innings.

Toronto—Killilea singled over second. Trout fouled out to Byrne. Stewart made a beautiful catch of Isaac's drive to right centre. Welsh the run. No runs, one hit, no errors. the run. No runs, one hit, no essors.

Peterborough—Rooney singled to right. Rooney stole second and went to third on Trout's bad throw. Byrne walked. King walked, filling the bases. Miller singled over second, scoring Rooney and Byrne. Schettler hunted to Bauswein and King was out at third. Blount flied to Burrill. Welsh died the same way. Two runs, two hits, one error.

Third Innings.

Toronto—Hunt fouled to Byrne. Bauswein died on a smash to Rooney. Kroy hoisted one to Dolan. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough—Dolan singled to right. Stewart sacrificed, Isaac to Schultz. Isaac's throw pulled Schultz off the bag, but Bedford called the runner out. Rooney grounded to Killilea, Dolan going to third. Byrne doubled over Hunt's head, Dolan scoring. Roberts took Bauswein's place on the rubber. King flied to Hunt. One run, two hits, no errors.

Fourth Innings.

Toronto—Blount grabbed Burrill's line drive to centre. Ort flied to Welsh, who nailed the ball on the run. Killilea fanned. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough—Miller hoisted to Isaac. Schettler went down on a crack to Isaac. Blount was called safe on a grounder to Ort, although from the side he was out a yard. Blount was out stealing, Trout to Ort. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Fifth Innings.

Toronto—Trout singled to centre. Isaac singled to right sending Trout to third. Schultz tripled to right scoring Trout and Isaac. Hunt cracked a liner to King. Roberts fanned. Kroy also struck out. Two runs, three hits, no errors.

Peterborough—Hunt robbed Welsh of a hit by a nice catch of his hard drive. Dolan singled to centre and stole second. Stewart fanned. Killilea made a nice catch of Rooney's fly to short left. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Sixth Innings.

Toronto—Burrill beat out a bunt to Byrne. Ort sacrificed, Schettler to Rooney. Killilea grounded to Rooney, Trout singled between Byrne and King scoring Burrill. Trout was out stealing. Miller to Dolan. One run, two hits, no errors.

Peterborough—Byrne walked. King sacrificed, Isaac to Schultz. Miller grounded out to Roberts, Byrne going to third. Schettler lifted to Killilea. No runs, hits or errors.

Seventh Innings.

Toronto—Isaac scratched a hit on a bounder which Byrne deflected past King. Schultz bunted to Schettler who tried for Isaac at second, but Bedford called him safe. Hunt bunted and Schettler threw Isaac out at third. Roberts fanned. Kroy doubled to right, scoring Schultz. Burrill flied to Stewart. One run, two hits, no errors.

Peterborough—Blount popped to Isaac. Welsh beat out a roller to Schultz. Dolan grounded to Killilea, Welsh going to second. Stewart drew a pass. Rooney walked, filling the bases. Byrne singled through short, scoring Welsh. King grounded to Roberts. One run, two hits, no errors.

Eighth Innings.

Toronto — Ort popped to Dolan. Killilea flied to Welsh. Trout cracked a single through the box. Isaac was safe on Dolan's fumble. Dolan also fumbled Schultz's roller, Trout scoring. Hunt was out on a smash to Rooney. One run, one hit, two errors.

Peterborough—Miller grounded to Killilea. Schettler cracked one which Roberts deflected to Ort, whose peg to Schultz headed the pitcher off, Roberts running over to cover touched Schettler and he was declared safe for the interference. Ort kicked so strenuously that he was chased out of the game. Graham replaced him at second. Blount rolled to Roberts. Welsh popped to Killilea. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Ninh Innings.

Toronto — Roberts grounded to Rooney, Schettler covering the bag. Kroy was hit. Burrill was passed. Graham fanned. Killilea flied to Dolan. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough—Dolan flied to Burrill. Stewart singled over second. Rooney flied to Burrill. Byrne flied to Kroy. No runs, one hit, no errors.

CANADIAN LEAGUE NOTES

Hamilton Spectator — Manager Frank Shaughnessy, of the Ottawa Ball team, arrived back in the city this morning after a two-days' scouting trip up through the State of Michigan. Shaughnessy was able to secure one player from the Detroit American League club, this player to report in a few days, but other than that had bad luck in his search for players. "I went through the Southern Michigan League and was prepared to pay good prices for likely players," Shaughnessy said this morning. "I saw a couple of youngsters I could use, but the price was out of all reason. Some of the clubs wanted as high as $1,500 for players we wouldn't look at in this league. The more I look around and the more I try for experienced players, the more I realize just how strong and fast the Canadian League is. It is my opinion that this circuit is the strongest in minor league circles at the present time. At one game I attended in the South Michigan League there were 78 people at the game. Another game, in which the league leaders were playing, brought out 240 people. Compare this with the Canadian League figures and some interesting facts are to be gained. It is no cinch securing the right kind of players at this time of the year, and I didn't have the success I expected."

The above, coming from Shag, pretty well indicates just what Manager Jack White is up against. Jack has been making desperate efforts for a few days to land a right-handed pitcher. With Dougherty on th sick list, White has but three pitchers for his six games in Erie, and has been making a strenuous effort to get another experienced performer. He tried to make a deal with Peterborough, tried to do something with Ottawa, and went after several good players, but failed to get them. White could get all kinds of green youngsters, but refuses to bother with them at present. He wants a pitcher who has experience. It is likely that he will add Ray Clements, the former St. Thomas hurler, to his staff to-day. Clements is a spit ball pitcher and has had plenty of experience. He would surely help out in the series at Erie and give White time to continue his search for the right man.

Ottawa Free Press: Five times in a row, the Senators have missed the win column. In other words they are enjoying a slump. Last year they hit the icy walk for seven straight games around about this time and occupied a somewhat lowly position in the league race. The slump of the champions is not so serious to Ottawa fans as the winning streak of London, The Cockneys have copped five straight games off their home lot, which is some going in the tight battle now being waged in the Canadian league.

To-morrow Ottawa goes to Brantford, where they wrestle with Rube Deneau's outfit. They return on Sunday for nine straight games, five with Peterborough at the start of the week, and four with St. Thomas at the end of the week. A double header is billed at Dupuis Park with the Petes in the opener.

Shag was in Detroit yesterday, but no word has yet been heard from that "Nick of the woods" what success he had in securing new blood. Just one more pitcher like Ed. Renfer would help the team immensely. Lefty Rogers can be counted from now on to take his regular turn on the rubber once every five days, and he can win three-fourths of the games. Rogers has lost two 1-0 games to London this season.

CALGARY OIL BOOM AS DESCRIBED BY A FORMER REPORTER ON THE EXAMINER

One Stenographer Cleaned up Quarter of a Million—A Shop Girl Made $11,000 and Numerous New Millionaires Have Been Created.

(By R. F. Choate, staff writer of the Calgary News-Telegram).

CALGARY, Alberta, July 8 — Oil drills, dozens of them playing a tattoo over the wide stretches of this rolling foothill country on the Eastern fringe of the northern Rockies! No music, this, for the hesitation, but its rythm has set the millionaire, the butcher, the baker, and the stenograph a-whirling in the dizziest tango ever known in Canada.

Twenty-one newly-made Calgary millionaires in less than 21 days; shop-girls snatched by Midas from the ribbon-counter; chauffeurs laden with leases valued in the tens of thousands; brawny homesteaders chasing to the nearest town to buy touring cars—these are some of the accompaniments of the oil boom that has Calgary in its grip since May 15, when the first "strike" was made at Dingman well, forty miles south.

"Oil or hell!" That's the cry that has brought the bullion-waggons scampering to Calgary from east to west, that has transformed thousands of acres of the most common-place cow-pasture into "oil land" commanding prices up to $3,000 an acre and more.

Why "Oil or Hell" You have to go to Kipling to explain the slogan:

For some years it has been the custom hereabouts, when gas was required for domestic, industrial or dental purposes to sink an augur into the prairie and set fire to the atmosphere. And Kipling being fresh from the land where the clank of the meter chills the heart of dad, was so impressed by it during his visit to these parts, that he mumbled some historic words about "Standing on the trapdoor of Inferno" as he departed to catch the 4.45 without waiting for the hotel 'bus. So, that's where you get "oil or hell."

W. S. Herron, the central figure in the big oil boom, arrived here some years ago from the Cobalt mining district in Northern Ontario. He staked his all on the acquiring by outright purchase of land in the district. First drilling was begun on the Dingman property, and ending in the "strike" of May 15, when the well gushed to a height of 80 feet.

Brokers' offices opened in every block. Bootblacks sold their stands to lease and stock sellers for hundreds of dollars, when the police made war on the curb brokers, the hotel rotundas became seething centres of excitement. Lines formed in front of the offices of popular companies, buyers fighting for the privilege of acquiring the dollar shares. Perspiring clerks tossed the money into large clothes-baskets and then called for more baskets.

But the buying powers of the public could scarcely keep pace with the avalanche of shares ranging in price from ten cents up. Companies sprung up dozens daily, until it is estimated that their aggregate capitalization now exceds one hundred million dollars!

In the long, lean months of last winter, when Old Boreas, in league with Gen. Depression, was sweeping across the bleak prairie, Jennie Earle had her eyes glued on the main chance. Miss Earle was a stenographer in the office of a man who has since become one of the leading oil operators of the district.

Her imagination was stirred as she tapped the keys by stories she heard of "expected" gushes and riches. One day she learned of some government leases about to lapse. A few minutes later she had taken her place in the line at the land office steps. Nightfall found her still awaiting her turn. The doors clanged shut. It was cold, and the men in front of her dropped off one by one.

Soon she became No. 1 in the line. Result: for deposit of $160 she had acquired the mineral rights for a year on one of the most valued sections of land in the oil district. Now she owns a quarter interest in a $1,000,000 company and occupies the post of Secretary-Treasurer. Stock has been in lively demand. So Miss Earle's bank account, in addition to her holdings, runs high into the tens of thousands.

Jenine Fitzgerald, who was at the notion counter of a department store drawing a weekly wage of $8, also drew a prize package at the land office.

After two strangers came in one morning and placed on the counter a marked check for $81,000 as an offer for her holdings, Miss Fitzgerald spent many delirious hours. Now she's on a honeymoon trip down in North Dakota in a touring car.

It has cost an Edmonton man about $10,000 to take a pleasure trip to his old home in England. Last fall City Electrician Brown lent him $100. He has had the pleasure trip and Brown has the several hundred Dingman shares given in return for the loan.

Crowds of brokers and speculators in the rotunda of the new million-dollar Canadian Pacific Railroad hotel suddenly stopped roaring when a man, hatless and perspiring, rushed up to the desk and demanded vociferously immediate possesion of the building, tendering a check for $1,600,000. He was removed to the Asylum in Ponoka, where he is now violently insane. He had just turned over for about $40,000 a batch of shares which cost him $500. He couldn't stand it.

Everybody's nerves are tense. Every pulse beat of the Discovery well is carefully measured. When the oil "gushes" a responsive throb is felt all down the line. The boot-black sleeps with his ten-cent certificate under his pillow, and Mr. Wallingford smokes longer and blacker cigars.

And everybody dreams of an estate like Rockefeller's with a standing army to repel the I. W. W.

GETTING A START

By NATHANIEL C. FOWLER JR.

APPLICATION.

I addressed a letter to several hundred men and women of mark, asking the following question:

"Do you consider persistent application necessary to success?"

Three hundred and thirteen replied. The "vote" stood as follows:
"Yes," without qualification. .. 181
Equivalent of "yes" 125
"No," without qualification .. . 1
Noncommital or conditional 6

The result, as is seen, was almost unanimously affirmative, only one being opposed and only six being noncommital.

May we not, then, consider persistent application as a necessary "law" of success?

The laboratory of business, and of science also, has not separated success into its component parts, or analysed it, and, perhaps, never will be able to do so.

Success seems to be a psychological condition, as invisible as electricity, and yet as positive as gravity, an element in itself, unanalyzable.

If I were forced to give a definition of it, I should say that success is the product of doing one's best, irrespective of the measure of the result.

It is obvious, however, that success is not and cannot be, based upon any one action or thing to the exclusion of other. It is composition—composite, not single. It is evident that success cannot be attained without persistent application.

Talent, whatever it may be, is an unnegotiable in any market, while there is a ready sale for what talent accomplishes.

There can be no result without effort, and no great accomplishment without persistent effort.

I was once asked, while lecturing before a class of salesmen, what I considered the fundamental element of salesmanship. I replied that no one element in itself was sufficient to make a good salesman, but that experience had proved conclusively to me that effective salesmanship was impossible without persistent effort.

Ability and talent, and even opportunity, are good for nothing and refuse to accomplish anything, unless persistent effort is applied to them. Alone, they are worthless. Used they are priceless.

I know of nothing, not even education itself, which has intrinsic or usable value, which amounts to anything, unless there is applied to it persistent, yes, everlasting effort. The towering monument of fame, and even the small stones which mark the place of ordinary result, would not have been erected, if it had not been for the persistent efforts of their builders.

If you possess large ability, don't allow yourself to be deceived by the glitter of your brilliant talents. Bright as they are, they are worthless unless you use them, take them with you into the great world of activity, harden and polish them by rubbing against experience.

A thing begun and not completed becomes rusty, or motheaten, rickety and unstable, and has to be repaired or rebuilt before it can stand by itself.

Transient effort accomplishes little and is usually wasted. Persistent effort produces results.

Persistence, then, is a fundamental element, without which nothing can be erected or created to stay.

What is the good of wasted good?

"Did no one ever propose to you, auntie?"

"Yes, once a man did."

"What did you say?"

"I told him that I wouldn't marry him if he was the last man on earth."

"What a thing to say."

"Yes, at the time, though, my dear, I had no idea that he was the last man on earth who would propose to me."

When the Liver Gets Torpid

Mrs. C. L. Cook, 240 Tenth street, Brandon, Man., writes:—"I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for the last four years for liver trouble, and can say that I have had great satisfaction and help from them. I find that I do not need any doctor if I use them when the liver gets torpid, and believe that they are exactly suited for my case. My husband has used them for kidney trouble with good results, and my daughter in Winnipeg has been helped a great deal by the use of these pills. We say we can't keep house without them, and have cheated the doctors here out of a good many visits. I think Dr. Chase's medicines are just the thing, and have recommended them to many people who have used them with good results."

By keeping the liver active and the bowels regular Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills prevent and cure such disorders as biliousness, constipation, chronic indigestion and headache. One pill a dose, 25c a box, 5 for $1.00; all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

TURNBULL COMPANY'S NEW STORE COMPRISES ALL THE NEWEST MERCANTILE IDEAS

Massive Structure Built of Steel And Provided With the Latest Firefighting Apparatus—Many Fine Departments Opened

CONVENIENCES FOR BUYERS

The new Turnbull building on the northwest corner of George and Simcoe streets comprehends all the ideas of the modern retail dry goods store with its numerous and special departments. As far as the skeleton and exterior of the building is concerned every advance in its construction has been closely followed by the citizens, some having watched even the closing of individual rivets in the assembling of the steel framework. The intrinsic strength and solidity, of the building, therefore, scarcely needs a reference in its own home town. And those who have visited larger cities where immense retail business buildings are numerous and imposing, know that the Turnbull corner is, in every respect, a credit to Peterborough. The average citizen feels a personal pride in its splendid lines and massive bulk. While this City has been installing permanent improvements of a metropolitan variety, in the form of asphalt pavements, magnetite arc lamps and a fast street car service, the Turnbull building heightens the effect in the business centre. In brief, 1914 marks the beginning of a new era of progress in Peterborough and the indications are not wanting that the present advance tide will be maintained.

Erected for Mr. Might.

The new home of the Turnbull store was erected by the Toronto Savings and Loan Company, for Mr. E. J. Might, who has been proprietor of the Turnbull Company for the past thirteen years. Glancing at the exterior of the building, one realizes that the first promises of architectural beauty have been carried out in detail.

The first storey walls are built of huge blocks of Cleveland Canyon sandstone, and above this to the roof, the walls are of pure white New Jersey terra cotta.

Will Use Five Floors.

When the store is formally opened, in September, the four main floors and basement will be utilized. In the meantime, three of the floors are completely used and new departments will be gradually opened up on the others. On the east side of the ground storey there is a mezzanine floor, devoted to a rest room, general offices, and Mr. Might's private office. The view from the rest room sweeps the ground floor and both entrances from the street. This feature will be impressed upon ladies, and a general invitation will be extended to them to meet friends in the rest room. The appointments are comfortable and convenient, and as it comes to be widely used, the ladies of the City will find it a cosy and interesting location.

Some of the Features.

The Lamson cable system of cash carrying has been installed, and is apparently, a rapid and efficient method. The cash from every floor is sent directly to the cashier, in the general office. The little cash boxes are carried up from the basement and down from the upper floors, stations being located on each floor. The elevator is of the electric driven type, manufactured by the Stevens Co. of Glasgow, Scotland. It is driven by a 19 h. p. motor installed in the basement, and works quietly and smoothly. Like everything else in the new building there is a harmony of 'class' to the appointments, and the elevator is significant of the modernity and particularly the good taste evidenced throughout the store. An inconspicuous dust chute has an opening on every floor by which sweepings can be quickly and easily dispatched to a box in the basement. A telephone exchange will be installed in a short time and easy communication will be provided with all the departments. A parcel and check office is being prepared on the main floor, near the elevator and parcels will be checked free. Mr. Might is particularly anxious to provide his store with as many comforts and conveniences as possible for both his customers and staff.

Various safeguards.

Every precaution has been taken to make the building absolutely fire proof, and every suggestion from the Fire Underwriters has been carried into effect. The electric switchboard, in the basement, is one of the largest for a building of this kind in the City. It is enclosed in a heavy metal box. All the wiring throughout the building is laid in conduits. On each floor there is a standpipe with fifty feet of hose and also two bucket tanks.

Light and Ventilation.

The provisions for ventilation are complete and the immense windows flood the floors with light. Goods are sold under complete daylight, and the brightness and airiness thus afforded offer a feature of comfort which customers will appreciate. The artificial lighting for evenings is of the semi-indirect type, each lamp's capacity being 400 candle power. They have been generously supplied with the result that the store is brilliantly lighted and there is a soft tone to the rays that renders them decidedly pleasant. The indirect method eliminates whatever harshness there might have been from the lamps alone.

The Upper Floors.

The windows in the top storey offer an extensive view of the City and surrounding country. The dress-making rooms are on this floor with fitting and waiting rooms adjoining. There are also the quarters for the advertising and window decorating staff. A special sample room has been prepared for the convenience of travellers, where they can display their goods and the different buyers can make their selections. The women's toilet rooms are also on this floor. The main section of the floor space will be devoted to new departments.

The Home Furnishing Department is located on the third floor. There is an extensive display of rugs shown on platforms built especially for them. For example the 9 ft. x 12 ft. rugs are shown on a stand of those dimensions and other sizes have corresponding stands. Piece carpets, linoleums, curtain material, upholstery goods, brass beds, mattresses, porch shades, cup matting, window shades, and hangings; all these are shown in profusion on the third floor.

Ready-to-Wear Goods.

The second floor is divided between the millinery and ready-to-wear departments. The former is just receiving its finishing touches, but the ready-to-wear is already enjoying an extensive business.

The goods are shown on racks, tables, and in show cases. Price cards surmount each rack and table sections enabling customers to practically decide for themselves without advice from the staff. In other words the quality of the goods can be readily judged by prospective purchasers and displaying the price is a help that will be generally appreciated. The finest garments are shown in glass cases and the Company takes every precaution not only to secure models exclusive for the store, that none of them can be duplicated. The white wear goods are on this floor. In an effort to get smart and new millinery fashions Mr. Might has arranged with firms in Chicago, Cleveland, and New York for weekly forwarding of the latest millinery ideas during the season. There is every provision on this floor for trying on garments.

The Ground Floor.

On the left of the George Street entrance is the parasol and umbrella department and wash goods. On the west of the Simcoe Street entrance or directly inside the door are the dress goods and silks. On the right of the George Street entrance the neckwear, belts, handkerchiefs, gloves and hosiery department are located. Just west of the elevator, which is situated in the centre of the building on the north is the linen section. In the centre of the lower floor the corset and ribbon department is arranged, while just to the rear of that department are the ladies' and children's underwear and small wares. Left of the centre, towards the front of the store are the leather goods and drug sundries, while at the rear are the knitted goods, embroidery, dress trimmings and laces.

The Basement.

The basement has its own interesting features. There is the freight reception room, part of which includes the goods' elevator, under the sidewalk. The coal bin is also under the walk and is so enclosed that no coal dust can reach other parts of the building than the engine room. The heating is by steam, generated by twin boilers. The men's cloak room and lavatory is on this floor, of which the main section will be given over to new departments.

Some of the contracts may be enumerated, for as much of the work as possible was given to local firms. Plumbing, Adamson & Dobbin; heating, J. E. A. Duranceau; wiring, F. R. G. MacPherson & Co.; interior lamp equipment, Grant & Thorpe. The construction of the building was carried out under the contractorship of Wm. Langford. The show cases were made by the Peterborough Show Case Co., and the counters, shelving, etc., by the Peterborough Furniture Co. The windows, of course, are a feature of the Turnbull Store. Those on George Street are seven feet deep, and on Simcoe, six feet. The panels, in the background are of Honduras Crotch Mahogany, amply stained, showing the natural formation of the crotch graining. The counters are of birch mahogany some of them rounded very [illegible]y and effectively. The silent salesmen are of genuine mahogany.

The upper portion of the window backgrounds are of chipped glass. The lighting of the windows is provided by ninety x-ray reflectors which add to the effectiveness of the windows. The entrances on George and Simcoe street, when finally completed, will be vestibule ones, while a brass railing will be installed around the store to protect the basement windows. The doorway floors are of Mosaic tile with a brass curbing as a protection.

BEAUTY IS NOT DEMANDED IN THE IDEAL WIFE

Must Be Square to Home Folks and Chummy with Fathers and Brothers

MUST BE HEALTHY

LOS ANGELES, July 11. — Many points a young woman should possess to be an "ideal wife" have been named by a large number of young men of Pomona, as the result of the selecting of the "ideal husband" by the young women of the First Baptist Church here.

Rev. W. F. Harper, pastor of the church, first preached a sermon on the "Ideal Husband" from the standpoint of the young woman.

To secure his data he distributed lists of questions to over a hundred Pomona girls, and from these answers a most interesting sermon was delivered.

There came a demand for another sermon, in which the young men would have an opportunity to express the qualifications which they considered the "ideal wife" should possess.

"Accordingly, questions were distributed among more than 100 young men. Practically all responded, and the summary of their answers will be used by the pastor for another sermon.

Bold Girl Not Wanted.

The bold, bizarre young woman is decidedly out of favour with the young men; home-loving girls with brains and commonsense, with hearts and genuine religion, the girl capable of being a true helpmate inspired by high ideals is the one approved by the majority of the young men.

In appearance the young men say that the "Ideal Young Woman" must be healthy and strong, but not masculine. She is tall or medium as to height, erect of carriage, and beautiful, with the beauty of soul that shines in her countenance and expresses itself in her life.

Brunettes have the preference, though blondes and those of medium complexions are not without admirers.

The athletic young woman is preferred only in so far as her interest in athletics indicates good health and ability to keep a neat, tidy home.

Eugenic marriage finds little favour with the young men.

All want to know her disposition in the home and her treatment of her home folks, especially of her helpfulness to her mother and her attitude toward her brother. Chumminess with her father and brother counts strongly in her favour.

Joyful and Honest.

The following characteristics are mentioned as indispensable: A sunny, joyful, affectionate disposition; integrity, vivacity, practicability, straightforwardness, and honesty; modesty in dress and manners, and will power enough to stand by a right decision.

Nearly all insist that she have practical domestic training while a musical and business education are desirable.

On woman suffrage the young men are about equally divided. All but one would give her the right of choice in politics.

One says the "ideal" must have "intelligence and a sense of humour, thrift, the ability to live within her means, and save a little and have charity for others' feelings."

SLAUGHTER HOUSE WAS ON FIRE

Loss Would Have Been a Heavy One but for Assistance of Villagers.

BRIDGENORTH, July 9.—The cottages in the park are now all open.

Mr. R. Gliddon, of the Peterborough Conservatory of Music, has erected a new cottage.

Ald. Duffus has purchased the R. Neal property and is busy with a gang of men erecting a new cottage. It will be completed in a few days.

Mrs. Moore and daughter Pearl of Wolsely Street, and Miss J. Turnbull of Toronto, are encamped on the north side of the lake.

Miss Pearl McKee, Mrs. E. Telford, and Miss Telford of Peterborough are having fine times at their camp.

Fred Jopling's slaughterhouse took fire yesterday and but for the willing assistance of many hands would have been totally destroyed. There was over one thousand dollars' worth of beef and hides in the slaughterhouse.

The whooping cough has made its appearance in the village.

Fishing is reported the very best. Mr. P. Grovell got a lunge that lacked just one ounce of twenty pounds.

Mr. John Thornton of Peterborough was up the other day but no one knows how many he got, for he took the horse and buggy down to the shore for them. "John" would not catch more than the law allows.

SCHENK WEDS AGAIN ONCE POISON VICTIM

WHEELING, West Va., July 10.—John O. Schenk, Wheeling's richest man, who secured a divorce from his wife, Laura Farnsworth Schenk, after her sensational trial on a charge of attempting to kill him by the insidious administration of arsenic, was married the other afternoon to Miss Grace E. Fendt, a school teacher. Schenk is 53, and his bride is 32. The ceremony was performer by Rev. A. W. Werder, pastor of St. James's Lutheran Church. There were no attendants, and a mere handful of relatives and a few close friends were present.

At 7.30 that night Mr. and Mrs. Schenk departed for New York, Whence they will sail on the Vaterland for a tour of Europe, which will last until the holidays.

It was not until after Schenk's divorce a year ago that he met Miss Fendt.

It is nearly four years since Laura Farnsworth Schenk was arrested on a charge of attempting to murder her husband by administering arsenic in his water, medicine, and food. Before her marriage to Schenk she was his housemaid. Her trial resulted in a disagreement, eleven jurymen voting for acquittal and one for conviction. The Prosecuting Attorney declared that it was impossible to convict a woman in this city, and after the case had been continued over three terms of the Criminal Court it was dismissed.

Testimony at the trial revealed an intrigue between Mrs. Schenk and Daniel Phillips, a young music store clerk, whose admissions caused such public indignation that Phillips was compelled to leave the city. He testified that Mrs. Schenk showered him with presents.

Phillips was named as co-respondent in the divorce suit. Although Schenk received an absolute decree, he voluntarily agreed to give Mrs. Schenk $25 a week during the remainder of her life. She still lives in this city.

"PEBLO"
The Glass of Quality

We have'nt any doubt but that most people value their eyesight sufficiently to want to take the best care of it. That is why we want to the expense of securing for our Optical Trade the Highest Grade of Lenses then can be made and which we handle exclusively under the trade mark "PEBLO." We believed our patrons would appreciate having their eyeglasses fitted with this superior quality lens, and after two years exclusive use of "PEBLO" Lenses, we are well satisfied with the result, judging by the hundreds of satisfied customers whom we have fitted with these beautiful lenses. It is interesting to know that in spite of the expense of procuring "PEBLO" Lenses the prices to our patrons are no more than when we used other makes of lenses, this being due to the large quantity we buy at a time. We manufacture these "PEBLO" Lenses from the square "PEBLO" glass, in our own lens grinding department.

Any kind of lens duplicated while you wait, and all work guaranteed.

OUR DULL SENSES

Wonders All Around Us They Are Unable to Discern.

WE LIVE IN A HIDDEN WORLD.

There Are Colors Our Eyes Cannot See and Music and Other Sounds to Which Our Ears Are Deaf, While Our Sense of Feeling is Very Crude.

If only we had keener senses what wonders of nature would be revealed to us—wonders that we touch and know not every day of our lives! They are all around us, these hidden marvels, but imperceptible to us because of our human limitations.

Of course every one knows by now that everything we hear or see comes in a wave motion. But it is not so well known that there are a great many waves that we cannot detect at all by means of any of our senses and presumably a great many more that we have never been able to detect even artificially.

Take ether waves, for instance. We know that those of a certain length are heat waves. They can be felt, but not seen. Shorter ones are light waves, from the long red to the short violet. Even shorter ones are what are known as the ultraviolet, and these have to be detected artificially, by the taking of a picture in the dark. Even shorter ones are the X rays, which are invisible. Much longer ones than the longest heat wave are the electric waves of wireless telegraphy. Now, remember that all the waves specified differ in only one particular—that of length.

We cannot conceive of there being only waves of these wave lengths taking place in the ether. There must be waves of nearly all lengths, from the trillionth of an inch to many miles. We know that other media may have waves of various lengths going through them at the same time. The question is how to detect these other waves and what effect they have in nature.

If our bodies had better sense organs or more in number it is astonishing to think of what new sensations we should have. If the eye, for instance, could perceive a shorter wave length than the color violet and a longer one than the color red we should have numerous and beautiful colors added to the list. If we could detect still longer ones than the infra-red each one of us would be a receiving wireless station and could get all the messages sent out without other apparatus than our eyes.

It would simply be a flash of light of a hitherto unknown color appearing and disappearing in the sky. We could see it, however, even if it appeared behind us, as the electric wave goes through bodies. So convenient added vision would be ours. If we could actually see the X rays we should need no platino-barium-cyanide screen to look through to see the bones in our hands under the ray, as we do at present.

If the ear was more delicate and our brains more sensitive we could perceive the thousand and one wave lengths made in the air around us, of which we now are unconscious. The rapid vibration of an insect's wing would probably furnish us with even more sery music than the mosquito's song. The wind as it blows across a wide meadow would give us a basso unheard at present. The soft falling of snow would make the softest and most beautiful music to our senses. It would be like a whisper in its lowness, but would be rather high pitched, like a Japanese tinkle a mile away. The falling of the rain would be louder and even more high pitched.

Our very electric lights, run by an alternating current and consequently getting dimmer and brighter a hundred times a second, would cause sound waves of low pitch and low amplitude in the air, but would give a known musical note.

If our sense of touch was more delicate we could feel the roughnesses along the surface of the smoothest mirror, for it has them. We should be able to detect small particles in the air that now brush us by unconsciously. The breeze on our cheek would feel like so many tiny balls of paper rushing and rattling by. The body would feel every thread of the texture of the garments covering it. Some of these things, of course, would not be pleasant until we got used to them.

It is the idea of some philosophers that an actual heaven would be an increase in our perceptions and senses to an enormous power, for then we should certainly live in a different world, one far surpassing in knowledge and pleasure and power the one we live in—and yet it would be actually the same world, the difference being simply in our power to cognize it.—A. L. Hodges in Chicago Record-Herald.

THE BLESSING OF MOTHERHOOD

Healthy Mothers and Children Make Happy Homes.

Motherhood is woman's highest sphere in life. It is the fruition of her dearest hopes and greatest desires; yet thousands of noble women through some derangement have been denied this blessing.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong. This is evidenced by the following letters which are genuine and truthful:

London, Ont.—"I wish to thank you for the benefit I received by taking your famous medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Before my baby was born I was so ill I could not stand long or walk any distance. I had to lie down nearly all the time. After I took your medicine I felt like a new woman. I could work from morning till night and was happy and well. I certainly think it relieves pain at childbirth and recommend it to every woman who is pregnant. You may use this testimonial if you like. It may help some other woman."—Mrs. FRANK CORBIN, 132 Adelaide St., London, Ont.

Brooklyn, N.Y.—"I was ailing all the time and did not know what the matter was. I wanted a baby but my health would not permit it. I was nervous, my side ached and I was all run down. I heard that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was good and took the medicine. I have now a beautiful baby and your Compound has helped me in every way."—Mrs. J. J. STEWART, 299 Humboldt St., Brooklyn, N.Y.

When the Trouble Started.

Slagg had lived all his life in the city. Never had he seen anything in the vegetable line except factory made grass until he decided to spend the summer working on Cousin Hiram's farm. Not knowing much in the way of driving a hoe or a harrow, the new farmhand was put to work whitewashing the outbuildings, while the rest of the staff took to the cornfields. When Cousin Hiram returned to the house at noon Slagg was sitting on the woodpile looking as if he had been crawling on his face through ten acres of sand burrs.

"Give me my money, boss," said he in a mournful voice. "I'm going back to town."

"What have ye been doin' ter yerself?" asked Cousin Hiram, wonderingly sizing up the new hand. "What's happened?"

"I don't know exactly what happened," was the dejected reply of Slagg, "but it started when I tried to whitewash that thing they call a beehive."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Drilling Holes in Steel.

When holes are drilled and then reamed in soft steel bars the metal materially increases in strength, the average limit of elasticity improving 12.8 per cent and the average tensile strength 9.2 per cent. This phenomenon is explained thus: In putting together the parts of a test piece broken under tension it is found that the two ends do not coincide and that, while the edges make a good contact, the central parts do not, thus indicating that the rupture begins at the center and that the edges have a higher tensile resistance than there is along the axis of the bar. Therefore, if several holes are drilled so as not to injure the material too much, as might be the case with punching, the average tensile strength of the section across the holes per unit of metal will be higher than before the holes were drilled, since each hole creates, so to speak, additional edges.—London Mail.

Her Contribution.

A man, a new acquaintance, once told Dr. Joseph Parker of London that he had put a five pound note in the plate instead of the half sovereign he had intended.

"I hope you don't repent of your charity," said the doctor.

"Indeed, no," said the guest.

"Because," said Parker, "I remember that one of my congregation once did. It was a woman, and she came to the vestry after service one Sunday morning to tell me that a week before she must have put a sovereign in the plate instead of a shilling, because she could not account for the loss otherwise. But she didn't get the change from me," said the doctor, with a smile. "I told her it was too bad, of course, particularly as God would only give her credit for the shilling."

To Transfer Printing.

Anything printed on paper with ordinary printer's ink can be transferred to a clean sheet of paper in the following manner: Take three drams of common yellow soap and dissolve it in one quart of hot water. When cool add one and a half fluid ounces of spirits of turpentine. Put all in a bottle, cork it and shake well together. Take a sponge or soft brush and apply some of the solution to the printed surface. Let it soak for a few minutes. Lay it face down upon the paper on which the transfer is required and press both together evenly between the leaves of a thick book placed under weights. In a time varying from half a minute to several hours, according to the newness of the printed original, it will be transferred in reverse.

A Matter of Small Moment.

A local British official in India wanted military protection against what he considered to be the danger of an Indian rising and traveled all the way to Simla to lay before Lord Kitchener, the commander in chief, the state of affairs in his district and to urge that troops should be sent to support the civil arm. Lord Kitchener declined to do anything of the sort.

"But, my dear sir, do you realize [illegible] be murdered in my bed one night?" expostulated the official.

Kitchener eyed him over for a minute and then said coldly, "Well, what of it?"

Sure It Is.

A little West One Hundred and Forty-ninth street tailoring shop has the following hand written placard in its window:

We press your pants for 5 cts.
It's a Singe!

An Easy Job.

Visitor—I understand that your boy is studying to be an electrical engineer? Farmer—Well, I advised him to take it up. I heard some fellers say that nobody really knew much about electricity, so I thought mebbe Joe would have some chance of passin' examinations!—London Express.

Fragile.

"She has a complexion like Dresden china."

"Yes, and it is like Dresden china in another way."

"What is that?"

"If she's not careful with it it will crack."

Don't put too fine a point on your wit for fear it should get blunted.—Cervantes.

The Annual Rainfall.

According to an estimate by Sir John Murray, the total annual rainfall upon all the land of the globe amounts to 29,347.4 cubic miles and of this quantity 6,524 cubic miles drains off through rivers to the sea. A cubic mile of river water weighs approximately 4,205,600,000 tons and carries in solution on the average about 420,000 tons of foreign matter. In all, about 2,735,000,000 tons of solid substances are thus carried annually to the ocean.—United States Geological Survey.

Two Wise Ones.

The young man carefully removed the cigars from his vest pocket and placed them on the piano. Then he opened his arms. But the young girl did not flutter to them. "You," she said coldly, "have loved before."—Chicago Record-Herald.

MIRACULOUS CURE OF ASTHMA

Suffered Terribly for 15 Years Until He Tried "Fruit-a-tives"

D. A. WHITE, Esq.

21 WALLACE AVE., TORONTO,

Dec. 22nd. 1913.

"Having been a great sufferer from Asthma for a period of fifteen years (sometimes having to sit up at night for weeks at a time) I began the use of "Fruit-a-tives". These wonderful tablets relieved me of Indigestion, and through the continued use of same, I am no longer distressed with that terrible disease, Asthma, thanks to "Fruit-a-tives" which are worth their weight in gold to anyone suffering as I did. I would heartily recommend them to all sufferers from Asthma, which I believe is caused or aggravated by Indigestion". D. A. WHITE

For Asthma, for Hay Fever, for any trouble caused by excessive nervousness due to Impure Blood, faulty Digestion or Constipation, take 'Fruit-a-tives"

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Maybe He Got It Back.

Brown and Jones were leaning on a polished counter and talking intimately. Then said Brown to Jones:

"Look here, old man. Suppose you were to come around to my apartments one of these days and should walk up to my room and, receiving no answer to your knock, should come in and find my lifeless body stretched out cold across the bed. Now, in a case like that, what would you do?"

"I'll tell you," answered Jones after thinking it over. "I'd institute an immediate search for the $5 you have owed me for two years."

The New Woman.

"The new woman is a commanding figure. Man buckles down to her.

"Man, the conqueror, when he would win a woman in the past, brought her to the dust. Today, on the contrary, he brings the dust to her."—Chicago Record-Herald.

FLUORINE A RABID GAS.

Nothing Can Resist the Power of This Chemical Fury.

The fury of the chemical world is the element fluorine, although, strangely enough, it exists peacefully in company with calcium in fluorspar and also in a few other compounds.

Although this element was known and named a good while ago, it long resisted the efforts of chemists to isolate it, for the instant the compound containing it was torn apart the free fluorine attacked and combined with whatever substance composed the vessel containing it. It was finally isolated by the great French chemist Moissan.

Fluorine is a rabid gas that nothing can resist. It combines with all metals, explosively with some, or if they are already combined with some other nonmetallic element it mercilessly tears them away from it and takes them to itself.

In uniting with sodium, potassium, calcium, magnesium and aluminium the metals become heated, even to redness, by the fervor of its embrace. Iron filings slightly warm burst into brilliant scintillations when exposed to it. Manganese does the same. Even the noble metals, which at melting heat proudly resist the fascinations of oxygen, succumb to this chemical siren at moderate temperatures.

Glass is devoured at once and water ceases to be water by contact with this gas, which, combined with its hydrogen, at the same moment forms the acrid, glass dissolving hydrofluoric acid and liberates ozone.

Even hydrofluoric acid eats into and destroys every known substance except platinum and lead.

CRUDE THOUGHTS FROM THE EDITORIAL PEN

GOOD, SOUND AVICE.

It is the young man and young woman of to-day, with a practical education, who will adorn our best homes in the future.

It is the manager and financier who is the practical one.

It is the young man with good habits who has a bank account, who shows evidence of becoming a financier.

It is the young woman, who trains herself with the duties of homework, that will become a manager.

It is the observing, the president, who will be the practical one.

The majority of our young friends of to-day are beginning at the wrong end. Instead of beginning at the bottom and training themselves for the future, thereby making accumulations by patiently and steadily sticking to one issue, never deviating from the one purpose and establishing a good character besides, they begin, as it were, at the top, with ideas that are obtained by lack of proper training, and in the course of time find themselves where they should have begun years ago.

What a young man neglects before his thirtieth birthday, he can never redeem.

It is the early dollar saved that is the valuable one in later years, and the earlier one begins the sooner he will have a financial standing.

The dollar judiciously invested at the age of twenty, will have accumulated at the age of sixty about sixteen dollars, whereas the dollar invested in like manner at the age of thirty, will have accumulated at the age of sixty only about eight dollars.

The most important thing obtained while meeting with financial success is an established record, which is worth far more than wealth. A young man with a record is sought for everywhere. There is plenty of room at the top. The demand is growing ever in these stringent times.

These self-made young men and young women are not as a rule among our so-called society people. Society encourages extravagance and dissaption, and that means ruin more or less, sooner or later, morally, physically, and financially.

Is it true? a more beautiful spring we have never beheld, or are we fanciful. But it does seem to us that things never appeared quite so beautiful. Every tree and bush of the nowery kind never seemed under such a weight of blossoms, nor the air so freighted with sweet perfume. There have been no storms to ruffle a bloom or scar a leaf, and all nature does seem to unfold itself with unusual perfection, and, despite all the dark shadows that crowd themselves into our lives here as we look abroad, we cannot refrain from exclaiming, it is a beautiful world after all! Yet, in its brightest aspect, it is but a counterpart to the world where the flowers eternal bloom in richness beyond all conception, and where the glowing light is so effulgent, earth in all its brightness would be but a shadow. Let us live for a better and still more beautiful and grander world than this, where joys are eternal and the brightness never fades.

It is often easier to be a martyr for a cause than to be a labourer in it—it's finished sooner; but the real good is done by those who go on, day by day, doing what we can do, and we can do to the best advantage, often is simply to see that our own hearts and lives are right. The most intense egotism manifested by those who presumptiously assume that they can "help" everyone they meet. It is noble to live for others; yes, but it is a crime to neglect ourselves.

• • • •

Let but every mother demand of the young man who asks her daughter's hand in marriage the same purity of character which he demands of the young lady and a great many men who are now fortunate enough to procure pure, noble young women as wives, would be compelled to go through life in dismal bachlorhood.

• • • •

The woman who keeps the simplicity of her girhood, its generous impulses and quick sympathies, and who adds to her natural gifts the enlargement of study and the crown of experience, is always at her best and never past it.

• • • •

Nowhere so easily and naturally can a child be taught correct habits neatness, politeness, respect for age, modesty and gentleness as at home.

• • • •

If we do not help rid the world of temptations and snares, how can we expect our own household to be preserved from them.

• • • •

The pleasant things in the world are pleasant thoughts and the act of life is to have as many of them as possible.

• • • •

Our brighter joys come to us when we do things angels would like to do.

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By DR. DAVID H. REEDER

Our Boys and Girls: There are many hundreds of thousands, yes, millions, of children who will never receive advantages that might be theirs did their parents but know of this club work.

Personally, I do not believe, as many do, that it is necessary for the little ones to have measles, chicken pox, whooping cough, etc., and do beliebe that if the child is properly fed and cared for he will not have any such diseases. All parents should, however, have a knowledge of that form of treatment which is most effecive, yet simple and harmless, and in the Home Health Club books the various treatments of such ailments are easy to carry out, inexpensive and dependable. There is one thing, that I want to talk to you about first, and that is the mistaken idea that many parents have regarding the relative strength and proper activity of boys and girls. The late Dr. Alice B. Stockham, who was one of the real friends of humanity, said in her great work, "Tokology":

"The restraint placed upon young girls, according to the usages of society, at the time when they most need exercise and muscular development, is not only mistaken wisdom, but a cruel physical wrong. They must be ladylike So, perforce, they must not jump nor skip; they must not run up stairs two steps at a time like a boy. No romping allowed! The physical freedom which is everywhere accorded to a boy, and by which he unconsciously fits himself for manhood, is forbidden the girl. So she grows up without strength of nerve or muscle, and readily becomes a victim to all the ills that woman is heir to. A very little care and planning devoted to this subject would bring to women both health and happiness. A naturally frail girl may be developed into a hearty and vigorous young woman, and this, too, without unduly subjecting her to the mortification of singularity. Neither is it necessary, to preserve health, that her thorough education should be neglected. The hue and cry that has been raised against the higher education of a woman, on the ground of her physical incapacity to endure severe mental training, is not well founded. The fact is that girls and women can bear study, but they cannot bear compressed viscera, tortured stomachs, and misplaced organs. The impure air almost universal in schoolrooms has much to answer for in alleged incapacity of girls for mental wear and tear. Give pure air and right training, loose and light clothing, and unimpaired digestion, and our girls will in due time prove to the world that, notwithstanding a vigorous pursuit of study, "a girl is just as good as a boy." Outdoor games and amusements are becoming more and more fashionable. Among those lawn tennis, croquet, archery, bean-bags, and tricycling are healthful and popular in their tendency."

I think it might also be well at the same time to put in a word for the boys, and especially those brought up on the farm. They are generally required to work far beyond what their rapidly growing bones and muscles ought to bear. I have seen brown, manly little fellows, proud of their ability to help father, accomplish tasks that should only have been performed by strong, healthy men. Sometimes also they are required to labour without any chance for play. This deprives them of one of the essentials to good health. "A good time," in the good, old-fashioned way, should never be denied to the boys on the farm—coasting, tobogganing, skating, snowballing, and all other outdoor sports in winter; baseball, tennis, croquet swimming, running, jumping, climbing in the summer.

No matter if there is lots of work to be done and help hard to get, the the time of boys and girls—and of grown-up people as well—should be divided into about three different parts: Eight hours for sleep, eight hours for work, and eight hours for play recreation, or rest. In the home where this rule is followed, peace, health and prosperity will much more surely rest than in the homes where there is all work and no play. What profit is there in forcing children to toil like slaves, and then be compelled to spend all they have earned and more, in paying the doctor's bill? This principle could also be applied with great advantage to the lives of wives and mothers as well as boys and girls. In this day of inventive genius, there is no necessity for the severe toil of the early pioneers, and if every human being devoted even six hours out of twenty-four to labour there would be an abundance and to spare for all. But, of course, the time will never come when all will do their share. Therefore, each one must seek to surround his own home and those of his neighbours with as nearly ideal conditions as possible.

With boys and girls, their studies at school should be considered a part of their daily toil. But the change from that work to the usual charms of helping mother, for the girl, and caring for portion of the stock, for the boys, should not be irksome, and is not to most boys and girls, for as a rule, if allowed to do such work in their own way, it becomes play, and is a source of great satisfaction instead of annoyance.

Club Notes.

I will gladly answer all inquiries for information on health subjects from readers of this publication, if same are addressed to Home Health Club, 3069 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago. Send full name and address, with four cents' postage.

Dear Doctor,—I am in great perplexity, A neighbor has la grippe, accompanied by bad pains in right side. I wished to apply fomentations. The doctor in attendance would have nothing but dry, hot salt—nothing moist. Now, when shall we apply dry and when moist applications?—B. R.

Hot, moist fomentations are always indicated in cases of congestion, and such a condition nearly always exists in cases of la grippe, unless they are properly applied they do more harm than good. Therefore, unless you explain to the doctor how and why you used them, he did right in forbidding their use and recommending the dry, hot salt.

As a general rule, in cases of la grippe, fomentations should be applied to the feet and limbs first, then another to spine from the neck downward to about the middle of the back. After these have been well placed, cold compresses can usually be placed to the chest and throat to great advantage.

A complete cure will usually rapidly follow if the other directions for the cure of la grippe are followed. These were given in this department not long ago, and may now be found in Vol. 3 of the Home Health Club books.

HOT WEATHER AILMENTS!

A medicine that will keep children well is a great boon to every mather. This is just what Baby's Own Tablets do. An occasional dose keeps the little stomach and bowels right and prevents sickness. During the hot summer months stomach troubles speedily turn to fatal diarrhoea or cholera infantum, and if Baby's Own Tablets are not at hand the child may die within a few hours. Wise mothers always keep the Tablets in the house and give their children an occasional dose to clear out the stomach and bowels and keep them well. Don't wait till baby is ill—the delay may cost a precious life. Get the Tablets now and you may feel reasonably safe. Every mother who uses the Tablets praises them, and that is the best evidence that there is no other medicine for children so good. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Co., Brockville, Ont.

Mother in Vacation

The bungalow up in the woods, or down on the shore is a splendid place for the family to rest and recuperate from winter pursuits. After a trying day in town, the husband and father will step off the commuter's train into the clear air of the woods or shore colony and oust dull care away until next morning. The children will romp like little Indians in the sun all day and older boys and girls will gather a new store of health for school in the autumn. But the mother of the family, unless the whole family take great thought and give great care to the matter, will probably derive little benefit from the summer of semi-roughing it. On her all the responsibilities and burdens will fall, and what share of out-door fun she gets she must squeeze in between household duties. With insufficient help in the kitchen, a lack of running water, oil lamps to care for instead of convenient electricity, a contrary oil stove to cope with instead of the good gas range at home, and butcher, grocer and baker shops miles away and unconnected by phone, she must keep the household going day after day, feed out-of-door appetites, prepare for week-end guests, and generally assume the burden of making everybody comfortable, contented and happy.

Little inconveniences that are fun to those less concerned in the smooth running of the domestic machinery, become real problems and trials to her. Only when every member of the family assumes special care of mother and undertakes to do regularly and faithfully his or her appointed part of the daily tasks is the glorious summer at the bungalow of real benefit and joy to her.

The wise woman will also endeavour to keep the bungalow life as simple as may be. It is really not a vital matter that the supper dishes shall be washed immediately, when a superb sunset is over the bay and someone proposes taking the motor boat out, yet how many mothers of families would not "rather stay at home and wash the dishes" than go out on the bay, in like circumstances? One mother of four hearty boys and girls has a right good time with them all summer long in a jolly bungalow near a lake. The work is so systematized and apportioned and the various tasks are performed so cheerily and unargumentatively that mother has plenty of time to enjoy the outdoor sports with the rest of the family.

At the beginning of the week the meals are planned out, supplies are ordered in bulk, and thereafter things go by routine, each cog in the wheel doing that cog's part in pushing the machinery around.

A YEAR INDOORS

"For thirteen months I was so bad with chronic indigestion that I could not go out of doors. Nerves were unstrung, the heart bad and smothing feelings came on till I thought I would choke. Doctors' treatment failed me, so I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I thank for my present good health. I am now doing my housework and have a family of ten."

CHOICE RECIPES

Cherry Pudding.

Butter stale slices of sponge cake and pour over them stewed cherries. Serve cold with creamy sauce, made as follows: One-fourth cup butter, one-half cup powdered sugar, two tablespoons milk, two tablespoons of cherry juice. Cream butter, add the sugar gradually, add milk and the cherry juice drop by drop. Use care in adding liqlids so that the sauce will not curdle.

Ham Salad.

Chop one cupful of cooked ham very fine. Soak one tabespoonful of gelatine in one tablespoonful of cold water for half an hour, then dissolve in one cupful of hot water with one teaspoonful each of onion juice and chopped parsley. Add to the ham and stir occasionally until the mixture thickens; fold in one cupful of whipped cream and add one-half saltspoonful of paprika. Form into little basket shaped moulds and when set partly fill each little pink basket with mayonnaise. Surround with tiny lettuce leaves and simulate handles by two arched plumes of parsley. Placed on pretty plates these form a delectable decorature, fancy.

Redpath SUGAR

"I'VE three good reasons, Mother, for buying sugar in these sealed REDPATH Cartons.

"In the first place, I am sure of getting genuine REDPATH. Then, too, I know it is perfectly clean and pure, for it has never been exposed or handled. And the third reason is that this Carton makes the handiest sugar box you ever saw. I just clip off the corner, and the sugar runs out beautifully, as I want it."

"You are lucky, daughter. Ever since I've kept house I have always ordered REDPATH Sugar—and generally got it—but with these original packages you are always sure of the genuine, in perfect condition."

REDPATH Extra Granulated Sugar is put up in 2 and 5 pound Sealed Cartons and in 10, 20, 50 and 100 pound Cloth Bags—a size to suit every home. 79

THE BEST HUMOR OF THE WEEK

"Henry, you look very pale. What's the trouble?"

"I was stung to the quick by an adder this afternoon."

"How did it happen?"

Why, I dropped in at the bank and the bookkeeper told me my account was overdrawn.

The head of a certain well-known family was recently approached by his son, just nearing his majority.

"Father," said he, "I want to have a talk with you concerning my future. I have decided to become an artist. Have you any objection?"

"Well, no, my son—provided, of course, you don't draw on me."

Baggs and Jaggs met, and Baggs and Jaggs got yarning.

"I once knew a man, dear boy," began Baggs, "who was so ticklish on the soles of his feet that whenever he took a bath he had to walk about afterwards on a big piece of blotting paper. It was the only method of foot-drying that wouldn't throw him into fits."

"That's nothing, my dear fellow," retorted Jaggs. "I used to board at a place where the landlady was so nervous that whenever the wind blew she had to go out and grease the corners of the house, so that the wind wouldn't creak when it went round them."

A very stout old lady, strolling in a park on a remarkably hot day, became aware that she was being followed by a tramp.

"What do you mean by following me in this manner?" she demanded, indignantly.

The tramp slunk back a little, but when the stout lady resumed her walk he again took up his position directly behind her.

"Look here," she exclaimed, angrily, "if you don't go away I shall call a policeman!"

"For Heaven's sake, kind lady," urged the tramp, looking at her appealingly, "have mercy and don't call a policeman! You're the only shady spot in the whole park!"

"Have you ever heard Jimkins relate about the time he got halfway up Mount Blanc with one of his little nephews and no guide?" asked one man of another.

"How long ago did he tell you about it?" was the evasive reply.

"Last year, when he'd just got home," said the first man.

"Well," said the other, "in eight months since then he has climbed the rest of the way, succoured a fainting guide and sustained a snow-storm on the summit, resuscitated two benumbed strangers on the way down, and guided the entire party to the foot, where a group of frantic relatives was waiting."

New Proprietor of Public-house (that levies a fine for every swear-word). "'Ere, Bill, that's a penny you owe to the parson's swear-box."
Bill. "I'd better do what I done afore—put a 'arf-crown in and 'ave a season-ticket."

"Think what a woman's curiosity will do," he said solemnly. "Pot's wife looked round, and she turned into a pillar of salt."

"But how about yourself?" said his wife. "I saw you look round the other day, and you turned into a public house."

A German farmer was in search of a horse.

"I've got just the horse for you," said the dealer. "He's five years old, sound as a nut, and goes ten miles without stopping."

The German threw his head skyward.

"Not for me," he said, "not for me. I lif eight miles from town, and mit dot horse I should haf to valk back two miles."

A Mistake Somewhere.

"Our minister," said Mrs. Oldcastle, "appears to be a real altruist."

"Oh, I think you must be mistaken!" replied Mrs. Gottalotte. "It seems to me by the sound of his voice that he must be a bass."

A lawyer was arguing a case before a certain judge between whom and himself there was no love lost. The judge listened for a while with ill-concealed impatience, and then burst out with:

"Tut, tut! Mr. W——, you have your points of law all upside down!"

"I don't doubt that they seem so to your honor," replied Mr. W——; "but you'll think differently when your honor is reversed."

The farmer was walking comfortably and happily along the lane leading to his own homestead when suddenly out sprang a strange dog. He yelled for assistance, and his cry was heard by his wife. But, alas! when she came upon him the dog had already fastened his teeth in her loved one's calf. Quickly she picked up a stone, and was just about to hurl it when the husband realized the new and terrible danger he was now exposed to, but with presence of mind he called to her:

She looked at him doubtfully after the proposal. "The man I marry," she said, "must be both brave and brainy."

"Well," he declared, "I think I can lay just claim to being both."

"I admit you are brave," she responded, "for you saved my life when our boat upset the other day; but that wasn't brainy, was it?"

"It certainly was," he retored. "I upset the boat on purpose."

The sergeant was in a bad temper, consequently the recruits under instruction were having a bad time of it. The squad had to "'About turn!" so many times in a few seconds that it was no wonder the recruits got dizzy, and one of them finished up by turning about the wrong way.

The sergeant, striding up to him, roared, "Where the dickens do you reckon yourself to be, eh? On parade or what?"

"Well, sergeant," replied the other meekly, "I began to think I was at a fancy dress ball dressed up as a dancing leg o' mutton and twisting myself and round you a maze-lick."

Why

I loved her not because she was
A heart-disturbing beauty. No,
I did not lose my heart to her
Because her voice was sweet and low.

If you must know the reason why,
To give the answer, here I pause:
She never piped that stereotyped,
That non-committal "Just because."

Hemandhaw's coat was fastened shut with a safety pin. "Button broke off a few days ago," he half apologetically explained to Umsoo.

"Haven't you any patent buttons?"

"Yes, plenty of them; but they're all in use."

"You're a married man, aren't you?"

"You know I am."

"Then why doesn't your wife sew on some buttons for you?"

"She hasn't time."

"What keeps her so busy?"

"It's her club work. You see, she holds an important office in a sewing society that meets four times a week."

Wood Nymphs—and Others.

A wood nymph is a rarity
That makes but small appeal to me.
So many softer nymphs there be,
I never, never, never could
Grow daffy o'er one made of wood!

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE WORM TURNED

"I wish you'd cut up some wood for me to-day, Sam, seeing it's your day off. I had to tear two old boards off the shed to get wood enough to get dinner with, and you over to Brown's all the morning lazying 'round." So said Mrs. oJnes, a faded, dejected little woman, as she stood in the doorway watching her good-natured, shiftless husband, as he clumsily tried to fasten a hook on an old fishline.

"Oh, go 'long, Mandy. I can't stop now. I'll stave up that old fence when I get home. Bill is waiting for me to go fishing with him. Never mind about much supper," he said, as he shouldered his pole and pocketed his tin of bait, "just some crackers and milk will be enough for me." And he slouched off down the path to the road.

"There! Ain't that just like Sam Jones? An' he knows the cow's gone dry a week ago. I'm so tired seems as if I should drop," she said wearily as she picked up the pail at her side and went out into the broiling sun after a pail of water. The well was quite a distance from the house, down a steep, rocky path, and the filled pail was almost more than she could carry back.

* * *

She entered the house, setting the pail on a little shelf by the sink, then dropped heavily into a chair at the end of the Ettoben table. The room was poorly furnished with little regard for convenience. An old wood stove, dating back at least 50 years, and which could scarcely be persuaded to bake, stood at one side of the room. This, with a few straight-backed chairs and the kitchen table, completed the furnishings, while a handleless dipper, a broken chopping bowl and a paring knife worn almost to the hilt, told the story of continued use after usefulness was over.

The yard in front of the house presented the same forlorn appearance, being overgrown with tall weeds and grass and enclosed by a tumbledown paling fence.

"Oh, dear; I s'pose I've got to go out and tear down some of that fence to get some wood if we have any supper to-night, though, land knows, Sam ones don't deserve one mouthful. I'v torn down all that old hen coop and cut it up for firewood myself; that's all we've had for wood this spring, and he didn't cut a stick of it, either. I'm about sick of it."

So saying, Mrs. Jones rose slowly to her feet and, going out in the yard, took up the axe and started towards the fence. Suddenly she stopped. "I will! I'll do it!" she exclaimed. She turned, walked briskly back, put down the axe, and with a set, determined lok on her face, entered the kitchen. She went to a closet, took out a snowy cloth and carefully covered the table, then put on the dishes, but laid only one plate. In the centre of the table she placed a platter containing a generous slice of raw ham, a plate of raw, unpared potatoes and a bowl of flour while in the teacup beside her husband's plate she put a few tea leaves and some cold water. Then writing a short note she laid it on his plate.

After looking around the room to see that everything was tidy, she stepped to the little hall off the kitchen, took down an old hat and coat and, putting them on, went out, eaving the door unlocked. While going down the path she looked back once at the housefi and the hot tears rushed to her eyes, but she resolutely brushed them away and took the dusty road to the Village.

About 6 o'clock Sam Jones shambled up the path, tired and dusty, carrying three small perch strung on a stick.

"Gosh, but I am hungry to-night! I bet I've tramped 25 miles this afternoon. Guess I'll have Mandy clean and fry these fish for supper. I think I could relish 'em with some of her hot biscuit." So saying, he stepped upon the porch, placed the fish carefully on an old board by the door, hollering, "Well, Mandy, home at last! Here's three fish I wish you'd clean and fry for supper. 'Twon't take long.' No reply, he listened. Everything was still. "Probably sh's had her supper and gone after the cow. Well, never mind the fish to-night. I can eat my supper while she feeds and waters the hens."

He opened the door and went into the kitchen. There was no fire.

His conscience smote him as he remembered his oft-repeated promise to cut some wood. Never mind, he'd do it after supper. Then he noticed the table and the folded paper on his plate. With chalk-like he reached it and opening it read:

"Dear Sam—I've stood things as they are long enough. When you can give me a good supply of wood all cut and things to work with such as other women have and which you are well able to provide, I will come back to you and not before. I have gone to Aunt Sarah's. Mandy."

He stood holding the note as if dazed. What, Mandy left him? He'd as soon expected the sun to fall. Slowly his mind grasped the significance of it, and groping blindly for his hat, he went out the door and down the dusty road with the slow, faltering gait of an old man.

The next week the old place seemed teeming with activity. Furniture trucks and the plumber's waggon were seen before the old farmhouse. Meanwhile Mrs. Jones was with her aunt, although her heart ached as she thought of her dear, clumsy Sam getting his own meals.

One afternoon she was sitting on the piazza with a book before her when suddenly she was clasped in two strong arms.

"Come, Mandy," Sam said, as he imprinted a hearty smack upon her lips," "get your hat on and come home with me. I've got things spruced up some now."

Joyfully she ran into the house for her coat and hat. Never mind if things were not fixed up much, as long as Sam wanted her.

They drove rapidly homeward. When they came in sight of the house she could hardly believe her eyes. The house was painted white, looking like a gem set in the closely shaven green of the yard, and enclosed by a new white fence; while at the end of the house rose a huge circular pile of wood all cut up.

Driving up to the door they got out and, tremblingly, she entered the kitchen. She stopped, gazing in amazement and delight. The humble room had been transformed. There was a new linoleum on the floor, a kitchen cabinet stood between the windows, a new glistening range had taken the place of the old rusty stove, while over the sink were two faucets for hot and cold water.

So wrapt was she in the contemplation of her new treasures that she failed to hear the heavy footsteps behind her. Sam entered the room and stood silently beside her a moment, then turning to her, a tenderly solemn smile lighting up his rugged old face, he put his arms around her and, drawing her to him, said:

"Well, wife, with the help of God I'll always do right by you hereafter and we'll begin again where we left off when we returned from our honeymoon 16 years ago."

Lived Like a Miser and Died Without a Will, Leaving all His Wealth to Heirs

HOUSTON, Tex., July 10.—Frank A. Ogden, who was found dead in a small, poorly furnished room in a lodging-house here recently, left an estate valued at more than $10,000,000 though only $10,000,000 has as yet been uncovered by the two temporary administrators Andral Vann and N. B. Knight, by their examination of deeds and other private papers found in a safety deposit vault of the Union National Bank of Houston.

Ogden was miserly. One of his requirements was that his breakfast should not cost him more than 9 cents, his dinner not to exceed 20 cents, and his supper not more than 15 cents. His living expenses were kept down to a maximum of $25 a month, even when travelling. He was eighty-one years old when he died.

It was about ten years ago that Mr. Ogden first appeared here. He became a familiar figure upon the streets and in the offices of real estate agents. He was generally regarded as some poor and eccentric person. To lessen expenses he shared hit little room at the Burnett Hotel with another lodger, who never suspected that the old man was very wealthy.

First Clues to Wealth.

When, after his death, a battered old trunk in his room was opened, it revealed memoranda indicating valuable properties. The proper authorities were notified ,a safe and a deposit box were opened, and there came to light a mass of evidence of the vast estate which the man had left. He had been dead two days before his identity was established.

In his trunk and in the safe deposit box were found memorandum books filled with notations of land purchased in Texas, Louisiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, and other states. He owned nearly 200,000 acres in Texas alone. One tract of 10,721 acres is near Galveston and is valued at $1,500,000. Another tract of 100,000 acres in the Panhandle is valued at upward of $1,000,000. Not long ago he paid $400,000 for a 40,000-acre tract near Lake Charles, La. He owned a five-storey hotel in Madison, Wis., and also owned a large hotel in Superior, Wis., and large blocks of buildings in other towns of that state, and in Minnesota and Illinois. His property interests in Chicago were extensive. It is stated that he recently offered to pay $100,000 cash for a piece of property in Wisconsin for which he was negotiating.

His home before coming to Houston was in Madison, Wis. He left there because the municipal authorities declined his offer to donate a site for a public library, it is said.

No Will—Lots of Kin.

No will has been found. Judge Sam Streetman, of Houston, who looked after Mr. Ogden's legal affairs in Texas, says:

"In almost my last conversation with him, I suggested that he make a will. He seemed interested, but apparently let the matter drop."

Ogden was reared on a farm, in Central Indiana. He and his brother, with a small sum that they were able to raise, went to Chicago and invested it in property just after the great fire. He afterwards acquired his brother's property interests. He still owned some of the original holdings that he bought in Chicago in those early days. He was a nephew of William B. Ogden, the first mayor of Chicago.

THIN FOLKS WHO WOULD BE FAT

Increase in Weight Ten Pounds or More

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE.

"I'd certainly give most anything to be able to fat up a few 'pounds and stay that way," declares every excessively thin man or woman. Such result is not impossible, despite past failures. This people are victims of mal-nutrition, a condition which prevents the fatty elements of food from being taken up by the blood as they are when the powers of nutrition are normal. Instead of getting into the blood, all the fat and flesh producing elements stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste.

To correct this condition and to produce a healthy, normal amount of fat the nutritive processes must be artificially supplied with the power which nature has denied them. This can best be accomplished by eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is a scientific combination of six of the best strength giving, fat-producing elements known to the medical profession. Taken with meals, it mixes with the food and turns the sugars and starches into rich, ripe nourishment for the tissues and blood and its rapid effect is remarkable. Reported gains of from ten to twenty-five pounds in a single month are by no means infrequent. Yet its action is perfectly natural and absolutely harmless. Sargol is sold by good druggists everywhere and every package contains a guarantee of weight increase or money back.

Caution:—While Sargol has produced remarkable results in the treatment of nervous indigestion and general stomach disorders, it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh producing effect, be used by those who are not willing to increase their weight ten pounds or more.

Authority On Longevity Plans Life Span At Century Mark

LONDON, July 10.—"Don't stop work at 70; do more of it," remarked Sir Gilbert Parker, of London, England, a few days ago, and Sir James Crichton Browne, an acknowledged authority on longevity, agrees with Sir Gilbert thoroughly.

"If you want feeble and miserable old age give up working," said Sir James, who, although born as long ago as 1840, is one of the busiest men in the United Kingdom to-day. "The most vigorous period of human life in its entirety is obviously between 35 and 40 years of age," he added, "but to say that men above the latter age are comparatively useless is to fly in the face of the biographical dictionary. Much of the best work of the world has been done by men over 40, and we should by no means stand where we are, but be back in the twilight ages if bereft of what these men accomplished.

"Musical expression, like speech, reaches its acme in late middle life. But higher in the cerebral hierarchy than speech or music centres are others concerned in the manifestation of purely intellectual powers, such as reason and judgment, which come to perfection late, and may long preserve their integrity. A preponderance of the work involving calm and powerful reason is done by men from 65 to 70 years of age. Our judicial system in this country has been built up mainly by judges from 65 to 85 years of age ,and in almost all countries the most momentous affairs of state have been reserved for the decision of men at this time of life.

"And even memory, so often treacherous in old age, may be preserved intact. Dr. Dollinger, when 70 years old and cursed by insomnia, learned by heart three books and the 'Odyssey,' in order that he might be able to repeat them to himself in the silent watches of the night. Henry Dandolo, Gibbon tells us, was elected Doge of Venice when 84 and lived till 97, shining in the last year as one of the most illustrious men of his time.

"The way to make old age prevish and repulsive is to rob it of the hopes by which it is sustained and tranquilised. Depend on it, the best antiseptic against senile decay is an active interest in human affairs, and those who keep young longest who have most. It is a cogent argument against celibacy and the limitation of families that they deprive old age of those vernal influences in which parents renew their youth.

"We are justified in holding that, given favourable conditions and barring serious accidents, 100 years is the normal duration of man's life, the goal which we should hold in view and at which, if we guide our footsteps aright, an ever increasing number of men and women should arrive."

Sir James added that very often old age was made feeble and decrepid because of the maladies of early life. All these maladies leave their footprints behind them, and in aged men were often found the tracks of measles or the marks of whooping cough

NEURITIS FOLLOWS CRIPPLED NERVES

Painful Effects of Chronic Rheumatism Quickly Routed by Rheuma.

If your nerves are all crippled from attacks of Rheumatism. Neuritis can easily get a strong hold on the nerves. This most painful disease is one of the hardest known to expel, but RHEUMA can reach it if given a chance. This testimony is positive proof:

"Last March I was so crippled with Neuritis in left limb I could walk scarcely at all. Tried all remedies I heard of and had two physicians. Nothing did me any good until I used RHEUMA—$2.00 worth of your medicines surely cured me. —Mrs. C. E. Hayes, Russell, Ky.

BURNING WATER.

Coal Wet Gives a Much Larger Amount of Heat Than When Dry.

Dry coal does not produce as much heat as coal that is considerably damp. It is, of course, a fact that a greater heat makes the fuel more valuable, and it is essential to know how to secure the most from ordinary fuel.

Coal that is to be burned in a furnace, a stove or a grate for immediate heat will produce nearly one-fourth more heat when wet than when dry. Coal that is to be placed in a stove or furnace to be closed up so as to produce a long continued, moderate heat will produce a little more than one-third more heat if there is plenty of moisture than can be secured if the coal is real dry.

Large lumps of coal can be soaked in a pail of water for a half hour, and the heat will be increased nearly one-half. This is done in cases where the lumps are used in stoves tightly closed, such as those known as air tight furnaces.

Several pails of water thrown over a ton of coal will increase its value greatly to the consumer. Coal will burn briskly in wet and almost airless mines, and it is said the heat is intense. When there is a fire and the coal pile burns it is difficult to drown that portion of the fire with water. We might as well secure a little of the heat stored in burning water as to permit it all to go unused.—Philadelphia North American.

Allah and the Cotton Worm.

"Well, how is the cotton worm now?" said an English cotton worm inspector to an old Egyptian sheik. "Finished. There is none. How can there be cotton worms now? It is more than our life is worth. If we do not pick the cotton worms you fine us, you send us to prison, you take us as prisoners to another man's fields and make us pick his cotton worm. What can we do? And so there is no cotton worm." "And hasn't it saved your cotton this year?" "Assuredly, the praise to Allah." "Then won't you do all this picking next year without us coming to make you do it?" "No." "Why?" "Because that is the way Allah made us!"

A GLIMPSE OF MANCHURIA.

The Wind Whipped Natives and its Empty Brown Wastes.

Manchuria means an interminable brown plain—dry stubble, endless, empty furrows to be filled by and by with millet, kaoliang, waving, wonderful green plumage, high as a man and higher, in which not many years ago the Japanese hid whole armies.

Today it is the emptiest, most silent spot in Asia. It spreads out flat and tranquil in unthinkable forgetfulness. The sun beats down fiercely out of a deep, unbroken field of turquoise blue. The air is biting cold. A sudden breath of it is like a slap. A great tingling follows and a sense of extraordinary buoyancy. One feels impelled to laugh, to shout, to strike out, to do violent things. To sleep or sit with folded hands would drive one mad. There is that in the air which compels like the lash of a whip.

These Manchu people are a big, bold faced race, with brown skins whipped dull red by the northern winds. Shapeless bundles of them, hoods pulled over ears, stand at the stations and stamp their feet and beat their arms and watch the trains come in. A straggling line of native soldiers in bungling black uniforms, their heads wound tightly in black turbans, a great splash of blood red lettering across their breasts, present arms rigidly, with bayonets fixed, as the train pulls in and draws out.—From "The Color of the East," by Elizabeth Washburn.

The Spanish government has presented claims for $20,000,000 worth of cotton confiscated by Villa at Torreon. There are Spaniards yet unborn who may collect the money.

Iceland's first railroad is to be begun at once, says a Copenhagen dispatch. We suggest it be called the Isafjardardjup, Snaefardalsnukr and Biruadalsdadr railway—just to give it a good sendoff.

A WEAK HEART

When the heart is weak or irregular in action, when the blood is thin and watery, remember the blood forming qualities of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and by its use flood the system with rich, red vitalising blood. This is Nature's way of curing weakness and disease. It is the only way to ensure lasting benefits.

Neuralgia of the Heart

Mr. James G. Clark, Fosterville, York County, N.B., writes:—"I have been a great sufferer from what the doctors said was neuralgia of the heart. The pain started in the back of the neck and worked down into the region of the heart. Though I had taken a lot of medicine of one kind and another, I could not get anything to help me until I used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

"When I began this treatment I could not rest in bed, except by sitting upright, on account of the dreadful pains about the heart and the quick, loud beating. The change which Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has made in my condition is wonderful. It has entirely overcome these symptoms, and is making me strong and well. If this statement will help to relieve the suffering of others, you are at liberty to use it."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is a true tonic and the greatest of nerve restoratives, 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50; all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited Toronto.

ENTRANCE EXAMINATION RESULTS FOR THE CITY

One Hundred and Eighty Candidates Wrote and One Hundred and Forty-nine Were Successful

ISABEL BAIRD HIGHEST

The number of candidates which wrote was 180. The number who were successful is 149. Total number of marks obtainable 650. Honour standing is given to those who get 75 per cent. or over of the aggregate number of marks, i.e., 487 marks. Pass standing is secured by getting 390 marks, i.e., 60 per cent. of the aggregate and 40 per cent. on each subject.

Isabel Baird stands first with 589 marks, and wins the prize given to the candidate taking the highest marks in the City.

The winners of the other two prizes open to all pupils who tried in Peterborough are Ralph Turner and Muriel Moran.

The marks of the unsuccessful candidates have been mailed to-day.

SHOULD BOIL THE WATER

Medical Health Officer Asks Citizens to Take This Precaution in Regard to Drinking Water

POSSIBLE CONTAMINATION

Citizens are strongly advised to boil their drinking water. Noticing the city water left a reddish stain when left for some time in a vessel, The Examiner interviewed Dr. MacPherson, who suggested the above warning. There is always a certain amount of contamination at this time of the year, said the doctor. Cattle grazing along the banks of the river might possibly cause contamination, and drives of logs sometimes bring with them organic matter.

But whatever the cause, the water at present is sufficiently contaminated to warrant the application of several hundred degrees of heat before using, and citizens should continue to boil their drinking water throughout the hot weather.

C. M. B. A. HAVE LEAD OF 180 OVER C. O. F.

The C. M. B. A. of the Sacred Heart congregation have a lead of 180 points in the popularity contest. The Foresters had an apparently secure position a short time ago, but the C.M.B.A. men and their friends got busy and now have 180 to the good. The close of the contest will be one of the features of the lawn social on Tuesday next.

LONDON, ENG., July 11. — Although no one can tell what may happen in connection with the Orange celebrations between now and Monday, the leaders are endeavouring to keep order. In Belfast the hours of the celebrations are so arranged that the parades will not pass the Nationalist section when the men are off work. The demonstration will be held two miles out of the city and it is probable that many of the paraders will carry revolvers.

Choral Society Holds "Moonlight"

The steamer "Stoney Lake" was the selection of the Peterborough Choral Society to take a moonlight down the Otonabee last evening.

Despite the numerous and enticing counter attractions excursionists to the number of about 200 took in the trip.

Many of these were business people, who were delighted with the opportunity to get away from the close sultry atmosphere which had hung over the city during the day. A delightfully refreshing breeze sprung up as the steamer left the wharf at eight o'clock, and added in no small degree to the enjoyment of the trip which was designated by many as "the best ever."

The cooling atmosphere that prevailed permitted the participants to engage in dancing. Needless to say this pleasure was taken up with a spirit. Music was supplied in an admirable manner by an orchestra which had been engaged for the purpose.

The vocal abilities of several of the passengers were displayed to advantage.

The party returned to the wharf about 11:30 o'clock, all being thoroughly satisfied with the outing that had been provided.

The Choral Society is at present in a flourishing condition and its members are anxiously looking forward to the work which will be undertaken next season.

Another oratorio composed by a noted author is the selection of the committee, and them usic lovers of Peterborough are assured of another treat equal in all respect to "Judas Maccabeaus."

BOLT PASSED THROUGH THE ENGINE ROOM

Crew of Steamer Had Exciting Experience While Crossing Sturgeon Lake in a Storm

NO ONE WAS HURT

Lindsay Warder—The captain and crew and a few passengers on board the steamer Lintonia had a thrilling experience last evening about 6:30 o'clock, as the trim little steamer was plying her course across Sturgeon Lake to Greenhurst, adjacent to Thuratonia. A fierce electrical storm was passing around further north and the rolls of thunder appeared to be quite close, but Sturgeon and Pleasant Points were thought to be out of the danger zone. However, such did not prove to be the case, as a lightning bolt from the blue shot through the steamer with rapidity, pasing through the boiler room and out across the waters on the other side of the boat.

It was all over in the twinkling of an eye, and amazing as it may appear no person was injured, although the engineer was dazed for an instant and another of the crew had his officer's cap carried away by the impact. Mr. Clarence Fisher, who was also on board, felt the effects of the lightning and was dazed for a short time.

The wonder is that the bolt did not strike home and shatter the steamer. As it was, it was a very narrow escape and an experience that Captain Grey and his men certainly do not wish to pass through again.

No Parade in New York City

Examiner Special:

NEW YORK, July 11. — There will be no general parade of Orangemen on July 12th here partly because it is Sunday and partly because the United States Orangemen are divided in opinion on the matter of Home Rule for Ireland. Individual lodges, however, are holding picnics this afternoon.

Majority Is Still Doubtful

Special to The Examiner:

WINNIPEG, July 11. — Roblin's majority is still doubtful. The Morning Telegram (Conservative) claims twenty-five government supporters and twenty-one opposition, but the Free Press (Liberal) says twenty-three Conservatives and 21 Liberals, with two ridings in doubt—St. Ross and St. George. There will be several contested seats and deferred elections

DESIRED TO GO AHEAD AND BUILD SIDEWALK

The Board of Works on motion of Aldermen Johnston and Saunders last night decided to build the sidewalk in front of Nos. 39 and 80 George street, the residences of the Desautel brothers. One of the gentlemen wanted the sidewalk and the other protested vehemently against the laying of a concrete sidewalk there. The Board last night adhered to their usual policy of not allowing one man's objections to hold up the building of a sidewalk requested by other parties.

DISTURBANCES WERE REPORTED LAST NIGHT

Apparently the marauders who have of late been operating in this city were at work again last night, for noises heard in the vicinity of Rink street about 2 o'clock last night brought the residents out with clubs and stones, but no one could be seen. The whole force of the police were out during the night but apart from the above, no sign of activity prevailed. It is learnt that the coloured man who evaded the police was discharged from the circus several days ago, and incidentally it may be remarked that suspicion is not centred in that organization so much as to prevent the concensus of opinion from impeaching some unscrupulous unknowns of taking advantage of the presence of the show.

Mr. R. Foster, of Wolfe street, may thank his dog for preventing a possible robbery, for when Liddell's house was broken into the night before last, the expressman's door was also tried, but the vocal activity of the dog drove the visitor away.

STORSTAD IS BLAMED FOR THE DISASTER

Commission's Report Says That the Third Officer of the Collier Was Responsible For Accident

CHANGED HIS COURSE

QUEBEC CITY, July 11—The judgment of Lord Mersey's commission, delivered to-day, holds the steamer "Storstad" responsible for the "Empress of Ireland" disaster, because the Third Officer of the Norwegian collier changed his course without orders from the First Officer, who was the Navigating Officer in charge.

In delivering judgment, Lord Mersey said that in the opinion of the Commission Captain Kendall would have been better advised to give the Storstad a wider berth, but the Commission did not consider that a contributing cause to the collision. Dealing with the porting of the Storstad's helm the report says that the Commission is unable to accept the view that it was done to counteract the effect of current and as an act of prudent navigation. "We are of the opinion," the report proceeds, "that Chief Officer Tuftnes, of the "Storstad" was negligent in omitting to call the Captain when the fog was coming on. The Captain is the man who ought to have been there."

"We can come to no other conclusion than that Chief Officer Tuftnes of the Storstad was wrong and negligent in altering his course in the fog, as he undoubtedly did, and that he was wrong and negligent in keeping the navigation of the vessel in his own hands and in failing to call the Captain when he saw the fog coming on."

The section closes with the remark that the disaster is not to be attributed to any characteristic of the St. Lawrence route.

The recommendations of the Commission include the closing of all water tight doors in foggy weather and wherever practical all water tight doors and portholes below the water level should be closed at sea and kept closed to sun rise. Also that rafts be placed on the deck in such a position that they will float automatically as the ship sinks.

The report deals at length with the question of navigation, the life-saving appliances, and the measures taken to save life. In the last connection the report adds that although there was confusion there was no lack of discipline. No complaint could be made of the conduct of those on board the Storstad in the matter of quick work in life saving.

CONTRACT FOR STREET PAVING WAS DIVIDED

Foley and Gleason Lowest Bidders, Get Two-thirds of the Work and Warren Bituminous Co. Awarded Contract for Remainder

$2000 DIFFERENCE

The contracts for street paving were awarded at last night's Board of Works meeting and, as a result, of its consideration of the matter, the firm of Foley and Gleason will pave all of the streets for which tenders were called west of George street and the Warren Bituminous Company the streets east of George Street. The division means that the former will pave 20,919 square yards and the latter about 9,000 square yards.

As announced in Thursday's Examiner there were four tenders received for the work, but owing to the fact that the Wood Block Pavement is so much more expensive than the others, and for other reasons, it did not receive very much consideration as far as the present work was concerned. Then, at last night's meeting Mr. Wm. Lytle, who tendered for all the work but the actual wearing surface of the pavement, announced that he was willing to withdraw his tender. He felt that even if he were awarded the contract there was a probability of friction between him and the company laying the wearing surface that would not be in the best interests of those concerned.

For the same reason and because the fact of Mr. Lytle doing one part of the work might affect the guarantee, the City Engineer suggested that the paving companies do all the work in connection with any pavement they might lay. He recommended that the lowest tender, which was that of Foley and Gleason, be accepted.

The division of the contract between the two companies was the result of a feeling on the part of the Board that they should not "put all their eggs in one basket." The tender of Foley and Gleason was $89,138.81, and that of the Warren Paving Co. $84,419.90. But, while expressing themselves as perfectly satisfied with Foley and Gleason's work in the past, the members of the Board felt that they would like to see another kind of pavement on some of the streets of Peterborough, and therefore decided to give the Warrn Bituminous Company a third of their work, so that the pavement can be tested right in Peterborough. The Foley and Gleason Co., as their tender was the lowest, got the lion's share of the work.

As the rival companies had both tendered for 30,000 yards of pavement their representatives were called in and both agreed to pave the 30,000 and the 10,000 square yards at the same figure per yard as their tender called for.

Mr. Gleason also promised to put a half-inch binder of asphalt immediately below the wearing surface, at an extra cost of 10c. a yard to the Company) without adding anything to the cost of the pavement. The City Engineer agreed with him that this extra half-inch would increase the value and permanency of the pavement and, after the meeting, drew up an agreement which bound the Company to put in the extra layer of asphalt.

It was on the motion of Aldermen Stration and Johnson that it was decided to give the Bituminous people the contract for paving the streets east of George Street, and the Foley and Gleason Co. the contract for paving the streets east of George street, and the Foley and Gleason Co. the contract for all the streets west of George Street. It was Ald. Johnson who first suggested the splitting of the contract and his idea was endorsed by the rest of the Board, who agreed that both pavements were of the best class, and should therefore be both represented on the streets of Peterborough. City Engineer Parsons expressed the opinion that it would be a good thing to have the different pavements in the City.

Now that the Bithulithic pavement will be laid on Water Street, from Brock to Charlotte, and on Simcoe, Brock, and Charlotte Streets, between George and Water, it will be an excellent opportunity for the Councils of the succeeding years to determine the relative merits of the two roadways. It is interesting to note that if the residents on Aylmer Street are successful in blocking the

FREE LESSONS IN SWIMMING

Y.M.C.A. Will Throw Its Swimming Tank Open Next Week for the Benefit of Non-Swimmers

CHANCE FOR EVERYONE

The summer activities of the Y.M.C.A. are in full swing, and it is the intention of the Association to hold swimming classes all next week for those who can not swim. The necessity of such a plan is clearly evident from the number of drowning fatalities we read about every day, and the danger of drowning by a boat upsetting, in swimming, or in other manner is greatly decreased if a person is able to swim. By learning this art you may be able to save the life of another person.

Free swimming lessons will be given any boys in the City who can't swim, every day next week, starting Monday, from 2 to 3.30 o'clock. In the evenings of next week Mr. aOsan, the physical director, will give free lessons to any men who wish to learn to swim.

WILL OPEN NEW BUSINESS COLLEGE

Mr. E. S. Hudson, of Ottawa, Will Occupy Hunter St. Premises

Mr. E. S. Hudson, of Ottawa, is in the City, arranging to open a business college here. Mr. Hudson has secured the premises opposite the Oriental, and steps will be taken at once to equip these rooms for the accomomdation of students. The school will be open for pupils on the first of September. All branches of commercial work will be taught, including a class in Civil Service. Mr. Hudson instructed a class in Civil Service in Ottawa, and is familiar with the courses. The Gregg system of shorthand will be taught.

Referring to Mr. Hudson's departure from Ottawa, the Citizen says:

"After four years' connection with the Gowling Business College as commercial master, E. S. Hudson leaves to-day to enter business for himself at Peterborough, Ont., where he will open a new business college. Mr. Hudson is well known in Ottawa, and was a prominent member of the McLeod Street Methodist church choir, and of the male quartett of that church.

"Mr. Hudson was born at Walkerton, Ont. He is the holder of a second class teacher's certificate, and taught in a public school for a time. Later he attended the Central Business College of Stratford, and after graduating, taught for a year there. He then became bookkeeper for E. Long Mfg. Co., of Orillia, Ont. After gaining practical experience in the business world with this firm, he was engaged as a teacher in the Gowling Business College. Since coming to Ottawa Mr. Hudson has made a host of friends, who will wish him great success in his new venture."

IMMIGRATION AND PROSPERITY.

(Ottawa Journal.)

While the population of the Dominion will not increase as rapidly in 1914 as it has in most years since 1900, the matter need occasion no alarm. The tide of immigration reaching Canadian shores during the last five or six years was heavy, but sometimes its quantity was impeached by its quality. A little more discrimination in the selection of future Canadian citizens would not at any time have been a bad thing for the country. There is opportunity in Canada, east and west, for the man with ambition and a little capital. In the Maritime Provinces thousands of farms are awaiting owners and cultivation. In the West there is yet land untold. But for the immigrant without capital, trade, or profession, who comes over here expecting to remain in the city, there is nothing but a struggle for a livelihood. Nor is this condition of affairs likely to change within the next three or four years. Two great national enterprises are nearing completion. The thousands of foreign labourers employed on the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Northern will soon find themselves out of work, and there will be a rush for the cities. These men are unfit to go on the land. They are without capital, and without training. They will provide an ample supply for the cheap labour market for some time, without importing more untrained immigrants from Continental Europe. Just now the Immigration Department is not advertising for immigrants abroad, but on the other hand is making it known as far as possible that only those who are prepared to go on the land are wanted. It will perhaps be well not to discontinue this expedient for some considerable time. Foreigners who come to this country able to take care of themselves are welcome to all the privileges and opportunities the country has to offer. We don't want those who come over here to overcrowd the cities. We have too many of that class now. And there is little to be gained by telling ourselves that good times are coming back with a rush. They are not. The empty optimism that is forever prating about our glorious future while neglecting to deal properly with the present, is merely a state of mind, and is begetful of nothing but disappointment. Good times are undoubtedly coming back, but they are not going to get here before they arrive. Crop reports are encouraging, and in a short time the western harvest fields should provide temporary employment for a large number of men. The movement of the crop will also contribute much to the return of prosperity. But it it idle to expect that we are going to recover from the depression of the past year in a day. The check to our almost abnormal growth has caused some suffering, but it has brought wisdom where before there was nothing but blind confidence and speculation, and if the country's return to prosperity and abundance is slower than expected perhaps it will be all the surer, and more permanent when we get there.

THE NEED OF LEADERSHIP.

(Toronto Star.)

A correspondent, "Progress," suggests that upon the return of Mr. Rowell from his vacation some means be taken to recognise his leadership in progressive public service. This is the letter:

"One is certain that those who found themselves on Mr. Rowell's platform in the late campaign will desire to express their gratitude for the leadership he has given to progressive public service in Ontario, and for the example he has set to other Provinces. Defeat, so far from weakening our regard for far-seeing courage, only makes it more secure. We are at the beginning, not the end.

"This is to suggest that you, in any form that seems appropriate, take steps for a dinner or luncheon to Mr. Rowell immediately on his return from Maine, at which those who have not customarily been lined up behind Ontario Liberal leadership and who are not now associated with the organized party may furnish a non-partisan element. The old partisanship approaches dissolution; the recent campaign has proved it. It is not necessary to wait till fall before men and women who look ahead have an opportunity of showing whether they welcome leadership.

"My name will be a guarantee that this is no party suggestion."

We feel sure that Mr. Rowell, in the late campaign, won the admiration of men of both parties, and even of men who did not agree with every article of his programme. Mr. Rowell was steadfast in his convictions, but not narrow or intolerant. He is the leader and interpreter of the forces of progress. That is recognized by men who did not agree with him at every point, and by men who feel that gratitude was due to Sir James Whitney and his colleagues for the good things they have done.

We cannot afford in Ontario to lose the services of a man who has capacity for leadership, and whose leadership is progressive. A large majority of the electors have chosen to give the Whitney Government another lease of power. With that decision we have no desire to quarrel. But there is need for leadership outside of considerations of office. It is wrong to suppose that because a man is not Prime Minister of Ontario, or a colleague of a Prime Minister, he has no opportunity for public service.

Apart from all party considerations the people ought to encourage men like Mr. Rowell to remain in public life, and even younger men to enter that field. We need in that field the leading men in all professions and callings—the best lawyers, the best farmers, the best mechanics, the best men of business, the best men in medicine and other sciences.

Political science makes slower progress than the other sciences, because sufficient encouragement is not given to the bold, original thinkers and men of action. The very name of politics has fallen into discredit because it is associated with unthinking partisanship and with trickery. What we need is the man who will work in the field of public affairs as Edison works in his laboratory, or C. C. James or Creelman in agriculture.

Defeat in a general election is a mere incident, which need not discourage Mr. Rowell or any of those who worked for him or supported him. We need such men. We cannot tell at what moment the need of leadership may be urgent.

There are magnificent opportunities for Ontario. Let us not quarrel about what has been done, but consider what may be done. Let us not lose our hold upon any man who, like Mr. Rowell, has shown signally his capacity for service.

ENGLAND'S FIELDS.

England's cliffs are white like milk,
But England's fields are green;
The grey fogs creep across the moors
But warm suns stand between.
And not so far from London town,
beyond the brimming street,
A thousand little summer winds are singing in the wheat.

Red-lipped poppies stand and burn,
The hedges are a-glow;
The daisies climb the windy hills
Till all grow white like snow,
And when the slim, pale moon slides up, and dreamy night is near,
There's a whisper in the beeches for lonely hearts to hear.

Poppies burn in Italy,
And suns grow round and high;
The black pines of Posilipo
Are gaunt upon the sky—
And yet I know an English elm beside an English lane
That calls me through the twilight and the miles of misty rain.

Tell me why the meadow-lands
Become so warm in June;
Why the tangled roses breathe
So softly to the moon;
And when the sunset bars come down
to past the feet of day,
Why the singing thrushes slide between the sprigs of May?

Weary, we have wandered back—
And we have travelled far—
Above the storms and over seas
Gleamed ever one bright star—
O England when our feet grow cold and will no longer roam,
We see beyond your milk-white cliffs the round green fields of home.

FOR HOT WEATHER.

In Huron, a hewer, Hugh Hughes,
Hewed yew-trees of unusual hues.
Hugh Hughes used blue yews
To build sheds for his ewes;
So his ewes a blue-hued yew shed use.

A smart young fisher named Fischer
Fished fish from the edge of a fissure.
A fish, with a grin,
Pulled the fisherman in.
Now they're fishing the fissure for Fischer.

A canny young canner of Cannee.
One morning observed to his granny.
"A canner can can
A lot of things, gran.
But a canner can't can a can, can'e?"

Scout News

(By Scribe.)

The scout meeting which was held last night was very large, considering that several of the scouts are at the cadet camp. It is very important that all the boys that wish to go to Toronto for the farewell rally of the Duke of Connaught should be at the armouries for drill Fridays or at any other meeting of the scouts which are announced in the papers of the City.

The following is an incident that took place last Sunday afternoon while three of the local scouts were out strolling. When the three scouts reached the river at the end of the boundary road in North Monaghan they found a young man in it bathing and when the young man in question was swimming toward the shore his knee struck against a log or some object which was lying on the bottom of the river near the shore, badly injuring his leg. Doubtless the injury would have been much more serious had it not been for the timely rendering of first aid to the injured man. The young man's leg was bleeding profusely and the tourniquet had to be used on the injured leg. This little incident has not been written to give credit to the particular boys who rendered first aid to the injured man, but to show the general public what good work is being done by the movement in the training of the boys for emergencies such as these.

Orders for the week:—1, all boys wishing to attend the farewell rally of the Duke of Connaught will parade at the armouries at 7.30 p.m. sharp on Friday, July 17th.

The signalling class under the instruction of Patrol Leader MacLeod will parade at the armouries at 7.30 Monday evening.

The ambulance class under the instruction of G. Brooks will also be held at the same time and day.

The Peterborough troop has been divided into two troops, a senior and a junior. The senior troop meets Fridays at 7.30 p.m. Boys are now being enrolled for this troop at a minimum age limit of 13 years. Minimum height limit 4 ft. 10 in. In future the junior troop will meet on Thursday at 7.30 p.m. This troop will be known in future as the Peterborough Bear Cubs, and will not be known as scouts. They will wear green uniforms with green caps trimmed with yellow braid. The uniform of the Cubs will be obtained as soon as possible.

HOW THE AMBULANCE CLASS HELPED

(By Scribe)

The ambulance class of Troop 1 was assembled under the spreading branches of an oak, which stood by the bank of a very pretty but dangerous creek, for at the mouth of the creek there were large stretches of quicksand. The classes were just learning how to render first aid to a person who had broken his collar bone.

After every one had tied the bandange and had accomplished it successfully, Mr. Holden, the assistant scoutmaster of the troop said, "Now boys, as you have got your ambulance work so well I move, that the class go home, and get a lunch, and then return to this place in half an hour, and we will have some scouting games." This of course was carried unanimously and every scout repaired to his home to get a lunch, and at the time appointed every scout was at the oak.

When they were all assembled, Mr Holden said, "Boys, there are fourteen boys present, as well as Patrol Leader Halpin, and myself. Now the plan that I have adopted is: Halpin will go one way and I will go another each of us with seven boys, and we will see if his side or mine will reach the camp unseen by each other first. After the sides had been chosen each party proceeded on its way.

After the parties had gone some little distance the attention of both was arrested by a cry for help. The parties immediately united and listened again, but this time the cry was much fainter. "I think that it from the mouth of the creek sir," said George Gordon. "And in the quicksands too!" responded several others who had heard it.

Immediately the party set out on a run to the spot, and to their awe and amazement they saw little Harold Wallace, the son of the mayor of the town, up to his waist in the quicksands.

The little boy lifted his tear stained face in a pitiful way towards the boys on the bank and Mr. Holden said "One of you boys hurry to my place at once and bring me the long rope that you will find in the stable just inside the door. Immediately one ran off to the place and soon returned with the rope. In the meantime Mr Holden and the boys had tried their utmost to get the boy out of the sand by the use of their staves, but whether the boy was so weak that he could not hold on or whether his hands were numb, the boy could not hold on to the staves that were held out to him.

At last when George arrived Mr. Holden promptly made a lasso out of the rope and threw it so dexterously that it went around the boy's shoulders, which were slowly sinking below the sands. Then all the boys took hold of the rope and slowly but surely the sands gave up their victim.

That night as Mr. Walace heard his little son's story at the tea table, and also of his timely rescue, he was very thankful indeed to the boys of the troop who had saved his boy from death.

The following day when he met Mr. Holden he congratulated him upon the fine work his scouts had done and were doing, and requested him to accept a donation from him of $20 towards the funds of the Scouts, and also promised that his boy should be a scout as soon as he was old enough.

Shakespeare Prince of Poets Great Teacher and Preacher

CHAUTAUQUA, July 8. — "William Shakespeare is the greatest teacher the English speaking world has ever had, with the exception of the Holy Bible," said Dean Edwin Watts Chubb of the University of Ohio, Athens, O., to a large assemblage of English professors from all parts of the country at Chautauqua. "Shakespeare as a Moral Teacher" was his subject.

"Shakespeare, the prince of poets, was a priest of God, consecrated by the passionate fire of divinity. His conception of mercy, of the duties of mankind, the value of a good name, and of temperance, as expressed in his plays, are identical with those taught by the Bible. He was a great teacher but not in the least a preacher. He deemed it the function of poetry to teach unconsciously, not by formal instruction but by the presentation of the beautiful.

"'Julius Caesar' was written for the express benefit of disturbing elements in present day government, anarchists and such. In that play the poet preaches the great lesson that good government is never to be established by treachery and assassination. 'Hamlet' teaches that when a sin is committed the innocent perish along with the guilty. The lesson taught by 'Macbeth' is that success secured by immoral means is bitter as poison.

"'Shakespeares' poetry breathes a pure, wholesome morality because he was fundamentally sound at heart. Shakespeare is great because he says things as they were and put into his plays his passionate love for humanity."

JUDGE ADVISES AGAINST MARRYING WHEN TOO YOUNG

PUEBLO, Col., July 10.—Don't marry until you are 24.—Don't marry a man who is less than 25. Don't marry on less than a month's notice, and don't expect your husband to be more perfect than yourself.

These rules for the guidance of brides were laid down by County Judge Frank G. Mirick, into whose ears during nine years on the county bench, have been poured more than 1,500 tales of domestic woe, and who is responsible for the severance of an equal number of marital ties.

Having fulfilled all these conditions according to the judge, you may safely venture on matrimonial seas. Overlook them, and your course will be fraught with peril.

"The trouble is," the judge says, "that people marry too young. The average girl thinks she's wasting time if she isn't married at 20, whereas she never should marry until she is 24 or 25. Her husband should be about the same age. They'll then be temperamentally adjusted to each other.

"Young girls also should be trained at home for the responsibilities of marrier life. Divorce is a great evil, though I am personally inclined to the belief that it is better to divorce two people that are unhappily married than to compel them to live together in misery.

"Snap judgment marriages are frequently the cause of divorce, and no man or woman should ever marry until they are sure that they understand each other thoroughly. I am of the opinion that hasty and ill-advised marriages are responsible for more divorces tan all the other causes of divorce combined.

"The publication of the marriage banns would do more, in my opinion, to correct the divorce evil than any other thing. It would give young men and women a chance to think about what they were about to do, and it would offer them the opportunity to reconsider while there remained time."

In the opinion of the judge the divorce laws of Colorado are satisfactory. There is little collusion in the obtaining of divorces, he thinks, and the year's residence within the state, which the statutes require, he says, is sufficient.

"The fault is neither in matrimony nor divorce," declares the judge. "The fault rests with the people who practise them."

John Smith Is a Goat But He Does Not Know It

John Smith is an average citizen. His surname should be Mud, for the manner in which he endures submissively and hoelessly to a series of bunglings, bluffings and in some cases sheer injustice.

The Smith home is one of the kind that is dear to the heart of Mayor Fuller and others. It is tucked away in one of the lesser streets, and suggests forty-five minutes from Broadway. The assessor knows hundreds of these dwellings, ranging from $1,200 to $3,000 in his assessment columns. But anyone of them is a Smith home. He takes pride in the appearance of his house, his lawn is close cropped, well watered and decidedly attractive, and everything that Smith can do by his own efforts is actuated by the love of home. He pays his taxes regularly and in every respect deserves whatever assistance the city can return him.

And what consideration does he receive? Everytime an automobile or waggon passes his house it leaves an aerial trail that falls thickly on the bricks and verandah, filters through screens into the rooms, and on to the walls and furniture. The greater the number of vehicles the greater the dust layer. And Smith, let it be understood, is paying for protection against this nuisance, but the protection is doled out to the $4,000 and $10,000 house owners, while Smith can chase himself. If he does not like the dust let him keep off the street, and so it goes through the long warm summer months. Smith trudges on to his work and for recreation delves in his garden, smoothes out the lawn, and philosophically grins at the dust. Between times he prays for rain to lave the foliage of his trees, the walls of his house, and to generally remove the drab appearance caused by the dust, and Smith is paying for the service, but—to him that hath shall never utters a complaint, never registers a complaint. He knows he should be getting a street watering service, but—to sim that hath shall be given. Hence the $10,000 man gets gets anti-dust measure, and Smith is the goat. He could butt if he wanted to, but he simply doesn't. He isn't even an ordinary goat.

But let Smith be tardy with his taxes. There will be no distinction then. He has to hop through the hoop. If the $10,000 man has a factory he may get considerations such as certain exemptions from taxation. But Smith simply pays whatever the assessor decides, and remains an inoffensive goat.

HAND FULL OF WHITE BLISTERS

Scratching Made it Pain so Badly Lost Many Nights' Sleep. Could Not Do Work at All. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Box 606, Valleyfield, Que.—"My hand would get full of little white blisters and when I would scratch it would pain me so badly I lost many nights' sleep. My hand was one mass of sores. I more than suffered and talk about itching! When I rubbed my hand it would burn. I had it about six years. I could not do any work at all. If you had seen my hand you would have said there was no cure. I used to cry and get so discouraged. I was never troubled with it in the summer but as soon as the cold weather started my hand got sore.

"I tried all that was given me and was treated for three months and every night I washed my hand in ———. It had spread all over my hand. I started to use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I got relief. One cake of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment completely cured me." (Signed) Mrs. Sarah Mercier, June 11, 1913.

Pleased That Canal Is To Be Completed

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—In last night's issue of your popular newspaper I see an article in regard to the contract let for the completion of the Trent Valley Canal. This great water way has been the work of the best part of my life. I have placed this great scheme before Sir John A. MacDonald, Sir Charles Tupper, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and others. And I am glad to see that the Borden Government is to complete the work in the year 1915, so that our great Province of Ontario may doubly rejoice in the Century of Peace. And if the gun-boats that are in the Great Lakes would take their course down our St. Lawrence River into the Atlantic Ocean it would be grand. I am old now, yet I hope that my dear wife and myself will live to get on board of a fine pleasure boat at Peterborough, and go round and come back to Peterborough again. The waterway is worth millions and trillions to Ontario.

YOUR HAIR NEEDS PARISIAN SAGE

It Quickly Removes Dandruff, Stops Falling Hair and Scalp Itch.

Just because your hair is full of dandruff, thin, streaky, dull, and never will do up to look pretty, do not think it must be so. Beautiful hair, thick, fluffy, lustrous and absolutely free from dandruff is only a matter of a little care. Hair is like a plant—it needs attention.

A little Parisian Sage, one of the most helpful and invigorating tonics, frequently applied and well rubbed into the scalp, will work wonders. Just one application stops itching head, removes dandruff, cleanses the hair and scalp of all dust and excessive oil. It goes right to the hair roots stimulating them and furnishing the nourishment that is needed—the hair becomes soft, fluffy, abundant and radiant with life.

Parisian Sage not only saves the hair and stimulates it to grow long and heavy, but gives it that incomparable gloss and beauty so much desired by both girls and women of all ages.

Get a bottle from Warne Drug Co. at once. Use it as directed and if you are not both surprised and delighted with results he will return your money.

Parisian Sage is faintly perfumed—no lasting odour — not sticky or greasy, and is sold in 50 cent bottles at drug and toilet counters everywhere. There is no other "Just-as-good." Accept nothing else.

How English Beauties Keep Faces Youthful

Christian Miller, F.C.I., noted English health expert, attributes the early youth of American women, mainly to the clean facial movements. The women of England, she says, can teach all the world tremendous lessons of reason.

Another valuable lesson to the learned from the English woman is that she does not go in much for cosmetics, the continual use of which must ruin any complexion. The beauty devotees of King George's realm have the unrestricted use of a most wholesome method of keeping the face girlish-looking and beautiful. Ordinary mercolized wax, used like cold cream, rejuvenates the worst complexion. Women here may easily acquire the habit, this wax being obtainable at drug stores generally in the United States and Canada. It is applied at night and washed off in the morning. One ounce is sufficient to completely renovate a bad complexion. It has a peculiar action in keeping the face free from the particles of dead and devitalized scarf skin which are constantly appearing.

ANNIE LOUISE CARY

And Her Favourite "Robin Adair"

The indisputable queen of song in her day was Annie Louise Cary. She was one of the world's famous contraltos when she retired from the operatic stage at the very height of her career in opera. She charmed the sweet, wholesome characteristics of the American girl all during her musical triumphs. She made her debut in Copenhagen, although she studied in Milan. For three years she delighted European audiences before making her appearance in America. For over twelve years, with the exception of a brief European tour, she delighted American audiences with the charms of her voice and personality. But to hear her sing "Robin Adair," that simple old song, and that masterpiece of Arthur Sullivan's "The Last Chord," and Longfellow's "The Day is Done," with the rich tones of the happy, good-natured personality that always charmed, she always left the audience breathless and spellbound.

"Robin Adair," "The Last Chord," and many other favourites of Cary, are to be found in "Heavy Songs," now being distributed to the readers of this paper. See Coupon elsewhere in this issue for terms.

There was such a demand for Heart Songs that we had to discontinue inserting the coupon. We now all "Heavy Songs," and the coupon will run for two weeks. If you're a copy, save the coupons and together with 98c you will get $3.00 work.

Participating versus Non-Participating Life Policies Again

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO a Publisher of this City at age 43 took out a Ten Pay 15 year Endowment Policy of $2000, No 81226 in The Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada paying therefore an annual premium of $187.20.

The Non-Participating Premium would have been $170.40.

The extra paid for profits per year (for 10 years only was $16.80.

On the 1st of May 1914 the above Policy matured and he received in cash $2620.25.

Had this man taken a Non-Participating Policy he would have saved $168.00 extra in premiums paid for profits during the ten years but he would have lost $620.25 at maturity of Policy as he would have received only $2000.00 instead of $2620.25 as he did.

Where is there a man that would not like to invest money at such a rate and that too in the Largest and Strongest Life Insurance Company in the British Empire?

You are invited to call and investigate.

TEMPERANCE FORCES IN VIRGINIA HAVE TASK BEFORE THEM

WHEELING, W. Va. July 8.—With prohibition in effect in West Virginia for seven days the "speakeasy" is said to be firmly established. Several are in operation in this city and they have sprung up in all parts of the State, scores of raids already having been made.

The number of arrests for drunkenness has decreased during the first four days of prohibition and some cities are so confident present conditions will continue that police forces are being reduced. In Fairmont the force has been cut one-third.

Prohibition has not only put West Virginia breweries out of commission but it has put a quietus on some nearby breweries in neighbouring States. The Pomeroy brewery, at Pomeroy, O., has suspended because its owners said it could not be operated profitably with West Virginia "dry."

Cities and towns are still cudgeling their brains over ways and means of increasing the revenues to make up the deficiency caused by the loss on liquor licenses. Huntington will tax automobiles and soda fountains. Wheeling has taxed corporations and raised the license on automobiles.

The 800 bartenders, brewery workers and others thrown out of employment here are planning a mass meeting to be held one day this week to make a formal protest. They declare that owing to the industrial conditions they are unable to secure other employment.

Many arrests are being made of persons who bought intoxicants during the last days of the "wet" regime for the purpose of disposing of it after the prohibition amendment became effective. Bootlegging is widespread.

Utilities Commission Decide to Prosecute Those Who Use Hose After Specified Hours

The Utilities Commission held a meeting on Thursday afternoon, and a letter was read from the City Clerk giving a request of the City Council that the standpipes on George Street near Antrim Street, on Aylmer Street at Wolfe Street, and on Smith Street at Dennistoun Ave., be removed.

A letter was read from John Young asking for a refund of rates paid on connection at Nos. 182-184 Hunter Street, which was moved on April 15th, 1912. It was resolved that Mr. Young be refunded $11.67, and that a cheque for that sum be issued to him.

The Superintendent was instructed to employ an inspector to notify persons who use water on lawns in prohibited hours to stop doing so, and to prosecute persons who continue the practice after being notified.

The Superintendent reported on a petition for a main on London Street east from Gilchrist Street to 378 London Street, estimating the cost of an eight-inch main at $671.40, and of five- inch mains at $382.40. The revenue from services was estimated at $45.67 and from frontages $7.06—a total of $22.72. The matter was laid over.

A letter was read from J. J. Turner & Sons giving quotations for blinds for 18 windows in the new offices, of $31.53 for one quality and $36.18 for a better kind. This was referred to the manager to procure the blinds.

The manager and Superintendent of the Waterworks were directed to make an inspection of the waters north of the city to Young's Point.

It was resolved that the following accounts be paid:

PRINCE CONGO AN INTERESTING PERSONALITY

Chatting to an Examiner reporter last night, he gave the scribe a brief resume of his doings this side of the Equator—he hails from the Philippine Islands.

Prince Congo is a real Prince, born amid the wilds of Luzan, his father being Chief of the Ifugao tribe—which paces him above the ordinary run. He left him about fourteen years ago, the call for education coming to him, even in these remote islands.

Sailing for the United States he soon entered the seats of learning, and became so proficient that he is now a linguist of no mean ability, mastering ten languages between his college courses and treking round the globe. He has travelled with many "shows," and this in itself has been an education. The countries visited include Britain, Mexico, the States, and Canada.

While with the "shows" his chief duty is to lecture, and in fluent language he tells vividly of the Philippine natives, their customs and beliefs. These details are interesting and entertaining. With him travels a spider monkey, of small dimensions, as the name implies. He tells how, when natives die, their spirits are supposed to enter the body of this monkey.

Altogether, Prince Congo de Leon is a very entertaining and intelligent specimen of his tribe—the Ifugaos.

SUNLIGHTS ON THE MERCHANTS' BIG PICNIC FOR NEXT THURSDAY

Mr. J. T. Braund will most likely be a contestant in the Tub Race, as he is practicing every evening now, on the Otonabee River.

Mr. D. H. Kerneghan, now being a farmer, will not be allowed to compete in the Merchants' Race.

Mr. E. N. McWilliams, being a professional athlete, will be barred from competing in any of the events.

Mr. C. M. Moncur and Walter Belleghem are the first applicants for the position of judges for the best looking girl on the grounds.

Vice President Harry Morgan is practicing summersaults, in his store, those days, but the Sports Chairman says he will be fooled, as there'll be no summersaulting events that day.

Tom Hooper will be in the High Diving contest.

Wilson of the Review and Theobald of the Examiner will not be allowed to land at the Park until the pies are all disposed of.

James Lynch may be promoted, this year, from the position of Judge to Hangman.

C. R. Banks intends to catch the largest fish.

Alderman Duffus' pockets will be searched for Magnetoes before entering any of the races.

G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., will be allowed to shake hands with the ladies between 2.30 and 2.35 p. m. only.

Dr. Frank, not being a merchant, his application as Judge in the Baby Show, will not be considered.

Keith Leck will take part in the Pillow Fight.

Robert Fair will release the aeroplane. Everybody "take to the tall timbers" while it is in the air.

Drama of Creation at The Grand

For the next two weeks, beginning to-morrow afternoon at 3, and evening at 8 o'clock, and twice daily thereafter at the same hours, whosoever will may without money, price or prejudice, see and hear the story of man's life on earth. He may learn through the medium of his eyes as well as his ears how through all the ages a benevolent, dominating influence has prevailed and perchance may thereafter better appreciate his own part and prospects in the stupendous, unending drama of creation.

In a world-wide effort to stem the tide of skepticism by showing the true harmony of science, history and the Bible, the International Bible Students' Association has formally launched the story of "Creation," in moving pictures, interspersed with hundreds of coloured pictures, which are to be shown in four sections, lasting about two hours each, the programme changing twice each week during the present engagement.

MOVING PICTURES ENDORSED

At its annual convention last year the association officially endorsed the "movies" as a preferred method for elucidating Bible history and philosophy and authorized free exhibitions of the history of Creation throughout the world.

DRAMA OF CREATION

In order to carry out this new work the drama of Creation has been prepared and is now being shown in many cities throughout the country. All expenses incidental to these exhibitions are payable from the general tract fund of the Society, which is financed entirely by voluntary contributions, which explains why "Creation" will be shown here with "seats free and no collection."

POLICE COURT

Joseph Reynolds was charged at the Police Court today with being found drunk in a public place. He pleaded "not guilty" but at the request of Chief Thompson, he was remanded for one week.

Ernest Lowes, charged with vagrancy, was remanded till Friday next.

"You've come down to this," said His Worship, "so low".

Robert Ryan faced a similar charge He also was remanded till Friday.

"What do you want a remand for" he enquired of the Court.

"We'll tell you on Friday," remarked His Worship.

Wm. Welsh, who claims he hails from Fenelon Falls, faced His Worship on a charge of being drunk and was fined $2.

A young local man, who is on the black list, was charged with being drunk yesterday. He obtained the liquor from another man, to whom he gave the money to buy it. He was fined $10, to be paid in ten days.

A HOT LETTER FROM MR. BURNHAM

Dear Sir,—Such prominence has been given to an interview from Mr. E. A. Peck concerning local politics that I feel called upon from a spirit of common decency and justice not unknown amongst us, to say that those who claim credit for having killed Mr. Soden should pay his election expenses. The Executive Committee at a full meeting set out a statement which completely exonerated Mr. Soden, and just by so much did the reverse for those who got ugly and refused to play. But it is one thing to be just and pay for the damge done or claimed to be done and another thing to interview the newspapers, for the purpose of letting things down easy after all. I consider that a hideous injustice was done to the Conservative party and to Mr. Soden, whom I supported loyally because he was the party's nominee. I should consider myself a "sport" if I had done otherwise. No party can be reconciled to itself by glossing over these gross injustices as suggested, but those responsible can do their best to atone for the unexpected and mistaken action of a few by putting their hands in their pockets and doing the decent thing. I do not know who "Voter" is, but I do know that his statement that politics have been a shuttle-cock here, which Mr. Peck denied, is perfectly true. Mr. Peck apparently wants things to go back to where they were before we cleaned the Augean stables. I do not. Nor am I to be frightened by the flapping of any party wings that ignore proper party conventions and proceed to knock holes in the party and then cry out that the party is in a bad way and should be re-organized. Any attempt to twist matters into a tacit declaration of injustice to the party's candidate, Mr. Soden, by any further pretences is to be resented. A manly apology from the kickers is what is needed, an apology both to the party and to Mr. Soden and a handsome contribution to his expenses. The baby play of the last few weeks has digusted many and I fervently hope that we shall have no more of it. When any sentence of departure comes from a properly-conducted convention, as this one was, I will walk out without a whimper. I will not seek such a convention's suffrages and then, if disappointed, start raising Cain.

Yours truly,
J. H. BURNHAM.

Hon. Rodmond Roblin — Premier of Manitoba for fourteen years, who was returned yesterday by a very small majority. He was opposed by Mr. Norris, leader of the Opposition. The issues were much the same as those at the recent Ontario elections, the Liberal platform being those of temperance, direct legislation, and education. Sir Rodmond Roblin has refused to consider any measure of direct legislation, declaring it to be Socialistic and a mark of decadent Republicanism.

SOME STORES DID NOT CLOSE

The Examiner learns that the Thursday half holiday was not observed by a number of grocers away from the chief business section. Some did not close at all and others only kept their stores closed until 5 o'clock, which could hardly be called a holiday for the clerks. It is hoped that these grocers will fall in line with the majority of others in their line or in that the public will know how to treat them.

DEPUTATION HEARD BY BOARD OF WORKS

Ask to Have Sidewalk Planned for Lock Street Moved Out a Foot From Present Location

A deputation of two waited upon the Board of Works last night representing the residents on the east side of Lock street between Gladstone avenue and the Monaghan Road. They complained that the sidewalk that is about to be put down on that section of the street is in so far that it is going to be a hardship to some of the residents that the sidewalk was intended to serve. In the first place the pavement would cut a substantial area of some of the lawns, and one resident in particular (a widow named Mrs. Haggart), would have to remove her fence. Both gentlemen spoke on the subject suggesting that the sidewalk be moved out a foot as this would avoid the difficulty. The poles on the street admitted of the sidewalk being moved out that distance.

When the members of the Board found that the sidewalk might be an injustice to the residents they received the delegation sympathetically, but their attitude in the matter changed somewhat when the City Engineer explained that the fence that would have to be removed was 4 feet 6 inches out past the street line.

"Only four feet six inches?" queried Alderman Johnston.

"That is all," the Engineer replied.

So when the Board discovered that the "injury" had resolved itself into taking a few inches of the city's rightful property from the present user they referred the matter to the Engineer with power to act. As a result the sidewalk is being laid to-day in the place first recommended by the Engineer. If it were moved out it would make a "jog" in the sidewalk, which the Council and Engineer are very anxious to avoid.

Street Railway Co. Given Permission

By the Board of Works to Move Turnout on Park Street North to Reid Street Just Behind the Knox Church

At the Board of Works meeting last night Mr. W. H. Munro was present and requested permission to move the turnout on Park street, at the C.G.E., north to a position on Reid street, just above Wolfe street. He explained that in the operation of the ten-minute service it had been found that the present switch was too far south, and the red car returning from Brownstown had to wait several minutes for the southbound car. If the turnout could be placed on Reid street behind the Knox Presbyterian Church it would make the subdivision correct.

Mr. Munro explained that the City Engineer in discussing the matter with him, objected to the fact that the distance on one side of the road from the nearest rail to the curb would be only 8 feet 8 inches from the sidewalk. The C.G.E. truck, the widest vehicle in town was only 6 feet 6 inches wide from hub to hub, and ordinary vehicles (autos, hotel 'buses, etc.,) were only 5 feet 6 inches wide. But since his conversation with the Engineer he had figured that it would be arranged so as to allow 18 feet between the middle of the nearest track, and the curb. The turnout then would be exactly the same as the one recently built on Romaine street.

"Is the turnout going to be any longer than the old one?" asked Mr. Armstrong.

"No. Shorter if anything," replied Mr. Munro.

"Then you don't need permission from this Board at all to build the turnout on Reid street."

"That's so," agreed Mr. Munro. "But I just came here to explain the matter and have an amicable understanding in them after."

Alderman Green felt that the Street Car Company should be encouraged in their efforts to give the ten-minute service. The others agreed and on motion of Mayor Buller and Alderman Green the permission asked for was given, on condition that the company fill in the road to a level on each side of the turnout.

This will make the fourth new turnout built by the company to secure correct working subdivisions of the line for the ten-minute service.

LOCAL AUTOIST EXCEEDED LIMIT

It was learned on good authority this morning that a local professional man, who about a week ago made an auto trip into Western Ontario, has received notice that on one section of the Dundas road his speedometer, had it been in working order, would have registered considerably over the speed limit. His extra speed was so apparent that it was noticed by an officer of the law, and on Monday next the said professional man stands to pay a fine of between $10 and $25. This should be a warning to all local people who own automobiles to be careful how they drive in distant parts of the province, not to add to the cost of the maintenance of their gasoline waggon.

VERY NARROW MARGIN FOR ROBLIN PARTY

Government Forces in Manitoba Almost Go Down to Defeat in Election Yesterday

STILL IN BALANCE

WINNIPEG, July 11.—Reports received thus far have not definitely decided the standing of the parties in the next Legislature, but they indicate clearly enough that the Government will have a small majority, may be increased to a working efficiency by the three bye-elections yet to be held in the deferred northern seats.

The Liberals claim a tie of 21 seats each, with four to hear from. These four are claimed by the Government, who also claim several of the seats placed by the Opposition in their own column. A detached estimate might put the final standing at 25 Conservatives and 21 Liberals, with three deferred elections, making the total of 49. What the Government side now claims is 27, as against their opponents' 19. Liberals claim that results in six seats now standing in the Government columns are so close that recounts are inevitable, such seats being Kildonan and St. Andrew's, where Hon. Dr. Montague has at present a majority of but four, whereas at the recent bye-election it stood in the hundreds.

LIBERAL LEADER NORRIS,

Who has shaken long-standing power and can only be attributed to a hostile Orange and church sentiment.

The election was fought almost entirely on two issues: the Coldwell amendments to the education act providing Roman Catholic teachers for Roman Catholic children in the public schools, and the abolition of the bar. The lining up of the Orangemen to "save the little red school-house" is believed to have been the most potent influence.

ACKNOWLEDGE CARRANZA.

Villa's Generals Recognize Him as Their Supreme Chief.

SALTILLO, July 11.—The conference at Torreon, which met to adjust differences between Carranza and Villa has completed its labors to the satisfaction of the first chief of the Constitutionalists, according to announcement last night of Gustav Pinoza Morelos, Gen. Carranza's private secretary. Details of the conference were not made public.

It was announced, however, that all generals of the divisions of the north commanded by Villa have reaffirmed their recognition of Carranza's authority and again expressed their adherence to the plan of Guadalupe, providing for Carranza exercising executive authority in case of Constitutionalist success, until elections can be held.

It was stated that troops under Gen. Villa and those under Gen. Pablo Gonzales would move southward to-day in a combined march with Mexico City as their goal.

Took 5,000 Prisoners.

DOUGLAS, Ariz., July 11.—Gen. Alvaro Obregon, commander of the Constitutionalist forces, who on Wednesday captured the important city of Guadalajara, Mexico, took prisoner more than 5,000 Federals after three days' battle.

Mexican Delegates at Montreal.

MONTREAL, July 11. — Four of the five Mexican delegates who represented the interests of Mexico at the recent "A. B. C." Peace Conference at Niagara Falls, arrived here yesterday morning. The delegates are Senors Luise Elgaro, R. Elgaro, M. Del Campo and Algara de Sumn. They will remain here until further instructions from Emilio Rabasa, the chief delegate for Mexico are received. The latter is now in New York, and word is expected from him within the course of a day or so.

ENGINEERS AT ODDS.

Each Blames the Other In Southampton Railway Probe.

FREDERICTON, N.B., July 11.—That David W. Brown, acting on an alleged hint from J. V. Johnson, Federal inspecting engineer, practically padded the cost of the Southampton Railway to make sure of the double subsidy of $6,400 a mile, was brought out yesterday in the most sensational session of the Government inquiry. It was also made clearly apparent that the Dominion Department of Railways and Canals acted in good faith on the report submitted by Mr. Johnson. At the end of a severe examination before the commissioner, Mr. Brown made the statement that acting on a statement of Mr. Johnson that the cost was too near the double subsidy limit of $12,800 a mile, although Mr. Fraser's books would not stand an audit, he raised the value to $12,400, or about $1,000 per mile.

Mr. Johnson, when, recalled to the stand, stoutly maintained his innocence and said that the statement credited to him by Mr. Brown was untrue.

It is expected the enquiry will close to-day, as the commissioner intends sitting from 9.30 until 6 p.m.

U. S. CAPTAIN SUBMITS.

He Throws Out Server of Summons But Is Finally Arrested.

ST. CATHARINES, July 11.—When Chief of Police Taylor of Thorold boarded the steamer Cadillac to serve a summons on Captain Sullivan in connection with a wage case, Sullivan maintained that no British peace officer had a right to go aboard an American vessel. To enforce his contention the captain called his mates and two of the crew and had the chief thrown from the boat to the canal bank. High Constable Boyle and Chief Howe of Port Dalhousie met the steamer at that place and arrested the captain after considerable bluff and bluster on his part. He was taken to St. Catharines, charged with an indictable offence, and held in $4,000 bail.

Bandits Hold Up Train.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 11. — The two masked bandits who held up the westbound Katy Flyer on the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railroad, near Watson, Mo., 65 miles north of here, Thursday night, captured a track walker who surprised them as they were robbing the train and took him away with them.

The bandits, after stopping the train and firing a fusillade to keep passengers from alighting, compelled the engine crew to uncouple the express car and then take them some distance, when the safe was blown.

Started on Long Tramp.

OTTAWA, July 11.—Discovered on Thursday night while trudging barefooted along a street in the outskirts of the city, bearing in their arms their penny banks, and headed for the far west, Eric, six-year-old son of Mayor McVeity, and Lorne, son of Captain Ogilvie of the N.T.R., a day's search, in which the mayor and most of the police participated, was ended. They had, soon after leaving home, in the early morning, got rid of their shoes and stockings.

Free Rides For Mothers.

BERLIN, Ont., July 11. — The Light Commission last evening decided to give free trips once a week to mothers and children under ten years of age to Waterloo and Bridgeport during the months of July and August, on the Berlin and Waterloo Street Railway. It was reported that the traffic during the month of June was the largest in the history of the railway, 101,139 fares being collected, compared with 87,373 for the same month last year. The net profit for the month was $1,266.61.

Queen Mary as Colonel-in-Chief of the 18th (Queen Mary's Own) Hussars.—A most interesting announcement was made on Tuesday to the effect that Her Majesty the Queen had been appointed Colonel-in-Chief of the 18th Hussars. The distinctive characteristics of the uniform of the 18th, blue, like the rest of the Hussars, are the gold trimmings, the bag of garter blue, which hangs on the right side of the busby, and the red and white plume. There are twelve regiments of Hussars, which are chiefly distinguished from one another by the busby bags and plumes.

TROUBLE IS ABSENT

Ulster Fails to Provide Much Heralded Sensations.

GOVERNMENT IN SESSION

Beyond Passing Resolutions Authorizing the Volunteers to Resist the Operation of Home Rule the Provisional Parliament Does Nothing Exciting — Carson Touched by His Reception.

LONDON, July 11. — The predictions of the Unionist press that yesterday would see some startling developments in the Ulster situation were not fulfilled. Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster Unionist leader, arrived at Belfast and was accorded a reception of a military character, after which the "provisional government" held its first formal meeting and passed a series of resolutions, authorizing the executive to take whatever steps were necessary to enforce Ulster's opposition to Home Rule.

The Unionist papers declare that the gravest possible crisis is at hand in Ulster, and some of them have sent large staffs to that province and have made preparations to report unexpected events.

On the other hand, the Liberal papers contend that the followers of Carson are working up a great sensation, which is only a bluff, intended to influence the coming debates in the House of Commons on the amending bill and frighten the Government into yielding all the exclusion terms demanded by the Carsonites.

The humorous side of the situation is seen in the almost daily reports in the Unionist papers of extensive landing of arms and ammunition for the Ulster volunteers, which reports are promptly contradicted by other equally trustworthy Unionist papers.

Carson Is Pleased.

LONDON, July 11.—(C. A. P. Cable.)—After the Ulster council meeting yesterday when the leaders were authorized to act in any emergency, and when Ulster Unionists were exhorted to preserve the same restraint as hitherto, Sir Edward Carson said: "I am proud and touched at the evidence that I have had to-day of the increasing enthusiasm and growing determination of Ulster. To-day's scenes have touched me deeply. Look outside there, now." He stopped and pointed to a dense crowd outside of the Ulster Club which had been waiting patiently for hours to cheer him as he went out. He commented: "Heaven knows what they are waiting for, but there they are."

Mayor Mitchel Stops Parade.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Mayor Mitchel announced yesterday that he had instructed the police not to allow the procession Alexander Berkman, anarchist, and his associates proposed to hold to-day in honor of the three men who were killed in a Harlem tenement house last Saturday by a bomb explosion.

Glengarry Cadets Win.

KINGSTON, July 11.—The Highland Cadets, from Williamstown, in Glengarry County, were awarded the Beeson trophy at Barriefield camp yesterday morning for general efficiency. Morrisburg Cadets came second, just two points behind the Glengarry boys.

West Kent Recount Started.

CHATHAM, Ont., July 11. — The recount of ballots in connection with the recent election in West Kent was started yesterday morning before Judge Bell. George Lynch Staunton of Hamilton is appearing for Geo. W. Salman, the Conservative candidate, declared elected by 18, and J. A. Walker, K.C., of Chatham, represents R. L. Brackin, who disputes the official count. The recount will not be completed for a few days.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, July 10.—Skepticism in regard to the chances of widespread damage by black rust brought about a lowering of values today in wheat. The market, although steady at the close, was 1-2c to 3-4c under last night. Corn finished 1-8c to 1-4c off to 7-8c up, oats 1-8c to 5-8c higher and provisions unchanged to a rise of 20c.

All Off Says Leonard.

KINGSTON, Ont., July 11. — That he will not deal with Queen's University trustees or senate if his military residence offer is reconsidered is the statement of Major Leonard in a message received yesterday afternoon. Major Leonard made this reply when told that it was reported that the college would further consider the offer.

He said: "My proposition to Queen's University is absolutely withdrawn. If the question be reconsidered it will not be with the trustees or the senate."

Colonel Inspected.

LONDON, Ont., July 11.—Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, paid a short visit to the city yesterday when he inspected the annual cadet camp at Carling's Heights. Fourteen hundred lads took part in the march past, and their soldierly bearing drew glowing commendation from the Minister. Col. Hughes said that the camp this year in numbers, discipline and efficiency was the best yet held.

BELGRADE, July 11. — The Russian Minister to Servia, N. Hartwig, died suddenly yesterday while conversing with the Austrian Minister at the Austrian legation. He was appointed to that post in September, 1909.

EUROPE RESENTFUL

LONDON, July 11.—Criticisms of the bloated armaments of the European powers were directed at Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary, in the House of Commons yesterday. In reply Sir Edward declared that Great Britain had done her best, but her direct suggestions to foreign countries as to the limitation of armaments had been without any good result. On the contrary, they had been regarded, he said, as attempts to limit their control of their freedom of action and had been resented accordingly.

Sir Edward added that the most notable thing in Europe during the past year had been, not the naval, but the military increase, and Great Britain had not been responsible for that.

Sir Edward Grey also referred to the invitation sent by the Netherlands Government on July 2 asking the nations which participated in the second peace conference to appoint delegates to a committee to formulate a definite program for the third conference. He said that when the United States first proposed the appointment of a committee he had replied sympathetically, but had criticized it since as being unwieldy. He had suggested a smaller body, which he thought probably would deal with the matter more expeditiously. Today he said he would repeat the same criticism in accepting the invitation from the Dutch Government.

Great Britain, according to Sir Edward, would support at The Hague any proposals calculated to lead to a reduction of expenditure on armaments, but he would oppose personally all direct suggestions on the subject to other countries as long as there was any likelihood of them being resented as attempts at pressure.

DEMOCRACY SCORES ONE.

Danish Elections Result In Blow For Old Constitution.

COPENHAGEN, July 11. — The elections for the Upper House of the Danish Parliament, held yesterday, resulted in the return of twenty members of the Right, five less than before dissolution, five Free Conservatives, twenty members of the Left, five Radicals and four Socialists.

Of the twelve members nominated by the King nine are supporters of the Government bill for the amendment of the constitution on a democratic basis, the passage of which is now assured. In the Upper House as it is now constituted this bill has 38 supporters and 38 opponents.

The Upper House of the Danish Parliament was dissolved early in June because of the deadlock over the constitutional amendment bill, which abolishes all property qualifications for electors of members of that body and takes away from the crown its right to nominate twelve members of the chamber. Twelve members of the House appointed by the King were not included.

DUKE SEEING SIGHTS.

Many Interesting Incidents Mark Trip to Newfoundland.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., July 11.—The Duke of Connaught had an interesting experience Thursday evening and yesterday forenoon getting a first real insight into the cod fishery industry, as prosecuted by the Newfoundlanders. At Blanc Sablin he saw a cod trapper's large enclosure of netting, used extensively for fishery purposes nowadays, hauled in by the fishermen, and its catch removed, the fish being then brought to the curing house, washed, salted, dried and packed for market. He realized the hardships the Newfoundland fisher folk endure in earning their bread by constant battle against fog, ice and storm.

At St. Anthony yesterday morning he saw another aspect of the life of the fisher people, the assistance provided for them in the way of medical, surgical and educational relief through the efforts of Dr. Grenfell, assisted by the generosity of well wishers in Britain, Canada and the United States. The herd of 1,200 reindeer were of especial interest to the party. They are to be distributed in a year or two along the Labrador coast, their advent to be marked by a wholesale slaughter of the dogs now used, reindeer being substituted for the dogs.

The duke is now on the way to Botwood, in Notre Dame Bay, where he arrives to-day. He will then proceed to Greenland farms, where the Harmsworths have their big paper mills.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

SECOND GAME IN SERIES WON BY PETES
BEAVERS WERE BEATEN 8 TO 3 YESTERDAY

Played Snappy Ball Behind Sterling and Bit Auld Hard—Petes Show Some Fine Work on Defence

KING'S CIRCUS CATCH

The Petes evened up on the series with Toronto yesterday beating the Beavers by 8 to 3, and incidentally handed Bobby Auld his first reverse for some time. The Queen City boy was not as effective as usual, being found for eleven hits, and his support was shaky. The Petes opened out on him with scant respect for his record, Blount doubling, and Welsh and Dolan following with singles, two runs counting before any one was out. They also bunched four effeties with a couple of errors in the sixth and hung up three runs in that frame.

Bob Sterling annexed his second win of the week. He was effective in the pinches although wild, giving six passes, but he had a lot of stuff on the ball and got by nicely. The Petes gave him grand support, the defensive work shown especially in the fourth innings being big league stuff. In that session Burrill was walked to start with, and Ort singled, sending him to third. With two on and none out a score looked certain. However, Joe Byrne grabbed Killilea's bounder with one hand and threw the batter out while Burrill was kept at third. Then Trout cracked one at Byrne who got Burrill at the plate with a nice peg, Kelly completing the play cleverly. Then the Beavers tried a double steal, but Kelly's throw to second and King's return were so fast that Ort was an easy out at the plate.

King had the feature play of the day, when he leaped into the air and pulled down Killilea's liner with his gloved hand and doubled Burrill off first.

First Innings.

Toronto—Kroy grounded to Fox on the first ball pitched. Burrill flied to Welsh. Ort bounded to Byrne. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough — Blount doubled along the left field foul line. Welsh singled to left, scoring Blount and went to third on Hunt's bad throw to the plate. Dolan singled to right, sending Welsh in. Rooney sacrificed, Auld to Schultz. Byrne grounded to Ort, Dolan going to third. King popped to Killilea. Two runs, three hits, one error.

Second Innings.

Toronto—Welsh made a fine grab of Killilea's liner to left. Trout singled to left. Trout was out stealing, Kelly to King. Isaac singled to right and stole second. Schultz fanned. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Peterborough—Fox grounded to Auld. Kelly walked. Sterling flied to Kroy. Kelly was out stealing, Trout to Ort. No runs, hits or errors.

Third Innings.

Toronto—Hunt fouled out to Dolan. Auld fanned. Kroy flied to Welsh. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough—Blount singled to right. Welsh sacrificed, Trout to Schultz. Dolan grounded to Auld. Rooney singled over second, scoring Blount, and taking second on the throw to the plate. Byrne lifted to Killilea. One run, two hits, no errors.

Fourth Innings.

Toronto—Burrill walked. Ort singled to right, sending Burrill to third. Killilea grounded to Byrne, a nice play by the third-baseman. Trout hit to Byrne, who nailed Burrill at the plate. Ort was out at the plate on an attempted double steal, Kelly and King making the play perfectly. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough—King died on a hard smash to Ort. Fox fanned. Kelly flied to Kroy. No runs, hits or errors.

Fifth Innings.

Toronto—Isaac scratched a hit on a hard one to King. Schultz flied to Welsh. Hunt walked. Auld sacrificed, Sterling to Dolan. Kroy fanned. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough—Killilea made a fine stop of Sterling's grounder over second. Blount flied to Burrill. Welsh died on a high bounder to Isaac. No runs, hits or errors.

Sixth Innings.

Toronto—Burrill was safe on Fox's fumble. Ort fanned. King made a one-handed leaping catch, of Killilea's hard drive and doubled Burrill off first. No runs, or hits, one error.

Peterborough—Dolan was safe on Killilea's wide throw to first. Rooney cracked one which Ort pulled in with one hand. Dolan thought the ball had gone through and started for third, but got back in time. Auld had him caught off second a moment later, but Killilea muffed the ball and Dolan went to third. Byrne singled scoring Dolan. King sacrificed, Schultz to Ort. Fox singled to right scoring Rooney. Burrill nearly got the ball with a leap. Kelly hit to Isaac and was out at first. Byrne scoring. Sterling singled to right. Blount grounded to Ort. Three runs, four hits, two errors.

Seventh Innings.

Toronto—Trout cracked a hit through the box. Sterling knocked it down and apparently had Trout at first, but the ump called it safe. Isaac doubled to left, Welsh nearly getting the drive, Trout scoring. Schultz singled over second, scoring Isaac. Hunt walked. Auld bunted to Sterling and Schultz was out at third. Kroy fanned. Burrill grounded to Sterling. Two runs, three hits, no errors.

Peterborough—Welsh popped to Killilea. The latter nailed Dolan's high one. Rooney flied to Hunt. No runs, hits or errors.

Eighth Innings.

Toronto—Ort walked. Killilea also drew a pass. Trout singled to right, scoring Ort. Fox made a fine catch of Isaac's fly to short left, and had Killilea doubled at second but Bedford called him safe. Schultz grounded to King. Blount nailed Hunt's fly to short centre. One run, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough—Byrne walked. King bunted over Isaac's head. Fox was safe on a bunt to Isaac, the third-baseman throwing wild, the runner going to second while Byrne scored. Kelly drove one to centre which Kroy grabbed and doubled up Fox. King scored on the play. Sterling fanned. Two runs, two hits, one error.

Ninth Innings.

Toronto—Harkins batted to Auld and fanned. Kroy flied to Rooney. Burrill walked and stole second. Ort flied to Welsh. No runs, hits or errors.

$2000 OFFERED FOR AULD

Last night President McCaffery received an offer of $2,000 for Pitcher Bobby Auld of the Toronto Canadian League team. Auld has pitched eight complete games for the Beavers, winning six and losing two. His work has attracted the attention of various clubs in the major leagues, one of which made yesterday's offer.

The youngster will not be sold, but will be retained for the use of the Toronto International League team. It is certain that drafts will be put in for him, but the Toronto club will take the chance. Auld is a Toronto lad and a graduate of the City Amateur League.

CRESSMANS AND BANKERS IN THE GAME

Last night at Riverside Park after the Toronto-Peterborough game, the Cressman store team held the Bankers, Mercantile League leaders, to seven innings 3 to 3 tie. The "Big Store" boys were two runs behind when they went to bat in the last half of the seventh, but by a rally, ly scored two runs and had a man left on second. Both pitchers were in great form, but Payton deserved a win, two dropped fly balls in the field giving the financiers two easy runs.

CANADIAN LEAGUE NOTES

St. Thomas Times — The official Canadian League batting, fielding and pitching records, as issued by J. P. Fitzgerald, president, are the cause of the most unfavourable comment among both players and fans. To tell the truth, it looks as if the president had taken a holiday to go fishing and left the office boy or someone else as incapable do the compiling of the averages.

Not only are the hitting averages incorrect and far out but the pitching records are far worse. There should be but slight difficulty in compiling these, but instead it comes all wrong. Reisling is on top with five wins and no losses, according to the averages, while everyone knows that he lost at least one at the beginning of the season. The same applies to several others; some should have more wins and some more losses.

According to the figures, Harris, Erie's right fielder, leads with .361; Carney, also with Erie, is second with .360; Snyder, of London, hits .345; Welsh, of Peterborough, .331, and Kustus, of St. Thomas, .326. Kading and Hadley, of St. Thomas, are both close to the .300 mark, with .299 and .298 to their credit.

BASEBALL

Outfielder Welsh has jumped away out in front of the Petes' batting averages during the last week, and up to date he is hitting .343 for 44 games. Since the last published list he has added fourteen hits, and during the past two weeks he has jumped his average from .296 to .343. Curly Blount was the second biggest gainer in the week, adding 17 points to his total and his mark is now .252, while he has also increased his run-making mark. He has crossed the plate 44 times in 58 games. Here are the figures complete to date:

Westchester Cup and Team which Took it Back to England — (1) Cup captured from England by America in 1909, and won back by England this year; the Cup was first competed for in 1886. (2) Captain H. A. Tompkinson, No. 1 of the English team; (3) No. 3 and Captain of the English team, Captain F. W. Barrett; (4) back of the English team; Captain Vivian Lockett. (5) No. 2 of the team, Captain Leslie Cheape. Great interest centred around the polo games recently when the American team was defeated.

The Crop and Grocery Report

The crop and grocery market situation is summarised as follows in the current issue of Canadian Grocer:

Office of Publication,
Toronto, 9th July, 1914.

With the prospects that the cost of living is going to continue to be a live problem with many classes of society for several months to come, the attitude of the canners with regard to staple lines is important and Canadian Grocer has assurance from several sources that the tendency will be to keep the prices for peas, tomatoes, beans and corn down as low as possible and chief attention will be given to getting a pack of average quality rather than the fancy lines. Business in canned goods for several months past throughout Canada has indicated that the people generally are taking advantage of the cheap prices.

The indications generally are that the pack will not be as large as a year ago on account of smaller acreage, which applies to most of the staple crops, with the exception of tomatoes in the Niagara district. Strawberries are now finished and attention is being given to peas, which show an average yield of good condition, although in some districts there is a complaint that there are pods which are only partly filled and also that the hot weather is inclined to hurry the ripening too much. For tomatoes the prospects are still good, especially in the Niagara district, and the hot weather will do no harm if there are occasional rains. The raspberry pack will commence in about a week and should be up to the average. It is yet too early to talk of corn prospects. The spinach pack has been completed, this business showing a good normal increase.

The wheat situation shows little change, although there are reports from some sources that conditions are not so good in the West as had been indicated. It is hard to believe, however, that the damage in the West has been general and reports from private sources indicate that after unusual heat about the first of the month, there have been general rains and that with the exception of some districts there is a good growth, and that the head is beginning to show. In Ontario the wheat harvest is at hand, and conditions are good. So well have things improved within the past month that the estimates of the crop have risen from 60 to 75 per cent.

There is a distinctly easy feeling with regard to Ontario flour, and although millers do not seem inclined to cut prices, there have been reductions of as much as 20c reported on some large transactions by jobbers. During the week oatmeal took a temporary decline for a couple of days, and with continued favourable reports of the new crop, a permanent reduction may be looked for as well as easier quotations for cornmeal.

The outlook is for high potato values and old stocks are now selling as high as $2.25 a bag, wholesale. Quotations for new are also higher, and it is said that there is a short crop in the States and that damage has been done in Canada. Generally fruits and vegetables are coming in in good supply.

Hogs are firmer and lard easier if anything on very low quotations, an increase of 50,000 tierces in world's supply being shown over even date a year ago. Butter is cheaper in the East than the West, and prices, while about 2 cents under a year ago, are out of line for export to either Britain or the States.

Business conditions show little change, and in fancy groceries the demand is weak. Wholesalers do not see favourable propects for immediate improvement, although hopeful of the effect of the crop.

It takes twenty years for a mother to make a man of her son, and twenty minutes for another woman to make a fool of him.

HOUSEHOLD ECONOMY.

"What's this?" exclaimed the young husband, referring to the memorandum his wife had given him. "One dozen eggs, one pound of raisins, bottle of lemon extract, a tin of ground cinnamon and a half pound of sugar. What do you want with all these things, Belinda?"

"I've got a stale loaf," replied the young wife, "that I am going to save by working it up into a bread pudding. I never let anything go to waste, Henry."

SHORTER HOURS FOR THE SUMMER

The firm of Richard Hall and Son will inaugurate for the season on Monday their summer schedule of working hours. For the rest of the summer the store will open at 8 o'clock and close at 5.30 p.m. throughout the week and at 9.30 o'clock Saturday, while the employees will be given the usual Thursday half holiday. The shorter hours will be appreciated by the working staff of the store during the warm weather.

FUNERAL TO-DAY

The funeral of the late Mrs. W. W. Lang took place from the residence of her son, 417 Shridan street, to the G.T.R. station this afternoon, whence the remains were taken to Keene for interment. The Rev. Jas. Rollins conducted the service both at the house and at the grave. A large number of former acquaintances and friends of the deceased were present and testified to the esteem in which the late Mrs. Lang was held by all who knew her.

FIREPROOF BAKING DISHES

In fireproof china and earthen baking dishes, especially in those designed for individual portions, there is a host of fascinating shapes and styles; yet more than one bride has been puzzled to know just how best to employ her set of exquisitely decorated ramekins. These little receptacles not only repeat the styles of the large covered and open baking dishes, but have a wide variety of designs that are all their own.

The highly glazed brown German ware, with its dainty white lining, is in high favour just now, and may be had in a large number of shapes.

In it there are low, round covered dishes, dishes, some with the straight, stumpy handle of the casserole, and some without handles. They are just the thing for fricassees, ragouts, savoury stews, creamed dishes and the like.

Similar shapes without covers and with or without handles are employed for a host of things. They are particularly useful for preparations that are to be browned over the top in baking, such as macaroni or rice au gratin and other cheese dishes, as well as for meat pies, souffles, divided fish and other highly-seasoned mixtures.

Then there are the shallow, boat-shaped ramekins, also uncovered, but with the straight, stumpy handle, in which breakfast eggs are shirred, baked or fried.

Being strictly fireproof, all these dishes may be used on the top of the stove, as well as in the oven.

The last cry in this brown ware is the set of covered, cup-shapd ramekins fitted into nickel holders on a tray of nickel or of the earthenware. Some of these have fluted sides and covers. One set has a chicken's head for the knob of the cover. Since the nickel holders do not go into the oven or on the stove, they may be readily handled by the diners, and when they are used, the dishes are usually passed on the tray to each person.

But, in this case, as well as when there is no holder, a folded napkin on each plate is an essential. In the one case the hot ramekin must be kept from the plate, in the other the metal slips and slides too easily to be convenient.

In fine, French china, ramekins of one style prevail, although now and then novelties appear. These usually hold nearly half a pint, and have straight sides either crispy fluted or plain. The decorations savour of the Dresden order. They arenccompanied by saucers. These dishes frequently never see the oven, bnt are heated before using and employed only for serving entrees or sometimes hot desserts. The latter are usually baked in them, however, as are all entrees that are browned on the top.

One of the baking dishes that has created more curiosity among women than any other is the round, shallow plate with straight fluted sides. It is to be had in the white lined brown German ware and in white. It is made in a variety of sizes, from those large enough for a family to a size suited to the individual portion. It is for cheese cake, Dutch apple cake, as sometimes used for pies. The "pasties" and tarts dear to the Germans and French are also baked in it.

Seized the Elephant

QUEBEC, July 10.—An elephant is no man's load, yet Bailiff Gelley, Quebec city, was "burdened" with one of the two-tailed mammoths he was called upon to seize in the name of the law from the Robinson Circus, performing here.

Three kitchen hands, Ernest McMann, of Chicago, William Foley and George with the circus claiming salaries were due them, took action against the circus management, attaching first an elephant, then the whole menagerie, rolling stock, etc.

Arrangements were made to allow the performance, and finally the parties came to some arrangement that took the heavy "load" off the bailiff's hands and mind.

SPECIAL SERVICES AT GEORGE STREET.

The services at the George Street Church on Sunday will be appropriate with the occasion of the 12th of July. In the morning, the Rev. R. G. Peever will preach, taking for his subject, "What is Protestantism?" In the evening, he and the Rev. H. J. Keith will exchange pulpits. All who knew these twop astors will likely be anxious to hear the two splendid sermons at the George Street Church.

BEHIND THE TIMES.

Sir Ernest Shackleton said of a piece of geographical ignorance:

"It was incredible. It reminded me of a little waiting maid:

"As she brought me my tea and toast and bloater one morning I said to her:

"What a rainy morning, Mary. It's almost like the Flod."

"The Flood, sir?" said the little maid. She looked at me with a puzzled smile.

"Yes," said I, "The Flood—Noah, you know—the Ark—Mount Ararar."

She shook her head and murmured apologetically:

"I ain't had no time to read the papers lately, sir."

AWAKENED BY BABE.

Child's Cries Save Brockville Family From Death In Fire.

BROCKVILLE, July 11.—Mr. and Mrs. L. Morrison and their three-year-old son narrowly escaped being burned to death when fire broke out in their home at an early hour yesterday. The screams of the child awakened the parents. At this time the whole lower portion of the dwelling was enveloped in flames. Morrison beat a hasty exit through the stifling smoke with his wife and child by a rear stairway, and succeeded in reaching the street safely with nothing but their night clothes. The greater portion of the household effects were burned and the dwelling badly scorched. The loss is fully covered by insurance.

Wouldn't Arrest Mayor.

MONTREAL, July 11. — Mayor Martin was caught yesterday breaking a civic bylaw by stopping his motor car at the curb on the wrong side of St. James street and allowing the car to stand there for some time. Jean Juneau, sales manager of the Stockwell Motor Co., who has been prosecuted a number of times for violating the bylaw in similar fashion, took the number of the car, also the number of a policeman, who declined to take any action in the matter, though pressed by Juneau to do so.

The latter threatens to make trouble for all concerned.

AMERICANS GOING BACK?

U. S. Secretary of Labor Boasts That Emigrants Are Returning.

WASHINGTON, July 11. — Secretary Wilson of the Department of Labor is in receipt of reports which indicate that the number of American citizens emigrating to Canada is decreasing. For several years the time of emigration across the northern borders of the United States grew to such proportions as to cause anxiety to American Government officials and others. During 1912, 97,951 American citizens went to Canada, while the number returned from that country to the United States was only 38,317.

When he became Secretary of Labor Mr. Wilson ordered that departmental bulletins giving facts as to the products resources and physical characteristics of all the states be sent to American residents of Canada.

For the eleven months ending May 31, 1914, it is stated at the Department, 68,396 American citizens went over into the Dominion, while 44,127 returned to the United States.

REVENUE GOING DOWN.

Figures Also Evidence Increase In Canada's Outlay.

OTTAWA, July 11.—The Dominion revenue for the opening quarter of the fiscal year totals $33,660,389. In the same period last year it was $41,-268,690. The expenditure on consolidated account is $13,047,642, compared with $10,777,911 in this like period of 1913. Capital outlay decreased by three millions to $4,160,-154, due to fewer railway subsidies.

The revised returns for the fiscal year ended March 31 show total revenue, $163,174,394; consolidated fund expenditure, $127,353,981; capital expenditure, $56,216,713; net debt, $335,966,658, an increase of $21,665,032 on the year.

A High-handed Action.

SARNIA, July 11.—There is general indignation over the action of U. S. immigration inspectors from Fort Huron in locking several hundred members of the Sarnia Baptist Sunday School in a waiting-room at the Northern Navigation Co. docks yesterday morning until the steamer City of Toledo arrived to take them to Tachmos Park on the American side for their annual picnic. Locking up Canadians on Canadian soil is considered going a little too far and trouble may result.

Finding a Starting Place.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., July 11.—W. D. Walker, agent for Lieut. Porte, who plans to cross the Atlantic in the flying boat America, has arrived here to select a starting place for it. He will take a motor trip with President Reid of the Reid-Newfoundland Railroad yesterday, to inspect various harbors along the coast between St. John's and Cape Race.

Arranging Details of Loan.

OTTAWA, July 11. — Sir William Mackenzie and Hector McInnes interviewed Sir Robert Borden and Hon. Frank Cochrane yesterday. It was in connection with the details of the flotatie of the loan guaranteed by the Government.

China Wants Big Loan.

LONDON, July 11. — Pekin despatches to The Daily Telegraph say that China is about to apply to the bankers of the five-power group for another loan of $100,000,000.

A special despatch from Cairo, Egypt, says the Anglo-Egyptian members of the Ulster volunteers have received cablegrams calling them back to Ulster.

It is rumored that one of the four new Senators, to be named shortly, from Ontario will be Harvey Hall, of Toronto, Parliamentary representative of the Order of Railway Conductors.

Another death from the bubonic plague in New Orleans was announced yesterday by the public health officers, making a total of four cases and three deaths since the outbreak of the disease on June 27.

W. J. Curle, for many years superintendent of the B. & W. Railway at Brockville, a branch line of the C.N.R., has been promoted to a similar position on the Toronto-Port Arthur division of the C.N.R.

An order for the release from custody of the president and members of the Servian Students' Club in Berlin, Germany, who were arrested on Wednesday on suspicion of being engaged in a pan-Servian conspiracy, was issued yesterday.

BIG TRUCK RUNS AWAY.

Eight Persons Are Injured In Disaster In Montreal.

MONTREAL, July 11. — Eight persons were injured, two seriously, the plate glass window of a saloon was smashed and a score of people narrowly escaped injury yesterday morning when a motor delivery truck, driven by W. Bibeau, owned by H. Letourneau, became unmanageable, the brakes refusing to work while descending the steep hill on St. Lawrence boulevard, near Ontario street.

Ben Ostell and Jenny Ostell, aged 5 and 23, respectively, brother and sister, were hit by the mud guard of the machine and thrown a distance of six feet. They were picked up unconscious and taken to the General Hospital along with A. Lupino, who was struck by falling glass. At the hospital it was found that the Ostells were badly bruised and probably suffering from internal injuries.

Hay Overheated; Barn Burns.

PRESTON, July 13. — The large barn, near Doon, of John Shee caught fire yesterday afternoon through the heating of 30 tons of hay, just put in the barn. On account of no fire protection, the barn and the contents were destroyed, with three horses, several cattle and some chickens.

Mob Lynched Negress.

ORANGEBURG, S.C., July 13.—Rosa Carson, a negress, was taken from the jail at EHores, near here yesterday and lynched by a mob. She is said to have confessed to beating to death the 12-year-old daughter of D. F. Bell Saturday.

Sometimes a man is willing to remain at the foot of the ladder for the purpose of pulling others down.

The New York bad man given a life sentence for stealing a watch will appreciate the significance of "doing time."

With the English militants burning churches, think of the risk people run who persist in sleeping through the sermon.

The problem in Mexico just now is not so much who shall own the land as who will be allowed to raise anything on it.

Guglielmo Marconi, experimenting on his new wireless telephone, talked 600 miles. The venerable "blue streak" is quite outstripped.

WHOOPING COUGH

Mrs. Charles Lovell, Agassiz B.C., writes: "Seven of our nine children had whooping cough the same winter and we attribute their cure to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. We always have it in the house, and recommend it as the king of all medicines. I was formerly completely cured of protruding piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment."

EXPECT A QUIET TWELFTH IN ULSTER

How Strong Detachments of Police Have Been Dispatched to the Orange Strongholds to Prevent Rioting

BELFAST, July 13.—While it is generally anticipated that to-day will pass off peacefully in Belfast, there is some disquiet as to Londonderry. No special police or military precautions are being taken here, but strong police reinforcements have been despatched to Derry.

The religious services yesterday afternoon and evening were exceedingly well attended and files of Orange lodges filled the street during the afternoon.

Sir Edward Carson, discussing the statements of the Radicals minimising the result of Friday's meeting, said: "I cannot say anything as to the proceedings at the meeting, but you may take it from me that the effects of its resolutions is to give us power to act at once when necessary to do so"

A hundred extra police have been drafted to Londonderry.

If the celebration of the battle of the Boyne passes without a collision between Orangemen and Catholics, the Home Rulers of Ulster will have passed another critical danger point. The demonstrations will be marked here by a great procession, which will march to Drumbeg, four miles distant, to hold the customary celebration.

The Protestant section of Belfast is decorated more lavishly than in former years. Flags and banners bearing inscriptions defying Home Rule are displayed everywhere. The presence of Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster leader, and armed guards surrounding his headquarters at Captain Craig's house, together with a review of battalions of volunteers, which several of the leaders held yesterday, causes much excited talk, but despite such exhibitions of high feeling, men in closest touch with the people of both factions predict that the occasion will pass without any conflagration.

The Nationalists assert that the covenanters are working up a purely artificial crisis to frighten the Government into accepting the Lords' amendments for the exclusion of the whole of Ulster from Home Rule.

Thousands of members of the constabulary have been brought north to preserve peace to-day, but this is about the number usually mobilized to repress the feelings of the wearers of the orange and of the green on the most contentious day of the Irish calendar.

Police Cowed By Volunteers.

LONDON, July 13.—The Londonderry correspondent of The Daily Express sends a sensational story of how 100 Ulster volunteers, on Saturday morning, recaptured at the Kilmiklin station a consignment of arms and ammunition which had been seized at Londonderry on Wednesday by the customs authorities. The consignament was being conveyed from Londonderry to Dublin, under an armed guard of ten policemen.

At the Kilmiklin station the volunteers surrounded the guard with drawn revolvers and swiftly removed the cases and placed them in motor cars. The police were powerless.

Birrell is Sanguine.

BRISTOL, July 13.—Augustin Birrell, Secretary for Ireland, Saturday attended a Liberal garden party where he made an address dealing with Home Rule. In the course of his address he said that while the situation in Ulster was undoubtedly grave, he never was more sanguine than at the present moment that a reasonable settlement would be reached.

It was admitted on all sides that Home Rule for Ireland was inevitable, the Chief Secretary continued. The only question at issue was to bring it about in such a way as to minimize the difficulties while uniting the whole of Ireland.

SIX PERSONS DEAD.

Cloudburst In Lebanon Valley Followed by Flood.

SCRANTON, Pa., July 13. — Six dead and many injured is the known result of a flood which swept through Lebanon Valley on the heels of a cloudburst. Damage to the extent of many thousands of dollars was done to the mining and farming region. Many miners, caught in shafts and cross tunnels narrowly escaped. One of the men who perished near Lebanon stepped on a high tension wire and another was killed by lightning.

Overflowing of a creek in the Lebanon district flooded thousands of acres of corn and wheat, while hail that accompanied the storm destroyed much of the fruit crop. Twenty-five men were caught in a mine 200 feet below the surface at Archbald, near Scranton, when a dam burst and flooded the mine workings. They all managed to escape to the surface.

Over Fatally Injured.

KINGSTON, July 13. — Two persons here are near death's door because of injuries sustained in falls.

John Marshall, a convict at the penitentiary, fell off a wall there on Saturday and received probably fatal injuries. Workmen have been building up a wall, and Marshall was helping them. Peter McLeod fell from the attic of his house, a distance of 30 feet, and had two ribs broken and a lung punctured. He will likely die.

VERY LITTLE TO SPARE.

Roblin Will Do Well If He Has a Majority of Two.

WINNIPEG, July 13.—The standing of the parties in the next Legislature of Manitoba still remains in doubt, two days after the elections. Liberal and Conservative claims still differ, the Government forces still believing in a 25 to 21 standing, which includes the two doubtful seats in St. George and St. Rose. Last night, however the Liberals, while conceding St. Rose, claim St. George as a Liberal victory, giving Sigfuson, Liberal, over Hamelin, Conservative, by 47 majority, with three polls to come. Of these three polls, two, they declare, will go Liberal and one Conservative, leaving the final result a Liberal victory.

Should the Liberals really be successful in taking the St. George, the standing would be 24 to 22, the Conservatives having formerly claimed both these seats in arriving at the 25 to 21 standing. The result cannot be settled with any degree of accuracy, however, until the returning officer's official figures are turned in.

STEAMER GOES ASHORE.

The Canada Strikes Rocks at Cape Chatte in Fog.

RIMOUSKI, Que., July 13. — The steamer Canada, of the Gaspe and Baie de Chaleurs Co., Ltd., on her return trip from Montreal to Campbellton, N.B., struck the rocks off Cape Chatte Saturday night in a dense fog, a half mile east of Cape Chatte lighthouse. The Canada carried about one hundred passengers for Quebec and Montreal, and general cargo. The weather was calm and the grounding caused little excitement on board. All the passengers were placed in boats and landed on shore, about half a mile from the stranded steamer.

The steamer Strathcona left Rimouski wharf late yesterday to try to float the Canada. As the Canada went on the rocks at high tide it is anticipated the work will be difficult. Cape Chatte lighthouse is seventy-five miles east of Rimouski.

Hunter Sues For Libel.

GODERICH, Ont., July 13.—John B. Hunter, the chief witness in the Elliott Macklin election conspiracy, who was before Magistrate Kelly on Thursday last, has instructed his solicitor, Mr. L. E. Dancy, to take action for libel against The Toronto Globe, The Toronto Mail and Empire and The Goderich Star for statements made in connection with the trial.

IS HUERTA LEAVING?

Rumor Says Provisional President Will Resign To-day.

VERA CRUZ, July 13. — The resignation of Provisional President Huerta may be placed before Congress to-day, the general departing immediately thereafter for Puerta, Mexico, or Vera Cruz, under British escort, according to reports in circulation here last night, which originated from a source that is usually well informed. Odolfo de la Lama, Minister of Finance in Huerta's Cabinet, who arrived here yesterday en route to Europe, while refusing to confirm these reports, said that Huerta's retirement at an early date was not unlikely, and that from now until Monday was "but a short time to await developments."

Reports from the Mexican capital also state that Francisco Carbajal, the newly-appointed Foreign Minister, replacing Esteva Ruis, the acting Minister, who will arrive here to-day on his way to Europe, will be named Provisional President.

Secret Senate Session.

MEXICO CITY, Jan 13. — The Senate held a short session yesterday afternoon behind closed doors. It is believed that the Niagara protocol was discussed, but if the Senate took any action with reference to it, this is not known.

The remnant of the garrison at Guadalajara arrived here yesterday. The officers report that Gen. Jose Maria Mier, the Governor of Jalisco and commander-in-chief of the Federal forces at Guadalajara, was captured by the Constitutionalists, and, they fear, was shot.

Federals Hold Guaymas.

SALTILLO, Mexico, July 11, via Laredo, Texas, July 13.—Previous reports that the seaport town of Guaymas had been evacuated by Federals were in error, according to advices yesterday from Gen. Alvaredo, commanding the Constitutionalists besieging that city. Alvaredo reports he has moved his forces so as to surround Guaymas completely on the land side.

Huge Gathering In Glasgow.

GLASGOW, July 13.—Twenty-five thousand West Scotland Orangemen held a demonstration at Stanyre, Lanarkshire, Saturday afternoon. The grand master of Scotland, Rev. David Ness, declared that their policy regarding Home Rule was "no surrender." Great crowds witnessed the procession through the streets, and lively skirmishes occurred, but only four persons were arrested.

SAW LIGHT FLICKERING.

And Worshipper Found It Was Part of a Bomb.

LONDON, July 13.—A bomb was discovered last night in the famous old Church of St. John Evangelist, Westminster, and a woman named Annie Bell, who has figured several times in militant activities, was arrested. This church was damaged last March by a bomb which the suffragettes placed beneath the seat in the gallery above the pulpit.

A member of the congregation noticed a light flickering in a pew in the rear of the church, and on investigation found a candle so placed as to set fire to a fuse connected with a can of gunpowder.

The suffragettes have been active during the week end. They burned a railway station near Leicester in the early hours of the morning.

MANY ARE DROWNED

Several Tragedies Recorded During Week-end, Including a Triple Fatality at Belleville

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., July 13. —Galbraith Elmslie, aged nine, and James Comrie, ten years of age, were drowned in the Twenmile Creek Saturday afternoon while bathing. The current in the stream from the Cataract Power House at Deere Falls carried the lads off their feet, according to the story of a younger brother of the Elmslie lad who view the accident from the bank. The bodies have not been recovered.

The remains of Fred Gauthier, aged 16, who was drowned in the old Welland Canal Friday night have been found. Gauthier dived from a raft while in an overheated condition.

Three Drowned Near Belleville.

BELLEVILLE, July 13. — Everett Ketcheson, aged 24 years, son of Thomas Ketcheson, of Sidney Township, was drowned in the Trent Canal near Frankfort Saturday. The victim was an assistant to the engineer on that part of the canal and was in bathing with Fred Harrison and Ross Thurley. Harrison and Turley were brought around about fifteen or twenty minutes after they had been taken from the water, having been overcome in attempting to rescue Ketcheson.

Gladys Bongard, a girl of 15 years of age whose parents reside in this city, was drowned Saturday in the Bay of Quinte from off Minnenaga Park, where the family are summering. The victim in company with another girl, was bathing on a shoal when she slipped from a log into deep water and did not rise. The body was recovered some minutes after.

An Italian whose name could not be learned was yesterday afternoon drowned whilst bathing in the Bay of Quinte off Burch's Island. He had been engaged on sewer construction work in this city.

Toronto Lad Drowned.

TORONTO, July 13.—While bathing in Lake Ontario at Woodbine Beach on Saturday afternoon, Bert Carr, 18 years old, of 21 Donlin avenue, stepped beyond his depth and was drowned. With the boy at the time was Earl Blackwell, a playmate, of 17 Donlin avenue. Neither could swim. Both had been playing in the water for several hours when the Carr boy stepped into a hole. Efforts by the life-saving crew were made to resuscitate him, but to no avail.

Teredom Almost Costs Life.

UXBRIDGE, July 14. — James E. Wigman, a home boy, 15 years of age, was drowned in Jackson's Pond about a mile south of here Saturday evening. The lad was learning to swim and ventured beyond his depth.

Mr. Treneworth, with whom he lived, jumped in after him and he in turn was nearly drowned, having to be pulled out by his wife with a pike pole.

Took Cramps and Sank.

HAMILTON, July 13.—Yesterday afternoon about one o'clock, while swimming at the foot of Ottawa street in the inlet, John Gravers, a Pole, who resided at 27 Imperial street, was seized with cramps, and with a cry sank. Others who were bathing near him heard his cries, but were unable to secure the body for nearly an hour later. The pulmotor was obtained and an effort made to resuscitate him, but without avail. Dr. Hopkins was called and has ordered an inquest. The deceased was seventeen years of age.

Lake Rosseau Claims a Victim.

ROSSEAU, Muskoka, July 13.—Leo Hoppe, a high school student, of Grimsby, and formerly of Bracebridge, was drowned in Lake Rosseau Saturday afternoon. The accident occurred at Rossmoyne, which is about three hundred yards from Rosseau.

ENGINEER IS KILLED.

Murdock Lloyd Fatally Scalded at Mine In Haileybury.

TORONTO, July 13.—News reached Toronto last night of the death of Mr. Murdoch Lloyd of this city at Haileybury, as a result of a boiler explosion at Haileybury on Saturday afternoon. From the meagre facts obtainable it seems that Mr. Lloyd, who was interested in Tough Oaks Mines at Swastika, undertook to do something to a boiler at the mine, and while he was at work it exploded, scalding him so badly that he lingered in intense agony from four o'clock Saturday afternoon until 10 o'clock yesterday morning, when he was relieved by death.

Mr. Lloyd was a mining engineer by profession. He was born in Aurora about 45 years ago. He was married to a Miss Smith of Pembroke, who predeceased him about five years ago, and is survived by one child, a little girl.

Arbitrator To Settle Dispute.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 13.—Greece and Turkey have requested Switzerland to designator as arbitrator to settle the differences existing among the members of the mixed Graeco-Turkish commission which is sitting in Smyrna for the purpose of arranging the emigration question.

Famous American Jurist Dead.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., July 13.—Associated Judge Morance Harmon Lurton, of the U. S. Supreme Court, died suddenly at a hotel here yesterday from heart failure superinduced by cardiac asthma. He was 70 years old.

"TWELFTH" HONORED.

Celebrations Held In Many Parts of Ontario on Saturday.

TORONTO, July 13.—Many Orange celebrations were held Saturday throughout the province and others will be held to-day. In every case the attendances have been large. Prominent men spoke all over the province.

The celebration in Toronto was the largest in history. Ten thousand men paraded, among them a contingent of 1,000 from Hamilton as well as lodges from the surrounding country towns and villages. A big program of speeches was provided at Exhibition Park.

London Orangemen at Church.

LONDON, Ont., July 13.—London Orangemen, 1,000 strong, observed Religious Freedom Sunday yesterday afternoon by marching to divine service at the Church of St. John the Evangelist, where the sermon was preached by Rev. Manly Ashby, a member of the order. Rev. Canon Craig assisting. A large delegation of local Orangemen are taking in the big district celebration in St. Thomas to-day.

"Hands Off Ulster."

MARKDALE, July 13.—"Hands off Ulster" was the burden of all the speeches at the big Grey county Orange celebration here Saturday which was attended by 1,500 Orangemen of fifty lodges.

The chief speakers to the Orangemen were Hon. T. S. Sproule, M.P., Hon. I. B. Lucas, M.P.P., and Rev. E. M. Phales.

Five Thousand at Huntingdon.

BELLEVILLE, July 13.—On Saturday at West Huntingdon upwards of five thousand people took part in the Orange celebration. After the parade speeches were delivered by officials of the order and Messrs. E. G. Porter, M.P., W. B. Northrop, M.P., Sandy Grant, M.P.P., R. J. Cooke, M.P.P., and others

"PEBLO"
The Glass of Quality
We have at any doubt but that most people value their eyesight sufficiently to want to take the best care of it. That is why we want to the expense of securing for our Optical Trade the Highest Grade of Lenses than can be made and which we handle exclusively under the trade mark "PEBLO." We believed our patrons would appreciate having their eyeglasses fitted with this superior quality lens, and after two years exclusive use of "PEBLO" Lenses, we are well satisfied with the result, judging by the hundreds of satisfied customers whom we have fitted with these beautiful lenses. It is interesting to know that in spite of the expense of procuring "PEBLO" Lenses the prices to our patrons are no more than when we used other makes of lenses, this being due to the large quantity we buy at a time. We manufacture these "PEBLO" Lenses from the uncut "PEBLO" glass, in our own lens grinding department.

A Wireless Message From The Dead

By F. A. MITCHEL.

We are moving so fast in scientific discoveries that, lost in wonder at what we know, we have no time to consider what our attained knowledge is likely to develop in future. For instance, we know that an electric current may be transmitted without any other medium than the atmosphere. We also know that functions of the body, if not electric, are a force something like electricity.

When I was a boy I was constantly finding myself saying something to a companion who would say, "Why, I was just about to say that myself!" At the time I considered this a coincidence. Now I believe it to be a power I possessed in receiving the mental impressions of others by a sort of wireless process. I studied medicine and became a doctor. Then during hospital work I broke down and, though it was between winter and spring, was obliged to go to the country to recoup.

I stopped at a house that looked down a valley, and the view was uninterrupted. I used to sit on the porch wrapped in rugs and enjoy the view in the sunshine. About a mile distant was a house that bore evidence of having been built in colonial times. It was not by any means a farmhouse, but something quite handsome. The architecture was that peculiar style involving a porch with pillars.

One night I was awakened by the sound of wheels stopping right under my window and thought I heard some one call "Doctor!" I raised the sash and put my head out through the window. A man in a wagon asked me if I was a doctor, and I said I was, whereupon he begged me to come with him at once. I dressed myself unwillingly, went downstairs and got into the wagon with him. I asked him to tell me about the nature of the case I was expected to treat, but could get nothing out of him. He seemed entirely absorbed in some powerful emotion.

We were but a few minutes in reaching our destination, drawing up before a house with pillars from the porch to the roof. I inferred that I had come to the house stout which I had so often dreamed. The door was opened by a woman in a short petticoat full at the hips, a kerchief across her bosom and a dainty cap on her head. She looked very much troubled.

"Come upstairs," she said.

I followed her up a winding staircase, and the woman opened a door with a glass knob. I entered the sickroom to see a young woman lying on a bed with four high posts surmounted by a canopy. On one side of her was a man holding one of her hands; on the other side was a young girl holding the other. These two looked at me with that mute appeal a doctor is so often obliged to meet.

As I drew near the bed the girl with the invalid pulled down the bedclothes, and I saw at once from blood stains and temporary bandages that my patient had been wounded. I was not a surgeon, but felt obliged to perform a surgeon's part. I examined the wound and saw that it was near the heart, so near that I wondered that the wounded woman lived. There was nothing that I could do for her except bind up the wound in a more professional manner and await results.

Presently I saw her gasp, and between gasps she said to the man beside her:

"You are convinced of the unjustness of your suspicions?"

"Yes, yes; forgive me."

"I forgive you. Goodby."

She fell back dead.

Amid a wail of those present I retired from the room. Notwithstanding the tragical circumstances, I could not but notice the costume of those in the house. "What singular persons!" I said to myself. "Not content with living in a colonial house, they adopt the colonial costume." This was especially marked in their collars, which were like those I had seen in pictures of America's early settlers. I was ushered out by the woman who received me and driven back to my home, where I went to bed, remaining till awake, half asleep, for the rest of the night.

Now, there was something uncanny about my visit, and I hesitated to talk about it to those in the house. I asked if any of the family had heard a wagon stop before the house during the night, but no one had heard any such sound. This induced me to maintain a reserve about my visit. Presently I ventured to ask who lived in the house with pillars and was told that no one lived there. It had been unoccupied for many years. The last tenant had vacated some thirty years before. I asked if anything peculiar had taken place there, but no one had heard of anything unusual. But before returning to the city I heard from a very old resident of the region there was a legend that long before the Revolution a murder had been committed there. A man in a fit of jealousy had stabbed his wife.

And now in this second decade of the twentieth century I have come to believe that the scene I witnessed took place as I saw it many years ago; but it was stored somewhere; it may go in some soul across the border, possibly one of the participants who flashed it to me by some such process as a wireless operator will flash a message from one side of the world to another.

THE ONLY CURE FOR CONSTIPATION

Is "Fruit-a-tives"—That Wonderful Remedy Made From Fruit Juices.

AVON, ONT., MAY 14th, 1913.

"I have used "Fruit-a-tives" for Indigestion and Constipation with most excellent results, and they continue to be my only medicine. When I first started about six years ago to use them, I took four at a dose but gradually reduced the dose to one tablet at night. Before taking "Fruit-a-tives", I took salts and other pills but the treatment was too harsh. I thought I might as well suffer from the illness as from these treatments. Finally, I saw "Fruit-a-tives" advertised with a letter in which some one recommended them very highly, so I tried them, and I have no hesitation in recommending them." ANNIE E. CORBETT.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

IMPORTANCE OF YOUR FACE

Something For Girls and Boys to Take Seriously to Heart.

If you stop to think about this for a moment you see what a tremendously important thing it is. Just as surely as you have a face the story of your life will be written on that face. If you are mean and crabbed and disagreeable your face will settle into a disagreeable expression, and everybody will avoid you. If your disposition is sunny and kind and gracious your face will beam with goodness, and everybody will know at a glance that you are lovable. And the older you grow the more distinctly your face will tell the story.

When you go out into the world to earn your living the first thing that people will ask is this: What kind of a boy is he or what kind of a girl is she? Under our present industrial system the employer has to teach young persons their trade after he hires them. So he is more interested in the applicant's character than in his present ability. And the character he will learn from the face.

It is just as the director of the employment bureau of a great department store said to me: "We base our choice largely on the applicant's looks. To be sure, the faces of boys and girls are not deeply marked. Many applicants have only begun to outline on the blank page of their cheek the picture that will eventually appear there. But even a sketch tells much. We know that almost inevitably a child will continue the facial development it has begun. The sullen, shiftless, don't care kind of face we don't want. When we see a child with a face full of courage, hope, truth, good cheer and kindliness we pick that child quick. That is the sort we are after." If, then, our faces have so much to do with our future success, isn't it worth while to try to make them attractive by being attractive ourselves?—St. Nicholas.

TIPPING THE INSPECTOR.

Experience of a Traveler With Two Customs Officials.

"When I came back from Europe this being my first trip," said a Chicago man, "I was given a striking object lesson in the difference between an American and an English customs inspector. This related to their attitude toward tips.

"Friends of mine had told me it was the proper thing to slip an inspector a little present on getting back. The one who attended me was so polite and took so much trouble to go through everything—we had numerous trunks and bags—that while I was waiting at the customs house office on the pier to pay my duty I slipped into one of his outer coat pockets an English sovereign I happened to find among my American money.

"A few minutes later he approached me.

"'Did you put a gold piece into my pocket?' he asked.

"I smilingly admitted that I had done so.

"'Will you please take it out?' he asked. I complied.

"'You may have not realized it, but that might have cost me my job,' he said and walked away.

"Now, when I landed at Liverpool an inspector who handled my baggage and marked it hung about me until I went to have it checked, or registered, as they call it. As I stood near the window he kept repeating, 'Don't forget my pocket; don't forget my pocket, sir,' until I finally grasped his meaning and handed him a tip. Then, with a 'Thank you,' with a rising inflection, he left me."

Adjectives From Names.

If you want your fame absolutely and entirely absorbed you should have an adjective rather than a noun derived from your name. Mention of a stentorian about never nowadays recalls the famous Stentor, whose voice made him notorious at the siege of Troy. Nor do we remember when we use maudlin (with a touch of scorn) that this word is what art has done for Mary Magdalene. She was so often represented by painters with eyes swollen and red with weeping that her name passed into the language to mean tearful.

So young,
So fair,
So pure,
So true,
This little stranger, cunning,
And yet
We know
What it will do
As soon
As it
Goes gunning.
To look
At it
You would not think
That trouble
Might be brewing.
Yet, certain
As
We eat and drink,
There will
Be something doing.
To look
Ahead
We see a plot
That seems
Like easy money,
But it
Will just as like
As not
Be something
Not so funny.

Found a Friend In Dr. Chase

His Medicines Proven Effective, and Always Kept at Hand in This Home.

Mrs. Chas. Lovell, Agassiz, B. C., writes:—"I feel it my duty to tell you what a great friend Dr. Chase's medicines have been to myself and family. I cannot praise his medicines too highly, and Dr. Chase's name is a household word in our home. Well, quite a number of years ago I sent to you for a sample box of Dr. Chase's Ointment for protruding piles, and, having used the sample and found relief, I sent to a neighbouring town for four boxes, and I am completely cured.

"I have also used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for constipation, and, after using them, I am completely cured of this dreadful disease. I am the mother of ten children, of whom nine are living, and when seven of my children were all very bad with whooping cough, caught in the middle of a severe winter, I used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and they were all cured before the winter was over, and now we are never without Dr. Chase's medicines in our home, and I recommend them to all."

The Difference.

My neighbor and his wife fell out;
Through house and yard they rushed about.
They scolded and they jabbered loud
Until they drew a grinning crowd.
They even clinched and came to blows,
At which I hurriedly arose
And, dashing through the open gate,
Remarked, "I've come to mediate."
I hate to tell what happened next,
They must have been a trifle vexed.
They blackened my eyes and threw me down
And beat me black and blue and brown.
And as my neighbor bumped my pate
He cried, "Suppose we arbitrate?"
—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Meeting the Emergency.

One day Jones lost a button from his serge coat, and on leaving for the office the following morning he asked little bridie if she wouldn't repair the damage during the day. Little bridie, of course, sweetly promised.

"Where are you, Harry?" called the young wife on hearing hubby rambling around the house that evening. What are you looking for?"

"I am looking for my blue serge coat," answered Harry. "Did you sew on that button?"

"No, dear," came the startling rejoinder of wifey. "I couldn't find the button, so I sewed up the buttonhole."—Kansas City Star.

Thackeray's Salute.

Of that form of eccentricity closely related to egotism, whereby many of the world's greatest artists and writers have conveyed to us their appreciation of their own work, a most interesting case is that of Thackeray, ordinarily a most modest man. But there is good authority that Thackeray never passed the house in Russell square wherein he lived when he wrote "Vanity Fair" without raising his hat—a tribute from himself to his great work.

The Llama.

The story of the name of the South American llama is interesting. "Como se llama?" (What is its name?) asked the early Spanish adventurers of the Peruvians. The natives, not understanding, merely echoed the last word of the question and the name has stuck through the centuries.

REFUSE NOT THE VOICE FROM HEAVEN

Only Those in Harmony With Head of Church Can He Use.

THREE CLASSES IN THE CHURCH

The History of Man's Rebellion Against God — To Israel Alone God Spoke. Through the Law and the Prophets. God Now Speaks Through His Son. To the Church Alone — Only the Spirit-Begotten Can Discern Spiritual Things— The Proper Attitude of Heart— Consecration a Most Reasonable Step — The Responsibility of the Consecrated Child of God.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its insertion.]

July 12. — The Photo-Drama of Creation is now being produced daily in more than eighty cities, both here and abroad. From all sides come words of commendation. The Bible is being opened up to popular understanding as never before. Pastor Russell's text today was, "See that ye refuse not Him that speaketh * * * from Heaven." — Hebrews 12:25.

The Pastor introduced his discourse with a comment upon the opening verses of the Epistle to the Hebrews. There the Apostle is contrasting the Message which God sent through the Lord Jesus Christ with those messages sent previously through His servants—Moses and the Prophets of Israel. The Apostle elsewhere tells us that God speaks peace unto us through His Son. This statement suggests that previously there had been war. Away back in the days of Eden, when Father Adam and Mother Eve were on trial, Mother Eve was misled by Satan's suggestion and disobeyed God's command. Then Father Adam, leaning to his own understanding, sinned wilfully, that he might have fellowship with his wife—rather than with God. Thus the entire race were brought into rebellion against the Creator and were condemned to death in Adam.

Then the Pastor went on to trace the history of the rebellious race of man. Cut off from fellowship with God, falling deeper and deeper into sin, degradation and death conditions none were fit to be called children of God. About twenty-five centuries after the fall, the Almighty gave the Israelites opportunity to come into harmony with Him. There He spoke to them especially, through Moses and the Law Covenant, directing that whoever would hear Moses and obey might come closer to their Creator. So we read, "They have Moses and the Prophets; let them hear them." God had not spoken to mankind in general; only to the little nation of Israel had He given a Message. To them He had not spoken in any other way than through the Law and the Prophets. The Apostle tells us that those who disobeyed Moses' Law died without mercy. Moses was God's mouthpiece; and therefore whoever disobeyed him came under the penalty of death.

The Apostle's argument, the Pastor declared, is this: Now, brethren, review the history of Israel, and see how from time to time they neglected the messages which God sent them at the mouth of angels and of Moses, and note how disasters came on them because of that negligence. If, then, there was such a penalty inflicted for negligence respecting the words of Moses, what should be the result of refusing to hear Him who speaks from Heaven itself? If those who rejected Moses' Law died without mercy, how much severer punishment should they receive who would count the blood of the Covenant wherewith they were sanctified a common thing, and who would do despite to God's spirit of favor? Surely we may expect that there would be nothing further for those who reject God's arrangement for man's salvation!

The Pastor next showed that the consecrated people of God will finally be found in one of three classes. The Little Flock, to whom our Lord declared it is the Father's good pleasure to give the Kingdom, is a limited number—so far as we can judge probably 144,000. Then comes the Great Company, "whose number no man knows"—God not having revealed it—a class unworthy of a place in the Little Flock, but yet loyal in heart to God and the principles of righteousness. Last of all, is the class that do despite to the Covenant of Grace. Formerly the Pastor was inclined to think that this class would be very small, but of late he realizes that according to the experiences of the typical people the number will be much larger than he once had thought; for many Israelites fell in the wilderness on account of having rejected the testimony of the Lord, and their death was typical.

No one is on trial for life, the Pastor declared, except those who have gotten free from the sentence of Adamic death. No one has a standing with God except those who have turned from sin and have presented their bodies in full consecration to Him. Those who have taken these steps have been accepted by the Lord Jesus, in harmony with the Father's great Plan. Immediately after our Lord has accepted them, He counts them as His flesh; and then the Father also accepts that flesh; for, as the Scriptures point out, the flesh of Christ has been in offering throughout the Gospel Age. Jesus first offered His own flesh. When He had finished that work, He appeared in the presence of God and made satisfaction for the sins of the Church, beginning with the Apostles. Then the Father indicated His acceptance of their sacrifices by giving them the Holy Spirit.

Throughout the Gospel Age, the Pastor continued, all believers have received the Holy Spirit just as soon as they have been accepted of the Father, through the great Advocate. All through the Age the members of the Body of Christ have been coming to Him; and the flesh of the Church, the consecrated ones, has been counted as the flesh of Jesus. This flesh has been suffering for nearly nineteen hundred years—Christ suffering in the flesh.

Thus we see the fulfilment of the Scripture which declares that the Church is filling up that which remains of the afflictions of Christ. "If we suffer with Him, we shall also reign with Him." And "the sufferings of the present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed" in the Church which is the Body of Christ. The Prophets of old, says St. Peter, spoke of the sufferings of The Christ and of the glory that shall follow. All who share the sufferings will also share the coming blessings — glory, honor and immortality.

Then the Pastor pointed out that those who are received of the Lord are in spirit all one as New Creatures. There is one Body of Christ in the flesh of the Church. Then there is the other Body of Christ, the New Creature Body, composed of the new natures of all who are begotten of the Holy Spirit as New Creatures; and these New Creatures inhabit this flesh of Christ. Here are two Bodies of Christ then—the Body of Christ in the flesh, and the Body of Christ spiritually, which is dwelling in these earthly tabernacles and seeking to bring them to the sacrificial point day by day in everything. He also showed that the final Body of Christ beyond the veil will be composed of the "more than conquerors" only—Jesus, the Captain, and all who voluntarily lay down their lives in following His example.

Thus there are three Bodies of Christ. The final one is taken out of the other two. Those who are left constitute the Great Company and those who go into the Second Death. But those who constitute these Bodies are the only ones with whom God is dealing—the only ones whom He has yet received. And even these were not received until they had come to the full point of consecration and were begotten of the Holy Spirit as New Creatures. Therefore it is the New Creature that is on trial, not the flesh. Throughout the entire Gospel Age, only the New Creatures in Christ have been on trial for life or death eternal.

The Pastor then explained that no one can reject Christ in the full sense of the word and go into the Second Death unless he had fully come into Christ and had become His disciple. While many have heard of Christ and have been drawn toward Him, yet until they offer themselves to God in consecration and receive the begetting of the Holy Spirit, they do not really hear Him who speaks from Heaven. Those who are begotten of the Holy Spirit get a new understanding, a new hearing, new ears as it were, and new eyes. As New Creatures they see, hear and understand differently from what they formerly did. As St. Paul says, "The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God; for they are foolishness unto him; neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned." No one can discern spiritual things until he has been begotten of the Holy Spirit.

But there is such a thing as rejecting Christ after one has heard about Him. One may turn his back upon the world, and turn his face toward God and start in the right direction. Every step of the way he will receive a little blessing. But if, when he has progressed to the place where he sees consecration clearly, he should turn back, it is a question whether his former progress in the right direction has not done him harm.

The Pastor illustrated this point by referring to the Tabernacle in the Wilderness. If one going toward the Tabernacle had entered the Court, had recognised the sacrifice of atonement upon the Brazen Altar, had progressed to the Laver, representing the purification of the flesh, and then had halted, he could not have seen the beauties of the Tabernacle. Even if he had come up to the very door of the Tabernacle, if he should then stop, all his previous progress would count for nothing.

So, if one should seek to put away the filth of the flesh—to live as moral a life as possible, to become cleaner and cleaner in his daily conduct—unless he present himself in consecration to God, his morality is of no avail in the matter of bringing him into covenant-relationship with God. Only by faith in the blood of Christ can he approach the Mercy Seat. "There is none other name given under heaven amongst men whereby we must be saved."

Any one who gets a glimpse into the future — when the Millennial Reign of Christ and His Church shall have begun—and who hears of the goodness of God, but is not melted by his own imperfections and his need of a Saviour, will, the Pastor believes, be much disadvantaged. Whoever hears the voice of God speaking peace through the Lord Jesus Christ should press on to know the Lord. If even a little glimpse of the coming Restitution, when the whole earth will become like the Garden of Eden and when all men will have the privilege of coming to perfection, does not appeal to one, that one is not in a very favorable condition of mind. Whoever does not love the God who has made so loving a provision for mankind is not in a favorable condition for further knowledge.

The Pastor clearly pointed out that those who have never heard of the goodness of God have very little responsibility in proportion to those who do hear. The heathen millions who have not heard of God could not present their bodies in sacrifice. Our Lord declared that those who know not would be beaten with few stripes in comparison with those who do know. Whoever therefore has heard, and who knows the will of God and the difference between right and wrong has a responsibility, and will receive stripes for disobedience, even if he does not now come into a full test or trial for life eternal.

The proper attitude of heart, the Pastor declared, is that of appreciation of God's mercies. As the Psalmist has said, "What shall I render unto the Lord for all His benefits toward me? I will take the cup of salvation and call upon the name of the Lord." Whoever hears of God's loving provision for the salvation of mankind should feel like removing from his heart every thing that would hinder the love of God from flowing in freely and bringing forth the fruitage of love, devotion and appreciation. To those who especially love God and desire to know His will he has offered a cup, which represents His providences for that special class. Jesus Himself drank that cup, and set us an example.

The Pastor then discussed the subject of consecration, and showed how reasonable it is for one who has come to a knowledge of the goodness of God to offer himself to the Lord. He declared that whoever carefully considered the matter would realise that all one has to offer is far too small. But God says to such, I know that you have practically nothing to give; but you must give all that you have—be it much or little. In comparison with what Jesus gave, you have nothing; for what you have is imperfect and sinful, whereas His offering was holy and undefiled. But He will imputo His merit to your offering, and thus make it acceptable.

In the typical Tabernacle and its sacrifices, the Pastor declared, this matter of consecration is represented by the offering of the two goats on the Day of Atonement. The goat represents the flesh of the one offering Himself in consecration. Consecration is the tying of the goat at the door of the antitypical Tabernacle. Then the High Priest kills the antitypical Lord's goat. Henceforth the New Creature, begotten of the Holy Spirit at the moment when the sacrifice was accepted, is represented in the Body of the High Priest.

Then, as members of the Body of the antitypical High Priest, the consecrated and spirit-begotten ones are privileged to enter the antitypical Tabernacle, the spirit-begotten condition. There they may have fellowship with God as they partake of the antitypical Bread of Presence, and as they walk by the light of the antitypical Golden Candlestick, which gives them light respecting the deep things of the Word of God. The things in the typical Tabernacle were hidden from the sun; they were dark as respects outside light, but they had the interior light. Those in the antitypical Tabernacle condition have also blessed association with the Incense Altar; not that they have anything, perhaps, to do with offering the Incense, for that which was offered by the great High Priest of their Order was sufficient for all the members of His Body and makes them acceptable in the Most Holy.

The Pastor then dwelt on the responsibility resting upon all who have offered themselves as living sacrifices and have been accepted and begotten of the Holy Spirit. These have come under the Headship of Christ. His will is to be their will, His Spirit is to be their spirit. When they were baptized into that one Spirit—when their spirits, their minds, were immersed into that of our Lord and He accepted them as members of His Body, they recognized themselves as under His Headship. This is what produces the oneness of spirit—the sympathetic heart-oneness—of all the members of Christ.

As long as the Headship of Christ is recognized, there must of necessity be much harmony among these members. But should any member get out of harmony with the Head, he is proportionately unable to get a blessing himself or to do good to others. The greatest blessing and usefulness comes from co-operation with the Head in whatever work He is doing.

In conclusion, the Pastor declared that only in proportion as we are in harmony with our Master, the great Head of the Church, can He use us as His members. The voice of the Lord is being heard throughout the earth to-day. Therefore, all who hear it should see to it that they do not refuse the Message of the hour. To all those who do refuse—as most of them are doing and will do—the tribulation that will come will be all the more severe—"a Time of Trouble such as never was since there was a nation."

The Very First One.

The visitors in the historical museum gazed curiously at a small feathered pillow which nestled in a glass case.

"I don't see anything unusual about that pillow," remarked one of the visitors, turning to the guide.

"It's a very valuable pillow," replied the guide. That is Washington's original headquarters."

Remembers Waterloo Rejoicing.

There has died recently in London, England, at the age of 105, an old lady who recollected being taken out by her father to see the illuminations after Waterloo, and was present in St. Paul's Cathedral at the service held there after the death of the Princess Charlotte, which occurred in 1817.

In England there are at least three farms devoted to the cultivation of butterflies and moths.

THE SURGEON'S GLOVES.

He Wears Them While Operating Since He Can't Get Clean Hands.

While the surgeon's success depends to a large extent upon his hands, they are at the same time a source of the greatest danger to himself and his patient.

No process has yet been discovered which makes it certain that a surgeon's hands are free from microbes and incapable of carrying infection to a patient. This is why the good surgeon will not perform the most trivial operation without first covering his hands with properly sterilized gloves.

Prolonged scrubbing with soap and running water, followed by another thorough scrubbing in from 70 to 80 per cent alcohol, removes the outer layers of skin and bacteria and makes the surface of the hands sufficiently clean.

But there still remains the danger that many microbes which may conceal in the tiny crevices at the base of the little hair glands will be forced to the surface by perspiration and the use of the hands in handling instruments and make an infection of the wound possible. While practical experience shows that his danger is very slight, yet its possibility is sufficient to make it undesirable ever to operate with the bare hands.—New York American.

SHOOTING THE RAPIDS.

Feats of the Arab Boys of Egypt, Who Are Expert Swimmers.

Among the most expert of swimmers are the Arab boys of Egypt. Like all other boys, they are fond of displaying their skill before strangers. This is how they shoot the rapids of the Nile:

Seating themselves astride a log of wood about six feet long and buoyant enough to support them waist high out of water, they ride it with the seat and gestures of a jockey and with hands and feet keep it straight with the line of the current.

The fall is shot with an ease and grace that do away with the sense of danger one would expect to feel at seeing a human being hurled along amid such a boil and turmoil of waters, but once at the bottom the youngsters have a hard struggle to induce their "horses" to turn out of the course.

To do this they avail themselves of the impetus acquired by the log in its shoot, and, throwing themselves full length upon it, they seem, with a sudden stroke from the left leg and arm, to drive it and themselves out of the current.

To fail in this would be dangerous even to Arab swimmers. Immediately below lie ugly rocks on which the heavy stream breaks with great violence.—Exchange.

They Were Solid.

Doubtless you have heard the story of the retired contractor who had engaged an artist to paint a portrait of his daughter. "Mind you," he said to the astonished artist, "I want none of your cheap slapdash work—three good coats."

Which bonnet leads me up to the story that a teacher in one of the west side schools told me the other day about a little girl. Her parents, it seems, had been celebrating their silver wedding, and little Rosie the next morning, with commendable family pride, was boasting of the quality of the presents received.

"There was a whole set," she said, "of solid silver teaspoons."

"Are you sure, Rosie," asked the teacher, "that the spoons were solid?"

"Oh, yes," was the reply triumphant; "solid silver—triple plate."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Candle Power.

In computing candle power it must be remembered that as there are many different sizes of candles the rate of burning and intensity of light radiated would vary, so that the standard candle, upon which England and the United States agree, must be used. This standard candle is made of pure spermaceti, exactly round, seven-eighths inch in diameter and of a length such that six weigh one pound, and with wick adjusted to burn 120 grains of spermaceti per hour. And the 1,000,000 candle power searchlight must emit a light equal to 1,000,000 standard candles.

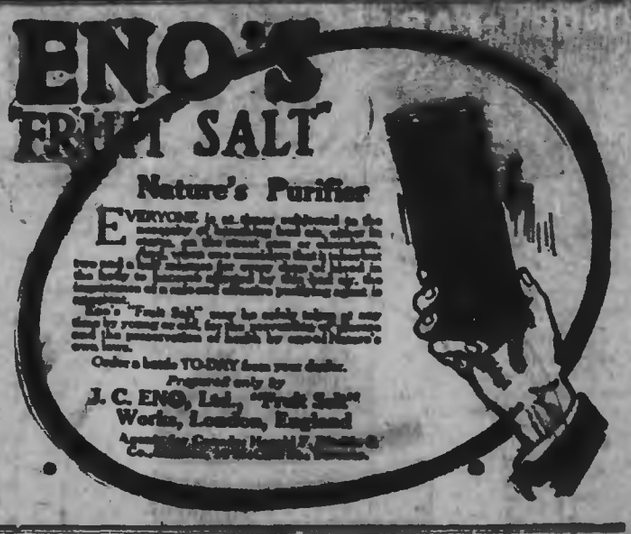
Many people don't object to truth telling so much as they do to its after effects.



MARRIAGE MOURNERS.

Rites of a German Club When One of Its Members Weds.

There are other places besides All Souls' college, Oxford, that penalise a member who marries. Many readers have doubtless heard of the Bachelors' club in London. When a member so far forgets the principles of the club as to marry he is promptly expelled. By payment of a fine of $125 he can, however, retain an honorary membership, but of course he cannot enjoy the privileges of this select band of nonmarrying men.

There is a similar organization in Germany—the Junggesellen club. Whenever there comes to the officials of this club any intimation that a member contemplates matrimony he is immediately summoned for trial in the club court, with the president as judge. The culprit is allowed to plead in extenuation of his offense, and upon his skill in pleading such plea depends the amount of his fine, which ranges from $100 to $1,000.

The humorous feature of the fine consists in the purpose to which the money is applied. The money is devoted to a dinner, whereat all members appear in mourning attire. At the conclusion of the repast the president solemnly reads the sentence of expulsion, and the delinquent is led from the room amid the groans and lamentations of his erstwhile clubfellows.—London Tit-Bits.

6 BOXES CURED PSORIASIS

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Cameron, Ont., writes: "Three doctors described my trouble as psoriasis and one said I could never be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head, and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment and am entirely cured—not a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this Ointment enough."

Weight of a Lion.

What does a lion weigh? Those who know the look of the king of beasts best and how small his little body really is will probably come far best from the truth. About 300 to 350 pounds is a usual estimate, but a full grown lion will tip the scales at no less than 500 pounds. Five hundred and forty pounds is the record for an African lion. His bone is solid and heavy as ivory. The tiger runs the lion very close. A Bengal tiger killed by an English officer scaled 520 pounds. A tiger this size has, however, considerably more muscular strength than the biggest lion.

Hired His Newspaper.

Lady Taylor once took a friend to see the poet Tennyson and was rather coldly received. On Lady Taylor rallying him on his manner he said:

"Madam, I am a poor man, and as I can't afford to buy the Times I have it from the stationer. He charges me 2 cents for it, which entitles me to keep it an hour. Why will people select just that hour to come and call on me?"

His Periodicals.

"Do you take any periodicals?" asked the clergyman on his first round of parish visits.

"Well, I don't," replied the woman, "but my husband takes 'em frequent. I do wish you'd try to get him to sign the pledge."

Old, but Able.

Marino Dandolo was not elected doge of Venice until he was eighty-two years old, and he still retained the fire and vigor of his youth. He consulted and took the city of Constantinople when he was ninety-two years old, himself displaying the gonfalon of St. Mark and animating his followers to the charge. Villars, the French general, in his eighty-fourth year, when crippled with wounds and disease, led a cavalry charge with the same light hearted contempt for danger displayed by him in his youth. The men who won distinction in high command during the mutiny against the English in India in 1857-8 were all of them well advanced in years. Sir Colin Campbell, the commander in chief, was sixty-five; Havelock was sixty-two, Sir Hugh Rose fifty-seven and Sir James Outram fifty-four. They stood the fatigue of field service in a tropical climate, with the thermometer at from 110 degrees to 119 degrees in the shade, as well as younger men.—London Answers.

Conversation and Talk.

In the fall of 1909 a wandering British philosopher who hailed from the University of Cambridge was a guest at various American colleges, and after he had gone back to his own place he published in a Cambridge review his opinion that "in America there is, broadly speaking, no culture. There is instruction; there is research; there is technical and professional training; there is specialisation in science and in industry; there is every possible application of life to purposes and ends, but there is no life for its own sake." And he declared that "you will find, if you travel long in America, that you are suffering from a kind of dropsy. You will not at first realise what it means, but suddenly it will flash upon you that you are suffering from lack of conversation. You do not converse; you cannot; you can only talk."—"Concerning Conversation," by Brander Matthews in Scribner's.

One of New York's Show Places.

The collector's office at the custom house is one of the show places of New York city. His ornate room was decorated from designs by Cass Gilbert, who drew the plans for the custom house, and Will Guernsey. This high ceilinged apartment, with its oak paneling, mural paintings of Dutch ships and Colonial scenes, and its great fireplace, cost upward of $25,000. The ceiling of raised gold figures on a purple ground is a copy of an old Italian ceiling, with original figures, such as fish, tridents, boats and other appropriate subjects. The big fireplace, with wide hearth and high mantelshelf, is of gray stone. Below the shelf is inscribed the history of the first custom house, which stood on this spot.

Fishing Snakes.

While fishing in the Fort St. George moat, at Madras, a correspondent of Country Life saw a snake fifteen inches long come out of the water with a fish in its mouth. On catching sight of the writer it dropped the fish and boited, leaving the fish on the bank alive. On another occasion, while fishing in a reservoir near Ghaziabad, he again saw a snake emerging from the water with a fish in its mouth. This snake was about twenty-four inches long, and on killing it he was able to identify the fish as a common species of Indian fresh water fish. Later on he saw a viper, nearly four feet long, lying in shallow water. The writer hooked it ashore with his tackle, upon which the snake attacked him, leaving a large yellow fang in his fishing rod.

Automobiles and street cars will find some difficulty during the summer in claiming more victims than the lakes and streams.

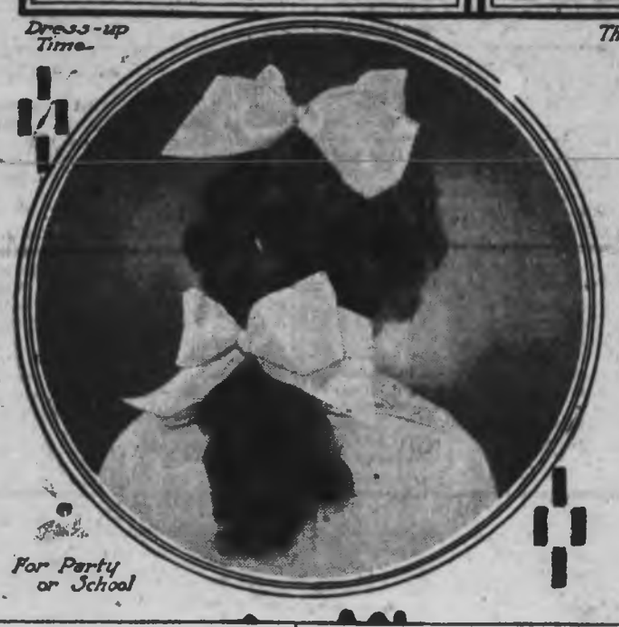
HAIR DRESSING for LITTLE SISTER

Coronet Fashion

A Sensible Arrangement

Dress-up Time

The Dutch Cut



For Party or School

SO MUCH attention is given to the coiffures of us grown-ups that I am sure Little Sister must feel slighted if ever she bothers her small head to glance at my page, and so I am going to chat entirely about Little Sister's hair today instead of the latest styles of hairdressing for the mother and big sisters.

Dress-up time is, after all, the most important, where hair is concerned at least, and so we'll proceed to tell Mother about Little Sister's dress-up coiffure. For the child whose hair is curly the arrangement of the hair parted in the center and hanging curls about the face and at the back, tied round about the head with a ribbon, is simple and most becoming. Part the hair in the center and then proceed to make several curls all about the head by brushing them about the finger. When the curls are nicely arranged, tie a broad but folded-in ribbon about the head, bringing one or two curls forward at each side of the face. The bow should be over the left ear. Three or four inch ribbon is a good width for this purpose. It may be that the child's hair is not sufficiently curly, naturally, to stay curled for very long at a time. If this is the case, it would be well to put upon the hair the very smallest quantity of the following curling fluid: To one pint of boiling water add a tablespoonful of bruised quince-seed. Pour the water over the seeds and allow the whole to stand for several hours. Thin the resultant mucilage with a few drops of essence of violet. Do not plaster the child's hair with this, but put only the smallest quantity on the end of the curls to keep them from uncoiling.

Another pretty arrangement for dress-up time, or school time, if the child's hair is curly and you do not wish to risk its becoming straight through plaiting, is that of the soft pompadour and drawn-back curls, both tied with bows of ribbon. This arrangement will do for the older girl, too. Separate the hair just over the ears. This will leave half of the hair in the back and half in the front. Now draw the front part of the hair up into a soft, flat pompadour, and give it a little twist near the center of the crown, and place a hairpin or small comb in the pompadour near this twist to keep it in place. Have the pompadour fairly loose, and see that it covers the tops of the ears. To have it cover the ears entirely is likely to interfere with the child's hearing when attending school, and to draw the hair entirely away from the ears gives a too severe expression to the child's face. The ends of the pompadour should be curled about the finger, and the small twist which helps to keep it in place should be tied with a bow of ribbon. Exceedingly large bows are in bad taste, and very narrow bows are too prim. If the hair is very long, it is apt to become broken if allowed to fall in loose curls at the back of the neck. In fact, if it comes to the waist line, it is better braided than curled; even though some of the beauty of arrangement be lacking, the preservation of the beauty of the hair will be achieved.

For the little girl with straight hair, or even curly hair, that mother has a desire to make neat for school and everyday wear, there are the two turned-up braids with smart bows at each side of the head. First divide the hair from the front edge of the scalp to the nape of the neck, down the exact center. Now divide the hair again just over the ears. This will bring the hair into four parts. Comb the front parts back softly over the ears and twist slightly to keep in place. Now braid the ends of these front parts in with the two back parts of the hair and turn the braids up as many times as is needed to bring them to or above the neck line and tie them with a ribbon bow. First tie the ribbon once (without bowing it) to the end of the braid, and then proceed to turn up the braid. When it is turned up, bring the ribbon ends about the doubled braid and tie a firm bow. A firm bow is necessary, but please, oh please! see that the hair is not straining at the child's scalp—not a single strand. If the hair does not form a pretty, close, soft part in the front, after it is up place the comb over the part and comb gently down, drawing both sides so that the front of the hair is pulled gently together at the part.

Another pretty fashion for girls from 10 to 15 is that of winding the braids about the head coronet fashion and tying them with a full bow, not too large. Divide the hair in two, from forehead to nape of neck, and then each side in two again just over the ears. Draw the hair back softly over the ears, give it a slight twist and braid it in with the back hair. This will make two braids at the back of the head. They should come quite close together. Now cross them and bring the braid on the left side of the head around the right side, and vice versa. Have the two braids meet at the top of the head and tie with the bow. Be sure that the hair waves softly over the forehead and the tops of the ears, or this arrangement will look stiff instead of becoming and graceful. If the braids are thin at the ends a bow can be made to cover much of the defect. I advise a cutting or singeing of the ends. Sometimes a hairpin or two will make the arrangement more secure. Shell pins are best, as wire pins, if not concealed, are always inartistic and are a jarring note in the most carefully arranged coiffure. There is a tendency on the part of some young girls to switch their hair into a braid at the back of them when at the age of 15 or 16 years. This wrapped-braid arrangement avoids the difficulty, but all the upturned braids have the ears just described.

Now comes the well-known Dutch cut for the little girl from 3 to 10 years. It is becoming, simple and easily arranged. Care should be taken that the upper part of the hair is not drawn back too tightly by the ribbon. A most attractive arrangement can even be accomplished in a Dutch cut if care is taken. When some faces the bow is more becoming on the top of the head, but most children the bow somewhat to one side is more becoming.

THE ART OF INTRODUCING

DO YOU know how to introduce? Or have you not given any thought or training to it? At any rate, you cannot know too well the points of an introduction, and I am again going to give them to you, because I realize that many repetitions will make for perfection, and I know that my circle of readers cannot refuse to do anything to perfect their manners.

Let me emphasize the fact that the first thing in giving a spoken introduction is a clear, distinct voice. If you mumble your words [illegible] in a manner that is difficult to understand, it will be better to let some other person do the introducing. Speak clearly after finding that the strangers are listening to you. By that I mean that it is necessary to get the attention of others when you make an introduction. Talk slowly, and remember that others do not know the names that you are going to pronounce, and also keep in mind that it is embarrassing for strangers to ask for a repetition and to appear to have been remiss in listening to the name. If you have the not unusual fault of talking indistinctly, practice in your own room and cultivate a slow, clear method of enunciation.

If you will remember that it is always considered an honor for a gentleman to meet a lady, and that it is quite the thing for him to seek this honor, you will understand that he is presented to the woman. Remember that the man is always presented to the woman. Now in the introducing of a man to a woman there are several ways. One is, "Miss Brown, may I present Mr. Gray?" This is the quickest, easiest and the best form. If you keep this in mind and master it so that it is second nature, you will find that the art of introducing comes easily, and is followed by success on all occasions.

Now suppose that you are introducing your sister, your mother, a cousin or an aunt whose name happens to be different from your own. Remember that the stranger is being introduced in order to know the name of any of these persons mentioned. You must give the name, mustn't you? When you say, "Mother, I wish to present Mr. Brown," you will see that your mother will get the name of the man, but how about the name of your mother who has married a second time and whose name is not known? If you do not mention her married name, she will be right in addressing her by the name that is similar to your own. You should give an introduction like the above by saying, "My mother, Mrs. Anderson." In that way will mistakes be avoided. This holds good in giving a name when introducing any relation whose name is not known to the stranger. Assume that the stranger is present, keep in mind that you are introducing to give names, and then speak clearly.

A younger unmarried woman is presented to a married woman. Men and women are presented to persons of honor or distinction; and as an exception to the rule of sex, a woman should be presented to an aged person. In this case youth is supposed to be honored by being presented to old age, and it is a slight and gracious courtesy to do it in this way.

If there be two married women to be introduced, the younger is presented to the older; if there be any difference in the ages of the two, you must use your own judgment in the introduction.

Other ways of introducing vary slightly from the form that I have given: "I wish two of my friends to know each other. May I present Mr. Brown to Miss Gray?" is a graceful introduction. Another way is, "May I have the honor of presenting Mr. Anderson to Mr. Gray?"

Your own personality will ring the changes on the form. Master the facts and be in full possession of them when there is need of introducing friends.

Skin Food for the Hands

Dear Mrs. Symes.
My hands are in a very ugly condition. The skin is dry and very much in need of cream. Please tell me what to use.
D. H. J.

If you will rub the skin food for which I am giving the recipe into your hands every day the appearance of your hands will be improved.

Skin Food for Hands

Cocoa butter	1 ounce
Oil of sweet almonds	1 ounce
Oxide of zinc	1 dram
Borax	1 dram
Oil of bergamot	6 drops

Heat the cocoa butter and oil of almonds in a double boiler, and when thoroughly blended add the zinc and borax; stir as it cools, and add the oil of bergamot last. Rub into the hands at night.

A Foot Powder

Dear Mrs. Symes.
I have been to a chiropodist twice, and before putting my stockings on she sprinkled a powder over my feet. This seemed so very cooling. Do you know what it was she used?
SUSAN.

I do not know the kind of powder the chiropodist used on your feet, but I am giving you my recipe for a powder which you will find very delightful for your feet, especially if they tire very easily.

Foot Powder

Burned alum	5 grams
Salicylic acid	2½ grams
Starch	15 grams
Violet talcum powder	15 grams

Dust over perspiring feet, which should be bathed at least once daily.

For Blackheads

Dear Mrs. Symes.
My chin is covered with blackheads which make the skin look dirty all the time. Please tell me what to do for the blemishes.
WALTER.

I think you will find the green soap treatment about the best thing you can use, so I am giving you the directions for same:

Green Soap Treatment for Blackheads

Tincture of green soap	2 ounces
Distilled witch hazel	2 ounces

Let this mixture stay on only a few moments, then wash off with hot water.

If the green soap irritates the skin, as it sometimes will, use it every other day. Apply a cold cream.

Green soap may be purchased at any drug store. It is not a regular "cake soap" but is of about the consistency of custard.

Open each seed acne with the point of a fine camera needle. The hardened mass must be pressed or picked out. The empty sac of the gland should then be bathed with a little toilet vinegar and water, or with a very weak solution of carbolic acid and water. Sterilize the needle before using it by dipping into boiling water, as the use of any instrument, unless the skin as well as the needle is thoroughly cleansed, is always dangerous.

A Sachet Powder

Dear Mrs. Symes.
I am very anxious to procure a pleasant sachet powder and write to ask if you can supply me with one.
THELMA.

I am sending the recipe for two sachet powders from which you can make a choice:

Violet Sachet Powder

Powdered orris	1 ounce
Powdered bergamot peel	½ ounce
Powdered acacia	½ ounce
Musk	20 grains

Mix thoroughly. Bottle for ten days, when it is ready for use.

Rose Sachet Powder

Powdered Florentine orris	4 ounces
Rose leaves (air dried)	10 ounces
Musk in powder	10 grains
Lavender flowers	1 ounce

Mix well, and keep closely corked until you wish to use for the sachet.

Flesh Worms

Dear Mrs. Symes.
Will you kindly tell me what I can do to get rid of flesh worms?
MAY.

Every other night give your face this treatment: Apply towels wrung from hot water to the face. This will open the pores so that you can steam them with hot water, an agreeable soap and a complexion brush. Rinse the face with warm water and after drying it rub cold cream into the skin. Use the cream for which the recipe is given below. This treatment will soften the hardened mass in the pores so that it may be easily pressed out. Do not use the finger nails or anything metallic to press out the worm-like matter, but let the balls of the thumbs be used to pinch it out. Finally bathe the face with hot water and rinse with very cold water.

Kentucky Cold Cream

Rosewater	4 ounces
Almond oil	4 ounces
Spermaceti	1 ounce
White wax	1 ounce

Add the rosewater slowly, so that it will mix well.

Arrangement of the Hair

Dear Mrs. Symes.
How do you think one should have her hair arranged to have her photograph taken?
LIMPOPOPE.

The hair should be arranged in a natural style. It is so absurd for one to adopt a new style at this time, for the picture will not show a close resemblance. I know of some girls who go to a hairdresser before having their photographs taken and never at any other time. An artificial effect is the result. If one is in the habit of having her hair arranged by some one other than herself it is all right to have it dressed for the occasion, but otherwise the person should do it herself.

Warm or Cold Water?

Dear Mrs. Symes.
Please tell me if it makes much difference whether warm or cold water is used to cleanse the teeth.
EDITH.

Many people prefer to use warm water because it is a better solvent than cold. Along with the water a tooth paste or powder is necessary to produce friction.

Hair Lies Flat

Dear Mrs. Symes.
My hair lies flat to my head and never looks so fluffy as I should like. What can I do for it?
WINIFRED.

Brushing the hair will do much to make it fluffy. Do not brush the hair flat to the head, but brush out and up if you want clean, fluffy hair. It is also advisable to massage the scalp every day. The daily massage and brushing will give life to the hair.

A Liquid Powder

Dear Mrs. Symes.
My nose is very red when I am out in the cold or the wind and I should like to use a powder on it at such times. Will you tell me what one to use?
ALICE.

I think the liquid powder will prove satisfactory in such a case, and so I am giving you the recipe for it.

For Whitening the Skin—A Liquid Powder

Pure oxide of zinc	1 ounce
Glycerin	1 dram
Rosewater	4 ounces
Essence of rose	15 drops

Sift the zinc, dissolving it in just enough of the rosewater to cover it; then add the glycerin, next the remainder of the rosewater. Add the essence of rose last.

Shake well, and apply with a soft sponge or an antiseptic gauze. The face must be well wiped off before the liquid dries, or it will be streaked.

For Oily Hair

Dear Mrs. Symes.
Will you kindly give me a formula which I may use for oily hair?
TRAVELER.

A good formula for oily hair consists of

Powdered bicarbonate of soda	½ ounce
Borate of soda, powdered	½ ounce
Eau de cologne	1 fluid ounce
Alcohol	2 fluid ounces
Distilled water	10 fluid ounces

Mix and agitate until solution is complete. If used daily, it tends to produce a crispy condition.

Red Hands

Dear Mrs. Symes.
My hands are so very red that I am ashamed to show them to my friends. Will you please tell me what to do for them?
F. F.

You should prevent your hands from becoming red by taking precaution. Never expose them to extremes of temperature. Avoid tight gloves. Use moderately warm water to wash the hands and not cold water. After drying them rub equal parts of lemon juice and glycerin into them, or fine oatmeal. If you do housework, wear gloves when dusting or working with the hands in water.

Witch Hazel Cream

Dear Mrs. Symes.
I shall be grateful if you will tell me where I can get a cold cream containing witch hazel. I had one once and it was so good for my skin, which is dry and taut.
E. T.

I advise you to take the recipe given below to your druggist and have him prepare it.

Witch Hazel Cold Cream

White wax	1 ounce
Spermaceti	1 ounce
Oil of almonds	½ pint

Melt; pour into a mortar which has been heated by being immersed some time in boiling water. Very gradually add 3 ounces of rosewater and 1 ounce of witch hazel, and assiduously stir the mixture until an emulsion is formed, and afterward until the mixture is nearly cold.

This cream is particularly useful to heal sore or stretched skin.

Chapped Lips

Dear Mrs. Symes.
What inexpensive remedy can I use on my lips, which chap very easily and look so ugly?
CLEO.

Camphor ice applied daily will improve the condition of your lips. It is made of the following ingredients:

Refined mutton or lamb tallow..... 2 ounces
A piece of gum camphor as large as an English walnut.

Melt together, stir until they are thoroughly mixed and allow to cool.

An Astringent Lotion

Dear Mrs. Symes.
Will you tell me of an astringent lotion which I can use with safety after cleansing the pores of my face?
AGNES.

Here is the recipe for the lotion you desire:

Alum	70 grains
Almond milk (thick)	1½ ounces
Rosewater	6 ounces

Dissolve the alum in the rosewater, then pour gently into the almond milk, with constant agitation. Apply with a soft linen cloth every night before retiring.

Hair is Dull

Dear Mrs. Symes.
My hair is dull and lifeless in appearance, so that no matter how I try to arrange it attractively it never looks well. What can I do to it?
JANE.

Dull and lifeless hair is never beautiful. Your hair is evidently in need of attention and treatment. Ill health will have its effect on the hair, so it is necessary very often to cure organic troubles before one can expect to have luxuriant hair. If the scalp alone is responsible it is a simple matter to restore the beauty of the hair. If you have dandruff you should begin now by rubbing vaseline into the scalp. Allow it to remain on for twenty-four hours, and then shampoo the head, using the shampoo for which the recipe is here given:

Egg Shampoo

To half a cake of pure white castile soap add a pint of hot rainwater. Set on the stove and heat until the soap is perfectly dissolved. To this add an egg which has been thoroughly whipped with an eggbeater, stirring it into the mixture with the beater to prevent curdling. Add one-third of a teaspoonful of borax and a teaspoonful of alcohol to preserve the shampoo. When ready to shampoo the hair, rub well into the scalp and rinse in several clear waters, using a bath spray if you have one.

Be sure to dry the hair thoroughly. After this rub the tonic, made according to the following recipe, into the scalp:

Hair Tonic

Resorcin	2 drams
Tincture of cantharides	1 ounce
Oil ricini	4 drams
Oil rosemary	10 drops
Bay rum, add sufficient to make	8 ounces

This tonic should be rubbed into the scalp every day, and after the massage the hair should be braided well to evenly distribute the tonic, to remove the dust which has accumulated during the day and to stimulate the circulation of the blood through the scalp.

To Remove Vermin

Dear Mrs. Symes.
Your advice seems to have helped so many and I also now seek some. Can you give me a quick and sure remedy for removing nits from the hair? Have been unfortunate in some unaccountable manner to be the victim of this awful thing; have become rid of all the insects, but hair is very long and the nits cling. Am a working girl, and so would like to have something that could be put on at night so as not to compel me to stay home the next day. Nevertheless, please give me the best remedy you know of and I will spare no time or labor to get rid of this before spring or summer sets in. Thanking you in advance, I am
A FAITHFUL READER.

Saturate your head with alcohol or kerosene. Divide the hair in strands and brush and comb each and, if necessary, wipe each strand with a towel. Repeat the treatment as often as necessary, and be sure to use clean articles to arrange your hair.

Suitable Exercise

Dear Mrs. Symes.
What is a good exercise for a person who sits at a desk all day?
My hands and feet perspire freely. What can I do to check this?
ROBERT T. U.

If you are unable to join a gymnasium where you would get all sorts of exercises you should try to walk part of the distance, if not all, to and from work. Walk rapidly so that your blood circulation will be hastened. In the summer you should indulge in swimming, rowing, tennis, baseball and all other athletics.

The secretion of sweat is under sensitive nervous control and is susceptible to various influences. It is stimulated by nervous shocks, certain poisonous substances in the blood, either drugs or the products of disease. If you take the exercises above mentioned you may be relieved from the excessive perspiration. Of course at the time of the exercise you may perspire freely, but the amount secreted thereafter will be regulated. Following is the recipe for a powder which can be used to advantage on your hands and feet. It is important that you change your stockings daily and that you do not wear the same pair of shoes two days in succession.

Orris Powder for Perspiration

Phenic acid	2 fluid drams
Alcohol	2½ fluid drams
Starch	6½ ounces
Florentine orris	6½ ounces
Essence of violet	25 minims

Dissolve the acid in the alcohol; add the violet essence, then the starch and orris root.

SOLUTIONS TO SOCIAL PROBLEMS

Form of Introduction

DEAR Mrs. Adams.
Will you kindly tell me what is a good form to follow when introducing a man to a woman?
ETHEL.

It is sufficient to say, "Miss White, let me present Mr. Jones."

Failed to Recognize Him

Dear Mrs. Adams.
A young man whom I know says I passed him on the street one day and would not recognize him. I know I did not see him, but he will not understand. What can I do so as to make him understand?
EVELYN S.

If the man refuses to take your word, I do not see what stronger means you can use to convince him. Personally, I think he must be a very obstinate character if he takes such a stand in a matter of really small importance.

Number of Cards

Dear Mrs. Adams.
How many cards should a married woman send when unable to attend a formal reception given by a man and wife?
E. V.

She should send one of her own cards and two of her husband's.

The Maid's Duty

Dear Mrs. Adams.
Is it necessary for a maid to make any remark when offering a dish to a guest at a dance? From which side should she serve the guest?
JANE.

It is not necessary for her to make any word of comment or invitation. A maid should present a dish at the left hand of every guest.

A Club Dance

Dear Mrs. Adams.
When a club of girls gives a dance should they provide the tickets for the young men whom they invite? Should each girl pay the carfare for the young man who escorts her to the dance hall?
ESTELLE.

A complimentary ticket should be sent to each young man invited, but it is not necessary to provide his carfare.

Thanking Her Escort

Dear Mrs. Adams.
Should a girl thank a young man for taking her and her mother to the theater?
FLORENCE.

Yes, it is courteous for her to express her appreciation in a few words before taking leave of him.

Unable to Take Gifts

Dear Mrs. Adams.
Some of the girls with whom I associate take gifts to friends who invite them to dinner or any other entertainment. I am not in very good circumstances and cannot afford to do likewise, but I don't want my friends to think I fail to appreciate their hospitality. What could I do to show my appreciation?
MAUDE.

If you will call on your friends within two weeks after the date of the entertainment I am sure they will understand that you appreciate their kindness.

A Card of Thanks

Dear Mrs. Adams.
Will you please tell me what form should be used [illegible] cards of thanks sent to persons who wrote notes of sympathy during the illness in our family?
GRATEFUL CHILD.

Following is the form you can use:

Mrs. John White and Family return thanks for your kind sympathy
10 Green avenue.

Taking Soup

Dear Mrs. Adams.
Will you please tell me if it is proper to drink soup from the cup? A friend of mine said it should be drunk with a spoon.
T. T.

When bouillon cups are provided, the first mouthful or two of the contents may be taken with a spoon, so that the temperature of same may be tested. After that the soup is drunk from the cup.

The Number of Cards

Dear Mrs. Adams.
Will you kindly tell me how many cards a single girl should leave when calling on an unmarried woman who keeps house for her father?
MARIE.

She leaves one card. A woman never leaves her card for the masculine members of a household.

Not Necessary

Dear Mrs. Adams.
Is it necessary to use the slice of lemon served with fish sauce if one does not care for the flavor of lemon?
MARIE.

Not at all. One need never feel forced to eat that which one does not care for.

Wilted Violets

Dear Mrs. Adams.
What's a nice thing to send violets to [illegible] spent quite a number of days out with the various girls for lunches or teas, and has had invitation from them to do [illegible]. I'd like to send her a little gift, but don't know what.
E. F.

He may call on the [illegible] to invite them not at home [illegible] his card. Otherwise the girls would not know of his presence in their town.

The Correct Answer

Dear Mrs. Adams.
Kindly give me an example of the correct form to use when [illegible] to dinner or any other entertainment. The hostess is a widow and has a daughter.
A READER.

Here is the form to use:

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Missile Mementos

A Story of a War Veteran

By JOHN TURNLEE

When Bert Franklin went out to fight for the Union in the summer of 1861 he was as handsome a young fellow as ever wore a uniform. You wouldn't think to see him now that he could have left half a dozen girls behind him, each of whom supposed she alone possessed his heart, for he is three-quarters of a century old, has hardly enough silver hair on his head to put in a souvenir locket and his face is so covered with wrinkles that it resembles a ball of yarn.

But Bert in 1861 was straight as an arrow, had a superb figure, which showed to great advantage on horseback—he enlisted in the cavalry—and his merry laugh was equaled only by the jingle of his spurs. As to his eyes, he could look more love through one of them than any other man could through two. The girls of that day all had soldier lovers.

And Bert was as brave as he was handsome. In his first fight he was wounded and was made a corporal. In his second he was wounded again and was made a sergeant. In his third he received still another wound and was made a lieutenant. Now, it so happened that the first bullet lodged in the flesh and was cut out by a surgeon. Bert sent it to the girl he loved best, who treasured and revered it. His second wound came from a fragment of a shell, the force of which must have been spent, for the flesh was more bruised than torn. This fragment he sent to another girl he loved best. His third wound was made by a pistol ball while the regiment was charging. It went clear through the calf of his leg, so he did not secure it, but he sent one like it to a third girl he loved best as the original ball that had made a hole through him.

Bert steadily rose from private to captain and was constantly getting wounded. The consequence was that before the war ended no fewer than five [illegible] that had pierced him in battle, and each girl thought that she alone possessed the only one that had been preserved. Shortly before the surrender at Appomattox the hero was so badly wounded that he was mustered out of service and after lying several months in a Washington hospital went home to limp about, an interesting character. Women passing him in the street would exclaim loud enough for him to hear, "Poor fellow!" "Noble soldier!" "What a pity!" and such other encomiums as were pleasing to the ear of the man referred to.

The pity was that this noble defender of the Union had been so dishonorable as to send missiles with which he had been wounded to a number of girls, leaving each to suppose that she alone had been favored by the receipt of the only original lead or iron that had nearly bereft her of the handsome Bert. But his conduct only goes to prove that physical bravery is a very different quality from moral bravery and that war heroes are no more to be trusted by women than any other man.

Another feature of this case is disappointing. Bert, by sending so many bullets, fragments of shells and other articles used in war to kill persons to so many different girls, showed plainly that something was wanting in his makeup. For there was great danger that some of these young ladies would learn that other young ladies possessed the only real, true, original bullet that had nearly bereft the world his own [illegible] and the girl he loved best of Cap[illegible]n Bert Franklin, and should the [illegible] get out there would be a more [illegible] stinging than occurred in the [illegible]ts' Nest" at Shiloh.

This leads us to an inference—[illegible]netic. I admit that physical [illegible]ers many after all be a want of [illegible]preciation of danger. Was not Cap[illegible]ain Franklin's bravery in battle due to the same defect that led him to send the original bullet that wounded him to five different girls? In the one case he was liable to lose his life, in the other to bring down upon himself the contempt, to say nothing of the wrath, of these young ladies.

But this is not an essay on moral versus physical bravery. It is a simple story of a man who, having achieved honors in war, came home a hero a short time after his acts of heroism at the front to incur the scorn of those who had most honored him. There was something sacred in each of these missiles he had sent to his best girl that led her to treasure it in secret. It was not till the hero was at the height of his glory—that is, when he was walking about at home on crutches, pale and thin—that the secret of the many mementos of his sufferings and tokens of his love got out. Then one morning the postman left for him a little pasteboard box that had once contained a gem, and on opening it he took out one of the many missiles that had wounded him. No word came with it as to why it was returned to him, but for the first time in his life he felt a sinking about the heart. He recognized the writing in which the box was addressed as that of the young lady he especially admired.

When the next delivery of mail was made Captain Franklin was handed another box, this time a wooden one, such as opticians use for mailing glasses. Opening it, he took out a piece of iron that had been sent from a bursting shell. The fragment was large enough and heavy enough had it hit the captain to have torn a hole in him big enough to admit a cheese box. This one of the many mementos he had sent out was also returned without explanation.

Franklin on receiving the first missile had laid it on the mantel. He now placed the second beside it. When the postman came again he brought two boxes, each containing a piece of lead which had been sent from the barrel of some kind of gun. Neither these returns was commented on by the sender. Franklin, who had faced them bravely in battle, now received them with every indication of fear. He remembered the storm in which they had come to him and wished that he were back in it rather than in his present position. He laid them beside the others on the mantel with a trembling hand.

Every memento he had sent out was now returned to him except one. A bullet had struck the metallic clasp of his sword belt and been flattened by the impact. He had shaped it with his pocketknife into the form of a heart and sent it to the fifth girl he loved best, Miss Alice Farnsworth, writing her how his clasp had saved his life. Alice pierced a hole in it and wore it on a gold chain about her neck.

Bert did not know of the reception of his gift, but he wondered if it, too, would come back to him. He fully expected to receive it by the next delivery. He moved the four missiles on the mantel, stretching them along from end to end, leaving a place in the center for the leaden heart when it should come.

The next time Captain Franklin went out on the street, hobbling on his crutches, he met one of the girls he had loved best and to whom he had sent a bullet. She cut him dead. The same day he met another of these young ladies and received the same treatment. Within a week every one of the four who had returned his mementos had had an opportunity to show her displeasure, passing him with her head in the air.

"Where," mused the transgressor, "are the encomiums these girls showered on me? 'My hero.' 'Noble defender of your country.' 'Poor fellow. Sufferer for the cause.'"

These expressions, denoting the sympathy, the admiration of these young ladies, came up to mock him. We are [illegible]s conscious of [illegible] points, and the captain, never having appreciated his deeds of daring, would not have exchanged them all for a nod from one of these girls who were displaying their contempt for him.

One day when he was wishing that some one of the various implements of war he had sent north had killed him he met Miss Farnsworth face to face. She smiled at him.

That smile was a healing balm to his distressed spirit.

"How happens it that you deign to notice so unworthy a person as I?" he asked.

"Come with me and I will tell you."

She took him to her home and when they were alone together, seizing a gold chain about her neck, drew forth the heart shaped bullet.

"The secret that you had sent these mementos to all of the girls became known by comparing notes soon after your return. All were furious except myself, my own conscience in such matters not being clear as crystal. It was suggested by one of our number that we send back your mementos and cut you when we met you. I found an excuse for not joining in your punishment—a poor excuse, I admit—in the fact that while each of the others received a missile that had drawn your blood I had been sent one that had done you no injury whatever. I, therefore, declined to participate in their plan."

This is the end of the story so far as the old vet tells it today, but not only the flattened heart shaped bullet, but the four other souvenirs, have been in the possession of Alice, his wife, ever since the memorable day he learned that she had stood by him in his degradation. She admits that there was even after her refusal to join the cabal against him, a coolness toward her on their part, but she has managed to bear it, since she has got more true affection from her husband than she has lost from the girls.

The Caspian Sea Puzzle.

Should the tideless Caspian sea be really drying up it is only continuing the process which has been puzzling scientists for the past hundred years. The great dried up salt lakes to the east, south and north of the Caspian no doubt once formed part of the great lake that remains, and Russia may yet be able to build a railway across her inland waterway. But, if inland seas dry up, land elsewhere is sinking under them. Where are the ancient ports that Agrippa used? Under the waves of the Mediterranean. No place in the world seems to have suffered so much from the sinking of the land as the bay of Naples, that paradise of the submarine archaeologist, who is even now making fresh discoveries of buried suburbs and massive blocks of masonry with the stone rings for mooring the Roman galleys. But he has to dive to get at them.—London Citizen.

Home Comforts at Sea.

The circumstances in which one travels on the ocean have vastly improved during the past twenty years. Spring mattresses and brass bedsteads have replaced the old wooden bunks. Improved systems of heating and ventilation have been introduced, sanitary arrangements are greatly superior, both in quantity and in quality, while the furnishings of the public apartments and the attractions of the dining saloon vie with those of the finest hotels on shore. Third class passengers have now separate cabins for four, six or eight persons each in place of large open 'tween deck spaces filled with tiers of iron beds and accommodating hundreds. In place of benches and tables along the sides of their sleeping quarters separate dining saloons, smoke rooms and music rooms are provided.

It Gets the Criminals.

According to the Chinese method of criminal prosecution, a man is responsible for the crime he may have committed personally, but if he chooses to escape justice by running away from the place where the deed was committed then the remaining members of his immediate family are held and punished in lieu of the real culprit. This may seem a strange way of attracting the real criminal back to the scene of his crime, but it appeals to the religious side of the man's superstitious nature. According to their religion, the man who forsakes his parents when in peril will find his soul sailing around through hades without chart or compass for all eternity. In view of this, compliance with the law is very prompt, for John Chinaman does not care to take the desperate chance.

Rain Catches in Bermuda.

Notable among the landscape features of Bermuda is the "rain catch." There is no other good water. All the water gained from wells is brackish. So the people either use their whitewashed roofs as a means to catch rain water or they build a big open "catch" on the hillside, with a covered cistern at its foot, into which the rain thus collected runs and is stored. The soil is scraped away from a large surface of the white coral rock that underlies all the island. This surface is cemented and whitewashed, and a low wall built on three sides with the reservoir or tank at the bottom.

Such Is Fame.

It is said that Mhearni Misi, a wealthy Asiatic woman, discovered the art of making the perfume known as attar of roses and also invented the beautiful workmanship exhibited in the weaving of the celebrated cashmere shawls. Nothing whatever is known about her death.

LUXURY IN ARGENTINA.

The Big Story They Tell of a Buenos Aires Hotel Charges.

The hotels of Buenos Aires are fairly good and very expensive. One of the cheapest rooms I saw in the Plaza hotel was $7 a day, European style. There are good Spanish hotels with rooms from $2 a day upward.

The Plaza is, perhaps, the most cosmopolitan of all the hostelries of the city. In its ballroom and its drawing room I was reminded of the Waldorf-Astoria. The meals are a little higher than in the big hotels of New York city. But there are numerous small restaurants where good refreshments may be had at reasonable prices.

As an example of the charges in the big hotels of Buenos Aires I may quote a story told me by an Argentine official. He said that some years ago a commission of European ambassadors was entertained by the Argentine government at the Bristol hotel on the Avenida de Mayo and that the bill for soap and perfumery was $15,000 a week. Nobody seemed to complain and apparently everybody was satisfied.

Luxuries seem to be necessities to the Argentines, for I was told that the tariff on champagne is only 2 per cent, while that on a plow is 50 per cent.—National Magazine.

The Shrewd Advertiser.

The thoughtful man thinks ahead. The prudent man profits by his ability to forecast the future as well as to scrutinize the present. One of the most prominent advertisers in the country says he makes it a rule to increase his advertising appropriation whenever business slackens and he doubles and trebles it in times of severe business depression. This is his logical conclusion: "The new customers that I get when times are hard I always keep when times become good. They come to me largely from those who lose them because they fail to continue their publicity campaigns. A business depression in this country never lasts long and it is always good time for me. The harvest follows when prosperity returns." It is a wise man who knows his own business better than the other man does.

The Big Yacht Race.

Tom Lipton will have two boats, from which he will select the faster to sail for the America's cup. But that won't be enough.—Los Angeles Times.

The dimensions of Shamrock IV., which were so jealously guarded, are now a revealed secret, and the yachting experts are free to air their theories. But the America's cup races will be decided by a real contest and not by clubroom arguments.—New York World.

Baby Eczema Becomes Chronic

Causing Great Suffering and Anxiety —Prompt Relief and Cure by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

This is one reason why every mother should know about Dr. Chase's Ointment, since it is an unfailing cure for all itching skin diseases.

Mrs. F. Clarke, Belmont, Man., writes:—"My baby had eczema on her ear. The sore was very bad, and nothing seemed to do her much good. Hearing of the remarkable cures Dr. Chase's Ointment was making, we sent for some, and after the third application the sore began to heal. I am glad to say that it is quite well now, and we give the credit to Dr. Chase's Ointment. We cannot recommend this preparation too highly."

Here is another letter, which tells of the cure of a five-weeks-old baby: Mrs. Wallace Mingon, River John Road, Colchester County, N.S., writes: "My little girl took eczema when she was five weeks old. Though we doctored her until she was nearly a year old, she got no better. I was advised to use Dr. Chase's Ointment, and this treatment completely cured her."

American Aviator Wins.

LONDON, July 13.—An American, Walter L. Brock, Saturday captured first honors in the aeroplane race from Hendon to Paris and return. Brock out-distanced his nearest rival, Raoul Garros, a French aviator, by more than an hour. His flying time for the distance—502 miles in a direct line was seven hours, three minutes, six seconds.

A thrilling incident of the race was a plunge into the English channel, which Baron Carberry suffered when his aeroplane fell from a considerable height, when half way across on the return trip. Lord Carberry kept afloat with the aid of a life belt until picked up by a passing steamer.

A Home Recipe for Wrinkled, Saggy Skin

The famous sanolite lotion recommended by beauty specialists for removing wrinkles and for reducing distended pores, can be easily made at home. Ask your druggist for sanolite in powdered form, 1 oz., and 1-2 pint witch hazel. Dissolve the powder in the witch hazel and bathe the face, neck and hands in the solution. Results are remarkable, and instantaneous. The skin tightens, and this naturally reduces the wrinkles, as well as creases or folds about the neck, cheeks or hands. The tissue beneath the skin also becomes firmer and more solid.

One feels much refreshed and exhilarated after using this truly wonderful and harmless wash lotion. Its continued use once a day for only a short time makes the average person look ten or fifteen years younger.

DYNAMITER RELEASED

Luke Dillon, Alias Carl Dallman, is Set Free From Kingston and Deported

KINGSTON, July 13. — "I'm a lucky man all right." This remark came from Luke Dillon, alias Carl Dallman, as he passed out of the big gate at the penitentiary Saturday afternoon after being given his release. Dillon was a life convict. Release came about after eight months two years. He was the leader in the Welland Canal dynamite outrage of 14 years ago. Since May, 1900, he has been in the penitentiary, having been given a life sentence. Dillon belonged to Philadelphia, Pa. and there was engaged in the shoemaking business, and with two other men, Nolan and Walsh, he aimed to strike a blow at Canada on behalf of Fenian organizations in the United States. Their game went wrong and all three landed in the penitentiary. Dillon's plans were foiled, but had they been successful there would have been great loss of life and Canadian shipping would have suffered a great deal. After entering the penitentiary, Dillon declared his sole object in making the attempt on the canal was not to cause loss of life, but to deal a blow at England, which the Clan-na-Gael hates.

For the past two years great efforts were put forth to secure his release, and the sum of $50,000 was subscribed. Dillon's part against the murderers in the celebrated Dr. Cronin case, Chicago, went a long way in influencing the Canadian Government to free and deport him.

During his long stay in the penitentiary his conduct was good and this was reported to Hon. C. J. Doherty.

The ex-convict was taken on the steamer America by two guards and a local clergyman accompanied the guards as far as Cape Vincent, where Dillon was placed on American soil and allowed to go his way. He is in fine health; his long stay in prison has not affected him much.

ANNIE LOUISE CARY

And Her Favourite "Robin Adair"

The indisputable queen of song in her day was Annie Louise Cary. She was one of the world's famous contraltos when she retired from the operatic stage at the very height of her career in opera. She retained the sweet, wholesome characteristics of the American girl all during her musical triumphs. She made her debut in Copenhagen, although she studied in Milan. For three years she delighted European audiences before making her appearance in America. For over twelve years, with the exception of a brief European tour, she delighted American audiences with the charms of her voice and personality. But to hear her sing "Robin Adair," that simple old song and that masterpiece of Arthur Sullivan's "The Lost Chord," and Longfellow's "The Day is Done," with the rich tones of the happy, good-natured personality that always charmed, she always left the audience breathless and spellbound.

"Robin Adair," "The Last Chord," and many other favourites of Cary are to be found in "Heart Songs," now being distributed to the readers of this paper. See Coupon elsewhere in this issue for terms.

There was such a demand for the Heart Songs that we had to discontinue inserting the coupon. We have now on hand a further supply, and the coupon will run for two weeks. If you desire a copy, save the coupons and together with 98c. you will get a $3.00 book.

FLOWER FIRE.

Some Plants Will Emit a Mysterious Radiance at Times.

The most wonderful—it might almost be said spiritual—attribute of flowers is neither their beauty of color or form nor their fragrance, but, strangely enough, a mysterious radiance that sometimes surrounds them, writes J. Carter Beard. It is strange that this flower fire is so little known and so seldom noticed.

The best time to watch for and to witness the emission of flower fire is just after sunset of a warm day, when the atmosphere is perfectly dry and clear. On the contrary, if the air is dense or the day has been rainy nothing of the kind can be seen. The light emitted from flowers is sometimes continuous, but oftener, perhaps, it presents itself in flashes and flickerings like the sparks from a piece of paper that has been electrified. The duration of the light varies according to the state of the atmosphere and the sort of flowers that are under observation.

A daughter of Linnaeus is credited with having been the first, as long ago as 1762, to have observed the luminous emanations. While seated alone in her father's garden on a fine, warm summer night her attention was attracted to a cluster of the common nasturtiums, whose flowers shone with iridescent luster amid the surrounding gloom. Captivated by the charming novelty of the spectacle, she repeated her nocturnal visit to the flowers a number of times and never once failed to witness the gleam of the nasturtiums.

Numerous other flowers, many of which can be found in our gardens, are discovered to be self luminous after exposure to the strong, sustained light of the summer sun, for not only do groups of nasturtiums exhibit the phenomenon, but the corolla of the common sunflower, the dahlia, the tuberose, the yellow lily, and, indeed, a number of blossoms not named here.—Christian Endeavor World.

The Omnipresent Rose.

Every continent on the globe, with the exception of Australia, produces wild roses. There can be little doubt that the rose is one of the oldest flowers in the world, perhaps grown from the wind blown seeds in paradise. In Egypt it is depicted on numbers of early bas-reliefs, dating from 3000 to 3500 B. C. Rosewater, or the essence of roses, is mentioned by Homer in the "Iliad," and the flower is spoken of in the Proverbs of Solomon.

Ironing and Mending.

For the mother who does her own ironing and mending: Prepare a small bag containing necessary things for mending and sewing on of buttons and fasten it to ironing board. She will be able to sew on buttons and draw up little rips that will make her pile of mending smaller. If she could train herself to sit on a high stool as much as possible while working she will not be so tired at the end of a day's work. Exchange.

Our Work.

We must do our human work in a conscientious and immaculate manner, independently from whether we hope to become angels some time in the future or believe that we used to be mollusks some time in the past.—John Ruskin.

Marrying the Whole Family.

"I am marrying Tom, but I am not marrying his whole family," said a bride the other day. Yes, but you are. When you get married you do come into relationship with his whole family, and you can't help yourself. I have known a number of cases in which some "sniffy" bride or bridegroom tried to ignore certain members of the "married into" family and later had to be closely connected with them. There was civility on both sides, but the early break could never be quite covered up, though the one who made it would have given anything to have it forgotten. When you get married, unless there are actual criminals there whom duty would forbid you to recognize, accept cordially all of the family into which you are going. Don't be mean and airy about it. Apart from considerations of right and propriety, there may be others which will make you sorry enough if you don't.—Kate Upson Clark in Leslie's.

Tremendous Possibilities.
Do you, Mr. Merchant, realize the potency of advertising? It is like gunpowder. If it is your own it may open up a gold mine for you. If it is your competitor's, it may result disastrously to you, unless you have cut the fuse with the sharp scissors of your own publicity. If your competitor is advertising, you cannot afford to neglect it; if he is not, you have a beautiful opportunity of which you should take full advantage.

SALVATION ARMY BAND WAS WIDELY HONOURED

Loss of Staff Band Threw the Representation of Canada Upon Them and They Ably Responded to the Emergency.

SIX EVENTFUL WEEKS

The Salvation Army Band returned home on Saturday afternoon from their tour of England, a sadder and wiser body of men. They were only a few hours out of Peterborough when they were brought face to face with a terrifying situation. But they met it bravely, and everywhere in the Old Country the people called for the Canadians.

Their tour was a triumph, and when they were mentioned, it was as the Peterborough Band. Every detail of the loss of the Canadian Staff Band was well known to the Englishmen, and they also knew that the Peterborough Corps Band had been called upon to uphold the dignity and importance of Canada.

In London, Liverpool, and the provincial towns they were royally welcomed and cordially entertained. To them was given the honour of playing in parks where only the first bands of the Empire are permitted to be heard. And they acquitted themselves splendidly.

Bandsman Peryer's mother had been one of those on the ill-fated Empress of Ireland, and this fact was also generally known. Beginning their trip with the knowledge that the Staff Band was ahead of them, the Peterborough Corps Band was [illegible] to represent the whole of the Dominion; and the men performed their duties with pluck that was admirable, and with merit that was fully recognised.

The local bandsmen returned sadder and wiser. The uncertainty of life and the dependence of human beings was illustrated to them in an awful manner, and the local speakers will naturally use in future addresses some of the experiences of their trip.

On Saturday night, at the corner of Hunter and George Streets, Adjt. McElhiney poke with a fire and conviction that was very moving.

Then, too, the bandsmen are wiser in the evidences they saw of the catholicity of the Army, as displayed by the grand parade of nations in London. They are sadder and wiser, and they also recall many pleasant events which enabled them to forget for the time the tragic features of their embarkation on the journey.

The souvenirs of Peterborough were widely distributed. All the details of the trip will be told at a meeting in the Temple on Thursday evening next.

The bandsmen all returned in good health, and this morning most of them were back at work, a far flight from playing on the Thames Embankment, in Hyde Park, and along some of the principal streets.

WELCOMED HOME.

The band was met at the C.P.R. Station on Saturday afternoon by Mayor Buller, Ald. Stratton, Ald. Duffus, Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., and Mr. Soden besides a large number of citizens who were on hand to welcome them home; while those of the band who did not go to the Congress played a number of selections while the train was drawing into the station.

Then the two bands combined, and a parade was formed up George Street to the Barracks, where they were welcomed back to the city.

MR. DEVEY'S PUPILS SUCCESSFUL

Mr. R. J. Devey has concluded a busy season with the final results of pupils' examinations to hand last week:

Miss Macfarlane (Keene), Intermediate Harmony and Theory. Honours (University of Toronto Exams.)

Miss Ruby Quartermaine, Third Vocal, Honours.

Mr. Harry Hill, Second Vocal, Honours.

Miss Lillian Calder, Senior Second Piano, First-class Honours.

Miss Kathleen Moore, First Vocal, First-class Honours.

Other work of the season was conducting Stainer's 'Crucifixion" (twice), Handel's Oratorio, "Judas Maccabeaus," and Gilbert and Sullivan's "Mikado," at the Princess Theatre, Toronto.

A single stroke of lightning in the Bogian Konogo killed nine men and a mowan and severely injured 32 other persons, two of whom died later.

ORANGEMEN OFF TO LINDSAY

G. T. R. Station Was Scene of Great Activity This Morning as Lodges Entrained

THE FIFES AND DRUMS

The G. T. R. Station was alive from an early hour this morning with representatives of the various Orange Orders of Peterborough and vicinity, en route for Lindsay. The 7.10 a.m. train from Peterborough was packed principally with local Orangemen, and the 7.50 brought many from Fraserville, while the 6.20 Port Hope train contained a large contingent from that vicinity. Lodges 2322, 35, 36 and 696 came up on the Campbellford and Hastings train at 9.10, and the ranks of those from Lakefield coming in at about 9.50 were swelled with more from the City. Every party brought with it a band which, in some cases, rendered selections at the station.

Speaking with Mr. McNabb, the Examiner was informed that the parcel of seven hundred and fifty tickets which had been prepared for the day were all sold and many others also. This did not include the uptown office.

The following pupils of Mrs. W. A. Greenslade have been successful in passing their examinations at the Toronto College of Music:

Third year piano, first-class honours—Alberta Rehill.

Senior second-year piano, honours —Edythe Richardson.

Senior Rudiments, honours—Vera Stock.

Primary piano, 1st class honours—Maye Whatley.

Junior First Piano.

Pass—Francis Park.

Miss Sanderson's Pupils Took 1st Class Honours

Among the successful pupils who recently tried the examinations of the Toronto College of Music were Miss Myrtle Succee, who took first-class honours in junior piano, and Miss Mary Graham, first-class honours in primary piano. These young ladies are pupils of Miss Ida Sanderson.

WAS FINED $25.00 ON AN ASSAULT CHARGE

Bridgewater Man Convicted in Police Court To-day of Assaulting an Officer

PUT UP A FIGHT

Patrick Kelly pleaded guilty to being drunk and was fined $2, as did Thos. MacClusky and George Bruce at Police Court this morning.

Charles Healey, charged with being drunk while on the black list, pleaded not guilty to the charge, as he said he knew nothing about it.

A fair array of Dunville's Irish whiskey, consisting of three flasks, which were found on prisoner, were shown in court.

After a lot of questioning, he said he found it in the stable behind the Snowden House.

To bring back his memory to a better condition, he will visit Castle Neebitt till next Friday.

Charles Keller, who hails from Bridgenorth, was up for conducting himself in a drunk and disorderly manner on Saturday, and for assaulting P.C. Cookman. To get this man to the station the constables had to handcuff his arms and legs, and as it was, he managed, it was stated, to bite P.C. Cookman in two places.

For his revelry he paid a fine of $25.75, or 30 days in gaol.

POLLUTION FROM THE PETAWAWA WATERS

The Kingston Whig reproduces the following despatch:

PEMBROKE, July 10.—Pembroke's water is polluted and the town is threatened with an epidemic of typhoid fever. The contamination is generally believed to have come from sewage running into the Ottawa river from Petawawa military camp, where at one time this summer more than 8,000 men were in camp.

SIXTEEN-YEAR-OLD GIRL MAKES FINE SHOWING

Among the Peterborough pupils who made an exceptionally good showing in the examinations of the Toronto College of Music is Miss Alberta Rehill, daughter of Mr. Thos. Rehill, who won first-class honours in third-year piano, a remarkable record for a sixteen-year-old girl. Miss Rehill, who is a pupil of Mrs. W. A. Greenslade, has tried five examinations in her six years of study, passing every test with first-class honours.

NOTHING CAN BE DONE BY THE GOVERNMENT

Tuftenes' Certificate Cannot be Cancelled Nor can he be Prosecuted by Canada

A NORWEGIAN PERMIT

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, July 13.—Officials of the Marine Department explain that the certificate of First officer Tuftenes, who was responsible for the disaster, cannot be cancelled for the reason that it was issued by the Norwegian government. Neither is it likely that proceedings will be instituted against Tuftenes as the report does not find that he was guilty of culpable negligence in the terrible mistake which he made. It is likely that steps will be taken which in future will give the Canadian Government more authority over officers on vessels which enjoy coasting privileges in Candian waters.

A LETTER FROM "A DISGUSTED CONSERVATIVE"

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—As a Conservative, I desire to protest against Mr. Burnham's everlasting attacks on Mr. Peck. This calling of "tin-horn sports," and using expressions such as "baby talk," is uncalled for, and entirely beside the question.

Mr. Peck signed a statement showing his willingness to allow differences between Mr. Soden and himself to die, but Mr. Burnham persists in climbing in where angels fear to tread. Apparently he fears that E. A. Peck will land the Dominion nomination, so he tries to forestall that by his untimely assault on Mr. Peck.

Surely the time has come for burying these petty personal differences which Mr. Burnham seeks to keep alive. Mr. Burnham is not the whole Conservative party, although he apparently thinks so. Let Mr. Burnham recognize that he is not, nor will he ever be a leader, but rather the servant of the great Conservative party, and we shall have more harmony within the party and a greater assurance of success.

Yours truly,
Disgusted Conservative.

BRAVE ATTEMPT AT RESCUE BY PETERBORO' MAN

Mr. G. N. Rogers Searched River Bed for a Companion Who Had Sunk—Made Two Unsuccessful Attempts

RESUSCITATION FAILED

FRANKFORD, Ont., July 12.—A sad drowning accident occurred here yesterday morning about 10 o'clock, when Mr. Everet Ketcheson, only son of Mr. Thomas Ketcheson, lost his life in the river here, whither he had gone to bathe with a companion named Harrison.

The river at this point is shallow in some places and quite deep in others. The deceased walked off into one of the latter places and sunk out of sight. His companion, who was some distance away, immediately hurried to his assistance and swam out to the drowning man, who seized him and both went to the bottom together. Mr. Harrison, who was exhausted by his hurried swim, had all he could do to extricate himself from the grasp of the drowning man.

Mr. George N. Rogers, of the Trent Canal staff, seeing the commotion, hurried to the spot. When he arrived he at once threw off some of his clothing and made two unsuccessful attempts at rescue. It was on his third attempt that he succeeded. He traversed the bottom of the river for a distance of about thirty feet and heroically brought Ketcheson to the surface.

The body had not been in the water over ten minutes, but two doctors and their assistants utterly failed after an hour's work to accomplish resuscitation. It is subsequently learned that Mr. Ketcheson had an affection of the heart, which no doubt caused his death.

The deceased was an athlete and only twenty-three years of age, and was immensely popular.

Mr. Geo. N. Rogers, who heroically endeavoured to rescue the deceased, is a son of R. B. Rogers, of this city, being one of the firm of Denou and Rogers, contractors for the Frankford section of the canal.

STOOD SECOND IN THE LIST

Peterboro' Girls Fine Showing in Toronto College of Music Examinations

Little Winnifred King, the nine-year-old daughter of Mr. Gordon King, 445½ George street, made an enviable mark in the primary piano examination at the Toronto College of Music. Over 400 pupils wrote on this examination and little Miss King stood second in the list, a splendid performance for a beginner. She is a pupil of Mrs. Fenwick, George street.

NO SERIOUS CLASH IN ULSTER TO-DAY

Celebration of the Battle of the Boyne Passed Off Quietly in Belfast's Capital With No Bloodshed as Feared.

WISE COUNSEL PREVAILS

Special Cable to The Examiner:

BELFAST CITADEL, July 12. — (8 p.m. Irish time)—At the hour now to-night over Cave Hill, the lovers of peace in Ireland are rejoicing in another day of the Boyne's celebration safely passed without serious bloodshed. For months it has been predicted that the 12th and 13th of July, 1914, would be the crisis days in Ulster if details of Home Rule compromise had not been settled. This morning the hot heads of both sides sallied forth to bring that crisis about, but wise leadership and counsel prevailed. However, while the crisis has been temporarily averted to-day, it is believed the utmost caution must be taken to avert clashing in the near future.

BELFAST, Ireland, July 12. — Ulsters holiday celebration of the anniversary battle of Boyne to-day began quietly and the leaders of both sides advised followers to avoid clashes if possible. The Royal Irish Constabulary is on duty in full strength with reserves, to quell possible disorder, and companies of regular troops stationed at the various forts throughout Ulster were under arms all day, with leave stopped to be ready at a moment's notice. The Orangemen's demonstration began by firing cannons. Although the guns were pointed at Nationalist quarters they contained blank shells with ingenious mixture of rockets which burst spectacularly over the roofs of buildings and caused a good deal of excitement.

Sir Edward Carson was the hero of the day. Buttons bearing his portrait were worn by practically every man in the procession which he headed on horseback.

Throughout the Province of Ulster and notably in Londonderry, extensive precautions were taken by the authorities against possible clashes between organized forces of Protestants and Catholics.

PUBLIC RECEPTION TO THE ARMY BAND

At Tuesday Night's Regular Concert in Victoria Park.

A special programme will be given by the Salvation Army Band in Victoria Park on Tuesday night. The tourists who attended the great Congress in London and won honours for Peterborough will play selections which won plaudits in England.

March, "Camrades True," as played by the Belfast and Peterborough massed bands, conducted by Bandmaster Perryer.

Selection—"The Army".

Vocal selection, "I Love Thee." This number received special favour in the programme on the Thames Embankment.

Selection, "Songs of Germany".

Duet, trombone and cornet, "Larboard Watch," Bandsman Sandford and Bandmaster Perryer.

March, "The Army, Brave and True."

Selection, "Saving Grace".

Band song, "A Stranger".

Selection, "All Nations". This number was greeted with the greatest applause of any selection played by th Band on its tour, and many encores had to be played.

This concert will assume features of a public reception. Mayor Buller and the Council will be present and will welcome the Band home to Peterborough. Mr. Burnham, Mr. Gillespie and a representative of the Manufacturers' Association will be present.

C.P.R. STOCK MAKE NEW LOW MARK

The New York Stock Market Down, Some Stocks Make New Low Records

C. P. R. STOCK.

The New York Stock Market had a rather bad day, so far as holders of long stock were concerned.

C.P.R. was especially weak. It opened at 190, and made a new low record, dropping to 185¾. Reading, Union Pacific, and other leaders were off from one to four points.

NEW YORK, July 13.—Supporting orders were withdrawn temporarily in late afternoon, and prices declined sharply, catching stop orders and transferring a substantial amount of stock from weak interest hands. It was just the sort of thing which men of long market experience expected in order to clear up the condition of technical weakness, of which there had been evidence for the past few days. Traders talked of an unfavourable rate decision, but in conservative quarters it was said that the worst that could be expected in that way had been pretty well discounted, and that the market would soon be ready to respond to the favourable crop outlook. Total sales, 274,900.

NEW YORK, July 11—The Stock Market showed more declines, new low prices being made in MOP, CO as well as NH, but the stocks were fairly steady, some stock going to the selling figures given in last night's letter, and I hope you sold them. I look for great activity for the balance of the year and do not think we will have any more such spells of dullness and inactivity as we had during the past six weeks. The rotten stocks usually go first, and the good ones go last. In every important decline UP and RG have finished the downward movement by breaking last and it will probably be so again in this case. If the market opens lower Monday and if it has a quick rally near 11 o'clock of half to one point, and the leading issues may still be sold. US, UP, RG, LV, CO, ACP, BO, Texas, Oil, RK, STP ATCH. Keep short till we advise covering.

THE CATTLE MARKET

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, July 13.—Live Stock Market — Trade slow, prices are: Choice butchers, $8.80 to 8.70; good medium, $7.90 to $8.10; choice, $8.20 to $7; heavy stockers, $7 to $7.25; hogs few, $8.60 to $8.60, off cars $8.75, f.o.b. $8.15; light ewes, $6.10 to $6.35; spring lambs, $9 to $9.60.

WILL START A CAMP AT THE T. A. S. PARK

In view of the fact that many campers on the Otonabee river have been urging for a Sunday mass, the members of the two Total Abstinence societies, have gone into the question thoroughly, and have decided to start, and open a camp, at the T.A.S. Park, on Monday, July 20th. This camp will afford accommodation for 30 persons, and will be privileged with having a chaplain in attendance all the time.

The pavilion will be utilized as a dormitory. Young Catholic men are urged to take in the camp. As the park is only 35 or 40 minutes' paddle from the end of the car line, this will allow of the campers to partake of breakfast and supper at the park, and attend to business in the city throughout the day. A great deal of attention has been given as to the probable cost of maintainance of the camp. To provide every essential to give good food, and give due consideration to every individual, it has been decided that the camp will cost $2 for each person.

The project, however, cannot materialize without the assistance of the Catholic young men of the city, and to obtain their support, a meeting is called for eight o'clock in the St. Alphonsus Lyceum, the which all young ment are urgently requested to attend.

There is also the possibility of having a launch ply between the wharf and the park, morning and evening.

WILL DEPORT RUTHENIANS

Examiner Special:

OTTAWA, July 13.—Formal application was made by the city authorities to-day to the Dominion Immigration Department to deport forty out of two hundred Ruthenians out of employment in the Capital. Some of them are on the verge of starvation. The officers will now take steps to ascertain the steamship companies which brought the immigrants to Canada, and it is expected that they will offer a fight before they are homeward bound.

GERMAN OCCUPATIONAL EDUCATION.

A recent number of "Public Opinion" gives the gist of an article in the "English Review" on the continuation schools of Germany. These are the schools which give compulsory occupational and general preparation to youths between fourteen and eighteen years of age for their life as workers and citizens.

It is interesting to learn that in some states of Germany, not only parts of week-days, but some hours of Sunday mornings are allotted for this supplementary education. "Sunday School," as understood by lads over fourteen years in Munich and Bavaria, means instruction in matters relating to the Empire or the city or the parish, the constitutional rights of the Reichstag and of Bavarian government, the Imperial and Bavarian system of taxation, the system of local government, etc. That is, while the youth is occupationally trained on two afternoons of each week, which his employer must by Imperial law allow off his regular work, his Sunday class is for instruction in citizenship, or what in some American universities is termed "government." An object of the German system is to enable the individual in a country of general franchise to poll an intelligent vote.

But citizenship, as taught in Germany, embraces more than government. Morals, social amenity, oplitesse, household management and sanitation are taught, and civic and national pride fostered by study of monuments and buildings, visits to historic places and museums. Backwards boys, not deemed capble of a skilled occupation, are trained to be "handy men" of as superior a type as possible, and in their case also the education in citizenship is not omitted, but like the industrial instruction, is simplified for their special needs. They are taught at least, like the rest, some taste for a better grade of reading, how to write various letters and compose reports, how to give evidence in a court, the values of different kinds of food, the evils of alcohol (in Bavaria!), the perils of adolescence, and, in general, common sense, so far as that can be taught or developed.

Our industrial or technical schools just beginning in Canada have some distance yet to go before they do the work performed in most of the states of Germany. It is a great, sober and necessary work, to which we must address ourselves. Germany has translated philosophic ideals into fact in her educational system. — London Advertiser.

COL. SAM MADE THINGS LIVELY IN LONDON, ONT.

LONDON, July 11—Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes made a pretty spectacle of himself while in London, recently.

In fact his conduct was very embarassing to the local officers, all of whom are known as gentlemen of tact and delicacy.

In the London Avertiser of Friday night it was stated that Col. Hughes had stated that the inspectors were, with few exceptions, inefficient. Col. Hughes gave this as his opinion to The Advertiser.

An Officer's Protest.

One of the officers called up this morning to state that Col. Hughes had not said such a thing.

While Col. Hughes may not have made the remark while the review was in progress, he made it to the reporter who saw him after the review. He added: "They just know enough to say left, right; left, right; any fool can do that." In front of the word fool there should be a blank, indicating a short and ugly word.

Another officer took exception to the fact that The Advertiser "pried" into Col. Hughes domestic affairs. This no doubt referred to the item describing the manner in which the commander of the Canadian militia called in his personal attendant to remove his boots. This struck the reporter's fancy as an historical incident, likely to rank with Napoleon and the Sentry, etc.

Remarks Unwarranted.

The Minister of Militia's remarks about the officers of the Sixth Field Battery are regarded locally as unwarranted and not becoming a man in his position. The appellation "a bunch of boosers" applies no more to the officers of the battery than to those of any other regiment in Canada. The officers in this district are well aware of this. None of the officers of the battery would dignify the Minister's insults with a reply.

Government Has Been Borrowing At the Rate of $224 per Minute

OTTAWA, July 11.—Between September 1st, 1913, and June 6th, 1914, the Borden Government was compelled to borrow no less than £18,500,000. Taking a pound as equal to $4.87, the total borrowings have amounted to the enormous sum of $90,095,500 in the period in question.

It is difficult for the human mind to comprehend such a huge amount, but the significance of the figures becomes all too clear after a few minutes' arithmetic. Between September 1st, 1913, and June 6th, 1914, the Government has increased the indebtedness of Canada by $322,921 per day. The increase per hour has been $13,455. Taking take period as a whole, every minute has seen an increase in the liabilities of Canada amounting to $224 !Taking the population of the Dominion as an even 8,000,000, the Government in ten months, has increased the indebtedness of the country by an amount equal to more than $11 for every man, woman and child. Put in still another way, the reckless extravagance and wastefulness of Premier Borden and his colleagues has brought an increase in Canada's indebtedness equal to nearly $60 for every average Canadian family. And this is the Government which promised care and economy in the administration of Canadian affairs.

There is a temptation to treat national borrowings lightly. The individual citizen does not sign any note when the Government borrows. The borowing does not make him liable for the acceptance of a particular draft at a particular time. He does not sit and figure that at such and such a time he must pay certain interest and certain principal. A Government loan does not directly touch any citizen personally. But this does not mean that the citizes of Canada are not affected by the recklessness of Borden management of the country's financial affairs—not by a jugful it doesn't.

Some of the loans recently floated by the Government have been at four per cent. Others have been at four and a half per cent. Making a calculation evan at this lower figure, it is seen that the Government has placed upon the country an additional annual charge of no less than $3,603,800. That amount will have to be paid every year from the public treasury because of the manner in which Canadian affairs are being mismanaged by the present Ministry. As a matter of fact, of course, the sum will be even larger, since some of the loans have been made at four and a half per cent. Upwahrds of $4,000,000 must be provided by the people of the Dominion to pay the charges on the Government's huge loans which have been necessitated by wastefulness and maladministration. That amount must be diverted from public works and other development undertakings. Directly or indirectly the people of anada must provide three millions—for the public treasury is no magic chest which is filled by a wave of a wizard's wand—and must see them paid out for interest charges while the country is denied necessary productive works which ought otherwise be undertaken. Spendthrifts and incompetents are temporarily in control at Ottawa, and Canada pays through the nose for this condition.

FIRST PRINTER'S DEVIL

In the early days of printing this art was much of a mystery, and ignorant people thought the printer evoked the aid of the powers of evil. Adus Manutius, the famous Italian printer of the sixteenth century, went to Africa on an exploring expedition and brought back with him a very black negro boy. Negroes were a rarity then. The report immediately gained circuation that the printer had been employing the Black Art in his work and that the pickaninny was in reality an imp of Satan. He was called the "Little Black Devil." The charge became so serious that the printer was forced to exhibit the negro in public. In his announcement he said:

"Be it known to Venice that I, Aldus Manutius, printer to the Holy Church and to the Doge, have this day made public exposure of the Printer's Devil. All those who think he is not flesh and blood may come and pinch him."

And that is how the term "printer's devil" had its origin.

PETES WHITEWASH BEAVERS SATURDAY
WIN FINAL GAME BY SIX RUNS TO TWO

Belting's Pitching Was Very Effective and the Petes Did Some Timely Hitting Behind Him.

FOUR RUNS IN FIRST

The Petes made it two out of three for the series and their home record for the week four wins out of six, when they handsomely administered a coat of whitewash to the Leeless Beavers on Saturday. The score was 6 to 0, and the result was never much in doubt after the first innings, when the Petes bunched three hits in a row with a couple of passes and three errors to score four runs. Belting was the Peterborough gunner and the Swedish boy had the Indian sign on the Leaflets all through. Up to the sixth three singles were all the Toronto gang could collect. They threatened in the seventh when Harkins and Graham both singled with two gone. Kroy followed with a vicious drive, but it was right at King, and the second-sacker gathered it in without trouble. In the ninth it looked as if the visitors would break into the scoring column when they filled the bases with two out. It was once more up to Kroy, but the former International Leaguer could produce nothing better than an easy fly to Rooney. Belting had more smoke than a 1909 model motor car, and was well supported. In addition he did some fine fielding himself.

Alex. Graham, product of the Don Valley League, was Manager Ort's choice, and outside of the first innings he showed a nice brand of stuff. The Petes earned a couple of runs off him in that session, and were handed a couple more, but after the bad opening he got by very nicely. He had a good curve that had several of the Petes guessing.

First Innings.

Toronto—Kroy grounded to Dolan. Schultz popped to Fox. Ort fanned. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough — Blount walked. Welsh sacrificed, Graham to Schultz. Blount went to third on Harkins' bad throw, scoring Blount. Rooney doubled to left sending Dolan in. Byrne singled to centre. King bunted to Schultz who fumbled, Rooney scoring. Fox hit to Killilea forcing King, but Ort threw high to first trying to complete the double play and Byrne scored, Fox going to second. Miller walked. Belting fanned. Four runs, three hits, three errors.

Second Innings.

Toronto—Killilea cracked a liner into Belting's hands. Trout walked. Isaac fanned. Hunt grounded to King. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough — Blount flied to Trout. Welsh fanned. Dolan cracked a hit through the box and stole second. Rooney fanned. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Third Innings.

Toronto—Harkins was safe on Fox's fumble. Graham fanned. Kroy forced Harkins, King to Fox. Schultz forced Kroy, Fox to King. No runs or hits, one error.

Peterborough—Byrne grounded to Killilea. King fouled to Schultz. Fox grounded to Graham. No runs, hits or errors.

Fourth Innings.

Toronto—Ort was passed. Killilea flied to Welsh. Trout singled to right, the first hit off Belting. Isaac lifted one to Dolan. Hunt flied to Blount. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough—Miller grounded to Graham. Belting fouled to Schultz. Blount flied on a bunt to Graham. No runs, hits or errors.

Fifth Innings.

Toronto—Harkins was safe when Belting dropped his pop fly. Graham struck out. Harkins was caught off first, Belting to Dolan. Kroy singled to right. Schultz grounded to Belting. No runs, one hit, one error.

Peterborough—Welsh struck out. Trout made a nice catch of Dolan's drive to right. Rooney singled to right and stole second. Byrne hit to Killilea and was safe on Killilea's bad throw, Rooney scoring. King singled to left. Trout nailed Fox's drive with his gloved hand. One run, two hits, ed out on strikes. No runs, one hit, one error.

Sixth Innings.

Toronto — Ort singled between short and third. Killilea hit into a double, Belting to King to Dolan. Trout flied to Welsh. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough—Miller fanned. Belting also struck out. Blount singled to centre. Blount stole second on a delayed steal and went to third when Harkins threw wild. Welsh was called one error.

Seventh Innings.

Toronto—Isaac grounded to King. Hunt flied to Blount. Harkins singled through short. Graham singled to right, sending Harkins to third. Kroy cracked one into King's hands. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Peterborough — Dolan walked. Rooney hit into a double play, Ort to Killilea to Schultz. Byrne fanned. No runs, hits or errors.

Eighth Innings.

Toronto—Schultz popped to Byrne. Ort flied to Rooney. Killilea hoisted to King. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough — King doubled to left. Fox sacrificed, Isaac to Schultz. Miller fanned. Belting doubled to right, scoring King. Blount flied to Welsh. One run, two hits, no errors.

Ninth Innings.

Toronto—Trout flied to Rooney. Isaac singled, and Hunt followed with a safety to right. Dolan grabbed Harkins' fly. Burril batted for Graham and walked, filling the bases, but Kroy ended the innings and the game with a fly to Rooney. No runs, two hits, no errors.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

A good record for the week.

Belting is back in the .500 class with four wins and four losses.

Welsh could not fathom Graham's delivery, striking out three times. Miller also went fishing after a curve and missed several times.

Blount pulled the delayed steal in the sixth and Harkins threw to centre field.

Ort and Belting had several verbal encounters during the day.

A SORRY HUMBUG.

Why should we talk of "country joys"?
'T is just the sheerest folly!
You need but hear some country noise
To know it's melancholy!

It is in fact a dismal place
That's by tradition hallowed;
Which frowning cliffs too oft disgrace;
Where fileds too oft, are harrowed.

The branches groan, the breezes sigh,
Unless perchance they're sobbing—
While near the shore, the seagulls cry,
And ocean's breast is throbbing.

The moaning of the harbour-bar,
The roaring of the billows,
Are quite as apt all mirth to mar
As are the weeping willows.
The country, then, you must confess,
Denuded of its mask, oh!
Is just a howling wilderness!
A miserable fiasco!

—July Lippincott's.

The Tombstone.

A lady of recent widowhood encountered much difficulty in framing an inscription for her dear husband's tombstone. After endless consultations with her friends and neighbours this was the one she selected:

"Rest in Peace — Until we Meet Again."

PETES WON FROM OTTAWA

Shoemaker Sent Winning Run Over in the Tenth After Senators Tied Score in Ninth

A WIN FOR TRACEY

OTTawa, July 12—After tieing the score in the ninth the locals were beaten out in the tenth by Peterborough at Dupuis Park this afternoon. The score was 5 to 4. Marshal began to pitch for Ottawa, but before he had retired a man there were four runs over the pan. Peterson replaced him and didn't allow a run.

Shaughnessy subsequently poled out a home run with nobody on, and Dolan followed it, making it 4 to 2 when Ottawa came up in the ninth. Lage also whacked out a homer, and after Nill had singled Dolan and Powers moved him along to third. Shocker, hitting for Peterson, reached first and Nill scored on a passed ball, while the crowd went wild.

Lill went in to pitch for Ottawa in the 10th and after King had forced Rooney at third and going to second on the pay, he counted when Fox slammed one to deep centre. Schettler, who had replaced Tracey after Nill's single in the ninth, saved the match for Peterborough in the extra frame. With Smykal out, Shaughnessy doubled, but Schettler struck out Rogers and Lage and ended the chances.

Ottawa appeared to be playing in the hardest kind of luck throughout. The defeat will be charged against Lill, though Marshal allowed four runs as the score was 4 to 4, with no one on the bases when Lill went in. Tracey will get the credit for the win, as it was 4 to 3 for Peterborough when Manager Blount took him out. The weather was very warm and 3,600 spectators saw one of the best games of the sason: Score:

CONNIE MACK WILL NOT REPORT TY COBB FOR LATEST TROUBLE

PHILADELPHIA, July 11—Connie Mack did not report Tyrus Cobb to President Ban Johnson for the bat throwing incident of Wednesday's game. Furthermore, Connie will not make an official complaint. He believes Cobb has been punished enough lately and does not care to eb instrumental in keeping him out of the game any longer.

Umpire Chill, working behind the plate and the umpire in charge, did not see Cobb hurl the bat at Eddie Murphy during the eighth inning, and so Chill will not be able to tell him anything he saw personally.

"I cannot say why an intelligent man like Cobb would do a thing like that," said Connie. "He made a deliberate attempt to injure Murphy. Cobb is a fine chap to meet and talk to, but he has no balance wheel."

The entire trouble started when Umpire Sheridan, giving the base decisions, called Murphy out on a tight play at flat. Murphy hit a grounder to Burns and the runner and fielder reached the bag about the same time. Murphy gave Sheridan one hard and cold look when "Jack" called him out. He said nothing, but highly peeved, started toward the Philadelphia bench. In passing the Detroit dugout, Cobb made some sizzling remarks not at all calculated to soothe a player in Murphy's frame of mind. Therefore, Murphy responded with some equally caustic remarks. He went so far as to refer to a certain incident which happened in a Detroit butcher shop recently, and in which an automatic revolver, twenty cents worth of perch, a street brawl, a broken hand, a ride in a patrol waggon, a visit to the police station, and a fine for disorderly conduct in police-court were the leading features. That was too much for Cobb who grabbed a bat, and hurled it at Murphy.

Fortunately it did not hit Murphy, who did not lose his head, but continued walking to the Philadelphia bench. The thing happened so quickly that Chief Umpire Chill did not see it. Few in the ground knew it, or at least they did not know who fired the bat at Murphy.

FORMER CHINESE RESIDENT HAS MANY RESTAURANTS

The Dominion Cafe, Harry Hamilton, proprietor, opens to-morrow (Saturday) morning, at 467 Dundas Street, where the Bank of Nova Scotia was formerly located. The premises have been in the hands of decorators for some time past, and now present a bright and attractive appearance, being laid out in the new and convenient style of the up-to-date restaurant. Mr. Hamilton has been in business for some fifteen years in this country, during which he has acquired quite a chain of restaurants, at present operating cafes in Ottawa, Hamilton, Peterborough and Guelph. It is his intention to offer Woodstock nothingbut a strictly first-class service, devoting special attention to ladies' requirements, for whom separate tables are provided. The proprietor is not, as his name implies, of British birth, but is one of the higher type of Chinese who have made a success of the restaurant business in this country, and his past experience, together with his congenial and courteous manner, should be a guarantee of success in his new restaurant here. As a special attraction for opening day, everyone who patronises the new cafe to-morrow, will be presented with a handsome bouquet of roses and carnations free, with the compliments of the proprietor.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

"On the Doorstep of Desire"

THE merchant of to-day is not satisfied to merely let his advertising invite people to his store. The right kind of an advertisement virtually takes the merchant's goods to the home—places them on the doorstep of the reader's desire and says:—

"Mrs. Housewife, won't you take me in?"

Thus good advertising for a retail store does especially important work in bad weather—the advertisement talks on days too bad for Mrs. Housewife to go "down town."

Most merchants recognise this, and depend on their advertising to make sales when the store window, by reason of adverse weather, doesn't get a chance to talk.

And just as there are winter days so stormy that the daily newspaper is the only real point of contact between Mrs. Housewife and the shopping district, so are there summer days so sultry that "down town" is out of the question.

But is it ever too hot for the daily newspaper to get a hearing? Is there a single day in the whole summer that the merchant could not, with the proper kind of advertisement, place his goods on the doorstep of Mrs. Housewife's desire?

Put your goods there every day—hot or not. They will be taken in, all right.

You can obtain helpful advice on advertising free of cost and without obligation by consulting with the Advertising Department of THE EXAMINER.

ORANGEMEN HAVE DUTIES TOWARD CATHOLIC CITIZENS

Rev. J. R. Webb Preached to Large Congregation of Orangemen on Sunday Night—Hierarchy Making a Last Stand.

THE QUEBEC OF TO-DAY

The different lodges of the Orange Order attended Murray Street Baptist Church for divine service Sunday evening, July 12th. Preceded by their Band the men marched in procession and turned out in such large numbers that they completely filled the body of the Church. Rev. J. R. Webb preached from the text "What God hath cleansed, that, call not thou common."—Acts 10—15.

"History shows that no Orange immigrants carried away more bitterness than those who settled in Canada. This bitterness was cherished here for a long time, but is now mainly a thing of the past. On the whole, the Orangemen of this country endeavour to live up to what is the cardinal principle of Orangeism—'Equal rights for all and special privileges for none.' They desired for Roman Catholics of this country the same rights as Protestants enjoyed—the same, but no more. For a long time many Orangemen were possessed of the idea that Catholics were in some way much inferior. Peter felt the same about Cornelius. However, just as Peter was taught that all men are equal and that he must meet the Gentile as man to man, so Orangemen had learned that before God, Protestants and Catholics are alike, and that if any help is to be given to the Catholic, it must be given in the true spirit of brotherhood. This is the present tendency of Orangeism.

The Catholic Church, as such, is to be respected and admired, and thousands of Catholics are an example to Protestants by their devout lives and faithfulness to their beliefs; it is not the Catholic Church, but the Catholic Hierarchy which is to be feared and opposed. Having been driven out of Italy, France, Portugal and other European countries, the Catholic Hierarchy is making its last stand in America. The result of the power of this hierarchy is found in the condition of the Province of Quebec. Although the Province of Quebec is older, bigger, and, on the whole, more fertile than Ontario, yet the value of farm lands and the output of farm produce is many times greater in Ontario than in Quebec. The same is true of manufactures. In Ontario, there are fifty-two daily newspapers; in Quebec, only fourteen, and seven of these are French. In Ontario, there are one hundred and twenty free municipal libraries; in Quebec, there are none.

If Orangemen wish to help Roman Catholics they must be free from the errors which Roman Catholics have fallen into. For example, they must see to it that there is no Pope in the Orange Order. The individual liberty and conscience of every man must be held sacred and there must be no coercion when men do not think alike. In the same spirit, prejudice must be stamped out. The age of bigotry is gone. More and more men are growing closer together and learning that there is bad in the best of us and good in the worst of us. The prejudices of Peter died hard; but if they not died his usefulness would have been at an end.

Finally, the greatest work which can be done by Orangemen, as an Order, is the distribution of the "Word of God" among Catholics. The Bible is the Word of God unto salvation and will carry the true light of the Gospel wherever it goes. Much good has been done already by the Order, in helping to support Anglican, Methodist and Baptist Missions, in Quebec. This good work has been done without blare of trumpet, but has been none the less appreciated. The salvation for Quebec is the open Bible. At present there is not a Catholic in that Province who reads the Bible with the consent of his priest. The Orange Order is founded upon the principles of Scripture. A Bible is always carried in every procession and is used at every Lodge meeting. The aim of every true Orangeman should be to live according to the precepts of "The Book," and to put it into the hands of every Catholic brother.

Mentioned For Vacancy at the Customs House

The Executive of the West Peterborough Conservative Association will meet on Wednesday when it is understood a recommendation will be made to fill the office of Collector of Inland Revenue. Several names as possible successful candidates, including Mr. Joseph Mills and Mr. Wm. Hill are mentioned in connection with the vacancy. Both these gentlemen have been active workers for Conservative candidates in previous elections and so far as we can see are entitled to every consideration by the committee.

However, there have been some surprises in previous appointments in Peterborough these last few years, and there may be another surprise in store on this occasion.

TRY TO LIMIT AUTO HEADLIGHT DAZZLE

Good Results Obtained by Obscuring the Lens on One Side of the Light.

MANY LIGHTS TOO STRONG

"An investigation into the question of motor car headlights," said Mitchell May, Secretary of State, recently, "was undertaken a short time ago by the Royal Physical Laboratory in London at the request of the local Government Board, who are understood to contemplate the framing of a regulation. Some of the results obtained have recently been published and are now available.

"The elimination of dazzle being evidently possible by means of a sufficient reduction in the intensity of the light by which it is caused," said he, "tests were made to discover the order of the intensity of lights, which (1) will dazzle at night and (2) may be regarded as sufficient for safe driving. It is known that sources of light at eye level, of considerably less than 100 candle power are sufficient to dazzle the pedestrian or the driver of another vehicle, and prevent him from seeing beyond the dazzling light unless he has strong headlights himself, and, therefore, for the satisfactory elimination of the dazzle no direct or spectacular reflected light from a source must meet the eye of an observer.

"On the other hand, if a dark object is to be seen a hundred feet ahead of an observer against a dark background the illumination must be of an order produced by the light of 100 candle power. As 100 feet does not seem an excessive figure for the distance at which objects should be visible to a car driver it appears that no restriction of the intensity of car lights would be effective in appreciably reducing the dazzle, and at the same time leave adequate light for driving.

"An attempt was made to construct a head lamp in such a way that virtually all the light was eliminated from that portion of the beam which could meet the eye of an observer approaching it. This attempt was based upon the view that the portion of a headlight beam most required by a driver was above the road and also illuminated the hedges and signs upon his left-hand side. On the other hand, the portion of the beam which chiefly dazzles any one coming up on his proper side of the road toward the car, is that emitted above the horizontal and to the right-hand side of the car driver. If, therefore, this latter portion of the beam could be cut out without seriously affecting the brightness of the remainder, on-coming traffic on a straight road would not be dazzled, while the driver would still be enjoying light to the full height on his left-hand side and also below the horizontal for the whole width of the road."

CALLED THE MAGISTRATE A PAID BULLY

Examiner Special:

LONDON, Eng., July 13.—"You are a paid bully for the government," screamed Annie Bell, militant suffragette to the migistrate when he remanded her this morning on her pleading guilty with much gusto, to the charge of planting a bomb to wreck the famous old church in Westminster. After making her appeal she stretched herself on the bench to indicate, she didn't care what happened to her.

The committee are in session already, and the fifty-ninth annual will be held on Wednesday and Thursday afternoon. Not only will Candians take part, but representatives from Great Britain and many of the Grand Masters of the United States will be present.

YOUR MONEY

Let Women Know About the Value of Money

By John H. Orbison

You and your family are living in a city where a large proportion of the work which used to fall upon the women is taken off their hands by the co-operative machinery of city living.

As a result your wife and your growing daughters have ceased to be economic factors—to a large extent. They have largely ceased to be producers.

Instead, your women folks have become money spenders to the limit of the family's resources. People are beginning to call them names; the charge of extravagance is made against them. Said a Judge in the Detroit Domestic Relations Court recently:

"I find that 26 per cent. of the cases which come before me are due to extravagance on the part of the wives, and in 49 per cent. of the cases where trouble is due to both wife and husband the extravagance of the wife is the principal trobule."

But merely protesting against the habit of spending recklessly won't cure the women of your family. I think there is a better way:

As soon as your girs get old enough to understand the value of a dollar make them realize that every dollar they spend means that $20 has been at work for a year to produce it. Put them at some sort of productive work (inside the home, if it can be found theere, and outside if it can't) ong enough for them to understand just what it means to earn money. Then when they become the spending member of another man's family they'll know how to handle dollars in roder to get 100 cents of value out of each one.

Perhaps your wife is past the point of learning about money and how it is earned—but I don't think so. Try at any rate, to visualize for her the outlay which must be made before you or your investments may legitimately ask for a dollar of reward. Help to herfigure just what a 20 per cent. saving on grocery bills through the year (and this saving can usually be effected merely by paying cash) will amount to.

Get your womenfok interested in the process of making money, and their enthusiasm for spending it will wane.

BIRD INTERFERED WITH SERVICE

One of the curious and amusing coincidences which one reads about occurred at Murray Street Baptist Church Sunday morning, July 12th. In some way, a bird got into one of the organ pipes and created such a noise that after the announcements had been given, the Pastor said that he would dispense with the sermon, and dismiss the congregation after the next hymn, No 98. He then read the first line of the hymn, "Birds have their quiet nests". The effect on the congregation was such that another hymn had to be chosen.

Members of the Church were reminded of the first service taken by a former Pastor, Rev. J. Freeland Scott, after his return from his honeymoon. The hymns had been chosen by the organist and quite inadvertently Mr. Scott asked the congregation to sing No. 230, and read:

"Come and rejoice with Me,
For once my heart was pure
And I have found a treasury
Of love, a boundless store."

Johnston May Wear His Crown For Years To Come; Has Punch And Stamina

NEW YORK, July 11.—It will be another three or four years before the heavyweight crown is torn from the dusky dome of one Jack Johnson, if his showing in the Moran fight is any criterion.

Johnson at 36, may not be quite as good a fighter as he was when he bumped Jeffries off the throne, but he's still about a dozen jumps ahead of any white fighter of the present day. And, too, Johnson is a good deal better than he seemed to be when he fought Moran.

Johnson didn't let himself out in that Moran fight—and everyone who saw that fight knows it. Johnson could have knocked out Moran in any round he chose, but he let the white man remain on his feet until the finish. Johnson needed the exercise. He wanted to prove to himself that he hadn't aged to such an extent that 20 rounds would tire him, and so instead of sending Moran to the mat for the count in the early part of the fight, he simply toyed with him all the way, much in the same way that ct toys with a mouse.

The fact that Johnson didn't knock out Moran inclines persons to the belief that he no longer has the punch that brought home the bacon so often in the days of his youth. But those who think that way are due a rude shock the very first time Johnson is pitted against a real fighter. The old punch is still there. It may not have the full paralyzing power of other years, but there is still enough force in it to send into dreamland any man who might be brave enough to stick his jaw in front of it.

Those who looked for a Moran victory counted heavily on Johnson's dissipations so weakening him that it would give Moran a chance. But they were treated to a disagreeable surprise. Johnson, although 10 years older than Moran and with a record of four years of dissipation against Moran's clean life, came out of the fight in better physical condition than did the white man. He showed greater stamina, greater endurance and more energy than the white man.

There are some persons now who feel that Gunboat Smith or Jess Willard, who are in the first rank of white boxers, would have a chance against Johnson. Perhaps — and perhaps not. Johnson, if pitted against either of the two would extend himself. He wouldn't play the cat-and-mouse game that he did with Moran. He'd get out with the idea of finishing his rival in the quickest time possible. He'd uncork his terrible punch at the first opportunity. He would bring into play all his ring craft. And the chances are about 3 to 1 that he would land a knockout within 10 rounds.

Ever since the Johnson-Moran fight there have been reports of a frame-up. On the face of things the fight did not look like a frame-up. If there had been any frame-up it seems logical to assume that Johnson would have let Moran make some sort of showing during the fight. He would have permitted the white man to land at least a few puches that had weight behind them. But he didn't. The fight was a farce simply because Johnson so far outclassed Moran that it was no fight at all.

A half dozen times during the fight Johnson slapped Moran's face with his gloved hands, then dropped his arms to his sides and laughed in derision in Moran's face. A half dozen times he invited Moran to "come on and hit me a few," but Moran wasn't equal to the occasion. Such acts as these seem to convince the sensible public that the fight was not a frame-up—that it was something of a burlesque, with Johnson applying the slapstick.

Moran feels that he can make capital of the fact that he lingered 20 rounds with the champion. If he does, he ought to split with "Lil Ahthuh" because it was due to Ahthuh's kindness, not to Moran's real staying powers that the "white hope" was among those conscious when the fight ended.

Seems to us, however, that Moran could make a great deal more money by going on the stage under the guise of a comedian. Few men have pulled a more laughable remark than Moran did at the finish of the fight, when bleeding, exhausted and almost blinded, he said between gasps:

"I was Johnson's master at every stage of the fight."

It's an ill tongue that tells no good.

Some men will get out of bed at midnight and run to a fire who can't be induced to get up at 7 a.m. and start work in the kitchen range.

CITIZENS WAITED FOR BURGLARS WHO MADE ANOTHER SMOOTH FORAY FRIDAY NIGHT

The residents of Aylmer street south are still wondering how housebreaking operations so loosely conducted as those of last week could have escaped apprehension. Thursday night the invasion was general, and Friday night the citizens or many of them decided not to seek their downy couches as usual but to lay in ambushes. Some of them were for simply remaining up simply for safety and their houses were well lighted. The police are said to have advised them to turn out the lights to present the usual atmosphere of somnolence and confidence. Both citizens and police were gathered in the vicinity of Townsend street, but a number of cases of house-breaking were reported on Saturday morning. The vigilantes must have been too open in their watches for some marauder got in a little smooth work. The citizens were really surprised that the thief or thieves were not netted on Friday night. The Thursday night escape was regarded as excusable. Friday night's as a bungle.

SOME THINGS AND A FEW OTHERS

The week's amusement has speeded up the regular doings around the town.

It has been suggested that the city is ripe for a summer amusement park.

Let us remark once more that about the time life may be a real round of bliss in this vicinity, the most of us will be ready for the undertaker.

One of those circus dogs posed in a parlour would surely scare away even the worst burglar.

Ten ice creams, six chocolate sodas and three chocolate eggs was one young man's excess cargo yesterday. He sandwiched three meals with the above.

If results alone talk, if temperance is a Christian virtue, and dry communities the work of a moral people, then those of us who scoff at the morals of the United States are scoffing up the wrong sleeve.

There's a land that is hotter than this.. But there is only one.

Advanced salesmanship would be selling furnaces and ranges during the present weather.

Even the good old summer time has its cloying element.

Midnight swimming in Little Lake under the pale moonlight is the nearest approach to hot weather bliss yet experienced.

A tall young man named Benson, Enjoyed a "trip to the moon;" His next jaunt will be A long round of glee, A honeymoon joy ride in June.

WAGGON WAS WRECKED

As the 9:10 train drew out of the G.T.R. station this morning with representatives of the Orange Order from Campbellford and Hastings, the horse attached to Mr. W. L. White's milk waggon became frightened and collided with a telephone pole on Bathurst street. The waggon was wrecked, the bottles of milk being precipitated in the road.

NORWOOD WILL HAVE RE-UNION

First Week in July, 1915, Decided Upon for Gathering of Former Residents

PLANS UNSETTLED YET

Examiner Special:

NORWOOD, July 13—A Norwood Old Boys and Old Girls' reunion the first week in July, 1915, has been decided upon by the Daughters of the Empire. This decision will no doubt be hailed with delight by the many hundreds of former residents of the old town and vicinity, as well as the present residents.

While the above organization has taken the initiative in the matter the movement will be made citizen-wide, and everyone is urgently requested to become a booster.

Plans, as yet have not been fully outlined, but will, in the near future, be announced. Mrs. E. C. Squire has kindly consented to act as Secretary and all persons are requested to send in the names of all the old boys and girls they can gather in order that they may be communicated with.

SPOKE ON WORLD PEACE

Rev. Canon Davidson's Interesting Sermon at St. John's Last Night

Last night, at St. John's, Canon Davidson's subject was "World-Peace" in connexion with the Collect for the day, his text being "Seek peace and ensue it".

The horrors of war, forced on us the question "Why, after all these centuries of Christianity and enlightenment, should war and national embroilments be tolerated?" It was contrary not only to our religion, but to reason and common sense that men's heaven-given powers should be spent in destroying one another. We do not believe in slaughter, and yet it is done. The recent Mexican Balkan, and other wars disquieting facts with their pernicious influence upon the world, while vast sums of money were poured out to keep Europe in its present unfortunate position as a collection of armed camps. This was the difficult side of the present situation and while discouraging in a measure, it was not wholly so.

There was another side. The general revulsion of strong feeling against war was a hopeful sign. The verse of the National Anthem beginning "Confound their politics" could hardly be sung today, though representing the earnest prayer of a bygone age. Nearly all statesmen were co-operating for peace and preparations for war were only made as the best available method at present for securing peace.

We had no extreme militarism in Canada and the chances of our militia seeing active service were very remote. In the speaker's opinion the present and practical uses of the militia lay largely in the training in discipline and deportment which men would not otherwise have. Moreover, it stimulated a healthy patriotism by keeping in a concrete way the country and its service before all citizens.

The Church should bring her influence to bear throughout the world to check the prevalence of war passions and forces, and to promote world peace. In the case of international troubles arbitration should be urged. In the meanwhile strong and earnest prayers for peace should constantly ascend. Such prayers were offered every day in the Church services, and people in every country were on this Sunday uniting in the Collect for world-peace. Peace prayers, thoughts, words, and acts could gradually produce an atmosphere in which war would be less and less likely to occur.

ARE HOME FROM THE CONVENTION AT ROCHESTER

Drs. Wightman and Middleton have returned from Rochester, N.Y., where they attended the National Dental Convention. The very latest word on Dental Science and equipment was given in the clinics and demonstrated by the dental supply houses.

A strong effort was made to extend the course of the Dental Colleges from 3 years to 4. The four-year course has been in vogue in Toronto College for 8 years and has proved successful. In this particular we have been in advance of our friends across the line.

Only Two Days Catch of Bass, Etc. May Be Exported

Commencing July the first the two years closed season for frogs ended on these waters. Frogs may now be taken the year around except for the months of May and June. It is understood that the frogs have greatly increased during the past two years when they were protected.

Another matter received by Fishery Inspector A. Bradshaw is notification from the Dominion Government that an act had been passed similar to that passed by the Ontario Government to the effect that no more than two days' legal catch of bass, maskiponge or speckled trout can be exported from the country.—Lindsay Post.

Lindsay's Tax Rate Increases 5 Mill

LINDSAY, July 13.—Lindsay's rate this year will be 3 mills, an increase of 5 mills over last year. The Council last night considered the statements for a few minutes, and will meeet again Tuesday night to confirm the assessment and levy the rate.

The increase of five mills is because of the extras for schools and debentures from last year.

ARE AFTER TWO U.S. CITIES FOR CANUCK LEAGUE

TOLEDO, O., July 12.—Officials of the Canadian League are negotiating by wire relative to the purchase of the Toledo baseball franchise and installing teams here and at Youngstown.

The promoters do not say that they want to install a team this year, but they are biding high with the desire to get Class A. rating for the Canadian circuit in 1915. Toledo and Youngstown furnish the necessary population for the rating.

It is estimated that Peterborough, St. Thomas or Brantford will be dropped if the new cities are added to the circuit.

INTRUDER TAKES NAP

The occupants of 228 Rubidge st. wil get a surprise when they return from a vacation they are enjoying just now. They left on Friday, and on Sunday neighbours noticed the blinds were not then as they were left a few days before.

Examination by the police revealed the fact that the house had been entered by the window, the blinds and curtains displaced, and that the intruder had occupied one of the beds. It was impossible to estimate if anything had been taken.

Iceland soon is to have its first railroad—a line 60 miles long.

Fifty thousand combinations are possible with a new combination padlock.

EVERYBODY'S DOING IT.

The Chief was berating a patrolman—

"Why did you let that crook get away from you?" he demanded. "You saw him enter the house!"

"Yes, Chief."

"And you saw him come out."

"Yes, Chief."

Then why didn't you dance right after him?"

"I did dance after him," protested the patrolman, "but you see he was doing the tango and I was using the hesitation."

Mr. Danny Simone, Peterborough's comedian, is home on a visit to his mother, after a season of great success playing all the leading cities throughout the West. Danny has been from coast to coast, and is now glad of a well earned rest, and a few weeks' fishing in the old Otonabee, which he says is the grandest river in the world—"Dear Old Peterborough."

Mr. R. S. Todd, of the Northern Electric Office, Toronto, spent Sunday at home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Todd, Aylmer street.

OBITUARY

JAMES POWERS.

James Powers, of Otonabee, passed away at his home in Otonabee on Saturday afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock. His death was not unexpected. He leaves to mour n his loss a sorrowing wife and thre children, two sons, and one daughter, besides a father, two brothers, and eight sisters. The funeral took place this morning at 9.00 o'clock, to St. Peter's Cathedral, and from thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

MRS. LEWIS ROSS.

Mrs. Lewis Ross, of Douro, passed away on Saturday afternoon, at her residence there, at the age of 62 years. She was born in Otonabee.

The funeral was held this morning at nine o'clock to St. Joseph's Church, Douro, and thence to St. Joseph's cemetery, Douro.

ELAENOR MAUD GROUTER.

Elenor Maud, daughter of George Wesley Crouter, of 308 Louis street, passed away on Saturday evening, after a lingering illness. Deceased was 16 years of age. Besides a sorrowing father and mother, she leaves several brothers and sisters to mourn her loss.

The funeral will take place this afternoon at 2.30, to the Little Lake cemetery.

WHERE THE EYE IS DECEIVED.

A curious optical illusion is sometimes sees as a motor car passes, the wheels of the moving vehicle appearing for an instant to stop or even turn backward. In an investigation reported to the Royal Society, Prof. A. Mallock mounted a cardboard disc with spokes on a flywheel, and when this was revolved so rapidly that the spokes could not be seen or easily followed by the eye, and a slight mechanical shock of almost any kind was given the observer, the spokes appeared almost stationary for a fraction of a second.

Shocks having this effect were given in many ways, such as in the contact of the feet with the ground, as in walking, by tapping the head or body, or even by rapidly blinking the eyes. It was proved that the appearances depend on the speed of rotation, the brightness of illumination, and to some degree on the nature of the shock. The explanation was offered that the shock produces a momentary loss of variation of sensation. This variation of sensation does not last the same time in different persons, but is always very short and usually about one-eighteenth of a second.

His friends will be glad to know that he has been again promoted. He starts to-day in his new position, that of travelling auditor for the company, covering from Halifax to Vancouver, with headquarters at Montreal.

MATTY MOST REMARKABLE FIGURE IN BASEBALL

NEW YORK, July 11.—One of the greatest compliments that could be paid a pitcher has been paid "Christy" Mathewson by Eddie Collins in a story on "Pitchers I Have Faced." He writes: "Neither his fast ball nor his curve is remarkable—indeed, they are only ordinary—but there is something about Mathewson, his bearing, his manner, that gives you the impression that you are going up against Gibraltar. Unconsciously you think: "I am up against something now, for fair."

Collins adds: "Matthewson's brains really make him a great pitcher, although his other big asset is his control. He comes nearer putting a ball where he wants to than any one else pitching to-day. Possessed of unlimited nerve and composure, Mathewson is one of the most remarkable figures in baseball."

And Collins should know whereof he speaks. He has batted against Mathewson in three worlds's series. Furthermore, Collins has proved one of the greatest "money" batters in the business. He has always been counted on to do his best stick work when there is some big thing to be accomplished in a short time. If he has shied Mathewson up in this way the "fans" can get a good idea of how big, powerful and masterful the "Old Master" looks to younger players and batters of less ability.

Collins has revived a topic which has been going the rounds ever since certain well-meaning critics decided that "Matty" had treated himself to enough glory and money was primed to dislocate his right shoulder, crack his elbow, become weak at the knees and be counted out by senility.

Long ago ball players decided Mathewson does not pitch with his arm, but with his head instead. nd, from Matthewson's viewpoint, not to refer even passingly to that of New York, it is a profitable and effectual way of crowding a baseball player over, some part of the 17-inch front of a home plate without ambitious batters turning the pitches into base hits with too much consistency.

And about that same time it was found that Mathewson's fast ones and his curve were not such all fired, rip snorting sizzlers—they were no better than a lot of other pitchers were able to propel. But somehow or other "Matty" always has possessed the happy facility of being able to throw a batter a fast one when the batter expected a curve, and vice versa. Furthermore, if the batter misses it the ball seems to hover in the general location of a strike.

In his story Collins raises another point which is herewith referred to certain Yankee pitchers. If they should adopt the suggestion, there might be a chance of American League ball games in this city being played within a reasonable length of time and not finished just as the silvery beams of a summer moon begin to mingle with the gentle ripples of the Harlem river.

"In the box 'Matty' wastes no time or surplus energy and he pitches as soon as a batter takes his place at the plate. By doing so he bothered me a lot, I know, because I was not used to it. I go through habitual movements, fix my cap, hitch my trousers, tap that plate, and I am accustomed to do those things as I wait for the pitcher to wind up.

"'Matty,' however, didn't give me a chance. Before I could hitch my trousers the ball was in the catcher's mitt, and the result was I felt at a loss. Disturb the habitual preliminaries of a batter and you bother him. The result was that I was forced to do all my motions before I got into the batter's box."

This is very true. Matheweson is one of the fastest working pitchers in captivity. Whenever he is delegated to guide the destinies of the Giants from the pitching mound a fast game results.

Mathewson knows the batters. He knows what he wants to give them. He does not have to study them each time they step to the plate. He is prepared to pitch when they are ready and he has so coached the Giant catchers they, too, know what he wants to throw. There is no dilly dallying, no "hise a ball" conferences.

Here are the qualities of the ideal wife, as expressed in answers to a series of questions put to young men:

Healthy and strong, but not masculine.

Tall or medium in height, and erect of carriage.

Must have beauty of character rather than of face.

Brunettes have preference over blondes.

Athletics count only as they show ability to twist the wringer and keep house.

Must treat the home folks square.

Must not be a eugenic marriage advocate.

Be chummy with father and brothers.

Domestic training.

A CURIOUS WARNING.

It Was a Clever Ruse and Thoroughly Scared the Burglars.

For a time during the eighteenth century in England there was a lull in the robbery industry owing to an odd incident. Shortly after the execution of an English burglar named Elliston a curious communication purporting to have been written by him was put into circulation.

"Now, as I am a dying man," it ran, "I have done something which may be of good use to the public. I have left with an honest man—the only honest man I was ever acquainted with—the names of all my wicked brethren, the places of their abode, with a short account of the chief crimes they have committed, in many of which I have been the accomplice and heard the rest from their own mouths. I have likewise set down the names of those we call our setters, of the houses we frequent and all of those who receive and buy our stolen goods. I have solemnly charged this honest man and have received his promise upon oath that whenever he hears of any rogue to be tried for robbery or housebreaking he will look into his list and if he finds there the name of the thief concerned to send the whole paper to the government. Of this I here give my compassionate fair and public warning and hope they will take it."

It is said the plot was so effectual that for a long time pickpockets and burglars in that part of England went into panic stricken retirement. And, this being so, it is just as well they did not know that the letter was a clever forgery, the work of that prince of wits and humorists, Dean Swift.

HOAXED THE STATESMEN.

And at the Same Time Paul Birault Proved His Proposition.

Paul Birault, a writer on the Paris Eclair, contended that too many statues were being erected all over France to obscure heroes, too many official speeches made to celebrate intellectual nonentities, and Radical politicians generally are the blindest leaders of the blind.

To prove his theory that this was due to the fact that the living were delighted by public posing, he invented a celebrity to glorify and called him Hegesippe Simon. No such man ever existed, but he described him in his letter as a most wonderful precursor of modern light and progress. To give his letter a certain importance he headed it with a motto to the following effect.

"Darkness fades when the sun rises," representing it as the most remarkable dictum of the remarkable Hegesippe Simon.

Under this glorious motto he placed the title of his vague committee, which he dubbed "public committee for the celebration of the centenary of Hegesippe Simon." He selected the names of 100 Radical deputies in alphabetical order and sent them each a letter, in which he said: "Thanks to the liberality of a generous donor, the disciples of Hegesippe Simon are now enabled to erect a statue in his honor. We desire to inscribe your name as an honorary member of the committee to celebrate the centenary of this great educator of democracy."

Doesn't Suffer Much.

"Does your wife suffer in silence?"

"Yes, and I am sorry. If she did not suffer in silence perhaps she would be silent oftener."

Many German Soldiers Sunstruck.

BERLIN, July 14. — Two German soldiers died and over 100 others are ill to-day from sunstroke by which they were affected Sunday during military manoeuvres at Frankfort-on-the-Oder, according to The Tageblatt. The men belonged to the Second Prince Charles of Prussia's Brandenburg Infantry Regiment, commanded by Col. Von Reuter, who was transferred from Zabern, Alsace, after the recent conflict between soldiers and civilians there. The weather was the hottest experienced in Germany this year.

Mersey Dock Workers Strike.

LIVERPOOL, July 14. — A strike was started yesterday among the Mersey dock employes with the object of enforcing recognition of the workmen's unions and bringing about the establishment of a joint board of workmen and employers to deal with disputes.

While the strike was not general, many of the power stations were rendered idle and several liners were imprisoned in the docks owing to the impossibility of opening the gates.

HOW TO PREVENT ACID STOMACHS AND FOOD FERMENTATION

By a Stomach Specialist.

As a specialist who has spent many [illegible] stomach troubles, I have been forced to the conclusion that most people who complain of stomach trouble possess stomachs that are absolutely healthy and normal. The real trouble, that which causes all the pain and distress, is acid in the stomach, usually due to, or aggravated by, food fermentation. Acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, and food fermentation causes wind which distends the stomach abnormally, causing that full bloated feeling. Thus both acid and fermentation interfere with and retard the process of digestion. The stomach is usually healthy and normal, but irritated almost past endurance by these foreign elements—acid and wind. In all such cases — and they comprise over 90 per cent. of all stomach difficulties—the first and only step necessary is to neutralize the acid and stop the fermentation by taking in a little warm or cold water immediately after eating, from one to two teaspoonfuls of bisurated magnesia, which is doubtless the best and only really effective antacid and food corrective known. The acid will be neutralized and the fermentation stopped almost instantly, and your stomach will at once proceed to digest the food in a healthy, normal manner. Be sure to ask your druggist for the bisurated magnesia, as I have found other forms utterly lacking in its peculiarly valuable properties. — F. J. G.

THIRD READING OF THE HOME RULE MEASURE

Report Stage of Amending Home Rule Bill is Concluded With Voting Down of Lord Weardale's Amendment.

LONDON, July 14. — The report stage of the amending Home Rule bill has been concluded, and the House of Lords will to-day consider the third reading. Optimistic feeling prevailed in Parliamentary circles last night as the result of the latest discussions in the Upper House regarding the prospects of a settlement acceptable to all parties concerned. This hopeful feeling was particularly evident among the members of the Commons, in the lobbies and on the Terr[illegible]t night.

Among the many amendments proposed yesterday was one by Lord Weardale, a Liberal peer and a Home Ruler, who believes that civil war can only be avoided in Ireland by the exclusion of the Province of Ulster for the time from the Home Rule scheme. The object of his proposal was to enable a poll to be taken of the whole of Ulster on the demand of one-tenth of the electors in any four Ulster counties on the question of the temporary exclusion of the province. He saw no possibility of a compromise except by giving local option to the whole of Ulster. He was willing to consider whether the majority should not be two-thirds, believing as he did that in a very short time a very large proportion of the people of Ulster would be conciliated to Home Rule.

Lord Crewe found it impossible to give what he termed "formal" support to the amendment. Lord Lansdowne thought the suggestion came too late.

Without further discussion the amendment was negatived without a division.

"HADES" OR "HELL"?

Section of Anglican Synod Will Urge Use of Bowser in Prayer Book.

TORONTO, July 14.—"Hades" will take the place of the word "hell" in the Church of England Prayer Book in Canada if the progressives succeed at the General Synod of the Anglican Church.

The General Synod has been summoned by Archdeacon Mathieson to convene at Vancouver on Sept. 9, and Ontario will be represented by an influential delegation of clergy and laity. Prayer Book revision will be one of the chief matters for consideration.

C. B. St. George is one of the most outspoken advocates of a scholarly, modern revision. In reference to the elimination of the traditional word, Mr. St. George says: "It would be better to have the word 'hades' in the creeds instead of 'hell'."

The progressives also want the prayer for forgiveness of sins, which follows the absolution, omitted as being illogical at such a point in the service. As it stands now, Mr. St. George says, "the whole thing is nonsense."

The progressives further desire the Canadian Prayer Book brought up to date with the American version, by substituting the word "who" for "which" in reference to the Deity. Exception is also taken to the repetition of the Lord's Prayer at the morning service.

It would not be necessary for the General Synod to receive the assent of the Archbishop of Canterbury to any such changes to make them valid, as the General Synod of the Church of England in Canada had full power to revise the Prayer Book, but the changes passed in the lower house must be ratified by the upper house, composed of the metropolitan of Canada and the other bishops.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

A student of the university in Marburg, Germany, bled to death after a duel with a fellow student, during which his jugular vein was severed.

A militant suffragette bomb exploded yesterday in the historic Roslyn Chapel, seven miles from Edinburgh, but caused only trifling damage.

Mrs. G. L. Foster yesterday received a cablegram from Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain expressing her thanks for Canada's sympathy in her bereavement.

The death of Mrs. Thomas Williams, 73, widow of the founder of the Thomas Williams' Home for the aged and destitute in St. Thomas, occurred yesterday.

The Earl of Ellesmere died yesterday in London, at the age of 67. He succeeded his father in the title in 1862, and his heir is his eldest son, Viscount Brackley, aged 42.

During an electric storm lightning struck the barn of Wesley Love, near New Dublin, Ont. The building with its contents was entirely consumed. The insurance will not nearly cover the loss.

Pardons for 65 convicts in France and the penal colonies were signed yesterday by President Poincare, in connection with to-day's national holiday in celebration of the falling of the Bastille.

Samuel Mainguy, 50, was instantly killed about nine o'clock yesterday morning by a C. P. R. train passing a level crossing at the foot of Bell Hill, a suburb of Quebec. He was returning from a funeral.

William Batch, an Englishman, and South African veteran, fell from a G. T. R. freight train coming into Brockville. When picked up it was seen the cars had run over his left leg, which was amputated later below the knee.

ORANGEMEN CELEBRATE.

St. Thomas and Perth Are Scenes of L. O. L. Demonstrations.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., July 14.—That "Abolish the bar" was not the issue in the recent Ontario elections and that the Liberal party met defeat because it was feared that if they were returned to power bilingualism would be introduced into the schools of the province, was the contention of Mayor Hocken of Toronto in addressing a big Orange demonstration here yesterday. He also ascribed the increased Liberal vote in Manitoba to the belief on the part of the electors that if the Roblin Government were returned separate schools would be forced upon the province.

Big Day at Perth.

PERTH, July 14. — Fully ten thousand people came to Perth from eastern Ontario yesterday to celebrate the 224th anniversary of the crossing of the Boyne. It was the largest demonstration of Orangeism seen here in many years, and the procession was over a mile and a half long.

An Unfailing Way To Banish Hairs

(Beauty Notes.)

Ugly hairy growths can be removed in the privacy of your own home if you get a small original package of delatone and mix into a paste enough of the powder and water to cover the hairy surface. This should be left on the skin about 2 minutes, then removed and the skin washed and every trace of hair will have vanished. No harm or inconvenience can result from this treatment, but be sure you buy real delatone.

Carson Renews Pledge of Covenanters to Fight Against Enforcement of Home Rule Bill

LONDON, July 14.—The recognition of the danger inherent in the existence of two armed volunteer bodies seems to have imbued Irishmen with a sense of added responsibility, and the battle of the Boyne was commemorated yesterday in Ireland with tremendous enthusiasm. But there was a more noticeable absence of disorder than on past occasions of this kind.

Following the custom a great procession marched from Belfast to Drumbeg, where Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster Unionist leader, made his now familiar speech defying the Government either totally to exclude Ulster from Home Rule or come out and fight.

Lord Londonderry at Enniskillen and Walter Hume Long, Unionist member of Parliament for Strand, at Garvagh, made speeches in a similar vein to other bi demonstrations of Ulstermen, but no disorder was reported at any point up to a late hour last night.

Rival Nationalist and Orange processions at Glendermeat reached the stage of jeering at each other, and for a few moments it looked like trouble, but the police succeeded in keeping them apart until the danger was passed.

One feature of the situation seems to be that while Sir Edward Carson and other leaders are using unrestrained language, both Ulstermen and Nationalists are showing admirable self-control. Another feature is the more defiant the Ulster leaders speeches become the more pronounced becomes the feeling among the members of Parliament on both sides that a satisfactory compromise will be reached.

Premier Asquith announced in the House of Commons yesterday that the present session of Parliament would come to an end about the close of August, and that the new session would begin in early winter, which is thought to mean December. Before the present session ends, the Government will introduce its proposals for the reform of the House of Lords.

Carson Pledged Covenanters.

DRUMBEG, Ireland, July 14.—The Orangemen's demonstration here yesterday culminated in a scene of immense enthusiasm around the tiny platform where Sir Edward Carson, Bible in hand, pledged the covenanters never to surrender to coercion, to remain loyal to the throne, and never to waver in their support of their leaders in the fight against Home Rule.

Sir Edward Carson, in a speech which evoked tremendous enthusiasm, served notice on the British Government that unless it was prepared to leave Ulster alone it would very shortly find the Ulstermen recognizing no government except the Provisional Government of Ulster. He said he had been given authority to act, and if necessary that meant he was to exercise his powers without regard to consequences to himself. The Ulstermen, he added, were not going to give way and were bound to win, because God would defend the right.

Sir Edward Carson offered the Government the alternatives of giving Ulster a clean cut out of Home Rule, or of coming to fight the Ulstermen. These, he said, were the only possible alternatives. Ulster, he concluded, was claiming only justice, and if it did not get it from the Government, would take it for itself.

Opened With Cannonade.

LONDONDERRY, Ireland, July 14. —The Orangemen here began the celebration of the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne with a cannonade, during which they projected their explosives so that they burst over residences in the Roman Catholic section of the city. The Nationalists, believing the cannonade to be the prelude to aggressive action on the part of the Orangemen, organized for defence, but no collision between the two parties took place.

Farmer Dead In Bed.

CHATHAM, July 13. — William Davesen, a well-known farmer and market gardener, was found dead at his home. Davesen had been in the habit of sleeping in the shed at the rear of his house. Yesterday morning when his relatives went out to waken him they found him dead. Heart failure was the cause. Coroner Bray decided an inquest was unnecessary.

REPORT SCORES THE NEW HAVEN DIRECTORS

Millions Were Used Like Stage Money in Gigantic Manipulations of Men Who Sought to Control the Destinies of New England

WASHINGTON, July 14. — The story of the "reckless and profligate" financial operations of the New Haven Railroad, one of the most remarkable chapters in the history of the American railroad and American finance was revealed in part yesterday by the Interstate Commerce Commission in a report to the Senate of its investigation of that road. It told of millions used like stage money, of corporations as pawns in a monster game with all New England's transportation as a prize, which led the New Haven in the ten years just passed, from the height of prosperity to the point where a dividend has been passed, where a dissolution suit is threatening, and where criminal indictments of many of the directors who figured in its deals are at least a possibility.

Hampered by unwilling witnesses, by burned books, and by all the mazes which lawyers invented to cover the trail, the commission estimated that in the progress toward a monopolization of New England transportation the New Haven stockholders have lost between $65,000,000 and $90,000,000 but little of which they may recover. In return, the report said they have on their hands properties which pay no dividends, which eat into the earnings of the parent road, and which will be a burden on its capacity for many years to come.

The report deals with the management of the New Haven under former [illegible] and of the present directing head. Chairman Howard Elliott and Walker D. Hines, special counsel, says the have co-operated with the commission and rendered it substantial assistance throughout this investigation."

The combination reared by the hands of Mr. Mellen, and approved by the late J. Pierpont Morgan and William Rockefeller, the commission finds to be clearly in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, and a monopoly in practical control of the transportation of five states.

The commission's report is unusual in the manner in which the directors of the New Haven are scored for their deeds. It speaks of criminal maladministration and negligence, asserts with positiveness that the directors knew they were perfecting an illegal combination, and says that the dream of a transportation monopoly was unsound and mischievous. The New Haven, the commission says, employed dummy directors, manipulated accounts, used questionable methods in increasing its own stock, paid the dividends of subsidiaries to make a showing, and used many other devices to deceive the stockholders and the public. It dipped into politics, was a factor in "invisible government," made large campaign contributions to the two dominant political parties, bought officials and tried to distort public opinion. All this it did, the commission says, "to carry out a scheme of private transportation monopoly imperial in its scope."

Hon. H. R. Emmerson, former Minister of Railways under Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who died in Dorchester, N.B., on July 9th.

Pittsburg Strike Ends.

PITTSBURG, July 14.—The strike in the Westinghouse factories was formally ended yesterday when approximately 5,000 men and women returned to the shops. All plants were placed on full time, and all of the strikers were taken back with the exception of two or three hundred whose places had been filled by imported workmen during the strike. Half a dozen deputy sheriffs were on guard at the electric works, but it was said the sheriff would recall them during the day.

MONK IS STABBED.

Big Figure In Russian Affairs Is the Victim of Woman.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 14.—The mystic lay monk, Gregory Rasputin, a notable figure in the Emperor's court, was stabbed by a woman, named Guseva, at his native village, Pokrovsky, in the Province of Tobolsk, Siberia. One report has it that he died; another that his wound was not mortal.

The attack upon Rasputin has excited intense interest in court and official circles here. He once recently recalled to the Emperor's household after an absence of several months, and was credited with exercising an influence over the Emperor far more potent than any of his Ministers, and was regarded in some quarters as the supreme power behind the throne.

The woman, Guseva, has been tracking him for a long time. She finally approached him in the guise of a beggar and stabbed him in the abdomen. She was prevented from stabbing the monk a second time, as he lay on the ground, by his son, who seized her and held her until the police arrived.

On her arrest, the woman declared that she wanted to avenge one of Rasputin's girl victims, who is now in a convent. After being lodged in a cell the woman attempted to commit suicide by cutting her wrist with a piece of glass.

HUERTA REPAIRS ROAD.

Mexican Dictator Probably Thinks He Will Have To Use It.

VERA CRUZ, July 14.—Four hundred laborers, acting under orders from Mexico City started work yesterday repairing the gap in the Mexican Railway, connecting Vera Cruz with the capital, and the rushing of the work is believed here to indicate a possibility that the first train to pass over the repaired road may be the special conveying Gen. Huerta and his family to the coast.

Quantities of rails and ties have been hauled to the break, a little over six miles from the city of Vera Cruz, and the two miles stretch which has been without rails since April 21 will be restored to working order within two days at the most.

Passengers who arrived from the capital yesterday reported an extraordinary session of the Senate there on Saturday, but said no announcement had been made as to the matters discussed behind locked doors. They said, however, the session was followed by a conference between several Senators and Francisco Carbajal, the new Minister of Foreign Affairs.

WILL SAIL NO MORE.

Captain Kendall Will Have a Post Ashore, Says Report.

MONTREAL, July 14. — Captain Kendall, who commanded the Empress of Ireland, is not likely to go to sea again, though he was exonerated by the Dominion Wreck Commission in its finding on the disaster last Saturday. It is understood here that the C. P. R. authorities have given him several months' leave of absence, and that at the conclusion of it he will accept a shore position either in Canada or in England in the service of the company.

St. John Police Officer Dead.

ST. JOHN, N.B., July 14.—Special Policeman Frank H. O'Leary, who was shot Sunday night by John Braman, 17 years old, while he was arresting him as a burglary suspect, died in the hospital early yesterday morning. He had been gaining apparently, but a change for the worse came late on Saturday. Braman will now face a murder charge.

DAWN IS AT HAND.

Momentarily Expected Departure of Huerta Means Peace.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—A real head to the Mexican situation is believed by Administration officials and the Constitutionalists to be rapidly approaching. The State Department view is that unless there are foreign complications the situation will clear after the departure of Gen. Huerta.

That there will be such complications was manifest by statements made in various circles in Washington yesterday. If Gen. Carranza, speaking for the Constitutionalists, will manifest a fair and equitable attitude toward the foreign debts contracted by the Huerta regime the prospective foreign complications may be avoided, or, at least, temporarily postponed.

The State Department has now received definite information that Gen. Huerta is sure to step down and out this time.

Senor Carbajal, once in charge of the executive power, according to information brought to the State Department yesterday, is expected to communicate with the Constitutionalists, offering to turn the Government over to them under certain conditions. Just how these offers will be communicated is not known, but it is believed that they will be made direct to the Constitutionalists, and not through the A. B. C. mediators. The Constitutionalists are expected to rejoin that the Government left behind by Huerta must surrender unconditionally or the Constitutionalists will take Mexico City.

Still the Constitutionalists are not so certain that there will not be foreign complications.

Struck By Lightning.

CHATHAM, July 14. — Clarence Montgomery, son of Jos. Montgomery, of the 11th concession, Dover Township, was struck by lightning during the heavy electrical storm that passed over this city early yesterday. He was standing near a stable door when the lightning struck the building. He was rendered unconscious and is at present under the care of a physician. He has recovered consciousness, but is still in a precarious condition.

"PEBLO"
The Glass of Quality

We have at any doubt but that most people value their eyesight sufficiently to want to take the best care of it. That is why we went to the expense of securing for our Optical Trade the Highest Grade of Lenses then can be made and which we handle exclusively under the trade mark "PEBLO." We believed our patrons would appreciate having their eyeglasses fitted with this superior quality lens, and after two years exclusive use of "PEBLO" Lenses, we are well satisfied with the result, judging by the hundreds of satisfied customers whom we have fitted with these beautiful lenses. It is interesting to know that in spite of the expense of procuring "PEBLO" Lenses the prices to our patrons are no more than when we used other makes of lenses, this being due to the large quantity we buy at a time. We manufacture these "PEBLO" Lenses from the finest "PEBLO" glass, in our own lens grinding department.

Any kind of lens duplicated while you wait, and all work guaranteed.

HE ENJOYS HIS MEALS NOW

Puts His Keeps a "Little Digester" Handy

Mr. Glassco, of Toronto, wrote us on May 12th last:

THE COLEMAN MEDICINE CO.,

Dear Sirs,— 509 Church St., Toronto

I wish you would send me another box of your "Little Digesters". All the members of my family have been using them and have obtained the most satisfactory results.

I congratulate you on your success in putting up a tablet for the cure of Indigestion. I suffered for years and tried everything that was recommended to me. Nothing gave me relief, until I was persuaded to try "Little Digesters". Now I never suffer from Indigestion. I enjoy my meals and am not afraid to eat, because I know a "Little Digester" after each meal will digest my food.

I recommend them to all my friends who suffer from Indigestion and would further say that you may publish the above if you wish. I know there are thousands of people suffering from Indigestion who will be glad to know there is a safe and sure cure for them.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) E. S. GLASSCO.

"Little Digesters" cost 25 cents at your druggists or by mail from Coleman Medicine Co., Toronto. 25

A Matrimonial Lottery

In Which One Man Owned Most of the Tickets

By DWIGHT NORWOOD

There are in various countries curious customs with regard to matrimony. In Lapland the groom must chase his bride in a foot race. In Russia, which has a very large area, with many different peoples, one and all having their own peculiar methods, there are a number of varied customs. One of these is that a girl may go into the house of any man whom she wishes to marry and remain there till he marries her. If he refuses he is considered to have insulted her and her family, and they take revenge on him if they can.

Another Russian custom among a certain people is this: They have a lottery. A girl is put up as the prize. Sufficient tickets are sold to give her a dowry. The holder of the winning ticket is compelled to marry the prize he has drawn, but she may decline him. If she does they may divide between them the money paid for the tickets. If a married man is the winner he may give the prize to any bachelor he may select. In N., a village in the northern part of Russia near the Siberian border, there were four of these lotteries held each year, thus providing for four girls who had reached a marriageable age and had not the necessary dowries.

The simple people of this village, buried in the heart of what might almost be called a wilderness, naturally resorted to simple amusements. They were an athletic people, especially adapted to the management of animals. One of the chief recreations of the people of N. was a sort of circus in which the young men performed in gymnastics and trained animals and feats of horsemanship were exhibited.

At one of these performances a slender young man named Ivan Ivanoff, with a figure fit for a statue, led the rest in riding. He would ride several barebacked horses at one time, stepping from one horse to another.

Among those who looked at the feats of this young man was Nina Dimitrieff, a girl barely sixteen years old. To her Ivan, standing erect with a foot on each of two horses, guiding them wherever he wished, was the most beautiful sight she had ever beheld. When he had finished his performance and stood bowing before the plaudits of his audience Nina Dimitrieff took from her girdle a bunch of hardy flowers that grew wild in the woods of that region and threw them at his feet. He picked them up, meeting at the same time her admiring gaze.

In that glance which passed between these two simple creatures was an instantaneous flash of love. No courtship was needed. The mingling of two spirits was complete. Long associations might strengthen it, as constant use will develop a muscle, but it was from that moment a perfect love.

These two children—they were not much more than children—did not stop to follow out the consequences of this newborn passion, the nature of which in their innocence they did not understand. Among these people parents regulate marriages, and no marriage is permitted except where the bride has a dowry. Nina's parents could give her no dowry, and Ivan could not afford to marry her without one.

Not that they would, if left to themselves, consider this as a barrier. They would consider nothing but their love and mate like a pair of doves. It was the older heads of their parents, foreseeing the wretchedness of poverty for them and their children, that would keep them apart. It was some time before their attachment was discovered, but as soon as it was known to exist Nina was forbidden to have anything to do with her young lover.

For some time there were clandestine meetings, usual in such forbidden affairs. Then, the two being caught together by Nina's father, he took measures to marry her off. One of the marriage lotteries was about to come off, and he arranged that his daughter should be offered as the prize.

It was a terrible blow to the lovers. A thousand chances were to be sold at 6 rubles a chance. If they were all disposed of the bride would have a dowry of 4,000 rubles, or $2,000 of our money, a very large sum in that region for a young couple with which to set up housekeeping. If the chances were not all sold the deficiency would be made up by the wealthier citizens of the village. In this case, where Nina was the prize offered, the chances would have doubtless all been sold had it not been that her love for Ivan was generally known. As it was, but a quarter of the chances had been taken up. So great was the deficiency that it was doubted whether those who usually made up such sums would do so in this case.

Almost directly north of N. is Kara, in Siberia, where political offenders are sent to work in the mines. N. is the nearest town of any importance on the western side of the border between Russia and Siberia. Not long before the drawing of the marriage lottery was to take place Ivan and Nina, by a preconcerted arrangement, met in a wood to the northward of the village. The meeting was not to devise a plan but to lament together over their approaching separation. They were in the heart of the forest under snow laden branches when, hearing a stirring in a thicket near by, they turned and saw a face that caused Nina to shriek. It was the face of a man, but so wild looking that for a moment they thought it some creature of the forest. Then a figure stepped forth, a man with unkempt hair and beard, ragged, shoeless, with cheeks shrunken and eyes glaring like those of a hunted beast.

"My children," he said, "can you not hide me? If they get me they will take me back to the mines."

Ivan had once before seen an escaped prisoner from Kara who had been pursued and arrested in N. and had never forgotten the despair on his face when, loaded with chains, he was taken away on his dismal march back to prison. Ivan knew well that this man was a fugitive, and the hearts of the children went out to him. They asked him what they could do for him, and after consultation it was arranged that they should return to the town and bring him food. This they did, and as soon as night came on they took him into the town, where Ivan hid him in his father's barn among the hay.

Early in the morning a number of officials entered the town looking for an escaped prisoner. But he whom they sought was safely hidden and ministered to by Ivan and Nina. After searching the village in vain the party left, and the fugitive as well as his preservers breathed more freely. Two or three days after the officials' departure Ivan took clothes and shaving materials to the loft, and the fugitive relieved himself of his beard, cut his hair and put on a peasant's suit. Then he asked Ivan to bring him pen, ink and paper, and he wrote a letter, which he addressed to some one in Moscow, and asked Ivan to put it in the post for him.

After this the fugitive occasionally left the barn and, growing more venturesome, at last took up his quarters at an inn. He invented a story that he had a little money, with which he proposed to buy a few acres of ground, and was looking about him for that purpose. This explanation of his presence in N. was weakened by his manner, which, since he was rid of his wild appearance, marked him for a gentleman. However, the people with whom he mingled were not very acute, and even had they known that he was an escaped political prisoner would have shielded him so far as was possible. After awhile he began to receive mail, which, of course, was addressed to him under an assumed name.

Meanwhile the lottery scheme by which Nina was to be disposed of dragged because so few tickets had been sold. But at last they were disposed of, and the drawing was announced to take place at once. Some curiosity was manifested to know who had taken them. But the managers of the affair would give no information.

On the evening of the drawing Nina was present, as was customary for the bride, with a despairing look on her face that excited the commiseration of all. Ivan had saved enough money to pay for ten tickets. But what were ten chances in a thousand? The same as one in a hundred. He could not bring himself to attend the drawing, so he remained away. During the drawing he walked back and forth before the building in which it took place, looking up at the place where the girl he loved was to be disposed of.

Presently he heard a commotion, which he believed followed the announcement of the name of the winner. A wild hope sprang up in his breast that one of his chances had won. He ran up into the hall and asked who had drawn the prize. He was told that the name was Nicholas Axelrod, but who Nicholas Axelrod was no one seemed to know. His heart fell. Wringing his hands, he was about to turn away when the manager of the lottery, standing on the platform where the drawing had taken place, advanced and, read from a paper he held in his hands:

If I, Nicholas Axelrod, win the prize, being a married man, I give it to Ivan Ivanoff.

Shouts arose, and cries for Ivan were heard. A man caught him by the arm as he was leaving and, turning him around, led him up to the platform where Nina sat, a smile of delight on her features. He kissed her, and the shouting broke forth anew.

But who was Nicholas Axelrod? There were cries for him, but he did not respond. Persons looked about them, expecting to see him arise and make his way to the platform to receive the ovation which it was evident was awaiting him. But he did not appear, nor was he ever seen again in N. The happy couple sought him, but did not find him. It was rumored that he was a member of a noble family; that he had been pardoned by the czar; that he had been returned to Siberia. None of these rumors was ever proved. Both Ivan and his wife believe today that he bought all the unsubscribed chances in the lottery, thus having three out of four chances of winning, and that he had done this to repay them for succoring him.

Nicholas Axelrod's real name was Paul Gerowsky, a Pole, whose family, related to the kings of Poland, submitted only because they were obliged to submit to the partition of their country among the three powers—Austria, Germany and Russia. But the Gerowskys did not give up hope that Poland would be redeemed and were ever watching for an opportunity to assert its reunion and independence. Some years before the marriage of Ivan and Nina, Paul Gerowsky became the leader of a plot with this end in view. It was discovered, and he was sent to Siberia. His escape from there, his succor by the lovers, his purchase of the unsold tickets to the lottery, as has been stated, were all that was ever known of him by the people of N. Under his own name he spent the rest of his life as a citizen of the United States.

CHANGED HIS SHAPE.

Effect of Open Air Life Upon the Men of Business of Today.

"The American man, the American business man of forty or forty-five, has got a new shape," said a tailor. "He's got a lean, straight shape—full chest, narrow hips. But if you could have seen him a generation ago!

"The business man of forty expected to be fat and soft a generation ago. He rather admired, in fact, a fat, soft shape. The richest business men were fat and soft, and that made a fashion of it, just as Queen Alexandra's lameness made a limp fashionable in Victorian times.

"What stomachs our fathers had at forty or forty-five—feather bed stomachs, which they balanced by bending backward! A big stomach was a sign of success, a sign of gentility. If you were lean—why, you must be a laborer. Perhaps you didn't get enough to eat.

"What is the cause of the slender, agile figures of today? Open air and exercise, that's the cause. Golf is the cause. Motoring is the cause.

"My friend," the tailor impressively ended, "my books show that the middle aged business man of today is four inches bigger around the chest than the middle aged business man of 1890 and eighteen inches smaller around the stomach."—New York Tribune.

ANCIENT HIGH FINANCE.

When White Deerskins Passed as Currency in China.

In China, the first country to use banknotes, certain skins were once of such great value that they were accepted as cash, passing from hand to hand in the same way as banknotes of the present day. The negotiability of these skins was established in this way:

The Emperor Ou Ti, being in want of money, gave his treasurer to understand that such a state of affairs must not continue. At that time it was customary for princes and courtiers on entering the royal presence to cover their faces with pieces of skin. Taking advantage of this custom, the treasurer procured the issuance of a decree forbidding the use of any other skins for this purpose save those of a certain species of white deer in the royal parks. Immediately, of course, there arose a demand for pieces of these skins, which, being a monopoly, were sold at a high price.

Thus were the royal coffers refilled. The steady value of the skins thus obtained made them readily a substitute for coin of the realm.

In the Russian seal fisheries of Alaska the workmen were formerly paid in the currency stamped on squares of walrus hide.

Wyoming Has Many High Mountains.

Wyoming has nine mountains exceeding 13,000 feet in height and of these three approach the 14,000 foot mark, according to the United States geological survey. They are Gannett peak, 13,785 feet; Grand Teton, 13,747 feet, and Fremont peak, 13,730 feet. Cloud peak, one of the most beautiful mountains in the state, is 13,730 feet above sea level. Besides these mountains Wyoming has thirty-one other named peaks upward of 12,000 feet in height and some forty unnamed mountains which exceed that altitude.

An interesting story might be written of the thousands of lofty unnamed mountain peaks of the west which are nearly double the height of the very highest mountains in the entire Appalachian mountain system in the eastern portion of the country. Colorado alone has dozens of mountains without name which are more than double the height of our most lofty eastern mountain.

Stones and Glass Houses.

The origin of the saying "Those who live in glass houses should not throw stones" is as follows: At the time of the union of England and Scotland London was inundated with Scotchmen, and the London roughs used to go about at night breaking their windows. Buckingham being considered the chief instigator of the mischief, a party of Scotchmen smashed the windows of the duke's mansion, known as the Glass House. The court favorite appealed to the king, who replied, "Steenie, Steenie, those who live in glass houses should be careful how they fling stones!"

Feeding on Sunlight.

Major Miramond de la Roquette of the French army medical corps in reporting to the Academie des Sciences the results of some observations in southern Algeria on the relation between diet and sunlight gave it as his opinion that the tissues of the human body directly utilize the radiant energy of the sunshine. The normal diet of the natives of hot and sunny climes is far lower both in quantity and in nutritive quality than that of inhabitants of less favored regions, the sunlight seeming to make up the difference.

BEAUTY OF WORK.

The beauty of work depends upon the way we meet it, whether we arm ourselves each morning to attack it as an enemy that must be vanquished before night comes or whether we open our eyes with the sunrise to welcome it as an approaching friend who will keep us delightful company all day and who will make us feel at evening that the day was well worth its fatigues.—Lucy Larcom.

An Extraordinary Man.

"Yes, indeed, my husband is a remarkable man."

"I suppose nearly every woman has that opinion of her husband."

"But I'm sure my husband is an extraordinary man. I told him this morning where something was in one of the closets, and he found it."

Both Cautious.

Dressing Leather.

One of the earliest occupations of mankind was the dressing of leather, and it is remarkable that Canadian Indians, Laplanders and Africans dress skins remarkably well, although their processes and means are necessarily of the rudest kind.

PARALYZED LIMBS

To-day it is sleeplessness, headaches, digestive trouble, and irritability. Next thing you know some form of paralysis has developed—Mr. Alex. Had No Power Over The Limbs

Locomotor Ataxia, Heart Trouble and Nervous Spells Yielded to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

It would be easy to tell you how Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cures locomotor ataxia and derangements of heart and nerves, but it may be more satisfactory to you to read this letter.

Mrs. Thos. Allan, R.F.D. 3, Sombra, Ont., writes:—"Five years ago I suffered a complete breakdown, and frequently had palpitation of the heart. Since that illness I have had dizzy spells, had no power over my limbs (locomotor ataxia) and could not walk straight. At night I would have severe nervous spells, with heart palpitation, and would shake as though I had the ague. I felt improvement after using the first box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and after continuing the treatment can now walk, eat and sleep well, have no nervous spells and do not require heart medicine. I have told several of my neighbours of the splendid results obtained from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

STORIES OF THE DERBY

ROMANCE GATHERS AROUND ENGLAND'S TURF CLASSIC.

Borrowed Money Figures Largely in the Tales of Wagers Which Have Gone "Right" as Well as Those Which Have Gone "Wrong"—Some of the Few Cases Where Borrowers Prospered.

Of all the romances associated with the Derby, none could be more remarkable than those in which large sums have been won on bets made with "borrowed" money.

Indeed, these romances might well have been crimes, for in every instance the "borrowing" was without the knowledge or consent of the owners of the money.

Therefore, had the wager gone wrong, it would probably have meant its maker's appearance in the police court on a charge of theft, culminating in conviction, ruin, and disgrace.

The strain which is experienced while the money remains the sport of chance must be felt to be appreciated, for it can neither be imagined nor described. At any rate, so say those who have experienced it, and that they would not again go through it for worlds.

A remarkable case of this kind happened when, nearly half a century ago, Mr. Henry Chaplin won the Derby with Hermit. On that never-to-be forgotten race a London solicitor's clerk risked $2,000 of his employer's money, to which he helped himself out of the cashbox committed to his charge.

He placed it all on Hermit, and as the odds were sixty-six to one he drew the magnificent sum of $150,000 as the result of his unscrupulous betting with somebody else's money. The "borrowed" $2,000 was at once restored to the cashbox, and nobody was a penny the wiser, or a penny the worse, for the transaction.

The borrower was cute enough to keep to himself what he had done until many years had elapsed. It was only in the strictest confidence that he disclosed it even then, and, so far as is known, his actual identity has never been divulged.

Then there was the case of a certain impecunious London tradesman, who was the sole trustee of a fund of $1,000, the modest fortune of an orphan girl. He had no money of his own with which to back his fancy, but he was struck with Hermit as a likely Derby winner that he went the length of putting $750 of the trust money upon the animal.

So far as success could justify such action, he had nothing to reproach himself with. Like the none too scrupulous solicitor's clerk, he reaped a rich harvest from his wrongdoing. The $750 netted for him $49,500, and by way of salving his conscience he made the "borrowed" sum up to $2,250 when repaying it.

Strictly speaking, of course, the whole $49,500 had been made by the $750, and had the fact become known he could have been compelled to hand it all over to the beneficiary of the trust, whose money he had risked.

When in 1892 Sir Hugo created a sensation by winning the Blue Ribbon, a Liverpool public house manager had a little "flutter" with the money of his employers. He had a dream in which this horse figured as the winner, and this made such an impression on his mind that he determined by hook or by crook to raise the wherewithal to back this competitor.

It so happened that he had not to pay over his takings until the day after the great race, so he made use of the cash to have a "plunge" on Sir Hugo to the extent of $500. As all the world knows, that horse was first past the winning-post at the odds of 40 to 1, and the public-house manager profited to the extent of $20,000.

He went nearly mad with delight, and collected his winnings as quickly as he could so as to be in a position to make his customary payment. With the "borrowed" takings he handed in his resignation of his post as manager, and started in the hotel business for himself. Henceforward everything prospered with him, his late employers little dreaming that it was by the unauthorized use of their money that he had been enabled to launch out for himself.

Such elaborate precautions are taken nowadays that bank cashiers have not much opportunity of making improper use of bank moneys. Sixteen years ago, however, the cashier at a branch establishment contrived to have the loan of $500 of the bank reserve for a Derby speculation, without being detected.

By some freak of the imagination, or otherwise, he became obsessed by the idea that the race would be won by Jeddah, probably the rankest outsider ever entered for this race since it was instituted. Hitherto a particularly scrupulous man, he could not resist the temptation to have a "bit on," and the "bit" took the shape of a round $500 from the source already stated.

According to his own confession, he felt not the smallest qualms in taking it, and was not in the least surprised when Jerrah landed home with the odds at a hundred to one.

He was thereby made the richer by a cool $50,000, to gain which he had risked, not only the bank's money, but also his own good name and his future livelihood.

Glaciers.

It has been demonstrated that the glacier does not move in one block, but flows, accommodating itself to the channel in which it moves. Professor Tyndall planted a row of sticks in a straight line across a glacier, and after a few days the line had become a crescent, showing that the middle of the glacier moved faster than the sides, just as in a river the stream is stronger in the center.

Helpful Hints for Vacationists

SWIMMERS IN DANGER.

When It Is Foolhardy For a Person to Bathe—Death From Exhaustion.

It may be well to recall some familiar facts so that the dangers to which bathers often expose themselves may be avoided. One of the simplest of these facts is that, as in all bodily exercises, moderation is beneficial and excess is dangerous. Especially is this true if the bather suffers from organic or functional heart trouble. The man who uses tobacco to excess or who is weakened by long confinement at a sedentary occupation needs to exercise fully as much care as he who has chronic disease of the heart.

No sensible man would attempt to run as far as his strength would permit if at the limit of his endurance he knew that he must go through an equal amount of violent exercise to save his life. Yet foolish men and foolish boys daily try to see how far they can swim, put their lives in peril and alarm and worry the spectators on shore by their exhausted efforts to return. The first dip is especially dangerous, and the expert who "knows that he can make the second buoy because he did it last year" had better rest content in his confidence and try some shorter and safer trip for his first dip of the season.

Almost all the deaths from drowning result either from heart failure or cramp, not from failure of skill or muscular force. A skillful swimmer can rest quite easily "rocked in the cradle of the deep" provided his heart and nervous strength are not already exhausted by violent muscular exertion. If, however, the circulation is impeded or the nervous strength exhausted cerebral congestion, heart failure or nervous spasm is liable to seize even the expert and render him as powerless as a baby in the mighty arms of the ocean's waves.

IF YOU FALL OVERBOARD

And Can't Swim Read Here Just What to Do.

In reply to the question as to what one who cannot swim should do if he falls into the water when there is no assistance at hand William H. Daily, champion life saver of the United States, once said:

"When one falls into the water the weight of the body will force it under the water at first, but it will rise again if the mouth is kept shut. When you are under the water clasp your hands behind your back, squaring your elbows so as to balance the floating body, and you will rise to the surface on your back and float until help reaches you or until you starve, as long as you keep your hands in that position.

"The hands clasped and placed on the back of the neck is an equally good position."

VACATION SCENE ALONG THE OCEAN FRONT.

HOW TO LEARN TO SWIM.

One Lesson Will Teach It If You Follow the Rules.

First.—Observe the motions of a swimming frog.

Second.—Find a beach or pool with level bottom. No "stepoffs" or holes. Lean forward. Take a long breath. Let your head sink into the water as far as it will. Allow the arms and legs to assume their own positions. Then reach forward with the arms and bring up the legs, as you have seen the frog do.

Third.—Bring the arms back with an outward circular motion, kicking the legs back and in at the same time.

Fourth.—At first you may not get your head out of water. Never mind that. Swim as long and as far as you conveniently can under water. You will not be very far under. Your hips will probably be above water, but your mouth and nose under.

Fifth.—Try and try again and keep swimming with your face under as long as you can endure it without pain or inconvenience.

Sixth.—Directly you will find that as the arms start to come back they will elevate the head out of water, so that the mouth is clear. Then take a good deep breath.

Seventh.—As the arms go back the head will sink again. Let it sink. That is the way to swim.

Eighth.—As the head sinks bring the arms forward again and also the legs. Then go through the same motion as before.

Ninth.—Remember each time the arms come back in the stroke the head goes up. Let the mouth just clear the water far enough and long enough to take a full breath of air.

Tenth.—That is the way the great swimmers swim. They do not try to keep their mouths far above water. They bring the mouth just far enough above water to make a breath. That is all.

Eleventh.—What handicaps most beginners is the desire to keep the head too far out of water. Champions could not do what beginners try to do.

Twelfth.—After you have learned to keep afloat and swim a bit you can learn the different strokes and the proper way to apply them from some efficient instructor.

HOW TO SAVE THE DROWNING.

Simple Rules to Follow to Resuscitate Unconscious Bather.

It is not impossible to restore life, even after all signs of life appear to be gone, in a bather. Do this.

First.—The first thing, of course, is to get the body to the shore.

Second.—Lose no time in carrying it to a place of shelter. Clear of the water anywhere is the place to begin work.

Third.—Lay the body face downward; stand astride the hips; join your hands underneath the body, raising it with a quick motion once or twice; place a roll of clothing, or, if not available, pile up the sand so as to have the middle of the body the highest. This is to clear the water from the throat.

Fourth.—Turn the body over, having the raised pile under the back at the waist; kneel across the hips, have the arms held over the head by an attendant. If no one but the rescuer is present place them over the head.

Fifth.—With a hand each side of the body at the foot of the ribs, press with all your force upward toward the shoulders steadily while you count four; relax the pressure suddenly count two, then renew the pressure and continue this until some movement shows life, a sigh usually being the first indication. Persevere in this treatment steadily. Do not give up for at least half an hour.

The Call of the Canoe.

The canoe enthusiast loves to shoot rapids. He is wise enough to carry all his goods overland to some point beyond the swirl of waters, for not for anything would he miss the thrill as his light craft springs forward with a sudden leap, like a race horse off on the first stretch, plunge through dashing spray with the roar of torrents booming in his ears, and quivers like a wild thing under his guiding hand.

Fumigating with sulphur will kill water bugs.

"SHOOTING THE SUN."

Simplest Way of Locating a Ship's Position at Sea.

Out of sight of land a ship's geographical position is determined either by keeping a careful record of the course steered and the distance run, known as dead reckoning, or by the combined use of chronometer and sextant—that is, by observation of the heavenly bodies. The operation of finding the latitude and longitude of observation can be performed in a number of ways, of which the simplest and most convenient is by measuring the altitude of the sun above the horizon at noon, as is indicated on the vernier of the sextant and spoken of at sea as "shooting the sun." An arithmetical computation by the aid of logarithms is then quickly made which shows exactly how far the ship is north or south of the equator, or, in other words, the latitude.

Finding the longitude, however, is a somewhat longer process. An observation is made either in the forenoon or afternoon, the chronometer time of the horizon contact of the sun's image being noted. A calculation is then made which gives the exact time at the spot where the ship happens to be, and, as the chronometer carried aboard shows the exact time at Greenwich, the prime meridian of longitude, the difference between the two expressed in hours and minutes (easily convertible into degrees and miles) the distance east or west of Greenwich.

Having thus, roughly speaking, found the latitude and longitude, a dot placed on the chart at the exact point where the lines of latitude and longitude cross denotes the ship's position.—Travel Magazine.

Know Fish Anyway.

In his book, Dr. John Kerr, the late chief inspector for schools, relates many amusing stories of his adventures as an inspector of schools in Scotland during the past thirty-six years.

On one occasion he was examining a class in mathematics, and put the following question to a boy:—

"If a salmon weighed ten pounds and it was to be sold at twopence a pound, what would it be worth?"

The lad, who was the son of a fishmonger, hastily replied:—

"It wadna be worth a curse!"

A Remarkable Sequence.

A strange fatality seems to be connected with the office of the Mayor of Uitenhage in South Africa. Fourteen gentlemen have occupied that position, and thirteen are dead. No ex-mayor save one has lived for more than a year or so after vacating the civic chair, and the extraordinary thing is that twelve of the fourteen died on a Saturday and were buried on a Sunday. The late Mr. Ward passed away at Eea Point recently, on a Friday, and was therefore the only exception in this respect. But he, too, was the thirteenth out of the fourteen to be interred in Uitenhage on a Sunday.

This curious fatality rather got on the nerve of the late Mr. T. W. Mills, M.L.A., while Mayor of Uitenhage, and it was his custom to close his game of bridge at midnight on Saturday with the pious remark; "Well, thank God there's another Saturday safely over." He eventually retired from the council, entered Parliament, contracted heart disease, died on a Saturday, and was buried on a Sunday.—Oudtshoorn Courant.

Mansion House Funds.

Mansion House funds in London are not opened without a good deal of serious thought. It would never do to make such appeals to the people upon what one may call "ordinary" occasions of national misfortune. The Transvaal War Fund, which resulted in the colossal sum of $6,659,300 being available for distribution among sufferers, marked an occasion of which there could be no doubt. The response to the appeal alone proved this. It was the same with the Indian Famine Relief funds in 1870, 1897, and 1900. The three realized in all $5,165,000. Besides this the Titanic Fund seems small, the total handed to the trustees being $2,066,060.—Manchester Evening News.

Monkey Plays Billiards.

Among the holiday attractions at the Anglo-American Exposition at Shepherd's Bush will be a monkey, which, among other attainments, can play billiards.

"Yacob Straus," as the monkey has been named, is an orangoutang, the only one ever trained to appear in public, other noted monkey performers having been chimpansees. The animal goes through a performance on horizontal bars, cycles, smokes a cigarette, and concludes by drinking a Manhattan cocktail.

A Versatile Organist.

Geoffrey Norris, a well-known character in the country parts between Wigan, Southport, and Preston, Eng., is a man of remarkable versatility. Although he has a wooden leg, he has played the pedal organ at Wrightington Parish Church for a period of nineteen and a half years. Sexton and parish clerk for twenty years, he digs all the graves unaided, and has personally directed about 500 interments. He has held office in connection with every phase of Sunday school work, and has rung Good Friday "passing bell" for twenty years. For twenty-three years he has missed only one Sunday service, and that was when his own banns of marriage were called, as it is customary for those "named" to abstain from going to church on "banns Sundays."

Where the Early Potato Landed.

It is interesting to recall, in connection with the announcement that "the first shipment of Irish new potatoes from Youghal, County Cork, Ireland, has just been despatched to Glasgow," that it was in Youghal the "murphy" was first introduced into Ireland by Sir Walter Raleigh.

Myrtle Grove, where Sir Walter lived, smoked, and set his potatoes, is now the residence of Sir Henry Blake, late Governor of Jamaica.

A PLACE NOT ON THE MAP.

Yet Girlville Is a Pleasant Place, With Some Drawbacks.

Girlville—a pleasant, alluring little hamlet on the road to the tablelands of Matrimony, with a branch line that connects with the Old Maid range of foothills.

At one time this place depended almost entirely upon nature for its appearance. Bucolic colors were predominant, and there was a simplicity about it very pleasing and restful to the eye. Of late years, however, the city painters and decorators have come in and with their colors have given it a smart, artificial appearance, which for many old fashioned people has largely curtailed its charm. Girlville, indeed, now has a reputation for cheap display which no other place can hope to rival.

Girlville at one time was governed almost entirely by an eminently respectable body called elders, but it has long since scornfully discarded their help and governs itself, or, at least, claims the right to do so.

Its principal industries are rag no. fiction, silk stockings, velvet slippers and red paint. There is also a large spoon factory on the edge of the town. An appeal to the legislature to have the name Girlville changed to Chatterfield was refused on the ground that Chatterville and Girlville are already synonymous.

The inhabitants of Girlville are extremely restless and fickle. Not satisfied with the place, they are constantly attempting to leave it and, after leaving, to get back again.—Thomas L. Masson in Life.

Macaroni as a Food.

The rank which macaroni holds as a food is shown by the following comparison: As an energy producer it outranks lean steak, for it contains 1,650 calories of energy to the pound, while the steak has but 970. While macaroni costs from 10 to 15 cents a pound and contains only 7 to 10 per cent of moisture which is wasted, the lean steak contains 70 to 75 per cent of waste moisture. Comparing macaroni, further, with the ordinary vegetables, in point of view of energy, it is found that white potatoes contain but 365 calories, spinach 95, turnips 160, cabbage 115, onions 190, lettuce 65.

She Was Deliberate.

It is said Dinah Maria Mulock Craik, the famous author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," made a habit of leaving it her task the manuscript of each of her stories as soon as it was completed. It would remain there perhaps six months, and then she would call for it and see how the story affected her after that lapse of time. If it pleased her the manuscript was sent to the publisher. Otherwise it was rewritten or thrown away.

Parnell's Love Story.

Of the several great political romances of the latter part of the nineteenth century there was none that gripped the British people like the love story of Charles Stewart Parnell, the Irish leader. For nearly a quarter of a century this romance, intrigue, or tragedy—for it is any or all of these according to the individual view of the observer or reader of history—has been more or less of an enigma. But the enigma is now solved by the publication of "Charles Stewart Parnell: His Love Story and Political Life," written by his widow, Katherine O'Shea.

The story which aroused such violent passions in the '80's stands forth in this book, nakedly revealed to the utmost detail. After having read it most people will find it difficult to decide into which category the story falls—whether it is the romance of a great man who sacrificed everything for the love of a woman, an extraordinary intrigue in which politics and love were strangely mingled, or a tragedy of thwarted political ambitions. In any case, it is the history of a very remarkable couple, whose lives were closely interwoven with the stormy events of the beginning of the fight for home rule.

Remember that it is of very little use to have a good heart if your manner is harsh and unkind.

Lots of beautiful days are spoiled by persons who can't help feeling there will be rain before night.

There are more men who have missed opportunities than there are who have lacked opportunities.

The greatest trouble of a man who is minding his own business is that so many want to help him.

THE PLAIN AND PLAID COMBINATION DRESS

THERE is an unprecedented vogue of plaid this spring, and the costumes evolved by combining plaid and plain materials are stunning, to say the least. Plaids not only appear in worsted fabrics, but in cotton and linen as well. The color alliances are wonderful, and the woman who desires a serviceable frock for spring and summer wear will not pass the plaid materials by unnoticed.

Perhaps you have a last season's gown that will warrant remodeling; if so, combine the old material with plaid, and you will have an up-to-date costume.

The charming models pictured on this page will offer suggestions for your spring frock of plaid and plain materials.

Those who admire the coat dress will select the model with the slashed tunic. Plain dark blue linen and plaid linen of dark blue and beige are the materials used. Select linen of a heavy quality, and fashion the bodice and basic from the plain blue.

The bodice has a chemisette and upstanding collar of sheer white linen. Two large crocheted buttons are used to fasten the chemisette. Sleeves of the plaid are joined to the dropped shoulder seams. A narrow belt defines the raised waist line, and the slashed tunic falls below the knees.

The skirt of plaid preserves the peg-top silhouette by narrowing considerably about the feet.

With this frock is worn one of the fashionable draped turbans. It is of crushed white linen, trimmed with two cuffs of dark blue velvet.

Taffeta is the leading silk, and no collection of frocks would be complete without a representative of this lovely material.

The model with the quaint crossed-over bodice is of plaid taffeta in tones of dark red, yellow and old blue and of plain currant-red taffeta. The bodice is cut to simulate a fichu, the ends of which cross over in front and fasten at the back with a square buckle of gray pearl. A pleated frill of lace contributes a delightful softness to the neck line. From beneath the sloping shoulders extend the long, closely fitted sleeves of the plain silk. The upper portion of the skirt is a puffed tunic, finished with a band of plaid.

A turban of old-blue corded silk is worn with this frock.

Serge is conceded to be the most serviceable of all fabrics, and the model with the bow in front is developed of plaid serge, showing a blending of blue, lemon yellow and green. The rolled collar is of sheer linen and the girdle of blue moire.

The ends of this are tied in a flat bow directly in front. A short peplum of the plaid falls over the skirt of dark blue serge. This is slightly shorter in front and is cut in such a manner that the sides are distended.

The hat contributes a delightful touch of color to this costume. It is of blue hemp straw, trimmed with lemon yellow plumes.

Of a charming simplicity is the frock with the four-tiered skirt. Parvenche-blue taffeta and taffeta in a plaid design of mauve and white are the materials chosen for this model. The bodice folds over surplice-fashion, and the plaid is used for the epaulettes and cuffs. A square buckle of mauve enamel fastens the girdle. The skirt is formed of four flounces, two of plain and two of plaid, arranged alternately.

Full crowns of taffeta appear in many of the new hats, and the one accompanying this frock is of blue straw and taffeta.

Jumper frocks are numbered among the leading styles, and the one in the drawing is a particularly lovely design. The underbodice is of plain green taffeta, with suspender straps of gray, green and white taffeta. The full bishop sleeves are gathered into cuffs of the plaid material. The upper portion of the skirt is slightly bouffant, and is draped up shorter at the back than in front. The underskirt is of plain green taffeta. A girdle of black velvet defines the waist line, and one sash end hangs from the back.

The combination of black and white is fashionable in millinery circles, and the chic little turban worn with this frock is of white milan straw faced with black velvet. Two ornaments of black plumage adorn this turban.

Do not allow any material which you happen to have go to waste when you have designs such as these to furnish inspiration.

If you desire to be "up to the minute," add one of these frocks to your spring outfit.

Correct Costumes for Spring

THE new street costumes are decidedly interesting, for the odd little jackets and bustle effects suggest the gowns worn by the belles during the Centennial.

Fashion travels in circles, and though it may take many years, she eventually returns to a previous form of styles. The fashions borrowed from the late seventies and early eighties are modified to a certain extent, but they preserve the general effect of the old-fashioned bustle costume.

Since drapery is the principal feature of the new gowns, supple fabrics, such as taffeta, moire, poplin and silk crepe, are the materials chosen to develop them.

Tan is a popular color, and a handsome model for street wear is of taffeta in a rich tone of tan. It is a three-piece costume, with the upper portion of the bodice of chiffon harmonizing in color with the taffeta. The bouffant draperies of the skirt preserve the fashionable peg-top silhouette. The jacket is short and extremely full, with a belt extending from the sides across the back. Rectangular buckles fasten the belt at the sides. Below the short sleeves of taffeta extend subsleeves of chiffon. These are of the bishop type, gathered closely at the wrists with narrow bands of green satin. A broad girdle of dull-green satin is drawn in soft folds about the waist.

Eton and bolero jackets are used in conjunction with skirts having bustle draperies. The coat of a costume fashioned of dull-blue poplin is cut with kimono sleeves. These are gathered tightly to the arms just below the elbows, and are finished with double frills of cream lace. The corners of the jacket are rounded, and frills of the lace are arranged about the neck to simulate a Medici collar. About the waist is a broad girdle of dull-red chiffon with a flat bow at the back. The draperies of the skirt are bunched up to produce a decided bustle.

Flounces are used extensively to trim the latest skirts, and they appear in every form—circular, gathered or pleated. A taupe-colored taffeta costume has a short coat with a circular flounce ornamenting the bottom. Two wide circular flounces form a tunic, which falls gracefully over the narrow skirt. A sash girdle of apple-green satin contributes a delightful touch of color to this model.

The serge costume has no rival, so far as smartness and durability are concerned; and when mentioning the new fashions, this type dare not be ignored.

Among the favored colors, hunter's green deserves your admiration, and a charming spring costume is of this material. The eton jacket is trimmed with large flat jet buttons, and is cut with kimono sleeves.

The tunic is circular, one side crossing over the other in front, while the ends are tucked beneath the girdle at the back.

These models are most unusual and will please all who admire artistic fashions.

A Startling Note

THERE is a decided revival of red abroad for informal street wear and spring wear. Sometimes it is a brilliant shade bordering upon scarlet and at other times a new shade, also bright, known as "sealing-wax red." To make the color even more marked it is being worn with white. There are stunning tennis blouses of red crepe de chine worn with white skirts. Sometimes these tennis blouses are long-waisted middy effect, and shirred to a loose but fitted band about the hips. The blouse is thus neatly confined, and yet is loose enough to give and move upward when the arm is raised to catch a high ball.

As it is impossible to play tennis in the extremely narrow skirts now sanctioned by fashion, and yet as wide skirts look ungainly on account of these same narrow styles, a clever designer has brought forth a closely pleated skirt, narrow in effect, but widening out as occasion demands in the game.

Fads and Fancies

SILK cords are attaining a surprising popularity. Sometimes they are worn about the neck as necklaces, ending with tassels near the waist line. This necessitates a knotting somewhat above the bust line, with two loose ends extending below. At times the cord is worn with a collarless V-necked blouse, being kept at the collar edge with a few skillfully concealed stitches; but more often the cords are worn with a roll collar, drawing the collar slightly up about the neck. The effect is very attractive, particularly when the cord is of a contrasting but harmonizing color. Cordings upon chiffon blouses are somewhat odd and very pretty. One such blouse was of chiffon over a silk foundation. The chiffon sleeve was entirely separate from the blouse. There were, however, eyelets about the upper part of the chiffon sleeve and about the armhole of the chiffon bodice, and sleeve and bodice were laced together with a silk cord much as one laces shoes. Slashes down the front of the bodice were laced in the same fashion.

The old bell sleeve of our grandmothers is endeavoring to make its appearance. It is a pretty fashion, and most of us will accord it a hearty welcome.

Fabric bags are a new note for spring. Rich brocades and metal cloths will be used.

As usual, there is a distinct fashion in buttons that is new. Cameo buttons are beautiful and show another tendency toward the artistic in dress. Nearer and nearer to the ideal garment do we come, despite the wet blankets who harp upon the "good old times," when they wore yards and yards of antihygienic materials swathed around them, hearing down their weak, feminine forms, and getting as far from the Hand of Mother Nature and the really artistic as it was possible to get. But to get back to buttons! A further note of the artistic is that of Roman pearls being used as button ornaments. The round shapes are staples, although odd shapes will be introduced.

In shoes, colonials will be the leading style for spring and the summer months. For those who do not wish to risk low shoes in the cold days of early spring there are spats which fit neatly over the colonial, and are very smart. As for several seasons past, button shoes will be used for dress. The popular leathers will be gunmetal, kid and suede. Gray-topped shoes are still smart, although they are now appearing in the cheaper grade of shoes, which usually means death to a fashion in the not very distant future.

If you have heirlooms of chantilly lace, you are fortunate. Chantilly and shadow laces are the leading laces for spring and summer. In the latter lace appliqué effects are new and attractive. Fine net backgrounds and all the lighter forms of lace will be used in preference to the heavier laces. This is as it should be, for the heavier laces are more suitable for the winter and fall materials, with the exception of those used for trimming upon linen and ratine.

Much to every one's surprise, the beauty-patch veil willcagain be in the land. Possibly it will meet with more popularity, now that people are becoming accustomed to this comic, unlovely feature.

A Poetic Fashion

IT IS somewhat difficult to account for the cause of the Byronic revival so far as collars are concerned. That the black Latin Quarter tie is bound to accompany a soft roll collar like unto that affected by Lord Byron in the early part of the nineteenth century there is no doubt. To a young face and to beauty the Byron collar and soft black tie are very becoming, but the simplicity of the fashion is trying to a woman devoid of either.

This [illegible] annual duty which the Parisian never thinks of shirking. She [illegible] her prettiest costume and whirls [illegible] one house to another in her [illegible] pointed motorcar. It is interesting [illegible] the sojourner to stroll through the Bois or to haunt the exclusive St. Germain district to watch the handsomely gowned women of the French aristocracy discharge the first duty of the new year.

It is rumored that bustles will be worn beneath the spring frocks. These are the boned or wired varieties worn some years ago. Another startling feature of some of the models is the tie-back, which is also reminiscent of other days.

Jet is used more profusely than ever. Strands of beads adorn the smart evening gowns; ornaments of all varieties the coats, frocks and millinery.

The vogue of bands of pulling and shirring is most pronounced. Street and house gowns are effectively trimmed with this old-fashioned ornamentation.

Bouffant draperies reign supreme and their variations are infinite. Lucile favors the skirt with but one side bouffant, and her creations are particularly artistic.

Other handsome models of taffeta, moire, poplin or corded silk have puffed tunics finished with gathered flounces which are distended from the foundation.

The bustle is becoming more pronounced as the season advances, and the draperies of taffeta, moire and crepe dresses are looped and puffed at the back, so that they more closely resemble the costumes worn in the eighties. Large bows of ribbon or silk frequently adorn these bustle draperies. These are also a revived fashion of that period.

There are flounces, flounces everywhere. Wide flounces and narrow ones; pleated, gathered or circular flounces and flounces of graduated widths. Flounces form three, four and even five tiers of smart skirts. They finish the lower edges of tunics and panier draperies and trim eton jackets and redingotes. Some of the newest blouses have flounces to form peplums, which vary in length.

Taffeta reigns supreme in the realm of silks, and Paquin's display of street costumes fashioned of this material emphasizes the fact that it is more adaptable than any other variety. Short jackets of the eton and bolero types predominate. Many designs are almost sleeveless, and the long sleeves of the frock worn beneath appear to be a continuation of those of the jacket. These sleeves are usually of transparent materials, such as chiffon, voile de mousseline de soie, matching in tone that used for the costume.

The most attractive models are loosely fitted with the fullness partially confined to the figure with narrow belts, buckles and buttons.

A touch of vivid red is introduced on many of the costumes designed by the master hand of Bechoff-David. One of the handsomest costumes is of tan-colored taffeta combined with chiffon of the same color. The sleeves and pointed yoke of the bodice are of the chiffon trimmed with ecru lace. An unusual note is sounded in the skirt, which consists of four circular flounces of chiffon and taffeta arranged alternately. A broad girdle of tan and cherry-red chiffon is drawn in soft folds about the waist. The red forms the upper half, and the ends are tied in a flat bow directly in front. Completing this toilette is a chic little eton jacket with rounded corners. The sleeves are short and full, gathered snugly to the arm and finished with frills of lace.

Colors which demand attention at present are dull, rich tones of green, tan, sweet pea, reds, purples and pinks, tango yellow, mandarin blue and terra-cotta.

One of the creations of Paul Poiret is a street costume of putty-colored serge. The jacket is short, with a flaring basque and a belt of leather. The skirt has two flounces, and the upper one is gathered about the waist.

Every day introduces something new in millinery. Georgette presents smart little hats fashioned entirely of picot-edged grosgrain ribbon. This is arranged so that each row overlaps the other after the manner of straw braid. For trimming these models, cantaloupe of plumage are used.

Black taffeta and green satin are a favored combination for millinery. In the windows of the shops along the Rue de la Paix are noticed these charming hats. A turban of smoke gray trimming the plaid. Another pretty hat is adorned with an aigrette fashioned of tiny brightly colored flowers. A model of exceptional beauty is of geranium-pink rough straw. The crown is of satin to match, and pink roses are used to trim it. The French sailor is much in evidence and many are of satin or moire. Pleated hatbands fashions one model, and the trimming consists of a wreath of lavender heather-bell leaves and tiny orange-dahlia-like yellow flowers.

Separate blouses of crepe de chine will be much worn this spring. A double row of jet buttons is effectively used to fasten a model of white crepe de chine.

Among the promenaders on the quais are those wearing high laced boots of soft kid or suede. These fit snugly and have spool heels. The walking stick is also much in evidence, particularly the white enameled cane.

Among the novelties in a fashionable jeweler's window are floral broaches. These are presented in satin-lined baskets instead of the conventional boxes. Roses, carved from all tints of coral, are used as ornaments of every description. Many smart women will wear these with their summer frocks.

Many of the evening gowns have bodices that are practically sleeveless and are very decollete. Trains remain short and of eccentric outline. A few are hung from the shoulders and fall over the ruffled skirt in panel form.

Brilliant colors will appear in dressy costumes for street and evening wear, and the ones favored are rich tones, including light shades of apricot and gold, blue, particularly in [illegible] tones, such as [illegible], [illegible] flower, [illegible] and periwinkle. The [illegible] pink and reds are also smart. For those that will enjoy [illegible] the flesh tints will continue to be among the smart colors.

The eton and bolero [illegible] are sometimes finished with a [illegible] peplum, which hangs free, or [illegible] to below the normal waist line. [illegible] Handkerchiefs with borders of [illegible] yellow are [illegible] costume. [illegible]

ATTACKED HER LITTLE BOY

He was Cured by Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry

Mrs. Wesley Pringle, Roblin, Ont., writes: "It is with great pleasure I can recommend Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. When our little boy was 2 years old he had the worst attack of diarrhoea and vomiting I ever saw. We called in our doctor, and he came eleven times from Tuesday morning until Saturday night, but still no change. We expected each moment to be the last of his suffering, as the doctor said he could do nothing more. Mr. Pringle was going up town Saturday night and was advised to try your great and wonderful medicine. He got a bottle, and about 9 o'clock the first dose was given, and was kept up as directed, and when the doctor came on Saturday he said, 'what a wonderful change. Why, your little boy is going to get better!' Then we told him what we had given him. He said, 'keep right on, he is doing well.' I often think, as I look at my boy, growing to be a man, what great thanks I owe to Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Enameled Bracelet

By CLARISSA MACKIE

"It is a charm, madame," smiled Count Sorio as he bent above Mrs. Raymond's pretty hand. "To wear it will avert the evil eye and a host of other ills." He smiled charmingly down at her.

"You are very kind, count," protested Mrs. Raymond, withdrawing her hand and picking up a silk covered jewel box, "but, really, I cannot accept this bracelet."

"Not as a souvenir of those delightful days in Florence?" reproached the handsome Italian. "I am sure your husband will join me in the wish that you may accept it as a token of my warm friendship for my good friends, the Raymonds!" He laid his shapely hand on Dick Raymond's, broad shoulder and smiled the smile of good fellowship into the young American's honest eyes.

Dick Raymond smiled rather doubtfully, for when he had last met Count Enrico Sorio it had been a most unpleasant occasion; he had detected the impoverished nobleman cheating at cards, and, although Dick had allowed the matter to pass until the game was concluded, he had privately informed Sorio of what he had seen and warned him. There had been one moment when things hung in the balance. The Italian had looked at Dick with murderous hate in his black eyes, but he had not offered to avenge the insult in blood; he had merely turned on his heel and walked away, and the Raymonds had not seen or heard of him for many weeks until this sunny afternoon, when the repentant nobleman had called upon them, apologized handsomely to Dick and tendered an exquisite enameled bracelet as a peace offering to Mrs. Raymond.

"You will not permit the acceptance?" glared the count. "You perhaps have suspicions that I come by it not honestly? Alas, what a sad reputation I have gained through one small slip!" He turned away to hide his emotion.

Ethel Raymond, touched by the grief of the temperamental Italian, smiled and nodded at her husband. Dick flushed a smile back, and his big hand went out to grasp the long, yellow fingers of the nobleman.

"Very well, count. We will consider the matter closed. As for the bracelet, I am sure Mrs. Raymond will be charmed to add it to her collection of Florentine enamels. Come, my friend," he smiled as the count turned a transformed countenance toward him—"come, let us walk on the terrace and smoke, a cigarette before lunch. You will, of course, stay?"

"With pleasure," beamed Sorio. And, with a deep bow to Mrs. Raymond and a significant smile as he watched her fingering the enameled bracelet, he followed his host on to the terrace, where there was a delightful view of the lovely Arno flowing toward the distant sea and the hills that encircle the city of Florence.

To the men walking on the terrace the view was a familiar one, but never tiresome. Sorio had been born in Tuscany, and he loved it. Dick Raymond was a landscape painter, and he loved it because of its unchanging beauty.

As they passed the drawing room windows it was Sorio's dark eyes that flashed an inquiring glance through the open casement. Always he smiled furtively as he noticed that Ethel Raymond was holding the bracelet in her fingers and admiring its beauty.

He did not love Ethel. He hated her with deep intensity born of her husband's deadly insult to him many weeks ago. Her husband was devoted to her. Through the wife Sorio might be revenged upon the husband. Revenge was sweet, and it was very near just now.

"Come down and look at our roses," urged Dick. And, quite confident that he could leave the enameled bracelet to do its duty, Enrico Sorio followed his friend down the steps, and they disappeared in the garden.

In the meantime Ethel Raymond sat there dreaming over the enameled bracelet.

The door opened, and Carlo announced a visitor.

"Mme. Testino."

A tall, graceful woman, clad in white came forward, and Ethel laid aside the bracelet and went to meet her with outstretched hands.

"Ah, Lisetta, I am so glad to see you," she cried warmly. "Sit here. Margot shall carry away your wraps. You must remain for luncheon. Count Sorio is here."

Lisetta Testino flushed beautifully and involuntarily glanced around the room.

"They are walking in the garden," explained Ethel demurely, for she knew that the fair Italian lady and the count were deeply in love with each other. She suspected a romance here, and she was prepared to watch it with interest, for, like most women, she thoroughly enjoyed a love affair.

"I am surprised," hesitated the beautiful widow as she gave her hat and parasol to the waiting servant. "I thought that Sorio and your husband were—not friends—that they had a difference of opinion."

"It was so, and I was sorry," confessed Ethel, "but they have made it up, and as a peace offering the count has brought us this lovely bracelet to add to our collection of enamels. Is it not exquisite?"

"Beautiful!" breathed Lisetta, a jealous light gleaming in her dark eyes. "Ah, madame," she added playfully, "if I had glimpsed this wonderful bracelet first Sorio would never have brought it as a peace offering to you!" She laughed with sudden merriment, all her ill humor gone in a second. "Am I not a bear to look so cross about your bracelet?"

"I am sure Count Sorio would rather place it on your arm than on mine," laughed the American.

"If it did not seem ungrateful to Count Sorio, I would like to have you wear it away as your own," added Ethel. "Ah, Cesare, we will come at once," as the servant announced luncheon. "The gentlemen are coming now."

When Count Sorio saw Lisette Testino standing in the library toying with the enameled bracelet his face went suddenly pale and his greeting to her was shortened to utter a whispered word of protest.

"Such gaudy trinkets do not become your pale dignity, my queen," he whispered hurriedly. "Put it aside, Lisetta. It is ill luck. It attracts the evil eye. It is accursed." He shuddered as he caught himself up sharply.

Ethel's clear voice was speaking as they moved toward the dining room.

"Count Sorio says that the bracelet is a charm, that it will avert the evil eye and that it will bring me good luck!"

Dick Raymond laughed genially, but the dark eyes of Lisetta met the black glance of Sorio. There was a puzzled questioning in her glance and a mingling of fear and annoyance in his.

Lisetta went back to the drawing room after her handkerchief and when she returned there was a look of amusement in her cool glance as it crossed that of her lover.

The meal progressed slowly. The Raymonds had a good cook in the person of Margharita, the grandmother of Cesare, and the wine of the country was excellent.

Lisetta was sparkling with gayety, and the count's dark eyes often sought hers, across the low arrangement of flowers on the table, and the Raymonds realized that very soon would the fiery Italian declare his love for the widow.

Suddenly Lisetta lifted one white hand to adjust the rose Ethel had tucked in her jet black hair. As she did so her three companions saw for the first time that she was wearing the enameled bracelet.

Lisetta tossed her head and smiled impudently at Ethel.

"See, carissima, I am wearing your bauble while I may!"

"It becomes you rarely, madame," laughed her hostess.

Sorio's face was ghastly pale. Twice his lips parted as if to give utterance to some protest, but they closed, as if secrecy demanded silence at any price. At last he could contain himself no longer.

"Madonna!" he gasped, rising and reaching across the table at Lisetta's arm. "Take it off, cara mia. It—means—death!" He half whispered the last words and sank back in his seat as Dick Raymond jumped up and held a glass of wine to Lisetta's pale lips.

Mme. Testino had uttered a sudden cry of anguish and her head drooped slowly down until it rested on one shoulder.

"The pain, the pain!" she muttered before she lost consciousness.

Dick Raymond dashed around the table and caught the shrinking Sorio by the shoulder. "What has happened, you coward?" he demanded. "What is there about that bracelet that causes Mme. Testino to swoon, and the very sight of her wearing it upon her arm causes you alarm? Eh? Tell me, or, by thunder, I'll make you into eternity!"

Cesare had darted in and out of the room like lightning flashes. He had dispatched a page for a physician, and while Dick was still trying to get an explanation from Sorio the doctor arrived and went into the salon where Lisetta was lying on a sofa, pale and lifeless.

That was an eventful night in the Villa Rosario. The doctor remained until morning and administered antidotes for the deadly poison which had been injected into Lisetta's veins through the medium of the poisoned bracelet. A tiny needle had darted into her flesh as she clasped the bracelet about her shapely wrist, but the prick had been so slight that she had scarcely noticed it.

By morning the danger was over. The poison, which had remained in the bracelet for perhaps a hundred years, so ancient was its history, had lost its potency, and the quick action of the physician, combined with Lisetta's splendid physique, resulted in complete recovery for Mme. Testino. As for Enrico Sorio, who had intended the poisoned bracelet for Ethel Raymond, the wife of the man upon whom he wished to be revenged, Dick permitted him to disappear from Florence.

It was perhaps punishment enough for his murderous heart that he forever lost the regard of Lisetta Testino and, as for the Raymonds, they left Florence at once and went back to America, and before they went they disposed of their interesting collection of enamels.

"I never want to see a Florentine enamel again," shuddered Ethel.

But the enameled bracelet remained in the possession of Lisetta Testino. She had it cleansed of its poisonous properties, and it remains on her dressing table in a crystal box.

"To remember, carissima," she explained to Ethel Raymond one day "lest I forget the treachery of one I loved!" she added sadly.

THE MAGNET A PUZZLE.

Science Can Make One, but Can't Explain the Change in the Metal.

Getting the magnetism into the steel so that it will stay there permanently is a long and intricate process, as Professor Silvanus Phillips Thompson describes it in the Journal of the Institution of Electrical Engineers.

First of all you have to pick your steel. It must have from 5 to 8 per cent of tungsten and from 0.4 to 0.6 of carbon. It must have not more than 2.5 per cent of chromium, but it must not have any manganese, titanium, copper, sulphur or phosphorus. It is forged with as little working of the material as possible and at as low a temperature as convenient. After forging it should be heated to 900 degrees C., lowered to 750 degrees C., there maintained for a time and then cooled off. This "normalizes" it.

To harden it it is raised to 950 degrees C. for not more than five minutes, then lowered to about 700 degrees C. and quenched at this temperature in brine or at a temperature under 20 degrees C.

Then it is "matured" by boiling or steaming it for ten or twelve hours or by heating it to 60 degrees C. for twenty hours. It is alternately heated and allowed to cool off several times.

Now the steel is ready to be magnetized. If it is a bar a magnetizing coil is used; if a horseshoe, then an electromagnet is employed. It is magnetized to the highest degree possible, and there is some advantage in reversing its magnetism a few times. The result depends upon the maximum magnetizing force and not on the duration of the application. The current is not shut off suddenly, but is gradually diminished to zero. While under the influence of the current the magnet is struck with a brass hammer.

Its stability is insured by subjecting it to alternate cycles of demagnetizing and remagnetizing about the point of magnetization at which it is to remain.

What change has now taken place in the steel neither Professor Thompson nor Edison nor Tesla nor any other man can explain. The steel looks the same as it did originally; it feels the same; its weight is the same; its ring is the same; it has neither odor nor flavor. The microscope reveals no change in its structure. Chemistry fails to detect that an element has been added to or subtracted from it. And yet it will draw another piece of iron to itself and hold it there.

Much Pain From Kidney Disease

Doctored in Vain Until Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills Were Used.

Kidney derangements are often associated with disorders of the liver and bowels, and under these conditions ordinary kidney medicines usually fail to effect cure. It is because of their unique, combined action on the liver, kidneys and bowels that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are so generally successful, even in the most complicated cases.

Mr. Emanuel Bernard, farmer, St. Paul's, Kent County, N.B., writes:—"About eighteen years ago my wife was bad with kidney disease, and suffered greatly from headaches, pains in bowels and stomach, and her heart was affected. For a year she was treated by her doctor, with no apparent benefit. She then used five boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills with most satisfactory results. This gave us such a good opinion of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills that we always keep them in the house to be used for all derangements of the kidneys, liver and bowels." FLOGGED THE FAT MEN.

Spartan Cure For Those Who Grew Too Stout For Military Duty.

Among the ancient Spartans everything was considered secondary to military efficiency, and with a view to securing this the boys and men were by law kept in a continual state of "training." No deformed child was allowed to live. Boys were taken from their homes and subjected to military regulations at the age of seven. They were compelled to wear the same single garment winter and summer. At twenty they joined the ranks and from that age till they reached sixty were required to dine at the public tables, where only a certain quantity was supplied for each man. The magistrates interfered in absurdly small matters. They regulated the degree of fatness to which it was lawful for any citizen to extend his body.

Those who dared to grow too fat or too soft for military service and exercise were sometimes soundly flogged. Aelian in his history relates that Nauclis, son of Polytus, was brought before the ephors (magistrates) and the whole assembly of Sparta, and "his unlawful fatness" was publicly exposed and he was threatened with perpetual banishment if he did not bring his body within the regular Spartan compass and give up the culpable mode of living, which was declared to be more worthy of an Ionian than a Spartan.

The power of the will to control a badly injured body was never better illustrated than in the case of Dr. Constantin, a volunteer aviator in the service of the Bulgarian army, who was fatally wounded by a Turkish bullet while sailing his aeroplane over the trenches at Tchataldja. Notwithstanding the shock, the pain and the rapid hemorrhage, Dr. Constantin kept his nerve and was able to turn his aeroplane around, guide it back to the Bulgarian lines and volplane safely down among his friends. He died as the aeroplane reached the ground.—New York World.

Easy Fitting.

The king of England, when he wants a new suit of clothes, is not put to the trouble that ordinary mortals suffer. Each of the royal tailors possesses a dummy figure of the king's exact proportions, and when the suits are taken home trying on is unnecessary. If the king particularly likes a special suit he will wear it at intervals for months, but he never wears the same clothes on two consecutive days. About thirty suits are in ordinary wear, including shooting and riding kits, and the king owns nearly 400 British and foreign uniforms, some of which are perhaps worn once in a dozen years.

Rare Ben's Text Restored.

Mr. Justice-Eve's vindication of the healthiness of laughter did not tempt his lordship to a familiar quotation, most usually misquoted. The common form is "Laugh and grow fat," but the correct text is "Laugh and be fat," put by Ben Jonson into the mouth of Pan in "The Penates." The fatness does not strictly follow from the laughter in Jonson's line, but the proverbial misquotation has imported that meaning.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Blind Obedience.

"I have often wondered," remarked Mrs. Rogers, "how a horse feels. A horse hasn't any idea what is going to happen to him when he is harnessed. He doesn't know how far he is going or what he is going for. To be driven hither and thither, blindly, seemingly without purpose, with no idea of what it's all about or when it will be over—how must the poor creature feel—what must he think about it all?"

FIRM IS SOLVENT.

But Minority Stockholders Get Receivers Appointed.

BUFFALO, July 14.—Judge J. R. Hazel, in the Federal Court here yesterday, appointed receivers for the United States Light & Heating Co., a $17,500,000 corporation engaged in the manufacture of car lighting and heating apparatus.

The application for the receivership was made by Fred. R. Humpage, one of a committee of three appointed last December by minority stockholders' committee to investigate the operations of the company since its incorporation.

In his petition for the receivership Mr. Humpage said the company is solvent and will continue so if properly managed. He criticised many of the acts of the board of directors, which, he alleged, dissipated the funds of the corporation in high and unnecessary salaries, such as $10,000 a year to Chas. A. Starbuck, of New York, as chairman of the board of directors.

MUST WATCH THE CHILD.

His Health Will Be Chief Weapon Against Tuberculosis.

HALIFAX, N.S., July 14. —That the welfare of the child is to be the most important phase of the anti-tuberculosis campaign in the future, was the opinion of some of the leading physicians at the opening session of the 14th annual convention of the Canadian Association for the prevention of tuberculosis yesterday morning at the Technical College.

Dr. Holbrooke, of Hamilton, emphasised the point that the root of anti-tuberculosis work is the welfare of children and the prevention from infection. Children did not die of tuberculosis until they grew up between the ages of fifteen and twenty years.

It was nearly midnight. "That fellow who is calling on Maude hates to go," growled Maude's papa.

"Why, it seems to me the young man is pretty far gone already," replied Maude's mamma, complacently.—Philadelphia Record.

Too True.

A critic once wrote of Whistler's portrait of Carlyle that it was not life size.

"No," was the artist's comment; "few men are."

Oldest Barrister Dead.

AN AFRICAN POMPEII.

Important Discoveries Have Been Made In the Nile Valley.

Interesting particulars of important discoveries which have been made in the Nile Valley were furnished by the Rev. Professor Sayce at a meeting of the Egyptian Exploration Fund held in London. At Abydos, said Prof. Sayce, Prof. Naville had discovered the famous temple of Osiris, as he believed, and another colossal monument of Egyptian antiquity had been added to what were already known. It reminded students that the history of Egyptian architecture, as it was known, was one of decadence. Apart, however, from Abydos and the work of Petrie, the chief discoveries of the past season had been made, not in Egypt, but in the Soudan.

At Kerma, a little south of the third cataract, Dr. Reisner was changing all accepted ideas of early Soudanese history. He had shown that as early as the fifth and sixth dynasties the northern Soudan was occupied by Egyptian troops, and that trade was carried on from the Blue Nile to the Red Sea. Prof. Garstang, investigating at Meroe, below the sixth cataract, had found an observatory at the bottom of an underground bathing establishment. On the walls were the astronomer's calculations. An African Pompeii had been brought to light. The ruins covered a considerably larger area than those of Memphis, and included a royal city surrounded by magnificent walls, 15 feet thick, in places, with two palaces, public baths, and gymnasia, as well as many streets and private dwellings. The main streets were bordered by trees, for which pits lined with brick had been sunk, and on the riverside walls, quays, and landing stages. The town was the Birmingham and, the Liverpool of ancient Africa. It was the centre of the iron industry, the smelting furnaces of which had been unearthed, and enough metal was worked there to supply the whole of Northern Africa.

Among the most beautiful objects found were cups and bowls of biscuit ware as hard and fine and thin as the egg-shell ware of China, but not translucent. The biscuit ware of China was not older than 200 A. D., while that of Meroe dated from the third or second century before Christ. It was known that the Chinese made trading voyages as far as Abyssinia, and that pottery was among the articles of commerce, so that it was allowable to conclude that they copied the Meroe ware which had been carried by the trade routes to the Red Sea and thence to China. Lord Carnarvon and Mr. H. Carter had found at Thebes the lost tomb of Amon-hotep. Last year Dr. Borchardt discovered at Tel-el-Amarna the workshop of a sculptor, from which had come the heads of two princesses worthy of being placed side by side with the finest specimens of Greek work. This year the excavations had yielded two cuneiform tablets.

One of them was part of a dictionary bearing a list of words in at least two languages. The other was the first example of a political treaty in existence—a treaty between the Egyptians and the Hittites, at the beginning of the Hittite empire. All the discoveries showed that ancient Egypt by trade, war, and diplomacy had relations with countries around her. The civilised world of the ancient East was not so very much unlike the civilized world of to-day. We stood much nearer to the men of old Egypt than to the half-civilised Europe of the Middle Ages, and we should find ourselves far more at home with them than with the Crusaders who sacked Byzantium.

Passing of Sailing Ship.

The secretary of Lloyd's in London announces that in future the special sign (s.) to denote steamers will be discontinued in Lloyd's announcements and publications. The names of steamers will be shown without any distinguishing mark following, but the names of sailing vessels will be indicated by the sign (S. V.).

It is estimated roughly that steamship movements represent about 75 per cent. of the total movements of vessels, the remaining 25 per cent. being accounted for by sailing ships. Every year the number of large sailing ships decreases, for many are wrecked but few are built. The number of motor ships, which are indicated by the sign (m.s.) do not yet represent a notable proportion of the total movements.

While "s.s.," meaning originally "screw steamer," is now out of date, such signs as "tw.-sc." (twin-screw), and "qr.-sc." (quadruple-screw) are very useful guides.

So would be a sign to indicate vessels driven by turbine machinery.

Flies Fly Nearly Mile.

In 1906 three hundred marked flies were liberated at the Monsall Hospital, Manchester, England, and five were recovered at distances varying from thirty to 190 yards. In 1910 a series of experiments was undertaken under the auspices of the local Government board at Postwick, near Norwich. Several hundred chalk-powdered flies were liberated at a dump and were re-captured at distances exceeding 300 yards. Many of the flies traveled from 800 to 1,000 yards, which would bring them to the village, while the most strenuous of them went nearly a mile.

"Glick" Gleichen.

There is a curious story of "Glick," as his army friends call Count Gleichen, who has figured prominently in the Irish sensation. The count is a popular and experienced British officer, in spite of his foreign name, and it was during the South African War that he was hit by a bullet and fell as though dead. A brother officer exclaimed, as he stood over the supposed corpse, "Poor 'Glick' is dead." At that moment the power of speech returned to the count. "No, I'm not," he exclaimed, weakly. The bullet had just missed the jugular vein.

Result of Rashness.

"Out of a job, are you?" asked the first girl. "Been catch you flirting?"

"No; I caught the bank. Say, what sort of a wedding dress do you think is real swell?"

Restored to His Rights

By LOUISE B. CUMMINGS

Robert Wykoff has no remembrance of anything that occurred before he was five years old, except being caressed by a woman who seemed to love him very dearly, and even this is scarcely a memory with him. After that he became cognizant of being a member of a family. A man whom he understood to be his father, a woman whom he understood to be his mother gave him what he needed, especially clothes, which were much better than those of the other children of the household. When Robert was eleven years old he was sent to a boarding school. There he associated with boys who were much more refined, much better dressed, than those he had been accustomed to. When he went home at vacation he became ashamed of his parents and his brothers and sisters. They were of a different stamp from those he had seen at school.

Bob did not go home again after that during vacations. He preferred to remain at school. His parents and brothers and sisters did not manifest much affection for him, and he cared little about them. It seemed as if he and they were a different kind of people. And he wondered why this was so. Why had he always been dressed like a gentleman while they wore rough clothes?

The school he attended was of a very good class, but its principal was more interested in making money than in the welfare of the boys. Robert was constantly being punished for some petty offense or for leading his schoolmates to rebel against the tyranny of the principal. The latter received plenty of money for his pupils' tuition to warrant giving them every comfort, including excellent food, but he skimped them in all possible ways.

One day when the food had become so bad that the boys could stand it no longer Bob led them into an old fashioned "barring out," such as at times had occurred in English schools before the middle of the nineteenth century. They bought provisions with spending money procured from home, took possession of the schoolroom and locked the doors. The rebellion did not last long, for a door was broken down. The principal entered and soon quieted the meeting. He questioned the boys as to their leader, but none of them would tell, and he proposed to punish all alike, whereupon Robert assumed the whole responsibility and was expelled from the school.

By this time Robert was fifteen years old, and rather than go back home he resolved to make his own living. Between a mercantile life and farming he chose the latter, and since the season for planting was at hand he found a place as a farm hand. He went to work with a will, rejoicing in the change from the tyrannies of the school and his unpleasant home to a life wherein he lived almost entirely out of doors, attending to cattle, planting and gathering in crops.

This period Bob Wykoff remembers as the happiest of his life, for here was born a boy's love for Molly Erskine, a little girl he one day saw trudging along a road with some milk she was going to deliver to a neighbor. He carried her milk for her and many another burden from that time forward for three years. Then he was eighteen years old and she was fifteen.

One day Bob was sitting on a mowing machine driving a pair of horses over some rough ground when he saw a man coming toward him. When he came near enough Bob recognized his father. He had been hunting the boy for a month and had traced him from the school he had left long before. He told Bob that he was not his father, but that he came of wealthy stock and his grandfather had died and he was heir to several million dollars. Bob said that didn't make any difference with his finishing his job and remained on his machine till it was time to quit.

Bob then went to the farmhouse, bid goodby to his employers, found Molly Erskine and told her of the great change in his life. She cried when he parted with her, but he assured her that he would come back to her.

Bob's conductor told him on the way that he was the son of parents who had been disowned by his mother's father when they had married contrary to his will. She refused to see after the marriage, and his mother, who had nothing to live on, was taken back by her father on condition that she come alone. Bob was then put under the care of persons who agreed for a consideration to take care of him. On the death of his grandfather, being the only male descendant, he was made the old man's heir.

When Bob finished his home he was taken into the arms of the woman he remembered as belonging to his babyhood. He had occupied an unnatural position for fourteen years and was now suddenly made the possessor of unbounded luxuries.

One day Molly Erskine was standing in the door of her father's farm when a young man drove up behind a spanking team and, throwing the robes to a factory lassie, leaped from the wagon, and caught her in his arms. Bob claimed her for his wife. But she refused. She said that he had entered a sphere in which he was born and to which she would not follow him lest he should become ashamed of her. But Bob would not release her, though he consented that she should go to a girls' school for three years. When she had finished her education they were married, and Bob did not have any reason to be ashamed of his wife.

EGYPTIAN DONKEYS.

Where Women Ride Astride or Walk Behind Husbands.

To see the Mayor and Corporation of London riding on donkeys would doubtless cause endless amusement, but this happens every day in Egypt. There the donkey is the chief beast of burden. Every farmer has at least two or three of them, and when he rides to his fields he rides with his friends on donkeys. He does not use a proper saddle, but has a couple of sacks strapped over the animal's back. No reins are used, and stirrups are never thought of.

The donkeys are sometimes used in a most brutal fashion, for their riders guide them with a stick, hitting them on the left side of the head when they want them to go to the right, and vice versa. If the donkeys are not going fast enough some riders rub the rough end of a stick along the spine or prick them behind the neck with a needle fixed into the stick they use for guiding.

The Egyptian donkeys are usually much smaller than those used in England, but two men are often seen on one donkey. The writer has several times seen donkeys collapse and roll over as a second big man has mounted. Their legs often suffer through carrying heavy men when only a few months old.

When Egyptian women ride the donkeys they sit astride, and the young fellahah, or farmer's daughter, can go at a great speed. Most of the older women, however, are either too poor to afford one or too stout to balance on one.

It is a common sight to see a man riding on a donkey and his wife trotting behind, barefooted, and carrying an infant in her arms and a large basket on her head. The Egyptian farmer has no idea of women's rights. Besides carrying the farmer to and from his labor, the donkey has to carry bundles of berseem or clover from the fields to the horses and buffaloes in the villages and towns, for grass and hay are almost unknown in Egypt.

When the donkey is not being worked it is roped to a peg in the ground and its two front feet are tied together, so that it cannot move more than two yards. It is the natives' despised friend.

Tents In India.

The use of tents in India is so extensive that catering to the demand has become one of the most interesting and important industries in that empire. The chief centre of manufacture is at Cawnpore, which has the largest tent factories in the world and not only does an enormous domestic business, but also exports very largely to other countries, including the United Kingdom, China, Japan, Australia, New Zealand, Siam, the Strait Settlements, Egypt and Africa.

Why Gibbon Wrote In French.

A letter from Gibbon to Hume has lately come to light and explains why the great historian wrote in French. "The five years (from sixteen to twenty-one) which I passed in Switzerland formed my style as well as my ideas. I write in French because I think in French, and strange as it may seem, I can say with some shame but with no affectation, that it would be a matter of difficulty to me to compose in my native language."

ANNE LOUISE CARY

And Her Favourite "Robin Adair"

The indisputable queen of song in her day was Annie Louise Cary. She was one of the world's famous contraltos when she retired from the operatic stage at the very height of her career in opera. She retained the sweet, wholesome characteristics of the American girl all during her musical triumphs. She made her debut in Copenhagen, although she studied in Milan. For three years she delighted European audiences before making her appearance in America. For over twelve years, with the exception of a brief European tour, she delighted American audiences with the charms of her voice and personality. But to hear her sing "Robin Adair," that simple old song, and that masterpiece of Arthur Sullivan's "The Lost Chord," and Longfellow's "The Day is Done," with the rich tones of the happy, good-natured personality that always charmed, she always left the audience breathless and spellbound.

"Robin Adair," "The Lost Chord," and many other favourites of Cary, are to be found in "Heart Songs," now being distributed to the readers of this paper. See Coupon elsewhere in this issue for terms.

There was such a demand for the Heart Songs that we had to discontinue inserting the coupon. We have now on hand a further supply, and the coupon will run for two weeks. If you desire a copy, save the coupons and together with 98c. you will get a $3.00 book.

TWENTY THOUSAND PEOPLE CELEBRATED

Anniversary of Battle of the Boyne in Lindsay Yesterday—Three Thousand Orangemen in Huge Parade and Prominent Speakers Were Heard.

LOCAL LODGES PRESENT

Three thousand and ninety-two Orangemen, by actual count, marched in Lindsay yesterday to celebrate the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne, and packed along every street to see the parade were the population of Lindsay, reinforced by the twenty thousand visitors. Never in the history of Scugogville town has there been such a gathering for any purpose as resulted yesterday in the Orange celebration. The people literally filled the main streets from noon till early in the evening, and while every effort possible was made to accommodate the crowd of Lindsay people and visitors in the way of meals and lodging, the result was decidedly inadequate owing to the very large number who poured into Lindsay via steamer, train, automobile and carriage.

The grand event of the day was the huge procession, which was participated in by practically all of the Orangemen who had gathered in the town. The parade was several miles long, and though a very long route passing through many of the best streets of the City, was followed by those in the procession, the head of the column had re-entered Victoria Park before the last of the parade had yet started. The celebrations were favoured by the weather, than yesterday and the traditional twelfth of July rain did not interrupt the ceremonies, leaving the laying of the dust on the route of the march to the discretion of the committee in charge, who attended to the matter in a very effective manner. Just a few minutes before the parade, one of Lindsay's watering cars passed over the roads so that although the day was hot the streets that the Orangemen travelled were not dusty.

The celebration really commenced Saturday night, when several lodges invaded Lindsay, remaining till yesterday and attending divine service in a body on Sunday. Yesterday morning by special and regular train, by steamer, by carriage and by boat, the visitors commenced to pour into Lindsay. As each lodge arrived at the station, they were met by the Lindsay Orangemen and representatives of the committee in charge, headed by the 45th Regimental Band. They were escorted to the town and their reception was very hearty.

The Lindsay Orangemen, and especially those who constituted the committee in charge of the celebration are to be congratulated upon the way in which the huge crowds were provided for, and upon the excellent arrangements they made for the Orangemen themselves. The celebration was not only a success in numbers, but the enthusiasm shown throughout the day by those participating in it was earnest and marked. The 3,200 members of the Order themselves were exceedingly well conducted and upheld their newly acquired reputation for abstemiousness. Remarks as to their splendid conduct were heard in every part of Lindsay, and they, too, are to be congratulated on the way they upheld by their actions yesterday, the traditions of Orangeism.

The Peterborough lodges, including the Juvenile Lodge, had a good turnout, and were accompanied by over a thousand local people to the scene of their celebration. The Maple Leaf Band was prominent in the procession and headed the Peterborough Lodges.

The seventy lodges were assembled in Victoria Park about one o'clock in the afternoon and the drum and fife were almost deafening at close range. The music of the many fife and drum bands could be heard all over the town, and when the procession left the park about half past one o'clock the streets were lined with spectators. The procession left the Park, marched up Kent Street to the Exhibition Park, turned to the right at this point and circled down again into the centre of the town. The line of march was several miles long, and yet the rear of the procession had not yet moved from the starting place before the head of it had returned to the park again. By actual count there were 3,000 Orangemen in the parade and over seventy lodges.

NOT WORRIED SAYS COCHRANE

TORONTO, Ont., July 14. — The Borden government is not at all worried by the reverse just met by Premier Roblin in Manitoba, says Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals, who is visiting this city to-day en route for an inspection of the Welland canal. In his estimation the favourable expression of opinion of Ontario electors will more than counterbalance the shock met by Sir R. P. Roblin.

"The results of the Provincial elections do not have any particular bearing or influence upon us," he stated. "Matters at Ottawa are running along just the same as though there had not been any Provincial election."

U. S. CRUISERS ARE SENT TO HAYTI

Special Wire to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, D.C., July 14.—The transport Hancock, escorted by cruisers, sailed from Vera Cruz this morning with four hundred marines on board, for Hayti and San Domingo where the United States proposes to land troops to establish order unless the governments of those places are able to stop the present reign of blood fed in the meantime.

THE TORONTO MARKETS

TORONTO, July 14—Receipts light, trade brisk, some prices higher; choice butchers, $8.25 to $8.65. Good veal calves, $10 to $10.75; hogs, $8.80 to $8.90, fed and watered; $9.15 to $9.20 off cars; light ewes, $6 to $6.25, spring lambs, $8 to $10.25.

CASES HEARD THIS MORNING

The cases of Mr. G. W. Hatton, liquidator of the Peterborough Cordage Company, which dissolved some years ago, against several alleged shareholders, were heard this morning, before the referee, the local Master, in the Judge's Chambers. Mr. S. T. Medd represented the liquidators, and Mr. E. L. Goodwill appeared for each of the defendants.

They were, James Might, South Monaghan; Hugh Ferguson, Newmarket, and Mrs. D. Smith, Fraserville.

In each case the defendants admitted having agreed and subscribed to stock in the company, but afterwards, they allege, they repudiated the interests they had originally intended to take. All the cases were adjourned till Thursday morning next, to allow of more evidence to be brought forward.

GOLF

The qualifying rounds for the Club Championship must be played by Saturday, July 19th. Owing to a misunderstanding as to the rules governing this contest, many players found themselves debarred from taking part in this match. In order to give everybody a chance of competing, the Executive committee has decided to have the qualifying rounds played over again.

It must be understood that only one qualifying game can be played and cards must be signed in regular order by player and opponent. Scores will be taken without regard to handicap. Cards must be handed in to the captain, Mr. Read, at the club house.

PROF. HUTT IS EXAMINING THE FAIR GROUNDS

Will Prepare Designs for the Location of the Buildings and General Laying Out of Park

WENT DOWN TO-DAY

Prof. H. L. Hutt of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, staff, is in the City to-day for the purpose of laying out the Exhibition grounds for the Fair directors. He visited the park this afternoon, accompanied by Mr. J. H. Garbutt, president of the Exhibition and Mr. Geo. A. Gillespie. Prof. Hutt will familiarize himself with the grounds and submit plans for the location of buildings, driveways, rings, etc. This is an indication that the Fair directors are decided in their course to hold the grounds for exhibition purposes.

A FINE RECORD BY PETERBOROUGH PUPIL

Miss Myrtal Succee, daughter of Mr. Maude Succee, East City, passed the Junior First piano examination with first-class honours, standing second in a list of three hundred. Miss Myrtal Succee is a pupil of Miss Ida Sanderson, 197 Brock street.

CROTHERS FOR LIEUT.-GOVERNOR

Report From Ottawa Says Minister of Labour Wants to Leave the Government

HANNA MAY SUCCEED

Examiner Special:

OTTAWA, July 14.—The appointment of Hon. Mr. Crothers to the Lieut-Governorship of Ontario, is said to be practically decided upon. Mr. Crothers wants to leave the Government. On good authority it is understood here that Hon. Mr. Crothers will be appointed Lieut-Governor and Hon. J. W. Hanna will be brought into the Borden Government and given a labor portfolio. It is believed here that as Minister of Labour Hon. Mr. Hanna would achieve considerable success.

400 AEROPLANES IN AIR PARADE

Wonderful Aerial Manoeuvres Witnessed at Paris—Big Holiday To-day

AEROPLANES FOUR ABREAST

Examiner Special:

PARIS, France, July 14.—Possibly the greatest aerial manoeuvres ever witnessed were seen here to-day when four hundred aeroplanes, flying two thousand feet in the air, four abreast in perfect military precision, flew past an assembled throng. There were no accidents, though several narrow escapes. It was a general holiday thousand feet in the air, four abreast the fall of the Bastile.

M.N.O. REPORTS RE INCINERATOR IRREGULARITIES

Lack of Proper Management by Those in Charge is One of Its Defects—Burning of Horse Flesh Should Be Stopped

OTHER BUSINESS

The Board of Health met in regular session this morning in the committee rooms of the City Council.

There were present: Dr. Amys (chairman), Dr. McPherson, M.H.O., J. Murty and Alderman Duncan.

A letter was read from Peck, Kerr and McElderry, stating that an account for $28.60 had been placed in their hands. This was for treatment in the Isolation Hospital, for Ormond Sharpe, son of Wm. L. Sharpe. As stated in the letter to the Board, the lad was taken to the hospital suffering from scarlet fever. When he had recovered from that illness he contracted measles, while still in the hospital, and in view of that fact, state Messrs. Peck, Kerr and McElderry, their client declines to pay the account as it is alleged that the lad's system was weakened and he undermined, as a result of the subsequent illness, which required three weeks' further medical treatment in the hospital, and considerable treatment subsequently.

Facts in this case, however, do not tally. Dr. McPherson stated that the lad was in the Isolation Hospital for 47 days, and the minimum time for scarlet fever is 42 days. He had therefore been only isolated five days over the minimum time, which was not uncommon. In fact it might be attributed to other causes. Further, the patient is not allowed to come out of the hospital until, in the opinion of the Medical Health Officer, the infection is entirely gone.

No action was therefore taken with the letter. The account, if not paid, will be placed in the City Solicitor's hands for collection.

Obnoxious Odours.

A letter was read, endorsed by a number of residents of the north end of Stewart street, complaining of a nuisance occasioned by Mr. W. H. Tedford, of 673 Stewart street keeping foxes. The neighbours claim that the odours arising are unhealthy.

The Board was of opinion that Mr. Tedford be politely asked to take the foxes into the country, and if he refused, he be acquainted with the fact that there is a means of putting them there. The Sanitary Inspector, however, was asked to look into the matter.

Sewers Recommended.

The Board recommended that a sewer be constructed on Cambridge street, from Elm to Cedar. Carried.

Incinerator Reported On.

The following is the report submitted to the Board of Health by Dr. McPherson this morning. Dr. McPherson was beforehand asked to investigate and report on the causes of the strong odours which have been coming from the incinerator since its erection, and about which the people in the neighbourhood have registered a complaint.

With regard to the complaints from the residents about the incinerator, I beg to report as follows:

"The residents in the neighbourhood were canvassed, and it was found that the people living on Aylmer street, from Perry to Dalhousie, have noticed a very disagreeable odour, when the wind is blowing the smoke from the incinerator towards them. This was noticed more especially in the evenings and nights. There has been but little this last few weeks. Some people have been strong in their complaints, while others have not noticed it to any great extent.

As far as I can judge, there are a number of factors that enter in to create this nuisance.

1. The burning of night soil and dead animals.

2. Imperfect combustion—possibly due to the fact that material of this kind requires a greater heat than is now being used.

3. The incinerator is just in the experimental stage in the city, and those in charge lack experience.

I would suggest that if these materials cannot be burned without the accompanying disagreeable odours, the practice be discontinued. As it stands, it constitutes a nuisance and is detrimental to health, and for this fact should not be continued."

The Board then adjourned.

USED THE PULMOTOR

Life Saving Instrument Was Used With Good Effect to Resuscitate an Italian Labourer

OVERCOME BY GAS

An Italian labourer, one of the staff employed under Mr. Martin Neary in constructing storm drains on Aylmer Street, preparatory to street paving work, was overcome by gas this afternoon at the corner of Murray and Aylmer Street. It is supposed that a gas main was leaking and as a result the Italian working at the bottom of the trench was rendered unconscious. Mr. Robert Hicks noticed his condition and telephoned to the fire hall for the pulmotor, which was quickly on the scene, as was Dr. Brown, who was also summoned, by Mr. Hicks. A few minutes' use of the pulmotor revived the victims.

A little later H. Evans, 553 Downie street, an employee of the Peterborough Gas Company, was overcome in the same way and was revived with the Pulmotor.

Caught By Local Man

Mr. Chester Mowry, of 497 Bolivar St. Lands Lindsay Pickpocket in Gaol

One pick-pocket was operating during the festivities at Lindsay, yesterday and it was through the instrumentality of a Peterborough man that he was caught. The thief relieved an old man of a ten dollar bill, but he was not clever enough to evade the eyes of those around him. After an exciting chase he was caught by Mr. Chester Mowry of 497 Bolivar street and landed safely in the Lindsay jail.

ENJOYABLE OUTING TO CLEAR LAKE

The congregation of the Gospel Hall held their annual outing to Kawartha Park, Clear Lake, yesterday. The steamer Manita carried the excursionists on the trip up the Canal to Lakefield, and on the Park, which was made in good time. The Park was reached shortly after 11 o'clock. Here dinner was served and the afternoon before the arrival of the steamer, was spent in strolling about the Park, boating and summering. The picnickers arrived home early in the evening, after what everyone termed a most delightful day.

DANGERS OF THE GERM SCARE

Senseless alarm over the revelations of the microscope may be allayed by a reaction, says the Toronto Globe. In the Globe of July 9, J. B. Fryfer, M.D., gives statistics that should suggest the folly of departing from the usage of ages to conform to uncertain theories of analysts. He points out that, while it is immaterial to four persons out of five whether they use pasteurized or unpasteurized milk, it is a serious matter to infants who live on milk. The deaths under two years old from diarrhoea and enteritis alone were 387 in 1910, 366 in 1911, and 365 in 1912. With pasteurized milk in 1913 the record was 557 deaths. The Hospital for Sick Children report gives the percentages of deaths, respectively, for the three years, 1909, 1907, and 1906, as 7.81, 13.8, and 12.7. With pasteurized milk for 1911, 1912 and 1913 the percentages were 12.7, 13.6, and 17.1. Whether pasteurization is good or bad, there is absolutely no guidance except experiment. This has shown it to be bad, both in Toronto and New York. It destroys four kinds of germs known to be injurious. It also destroys five kinds of germs known to be beneficial. In New York in 1910 the death of 5,000 infants caused an alarmed outcry. A crusade in favour of fresh milk with its natural millions of germs reduced the record in 1913 to 3,354.

The Fraser does not deal with the economic aspect of the question. Pasteurization increases the cost of milk after forcing economies and the use of unwholesome food on those least able to bear the expense. It also fosters a milk monopoly on the city, for it closes out the smaller dealers and producers unable to instal costly machinery. In this way it is a deleterious influence, and makes the procuring of wholesome food more difficult. The public if let alone would be sane in this matter. They would not turn away from the wholesome food that has sustained the race since the dawn of civilization because investigators with powerful microscopes have made vague discoveries regarding constituent elements. But the despotic control of health officers who accept every germ theory promulgated gives the people no choice. The germ theory or germ menace is in too nebulous and transitory a shape to warrant a serious change in the food of infants or the creation of city monopolies in an important line of food.

WILL BORDEN TAKE THE PLUNGE?

(Toronto Globe.

A cartoon in a politically friendly paper shows Sir Robert Borden standing hesitatingly on the brink of the general election pool waiting to see what happens to Sir Rodmond Roblin, who has just taken a "header" into the water. There is very little reason to doubt the essential accuracy of this picture of the political situation. The fact that Sir Rodmond hit his head on a log at the bottom and is still politically in a semi-unconscious condition is likely to make Sir Robert more doubtful of the wisdom of an immediate plunge than he appears to be after Sir James Whitney emerged safely two weeks ago.

Ontario, nevertheless, would do well to watch political developments very closely and put candidates into the field for the Commons at the earliest possible moment. It is not at all improbable that the Borden Government will go to the country in the fall. Ever since Sir Robert and his colleagues came to power on the understanding that they were elected to "let well enough alone," things have been going from bad to worse in a business way. Not since the panic of 1893 have there been seas of thousands of unemployed workmen in Canada at midsummer as there are at present. Every day warnings appear from men in intimate touch with the charity organizations of this and other cities to prepare for the coming winter, which we are told will be much worse than the recent one, with its harrowing experiences. The most optimistic forecasters of industrial conditions do not anticipate a marked revival in business till the spring of 1915, and some of the more gloomy prophets insist that things will be worse before they begin to mend.

This journal hopes that the prophets of evil will prove to be unreliable, but there is as much interested talk about the general prosperity of the country as any other institution that has to earn dividends for its stockholders. But it would be idle to suppose—however we may hope for and look forward to a speedy return of the prosperity which attended the Laurier Government—that members of the Borden Ministry are not carefully collecting information as to the future trend of business with the view to holding the inevitable election which looms ahead at the most auspicious time. If the Government's allies of the Big Interests can assure Sir Robert that the clouds are passing and that 1915 will see a marked improvement in business there will be no election in the fall of the present year. It is hard times that destroys most governments, and the Borden Government does not want to go before a discouraged electorate for a renewal of power. If on the other hand an election is held in October it will mean that the Government anticipates a continuance of the present slackness of trade and wishes to secure a new lease of power before the worst dip of the depression.

The drift at present is away from the Conservative party in both the Dominion and Provincial spheres. Returns from many Ontario constituencies show a heavy decline on the Conservative vote in the recent Provincial elections. In Manitoba the Roblin Government has been very badly mauled, and will not long survive. In New Brunswick the startling revelations of grafting on a large scale in relation to both Provincial the Dominion expenditures is likely to cause the destruction of the Fleming Ministry and serious injury to Conservative prestige in Dominion affairs. In British Columbia the McBride Government has lost ground very steadily in the popular estimation, although still all-powerful in the Legislature.

At Ottawa Sir Wilfrid Laurier and a very efficient Opposition have shown how reckless in financial matters and how completely under the domination of ambitious and self-seeking men like Sir William Mackenzie and Sir Donald Mann the Borden Government is. The Nationalist allies who were so potent an influence in helping the Government into power can no longer be relied upon despite the painful efforts of the French-Canadian Ministers to conciliate them. How undignified and sycophantic some of those attempts have been and how eagerly the Government angles for the vote of the Ultramontanes of Quebec is indicated by the following letter adressed by Cardinal Begin of Quebec to "the Postmaster-General and his colleagues" on his recent return from Rome:

"To the Honourable L. P. Pelletier, Postmaster-General of Canada, Ottawa.

Honourable Minister:

"I am anxious to come and thank you again, and through you, the Right Honourable Prime Minister and your distinguished colleagues for the delicate welcome that the Government of Canada has extended to the Archbishop of Quebec upon his return from Rome. Believe, Mr. Minister, that it has been a great pleasure to me to be able to greet upon my arrival in my Episcopal town, the leaders of the State.

"It is no less a pleasure for me today to tell you how highly I appreciate the very delicate hospitality the Government of Canada had the kindness to accord me on board the ship so generously put at my disposal at my arrival at Levis.

"I cannot forget, either, the eager co-operation that the leaders of the Government have given to the organizers of the feasts which have marked the return of the Archbishop of Quebec and the resplendency which this very distinguished co-operation has given to the celebration.

"I pray you, Mr. Minister, accept for yourself and the Right Honourable Prime Minister and all your distinguished colleagues, together with the assurance of my best sentiments, the expression of my most sincere gratefulness.

(Signed) L. N. CARD. BEGIN,
"Arch. of Quebec."

Despite the painful eagerness of the Borden Government to secure the good-will of Cardinal Begin and the hierarchy it is almost certain that when the general election comes Sir Wilfrid Laurier will greatly improve the position of Liberalism in Quebec. He has never owed much to the dignitaries of the Church, and on occasion some of them have opposed him with all the resources at their command and with great personal bitterness, but he is still the heor of Quebec. The star of Bourassa has proved to be but a passing comet, while that of Laurier, the greatest living Canadian, shines on wth ray serene. If in Ontario thet next election results in the return of twenty-five or thirty Liberals Sir Wilfrid will almost certainly come again to power. That is why Sir Robert Borden anxiously considers the industrial situation in this Province and the plight of Sir Rodmond Roblin in Manitoba as he stands on the bank of the general election pool. The Globe's judgment is that he will take the plunge.

THE SAME OLD BOB.

These stories from Ottawa that Hon. Robert Rogers is emerging from the practical politician class to the statesman type are evidently press agent yarns, says the Manitoba Free Press.

The Rogers that we have known in Manitoba for the past four weeks is the same old Bob—the practitioner of political methods that smell to heaven.

Hon. Bob Rogers will never be High Commissioner to London or Prime Minister of Canada.

No political party in Canada will ever give positions of such great honour and responsibility to men of his type.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Under the vicious election law placed on the Manitoba statute books by the Roblin Government, only one day after registration was available for protesting names placed on the electoral lists in Winnipeg. With bogus naturalization papers and false affidavits the Rogers-Roblin stuffing and its allies plagued the lists with hundreds of names for the recent elections. In the one day allowed them, the Liberals could do little toward gathering the evidence necessary to obtain the removal of the names improperly placed on the lists by the Rogers-Roblin "operators." Thus, by an iniquitous law and the aid of gangs of personators and repeaters from the United States operating on election day, the Conservative Ministry "loaded the dice" to save itself from defeat.

Once more indications of the slackening of Canadian prosperity which has come upon Borden rule is supplied by the figures which show the company incorporations in the respective fiscal years 1912-13 and 1913-14. In the first year, Dominion charters were taken out by 980 companies with a total capitalization of $680,752,199. In 1913-14, the number of companies seeking charters was only 758, and their capital was $426,507,899. Incidentally, the revenue of the country has suffered through the decrease. In 1912-13, the incorporation of the 980 companies brought fees totalling $804,652 into the Dominion treasury. Last year, the income was on $312,729. Far more serious than this drop in revenue, however, is the fact that the decrease in the number of companies seeking incorporation emphasizes the unfavourable financial and industrial conditions which have come with the continuance of the Borden Government in office.

Several districts which have been seeking the establishment of experimental farms within the limits or the extension of farms already established, have been told by the Borden Government that money was not available to meet their requests. The same Government, however, has millions to spent on the erection of drill halls and armouries, many of which are absolutely unnecessary. Under Borden rule, agricultural needs must take second place to the militaristic hobbies of Hon. Sam Hughes.

COUNTING THE HINDUS.

Task of Taking a Census Is an Enormous One.

The task of taking a census of India must be stupendous considering that the population of that vast country numbers over 300,000,000 persons, scattered over an area of 1,803,657 square miles.

A staff of two million persons was employed for the purpose, and the census was taken in one night in March, at a cost of only $675,000.

The difficulties were especially great owing to the long lines of railway, the big rivers on which boats travel sometimes for days without coming to the bank, the forests to which woodcutters resort, often for weeks at a time, and the numerous sacred places, which, on occasions, attract many thousands of pilgrims.

People had to be enumerated wherever they were caught. In the case of railways, for instance, all persons traveling by rail who took tickets after 7 p.m. on the night of the census were enumerated either on the platform or in the trains. The latter were all stopped at 6 a.m. on the following morning, in order to include any travelers who up till then had escaped notice.

In spite of this, and owing to the vast work done preliminarily, the results for the whole of India were received complete nine days later, and were issued in print the next day. This rapidity, as the official report mentions with justifiable pride, "is not approached even in the smallest European state."

The summary tables show that the total population of India (including the native states) on the night the census was taken was 315,156,396 (as against 294,361,056 ten years previously), of which 217,686,893 were Hindus, 66,647,299 were Moslems, 10,721,453 were Buddhists, and 3,876,202 were Christians. The literates numbered only 16,529,578 persons, and agriculture claimed the labor of 224,695,909 persons, as against 35,322,041 persons engaged in industry.

Canadian census officials have apparently some lessons to learn from India.

After the procession the lodges lined up in Victoria Park, where the addresses of the day were given. There were thousands of people in the park, and it was with difficulty that those on the platform could make themselves heard. For that reason, and because the parade had taken longer than it was expected, the addresses were limited to only a few minutes each.

Dr. Wood of Lindsay, was the chairman, and announced that owing to the fact that Col. the Honourable Sam Hughes had to take an early train out of Lindsay, he could not be present and speak. Col. Hughes had previously taken his place in the procession with the Victoria Orangemen, but on returning to the park found that by the time all of the lodges had reached the end of the march his train was about due.

Dr. Wood, in a brief address, said that the Orangemen did not want a bigotted rule, but were working to have but one language in the Public school and religious liberty everywhere. He referred to the efforts of Sir Edward Carson in behalf of the Protestants of Ulster, and remarked that if the need for such a demand ever became so urgent that it was really made, he would find man loyal Orangemen in Lindsay who would volunteer to take a place in the ranks of the Ulster forces.

Mr. J. H. Burnham was the next speaker called by the chairman. Mr. Burnham congratulated most heartily the town of Lindsay for the splendid reception they had given the visiting Orangemen, and the Orangemen themselves for the splendid turnout. He spoke of the French member who had cursed Col. Hughes because he had refused to let a certain Quebec regiment appear in a religious parade in the regular uniform. He made them attend in another uniform altogether. If they were contented to stop at anything less than the real thing, they were not in a position to criticize Col. Hughes.

"Whatever we may have done in the past," said Mr. Burnham, "we must look ahead and see what can be done in the future. We see from experience that the Roman Catholic church tries to deprive a person of his religious liberty. It was not the good Roman Catholics that the Orangemen needed to be anxious about, but those Protestants who were contented to let things remain as at present.

There would, said Mr. Burnham, have been no British Empire and no Protestant freedom had not the Battle of the Boyne resulted as it did.

Bro. Joseph Thompson, of Toronto, Grand Secretary, was the next speaker. He congratulated the members of the Orange order on the splendid showing they had made earlier in the day, and remarked that this was the fourth Orange demonstration he had attended since Saturday morning. On Saturday morning 12,000 Orangemen marched in Toronto. In Anvers Saturday afternoon he participated in the demonstration, and returned to Toronto for Sunday, for the largest church parade in the history of the Order.

To-day he was glad to see that his opinion that Orangeism was not dying down was amply demonstrated and to find that the flame of enthusiasm was burning higher and brighter than ever before. From the rugged Atlantic to the peaceful Pacific Orangeism was displaying its worth, and it was not to be forgotten, too, that the Orangewoman was displaying her worth. He spoke of the part Orangeism had played in the history of the British Empire. People had stated that Orangeism was losing its hold, but that was not the case. He urged upon the Orangemen, however, not to rest on the laurels, but to add more to their numbers and keep up a consistent effort to enlarge the Order all the year round.

It was the principle of an Orangeman to forget partyism and affiliation, and vote for principle. If the speaker had been in Manitoba the past Provincial election he would have voted for the Liberals, although he was a strong Conservative. The Roblin administration had trifled with Orangeism, and as it was sometimes charged that the Orange Order was merely the tail end of the Conservative party, he was glad to see that they were responsible for the change in Manitoba.

Bro. W. C. McBrien, of Toronto, that they proposed holding the Twelfth of July celebration in Cobourg next year, and he extended a very cordial invitation to all to visit that town on the occasion. He remarked upon the splendid reception that Lindsay had given the Orangemen, adding that Cobourg would not fall down in their arrangements in 1915. It had been said that whiskey and the Orangemen had been responsible for the return of the Whitney government, but he contended that if the Orangemen voted for Whitney in a body at all it was because of the bilingual school question. The Orange Order was formed for the betterment of humanity, and when any church, be it Methodist, Presbyterian or of another denomination, took a hand in politics, it was time for the rest to oppose it. The Orange Order was not affiliated with any political party, but voted for the rulings of the people by the representatives elected and not by any religious body.

Bro. Wm. Crawford of Toronto, congratulated all concerned in the splendid celebration. He referred to the statement that whiskey and Orangeism were responsible for Whitney's re-election, and said that Father Minnehan, a Catholic priest, was chairman at the meeting at which that remark was made, and was one of the loudest in applauding it.

Bro. W. C. McBrien, of Toronto, spoke briefly before the meeting in the park was brought to a conclusion. He had just returned from Ireland, and he said that those who did not think the Ulster volunteers were properly organized and very earnest in their purpose were very foolish. Feeling was also in favour of their attitude and on one occasion he witnessed the crew of a British man-of-war lustily cheer the volunteers.

FASHIONABLE SLUMMERS ARE APPREHENDED

Examiner Special:

CHICAGO, Ills., July 14. — Twenty prominent and fashionably dressed women and their escorts, members of three "slumming" parties, were arrested at two a.m. to-day, in a spectacular raid on Jordan's cafe, in the red light district. They were bundled into the patrol waggons despite their hysterical protests. Most of them gave fictitious names at the police station. Women detectives and women police were largely responsible for the raid.

DUSTBANE
"Catches Sweeping Dust"
And Brightens Carpets

THE clean, fine particles of Dustbane not only keep microbe-laden dust from rising, but also penetrate the fibres of the carpet, where the dust-atoms cling to them and are swept along. Thus the carpet is kept clean and bright, making it look better and last longer.

Dustbane also keeps all the dust down, kills the disease germs in it, and purifies the air. It can be used over and over again, making its cost only a few cents a week. Its value—in saving work and protecting health—is many times its cost.

If you once sweep with Dustbane, you will never afterward be without it. In order for you to try it for yourself, without the slightest risk, we make the following

Free Trial Offer

NEWS FROM THE EAST AND OF STONEY LAKE

Bellevidere, Crowe's Landing, Preparing for the Rush

STONEY LAKE, July 14. — The proprietor of "Bellevidere," Mr. R. J. Lennox, has faith in Upper Stoney Lake. Each season sees many improvements made. This year a large annex has been constructed on the hill behind the main building, which will materially increase the accommodation. The dining room has been remodeled, as well as the reception room, and the whole redecorated.

The Cottagers' Association of Upper Stoney Lake are to be congratulated for the way they keep things going, nothing seems to be neglected nor allowed to get into a state of disrepair. Their regattas are always successful and well managed.

Mr. Wm. Harris, Toronto; Mr. T. R. Craig, Peterborough; Mr. Wm Blewett, Lakefield; Messrs. A. Stevenson and C. Hartley, Peterborough; Messrs. A. B. Mitchell John Mitchell, and A. E. Klippert, Toronto; Mr. F. G. Howlett, Flushing, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Boehm, Toronto; Mrs. H. G. Jacob and Mr. W. R. Boehm of the same place; Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Lawlor, Norwood; Messrs. J. E. Kalis, H. Thorman and J. Riegel, Cleveland, O.; Mr. W. H. Parker, Mimico; Mr. E. B. Armstrong, Toronto; Mr. James Merrill, Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. Barber Cleveland, O., and Mrs. James Brown, Toronto.

The following have opened their cottages for the season: Mr. Coutts, Georgetown; Mrs. Campbell, Norwood; Mr. Richard Lees, Peterborough; Mr. Harry Buck, Mr. John Davidson, Mr. Carman Waters, Mr. Ackerman, Mr. Pekenham, Mrs. Wm. Finlay, Mr. T. Finlay, Mr. Jack Rosborough, all of Norwood; Mrs. J. D. Craig, Peterborough, Mr. R. Winch, and Mr. Alex. Gibson, Peterborough; Rev. Mr. Gibson, Toronto; Mr. Gould, Mr. Peck, Mr. A. B. Mitchell, Toronto, and Mr. Ben Simpson, Hamilton.

Mr. Rothwell and family of Toronto are occupying Mr. Cuthbertson's cottage near Crowe's Landing, while Mr. Cuthbertson is using their othes cottage on the island in the lake.

Mr. Thomas Hull of Buffalo, is camped at the head of the lake.

Mr. Puffer, who has been running a portable saw mill all winter, has quite a quantity of lumber piled on the Dummer shore.

Mr. J. E. A. Fitzgerald's saw mill at the head of the lake was burned to the ground a short time ago.

Rev. Mr. Cree of Norwood, intends building a cottage on his island.

Rev. Mr. Gibson is giving Mr. Geo. Merrow a close race in the construction of buildings on his "Isle Marie." This time he is putting up a water tower and a launch house on a cement foundation.

APPOINTMENT WAS CONFIRMED

Police Commissioners Met Yesterday—Dr. McPherson to Attend to Floggings

The Police Commissioners, Judge Huycke, chairman, Magistrate Dumble and Mayor Buller, met yesterday afternoon in the committee room of the City Buildings.

The session was a brief one, the whole of the business being transacted in a few moments.

A number of accounts were presented and passed. There was one exception, that of Dr. Morgan for $2 for services rendered, when he attended the flogging of some lads who had been convicted of theft. The commissioners were of the opinion that they should not be responsible for the debt, for, in accepting the responsibility, it would be to place the flogging as a legal means of punishment, which is not the case. In the particular instance refered to, the parents had given their consent to the boys being whipped. As the costs of the mentioned case have not yet been paid, $2 medical practitioners fee will be added.

His Worship the Mayor stated that if such a course had to be resorted to again, Dr. McPherson, the M.H.O., should supervise the administration.

The appointment of Stewart Hugh Servante as P. C. in place of P. C. Sills, deceased, was confirmed.

The Commissioners also agreed what money was due to P. C. Sills be paid direct to his wife, without probate or administration.

The Board then adjourned.

RECEPTION AT ARMY TEMPLE ON FRIDAY

At the Corps' welcome to the Officers and Band, recently returned from the International Congress, London, Eng., the following programme will be rendered by the Junior Band and Songster Brigade — Chairman, G. A. Gillespie, Esq., M. P. P.:

Selection by Songsters—"Thinking of Me."
Selection by Band—Jerusalem.
Selection by songsters—"Depth of Mercy."
Bandmaster and Leader, Thomas R. Blunt.

Owing to the Citizens' Picnic, the above programme will be given on Friday, instead of Thursday evening, as previously announced.

COUNTED EVERY MAN IN YESTERDAY'S PARADE

In another column of to-day's Examiner the number of Orangemen in the parade is put at 3,092. This is not a guess, nor even an estimate, but is the exact number of Orangemen in the parade arrived at by actual count. The count was made for the Lindsay Warder, the Review and Examiner, by Mr. Norman Laing of this City, who, with pencil and paper checked off every man that went by. As the parade took several hours to pass, was several miles long, and was comprised of 3092 Orangemen, the magnitude of his unusual and self-imposed task can be readily seen. For his efforts Mr. Laing received the thanks of the three papers mentioned above.

A BRIEF STORY OF THE VISIT OF THE SALVATION BAND IN ENGLAND

The following interesting diary of a visit of the Temple Band of the Salvation Army to England was written for the Examiner by Band Secretary E. H. Hensley, who was one of the party:

Leaving Peterborough on May 29th, we arrived in Montreal at 6.30 next morning, there to learn the sad news of the Empress. We gave a musical service in the Victoria Square at noon. At night we gave a concert in Montreal I citadel. At 11.30 we marched to the docks, escorted by the Montreal bandsmen, there to board the 'Alaunia.' We sailed at 4 a.m. Saturday, May 30th.

SCENE OF THE DISASTER.

Monday morning, May 31st, about 4 a.m., we arrived near the spot where the sad disaster to the Empress occurred. Adjt. McElhiney arranged a short service, and some of the passengers donated a splendid wreath to throw as the late Bandsman Peryer performed this sad task. Great sympathy was felt for him as he had lost his mother in the disaster. We were on board the S. S. 'Alaunia' till June 9th. We had a splendid time, special services being conducted every day, and the band played every day.

ARRIVAL IN ENGLAND.

We arrived in Plymouth on June 9th. Captain Rostrum, of the 'Alaunia,' requested the Band to play "Auld Lang Syne." We also played, "God Be With You Till We Meet Again" and "Maple Leaf Forever."

The tender pulled away from the Alaunia amidst loud cheers for the Band, docking at Plymouth at 10 p. m. We entrained for London at 11.30 p.m., arriving in the great Metropolis at 3.30 a.m., on June 10th.

We gave our first concert in London at the Marylebone Hall, which was packed by an appreciative audience, who gave the Band a great welcome.

June 11th was the reception of the delegates at Albert Hall by the General. The band headed the Canadian contingent. The Albert Hall was crowded, about 10,000 being present.

June 12th was a reception to the Canadian contingent at the Salvation Hall, the Strand.

GREAT MARCH.

On Saturday, June 13th we took part in the great march from the Thames' embankment to Hyde Park. Crowds lined the route, and the Canadian party received a great cheer all the way along the route. On arrival at the Park many large open-air gatherings were addressed by prominent Army leaders.

On Sunday, June 14th the Canadian contingent conducted the special meeting at the Camberwell Hippodrome, the Temple Band assisting.

Monday, June 16th the Band was at a large meeting in the Strand Hall and were received by Mrs. General Booth. Monday night the Band assisted at a special demonstration given by the South African party at the Kingsway Hall, presided over by Commissioner Eadie.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.

June 17th we travelled to Tunbridge Wells, the home town of some of our bandsmen. The Band had a good time. Great crowds were out to greet the band men.

On Wednesday we were back in London again to give a midday concert on the Temple Gardens' Bandstand. This is situated on the Thames Embankment in front of the Hotel Cecil. The Temple Band had the honour of being the only Salvation Army corps band that has been privileged to play on this stand.

June 18th the Band attended a great festival in the Strand Hall, at which the leading Army Bands rendered a special piece. The Peterborough Band took part and rendered a march.

On June 19th the Band headed the Canadian contingent and marched to the offices of the High Commissioner for Canada in Victoria Hall. The leading officers were presented to the High Commissioner. Adj. McElhiney and Bandmaster Peryer were introduced, the Commissioner making kindly remarks about the Band.

APPLES FOR THE BAND.

The Commissioner sent the Band two large boxes of Canadian apples, which goes without saying, was a gift much appreciated.

June 20th we visited Kilburn home corps of the late Bandsman Jones.

On Sunday, June 21st the Canadian contingent, headed by the Band, conducted special meetings all day at Ealing, the meetings being led by Commissioner Whatmore.

Monday, June 22nd we gave a musical festival at Camberwell, assisted by the Belfast I. Band.

June 23rd was the big day at Crystal Palace. The Band was on duty all day. They were chosen to play a selection at the massed band festival on the orchestra, where over 5,000 bandsmen were present, the Band making a good impression. Besides this, they took part in the great march past.

On June 24th the Band journeyed to Reading, the home town of some of our Band, giving a festival in the Forbury Gardens and a festival in the Reading Citadel at night.

TWO DAYS OFF DUTY.

From June 25th to 27th the Band was off duty to visit places they wished.

On Saturday, June 27th we all met in London to start our tour in the north. We left Kings Cross at midday by the Great Northern and travelled to Leeds and gave a concert. Sunday and Monday we were at Bradford. This is the home of some of England's best brass bands, and great crowds were on hand to hear the Band. On Monday the Band was given permission to play on the bandstand in Mannington Park. This was the first time a Salvation Army Band has ever had the privilege of playing on that band stand. During the year the very best bands of England are engaged to give concerts in that particular park, the City Council paying the band for the engagement. A collection is always taken up for some hospital or some other public charity. When the Peterborough Band played a collection was taken up for the Empress of Ireland disaster fund.

Tuesday we journeyed to Shipley theBand playing on the public band stand in the afternoon and at night giving a concert in the Army citadel.

Wednesday we journey to Keighley, the Band again playing two concerts.

Thursday was the last day of our tour, and it found us at Halifax, at which place we gave two concerts.

GREETED BY CROWDS.

At all the places in the north, our concerts were attended by large crowds. This particular section of Yorkshire is noted for its brass-bands, hence big crowds came to hear us, and the people treated us royally, and entertained in the best possible way.

Friday, July 3rd we left Halifax for Liverpool, arriving there at 12.30, We went right aboard the 'Calgarian' and sailed at 3 p.m. We played as the boat left the Princess landing stage.

We had a good trip across the Atlantic, but the weather was rather cold. On entering the St. Lawrence the weather became warmer, and we had a very pleasant voyage up the river.

On nearing the spot where the Empress went down, the Canadian officers on board, together with the Band, conducted a short service on board, the ship's purser donating a wreath and bouquet to throw on the water. The passengers stood bareheaded while the Band played several pieces. It was a very impressive time, great sympathy being expressed for the bereaved.

We arrived in Quebec on Thursday evening, but did not go ashore till Friday morning early. We took the train for Montreal, where we gave an open-air concert, and at night gave a concert in the Montreal I. citadel.

Saturday morning we started on the last lap of our journey, arriving in Peterborough at 3.30, glad once more to again reach our fair C.

The Band were away 6 weeks and 1 day, and there was no sickness (with the exception of sea sickness) or accident of any kind during the whole trip.

Will Have A Membership of 1000 in City

Col. Griffith Making Progress in Organization of Moose Lodge

Some fine dark foxes were obtained by Colonel Griffith, in Enfield, Ont., and shipped to the Orphans Home at Moose-Heart, the great Moose institutional town, recently incorporated in Illinois, by the Loyal Order of Moose. The foxes were shipped last week via Detroit, and at the latter place they were held up by the United States Customs. It was then necessary to tlegraph the Department of Agriculture to release and permit them to be taken into the States.

The Colonel also recently sent over a pair of bear cubs and a pair of coons; the latter were beautiful young animals. A smal menagerie is being gathered for the amusement of the unfortunate children, unfortunate in losing their parents, but very fortunate in having a vocational home in which to live until 18 years of age. There are over one hundred boys and girls now enrolled.

The Coonel is now in Peterborough organizing a lodge of this wonderful Order, having the greatest growth of any fraternal body in the history of the world, almost, 700,000 in eight years and 100,000 in the last year. It knows no barrier of class or creed, and has the most perfect system of protection at the lowest cost. They will establish a Club Home also within the means of working men, and Peterborough Lodge will have a membership of over one thousand. They now have, in seven days, sufficient for a charter, namely 50, headed by Mayor Buller.

STOOD FOURTH IN THE DOMINION

Remarkable Showing by Miss Margaret Mather of This City

Miss Margaret Mather, daughter of Mr. F.Mather, 16 Inverlea street, is to be congratulated on the exceptionally high standing obtained in her senior piano examination at the Toronto College of Music. Miss Mather stood fourth among those trying throughout the Dominion. Her achievement is all the more remarkable by reason of the fact that she did two years' work in one. Miss Mather is a pupil of Mr. J. H. Renwick.

HAS THE MARKET BEEN MUDDLED BY THE CITY COUNCIL'S ATTITUDE?

One of the police constables visited the market on Saturday to announce to the farmers that the by-law which the Council recently decided not to rescind would be enforced this week. It is understood his original intention was to summons any persons who were not complying with the law, and that it was only at the request of the market clerk that he postponed its enforcement for a week.

One result of the announcement promises a number of absentee farmers next Saturday. Those who are opposed to the City's new measure declare that they will show their objections to it by remaining away from the market. The clause requiring them to exhibit their names has not met with entire approval, and no attempt whatver has been made to present the new regulations in a manner that would win their confidence, and enlist their support. At one time Sanitary Inspector Spence endeavoured to perform a little missionary work, but when the Property Committee decided to recommend the repeal of the by-law he probably discontinued his efforts.

May Make a Claim.

If there is any appreciable decrease in the market tolls, Mr. Sanderson may be heard from with a claim for damages. His grounds will be that after he had taken charge of the market the Council passed a by-law which resulted in reducing his receipts.

Review of Steps.

For those interested in the question a cursory review of recent actions by the Council may be of interest. Several months ago a deputation from the Retail Merchants' Association waited on the Council suggesting that the new by-law was not in the best interests of the City, and that the question be taken up with a view to securing a solution that would be in the interests of the farmers and citizens. The Property Committee was authorized by the Council to take up the subject and was joined by representatives of the Retail Merchants' Association. It would be of interest to know exactly what was done by the Property Committee. It is known that at some time during the whole discussion of the market question, Mr. T. C. Elliott and Mr. R. S. Kingan made investigations for the Merchants and arrived at certain conclusions. There is no knowledge that the Property Committee took steps of this nature. However, it is not forgotten that at the last meeting of the Council the Committee brought in a report recommending that all the principal clauses of the by-law be rescinded. It so happened that the Woman's Council had interested themselves in the matter and they urged that the whole by-law be enforced. The details are really unnecessary, but it might be restated that Ad. Langford, Chairman of the Committee, voted in Council against the recommendation which his Committee had approved.

What Was Done.

The question naturally arises as to what the ratepayers' representatives actually did by way of fulfilling their particular duties in this instance. Did they not simply receive the suggestions presented by the Merchants' Association, pass them on to the Council, and then "stand from under," when the ladies presented their opinions. Either the committee did perform their share of the duties or they did not. If they did, why did they not substantiate their report with adequate reasons, instead of ridiculously flopping? Why did they not indicate that they had sufficiently acquainted themselves with the market conditions and requirements to arive at an intelligent opinion, if not conviction? Their action suggested chivalry in supporting the ladies in preference to their own recommendation, but that is practically its sole merit. If they did investigate the situation surely the results of their work should have been as weighty, and as worthy of consideration as the investigation carried on by the Woman's Council?

If the other hypothesis is to be accepted, the Property Committee has neglected a duty which was duly imposed upon it, and that is expressing the conclusion as mildly as possible. Nor does the Council escape as a body, escape all the responsibility.

An Important Question.

The deeper one enters the subject the worse it appears. Had the Council fully appreciated the importance of the market question would they not have so considered all its phases that there would not have been these twistings and turnings? Would not the Aldermen and Mayor have realized that simply passing their amendments was the very least of their duties? It will be observed that the existence of the new regulations is an admission that the Council fancied or knew that some changes in the market conditions were necessary. But without that admission the Women's Council and Merchants by their actions suggest the need that something required be done.

The Aldermen may be able to present a defence. If so there are a few citizens who would like to hear it, and all the ratepayers should demand to hear it. If any committee authorized to do a certain work, as representatives of the people simply acts as the mouthpiece for, or rather, merely echoes the findings of another body, the electors can scarcely regard their intelligence as having been flattered. And if these electors are prepared to accept such work from their representatives, then they do not deserve better consideration?

One final conclusion: If the citizens are willing to accept work of this kind, it must be said that their interest in the market, their appreciation of its value and their estimation of their own intelligence are not greater than what the Council displayed, with particular reference to the Property Committee.

MARRIAGE LICENSES ISSUED

THE OTONABEE MUNICIPAL RURAL TELEPHONE SYSTEM

Construction Work Being Energetically Pushed—Part of the System to be in Use by July 20th, the Remainder to Rapidly Follow

It is expected that about twenty-five instruments of the Otonabee Municipal telephone system will be in operation about July 20th. Mr. W. H. Lytle of Peterborough, the contractor for the erection of the system, was in Keene on Saturday, making arrangements for the prosecution of the work with the utmost speed, and from what is known of his energy and enterprise, there is no doubt that the work will be rapidly pushed.

There are now 135 subscribers, and it is expected that this number will soon reach the 190 mark, when the system is completed and its advantages appreciated more largely, as will doubtless result when the advantages of the possession and use of the telephone is brought home to non-users by the experience of their neighbours.

The farmers will see that the rural telephone is indispensable to a rich and prosperous farming country, such as Otonabee is. They will see that among other favourable features it will greatly lessen the monotony, and isolation of farm life, make home farm conditions more attractive and lessen the temptations for boys and girls leaving the farms. The rural telephone will put the farmers in direct touch with each other and improve the social life of the community. In case of illness or accident, no matter what the weather may be, the doctor's services are immediately available, the time spent in driving to his office often meaning all the difference between life and death. Direct and prompt connection is made between the farm and the city or village merchant. The presence of persons with whom business at distant points is to be done can be ascertained and an often times fruitless journey and disappointment avoided. Even in the matter of stray stock, 'phone enquiries in the neighbourhood will catch them, and a good deal of hap-hazard search dispensed with. In a score of other ways that will readily suggest themselves to anybody who will take the trouble to think, the rural telephone is a great advantage. Besides it will be comparatively cheap. It is expected that the entire cost will be $11,000. This divided among 175 subscribers will mean about $63 to each subscriber. The payment of this amount will extend over a considerable time, and when the payments are completed the subscriber will practically own the telephone, or his share of the telephone; his payment for a term of, say, ten years, being a trifle over six dollars a year, plus the operating expenses, which, it is expected, will be largely covered by receipts for long-distance service, etc.

It is expected that the enterprise of those at the head of the undertaking in Otonabee will be practically appreciated, and that every part of the township will fall into line in a matter that determines the standing of the Township among advanced and progressive communities.

Two years ago Mr. David Armstrong of Keene, by correspondence, got information from other places as to the advantages of the rural telephone, and he received encouragement and assistance in his investigations from the Independent Telephone Company. He laid the matter before the Township Council, which became interested, and the necessary steps were taken to legally organize the enterprise under provincial auspices.

As stated, 135 subscribers were pledged, and, as also stated, the contract was made with Mr. Lytle for the construction of the system. There are under contract sixty miles of wiring, and it is the aim of those interested to advance the work as rapidly as possible. It is proposed to extend the line from Keene, first to the west, then east, and then north. Work will be facilitated and cost lessened by subscribers having the poles ready for the use of the construction gang when it reaches their neighbourhood, as the work of placing poles, wires, and the installation of instruments can proceed without interruption or delay.

The Village of Keene will be the hub of the township telephone system. Bell[illegible] ing of Mrs. W. McFarlane, in charge of her daughter, Miss Belle McFarlane.

The commissioners in charge of the Otonabee Municipal Telephone system are Mr. Wm. Anderson, (Reeve); Mr. Fred Eason, Secretary-Treasurer, and Mr. David Armstrong, Manager.

DELAYED BY A SLIGHT MISHAP

S. A. HOME-STAYERS HAD BAND OF 29

It seems that the Salvation Army never wants for bandsmen. When the south ends, 32 in number, of the local band went to England, a mere handful remained in the city. They immediately stepped into the gap, and although their first work may not have been up to the mark, they quickly gained confidence, and under Acting Bandmaster Blunt, their numbers increased to 29. They have been playing very efficiently, and will be heard for the last time probably on Friday night. The citizens are asked not to confuse this engagement with the concert in the Park by the corps band, which toured England.

NEW DANCES POPULAR AT STONEY LAKE

STONEY LAKE, July 14.—The new dances are popular at Stoney Lake this summer. At the usual Saturday night hop at Juniper Island last week it was noticed that very few indulged in the old-time two-step and waltz. Nearly all the young people at this resort danced the one step, the hesitation and other innovations of the Terpsichorean art. The old objection of the powers that be that put a ban on the new dances at some places is fast disappearing. They seem to be popular at the resorts around Peterborough, the visitors from Uncle Sam's domains being expert exponents of them.

The number of guests at the various boarding houses is not large as yet, but the big rush does not start as a rule until the middle of July. Most of the cottages are open, and each one seems to have its quota of young people.

Dr. and Mrs. Husband and the Misses Husband, of Hamilton, are occupying their new cottage at Kawartha Park. Miss Helen Husband, who is a vocalist of note, sang at the Sunday morning service at Juniper Island.

W. Arthur Andrews, of the Toronto Star staff, is holidaying at the Victoria House, McCracken's Landing.

Miss Margaret Pikeniaru was the guest of Miss Olive Telland over the week-end.

Messrs. Grant Latimer and Bruce Regan spent a few days at the lakes, with the former's uncle, near Burleigh.

Miss Burton, of Belleville, is the guest of the Misses Wilmot on Big Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanderson, of Peterborough, are visiting with Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Stubbs for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Madison Carey, of New York City, are occupying Mr. Church's cottage at Mount Julian for the summer. Mr. Corey is manager for Henry W. Savage theatrical productions, and Mrs. Corey, is better known as Mabel Wilbur, who for five years was leading lady in the "Merry Widow."

PETES COULD NOT HIT KUBAT AND WERE BEATEN 3 TO 0 IN SECOND GAME

Senators Scored All Their Runs in the First Innings, After Which Cresswell Held Them Scoreless, But the Petes Failed to Give Him Any Runs.

SPECTACULAR FIELDING

OTTAWA, July 12.—Frank Kubat outpitched Stanley Cresswell in a duel of southpaws at Lansdowne Park this afternoon and Ottawa took the second of the Peterborough series, winning by 3 to 0. The Senators scored three runs in the first inning and Peterborough could not score on Kubat. Cresswell was found four times in the first frame, Rogers, Shaughnessy and Dolin driving in runs. After that he tightened up and the Senators could do nothing against his delivery.

Kubat held the visitors to four singles and they were too far apart to be dangerous. Shaughnessy and Rogers made great outfield catches, Bobby Dolan once forcing the Ottawa manager to rush back and make a one-handed jump at the fence for his drive. The locals had nine hits in all off Cresswell, who was somewhat liberal with his passes.

Both teams did fast work on the defensive and the only Ottawa error of the game was credited to Smykal, who threw the ball to the score board in trying to retire Blount at first in the eighth. With men on bases Kubat was invincible. All the Ottawas played snappy ball, in fact, while Peterborough gave Cresswell every encouragement, they failed to pull it out for him. Score:

FOOTBALL

There will be a practice on the Exhibition grounds on Wednesday night at 7 o'clock. Will all those players who played on July 1st at Marmora, and any others wishing a game on Saturday, come out to practice. The Deloro team plays the return game in Peterborough on Saturday evening, July 18th.

BASEBALL

Ottawa Free Press: With any kind of an even break in luck, the champions should come back strong enough to make up a whole lot of lost ground on London, and be in a position to make the series with the Reisling men in London at the end of next week a battle which will decide the top position in the race.

With one exception last week, the "breaks" of the game figured against the Senators just as they did yesterday. In their last three games, Ottawa has made five home runs and in only one of these contests were the bases occupied, and two of the games were lost by one-run margins. It was unfortunate yesterday Marshall showed so little in the first inning. He warmed up well, then after two lucky stabs by the first two Peterborough men up, was hammered for four runs.

Ottawa is playing too good baseball to stick very long in the losing groove, and it would not be surprising to see them snatch the next three from Peterborough and give St. Thomas a lacing at the end of the week.

Ottawa Free Press: Peterborough has a good-looking aggregation and a greatly improved squad all around than on their last appearance here. Dolan, who like all ball players of that name, is a first sacker comes direct from the Indianapolis Federal League club, and it is said his status as an elegible is being investigated by the Canadian league. He is a sweet hitter and a corking fielder. Fox, who wore an Ottawa suit last year for a while, is going fine at short, a place the Petes were very weak on their last trip here. The whole outfit is made up of left-handers.

Giant Italian Winner of Diamond Sculls — C. G. Sinigaglia, of the Land Club, Como, Italy who won the Diamond Sculls at Royal Henley Regatta. He beat Bob Dibble, the Canadian boy, in the semi-finals Singaglia is 6 feet, 4 inches in height and weighs 210 pounds.

There was a verbal "run-in" between Lefty Rogers and Curly Blount yesterday. When Rogers hit safely in the first inning, Shag asked for a runner for him, but Blount refused to give one. After the inning was over Rogers and Blount passed each other, and a fine crossfire also passed between the pair. "In view of Rogers' bad foot, it was a courtesy Blount might easily have granted, particularly as it was up to him who should run.

Budget of News From the Eastern Town

Special to The Examiner:

NORWOOD, July 14—Mrs. F. C. McRea and child returned last week after a few weeks with friends at Beaverton.

Mrs. D. J. Counelly and Mrs. W. L. Knapp of Toronto spent the week-end at "The Maples," the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry O'Shea, Asphodel.

Mrs. John Weir, Miss Pauline and Master Alex, with their guest, Miss Mabel Beatty of Toronto, are at Stoney Lake for the summer.

Mrs. Milton H. Minore, spent part of last week at Indian River.

Miss Jennie Calder of the City Public School staff, Calgary, Alta., is home on a visit. Miss Calder brought with her a sample of the oil taken from the recently discovered oil well in that district. The sample was given to her before leaving for the East, by Mr. R. J. Stewart, a former well-known resident of Norwood, who is fortunate enough to hold quite an area of property near the oil gusher.

Miss Athawees of Hamilton is a guest at "Onseover Place," the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Pearce. Miss Athawes will also spend a short time at Mr. W. A. F. Campbell's summer home, Stoney Lake.

Miss Gladys Wilkins was in Toronto last week.

Mrs. Clare and little daughter of Tweed, were the guests of her sister, Mrs. Rev. Irwin.

Stoney Lake Dairy Co. shipped fro mNorwood via C. P. R., on Tuesday, thirty-five boxes of cheese to Glasgaw, Scotland.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hamilton, who have been residing in Western Ontario for the last few years, have returned, and taken up residence in their former home on Ridge Street.

Mr. W. Portway has purchased from Mr. Geo. Stevens of Peterborough, the ash house on the C. P. R. property at the Station, here.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Webster were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Oiver Buck at "Hillview Place," Peterborough, last week.

The Village Council is having Ridge, Queen and Belmont Streets covered with a coating of crushed stone.

Mrs. Wallis of Toronto, who has been visiting Mrs. Grover, "Balsam Farm" for the past month, returned to Toronto ast week.

Mrs. (Rev.) Copeland was presented with an address and a handsome piece of silver pate by the ladies of the Methodist Church, previous to her departure from Norwood. Mrs. Copeand replied in suitable terms.

Rev. Father Kelly attended the retreat of the priests of the R. C. Church at St. Augustine's Seminary, in Toronto, last week.

Miss Charlotte Clements, who resides at the home of Mrs. J. F. Pearce, was successfully operated on for appendicitis at Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, last week.

Miss Muriel Searight is visiting visiting her sister, Mrs. J. Thompson of Stirling. Master Allie Thompson, who has been visiting here, returned home with her.

The marriage took place at St. Joseph's Church, Douro, Wednesday, June 24th, at 9.30 a.m. by the Rev. Father McGuire, daughter of Mr. M. Torpey, Otonabee, to Mr. John Fitzpatrick of Asphodel. The bride wore white embroidered voile over silk, and white panama hat with plumes. She was attended by Miss Anna Condon, who was also dressed in white voile. Mr. F. Y. Hurley of Peterborough was best man. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a gold pin, with amethyst settings, and to the groomsman, gold cuff links.

The bride received many costly gifts, including several substantial cheques. After the ceremony the bridal party and a few intimate friends assembled at the home of the bride, where the wedding dinner was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Fitzpatrick left on the evening train for points west, the bride traveling in a navy taffeta suit. On their return they will reside in Asphodel, near Westwood.

Mrs. Cobain of Toronto and her daughter, Mrs. Thompson of Vancouver, are the guests of Mrs. Tudhope, Ridge Street.

Messrs. Hartley and Earl Ivy spent Sunday at Stoney Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Finay and family have gone to their cottage at Stoney Lake for the summer.

Miss Gertrude Squire left last week for Montreal, from which place she sailed, on Saturday, for France. Miss Squire will be away for some time.

Mr. Fred Fry eaves this week for Belmont Lake, where he and his family will spend a few weeks' vacation. Mr. Fry has built a neat motor boat during the winter for use on the Lake.

Master Everett Finlay is spending the week at "Von Eric," the summer home of his uncle, Mr. T. E. Finlay, Stoney Lake.

Miss Una Duffield and Mr. Bonstad of Toronto were in the Village last week.

Mr. Chas. I. Puffer was at Stoney Lake on Friday.

Miss Jean Minore is visiting her former guest, Miss Jean Pollard of Pontypool. Before returning she will spend a few days with friends at Cavanville.

The induction and ordination services of the Rev. E. J. Wolland will take place on Wednesday, July 22, at 2.30 p. m. in the Presbyterian Church, Norwood. The Rev. D. A. Thompson of Hastings will preside. Refreshments will be served in the basement immediatey after the service by the ladies of the congregation. Everybody cordiall invited to be present.

The funeral of Mr. Thomas Midgley took place on Tuesday afternoon last to the Norwod Cemetery, the Revs. G. H. Copeland and A. M. Irwin officiating.

The late Mr. Midgley was a native of Yorkshire, England, and came to Canada at the age of twenty-six. Twenty-three years ago he married Miss Isabella Robertson, of Orangeville. Besides his now sorrowing wife he leaves a family of seven, viz., Richard and George of Lea Park, Alta., Jessie, Cecil, Frances, Garfield and Colin, at home. The family have the sincere sympathy of the community.

Mrs. (Rev.) Wolland and daughter, Irene, arrived in Norwood on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Rork and Master Perrin have gone to Stoney Lake for the summer.

Miss Alitha Duffield, who has been spending the last couple of weeks at Sharbot Lake, returned home last week and left on Sunday to spend the remainder of the vacation at Stoney Lake.

The Village Cuncil met on Wednesday evening, July 1st. Present, Reeve Squire, in the chair, and Councillors Hendren, Portway, Morrison and Pakenham. The following accounts were presented:

J. Puffer, salary, $20; work, $27.20. R. H. McLaughlin, work, $4.01; G. T. Puffer, work, $2.70; W. C. Harrison, second quarter electric light, $177.50. Moved by Mr. Hendren, seconded by Mr. Pakenham, that the account for construction of cement walk be paid to Harold Elliott when ever the work is completed to the satisfaction of the Reeve. Carried.

The regular meeting of the Board of Education was held on Monday evening, July 6th. The following members were present: Messrs. E. P. Cuffe, chairman; T. Burkell, J. Marks, J. Doherty, D. McNaughton, Wm. Cuthbertson and E. H. Scott. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The Chairman reported that at present the insurance on the Public School building, contents, and woodshed, amounted to $5,500.

Moved by Mr. Cuthbertson, seconded by Mr. Burkell, that the above-mentioned property be insured for $7,000, divided between three tariff companies.

Moved in amendment by Mr. McNaughton, seconded by Mr. Scott, that the insurance be placed in the Gore and Economical Co. The motion was carried.

The report of the boiler inspector was read.

Moved by Mr. Cuthbertson, seconded by Mr. Marks, that a 16 inch chimney be built from the ceiling of the second storey in the Public School, and that a 16-inch stack be connected with the boiler, entering the chimney directly over the boiler. —Carried.

This, it is thought, will eliminate the smoke trouble in connection with the same.

The Property Committee's report re renovating in the Public School was read from the chair. The Committee recommended the kalsomining of the walls as well as fixing some of the ceilings; also the painting of the porch over the new boiler, and a new conductor pipe of the eave-trough.

Moved by Mr. McNaughton, seconded by Mr. Scott, that the report of the Property Committee be accepted, and that the work recommended therein be done during the vacation.—Carried.

The following accounts were passed: John Weese, painting blackboard, High School, $3; W. H. Tucker and Bro., examination supplies, $21.65; Advisory Committee accounts, $25; R. Lees, expense re examination., $62.95; J. W. Rork, plumbing, $67.

A number from Norwood drove over to Hastings on Wednesday last, and joined the Presbyterian Sunday School in their excursion up the river to Jubilee Point. A very enjoyable time was spent by all.

Miss Florence Foster arrived from Calgary on Tuesday night last for a two months' visit with her sister, Mrs. John Marks, Hastings Road.

Guarding Against Business Blight

SUMMER dullness is more a fiction of the imagination than an inevitable fact. The wants and needs of men and women do not cease when summer comes.

The summer brings its own new demands—for clothing, food, beverages, enjoyments, and pleasures and comforts of many kinds.

The summer has its own activities and plans which call for the expenditure of money.

Money is spent just as freely in summer as at any other season. Advertisements of merchandise and service of every description are read in summer with undiminishing interest and responsiveness.

Those who find business dull in summer are those who relax their own efforts to maintain and develop business.

It rests with the business men of this community whether or not the so called "summer dullness" blights their businesses daring June, July and August. Let them withdraw their public appeals—their newspaper advertising—to the buyers of this community, and the money which their customers and possible customers are spending or are ready to spend will be spent with others or else may not be spent at all.

You can obtain helpful advice on advertising free of cost and without obligation by consulting the Business Department of the "Examiner".

THE CARE OF STARTERS.

Heldt Warns Against Their Use as Playthings.

P. M. Heldt, in a talk on "Self-starters" before the Automobile School of West Side Young Men's Christian Association last week, said that the best way to take care of self-starters was not to "monkey" with them."

"Many men," said the speaker, "mystified by the device, wish to take it apart to see how it is made. Overcome that temptation, for few men know enough about such things to take them apart and put them together again properly. Self-starters were made to start your motor, not for playthings. They were in proper adjustment when the manufacturer sold them, and experimenting with them will only lead to trouble. Self-starters require only a few simple attentions.

"An occasional drop of oil is necessary and this should be applied at regular intervals. Do not wait for the bearings to run dry. Remember that the battery must not become entirely discharged. A simple little tester, which costs a dollar or so, will tell the condition of the battery, and the investment is worth while. In winter, or at any other time the car is laid up for a long time, the battery should be charged once a month to keep it from deterioration."

THE STORY OF THE BIBLE IN MOVING PICTURES

Part I of the Creation Series Shown at the Grand Opera House

And now the old Bible stories are to be brought home to us in the "movies." Beginning Sunday afternoon and continuing for two weeks, with two exhibitions daily at 3 and 8 o'clock p.m., with the exception of Saturday nights, the photo-drama, "Creation," will be shown at the Grand Opera House, by the International Bible Students' Association. These exhibitions are entirely free to the public and no solicitation of funds made in any manner.

After many months of preparation and great expense, this wonderful series of pictures and films illustrating the history of the Bible from the creation to the present day, has been completed and is being shown in the principal cities of the country.

The plan is to encourage Bible Study, and the movement is non-sectarian. Famous paintings of great events in history have been reproduced upon the screen, and there will be also pictures of what the world looked like before there was life, and tracing through the various epochs down to the present era.

The preparation of the films used in the exhibitions has involved considerable expense and activities conducted in all parts of the world. The cameras have been carried into the Holy Land, and there on the Mount of Olives and in Jerusalem have been found the backgrounds for re-enacted tragedies. Nature has not changed the face of the land of Palestine much for so many centuries, and the houses and the customs and dress are much as they were before the Christian era. Men of many nations have participated in the acts of the great photo-drama, showing to those of this present day how the people of old lived, acted and died as they played their parts in the great scenes of the ages. All the accessories for the production of the photo-drama of creation have been carefully arranged.

Building of Ark Shown.

We have Noah building the ark of gopher wood. Here are actual beams. The godly patriarch supervises the construction. His sons aid him. The unbelievers come to jeer. All is carried on with all the realism which one would see in shipbuilding of this age. Then approaches the time for the animals to enter two by two, and they do, as though they were going into the great vessel as they did in days of old. The best zoological collections have been brought into requisition for the spectacle. Then the rains descends and the floods come and the Great Deluge sweeps the earth and destroys the lives of animals and of men who are not within the protecting walls of the floating ark.

The reels change and we are in the land of Egypt, where the children of Israel worked in bondage under the scourges of the Pharaohs. A convincing representation it is when the plagues fall upon the stricken land and the Hebrew slaves are passed over, unhurt.

Parables of Christ Illustrated.

Not only the historical portions of the Bible are shown, but also the teachings of the Master are made plain in pictures. It was said by Christ that it was easier for a camel to enter the needle's eye than for a rich man to enter the Kingdom of heaven. Many who have applied this text too literally have held the belief that their wealthy neighbours could no more attain everlasting bliss than the tall humped camel could force his way into the eye of the cambric needle in mother's sewing basket.

The moving picture shows the camel actually at one of the small doors in the gate of the walls of Jerusalem, the Needle's Eye. It is possible for the camel, by getting down on his knees to get through, but in order to succeed he must first be divested of his burden. The camel driver removes everything, and after he has managed to get the ship of the desert safely through, he drags and pahks and saddles and clothes after him and reloads the beast.

The entire production requires about eight hours to be presented. Hence it is divided into four sections, which will be shown in consecutive order, the programme changing twice each week during the present engagement at the Academy of Music.

Yesterday Parts One of the drama was presented, which carries the Bible story from the creative "days" of Genesis through the historical account of the Deluge and the touching experiences of the Patriarch Abraham, culminating in his test of faith in the Lord's command to sacrifice his son Isaac. All of these subjects are graphically portrayed in moving pictures and stereopticon views, and a phonographic lecture accompanying details the stories and conclusions the pictures are to teach. The phonograph also furnishes the musical programme, which consists of an elaborate overture and choruses during the impressive scns.

Part One of the Photo Drama will b shown to-night at 8 and 8 p.m. o'clock, and on Wednesday Part Three wil lbe presentd.

A countryman was enjoying his first visit to London. He strolled about the streets, and gazed with wonder and admiration at the shop windows. Soon he came to a lawyer's office, where, of course, there was nothing for sale. This surprised him, so he opened the door and walked in. In the room sat two clerks, hard at work writing. "What do you sell here?" asked the countryman. One of the clerks, thinking to get some fun of the visitor, replied, "Fools." "You must have had a quick sale, then, to have only two left," retorted the countryman.

Stock Markets

Special to A. H. Stratton & Co.

NEW YORK, July 13—The Stock Market continued its downward move showing I was right when I told you Saturday that the decline had only just started, and I trust that you are all out of your long stocks at the high prices of last Thursday, and that you are short besides. Of course if you wait to see whether we are right and if you did not sell anything last week, after we turned around and told you to go short of stocks, then you are in a very precarious position, and you will no doubt believe a reliable source. It doesn't do to monkey with a buzz saw, and we are not wrong so often. We advised you to stick to the short side of the leaders as well as BO, ATT, Co, ATCH, and we see no reason why anybody should want to be long of MOP when it is almost certain to be assessed more or less heavily. Would sell CA, around 190 and anything that rallies two points.

—x—

NEW YORK, July 14. — Closing Letter.—A somewhat further improvement was scored in late afternoon, but the market moved very slowly, and some observers said that the short interest was increasing instead of becoming reduced. There was some buying of Union Pacific on expectation of a decision favourable to the company in the matter of proposed distribution of roads holdings of B.C., and a few traders bought the former stock and sold the latter. The technical position of Union Pacific seemed to be good. In connection with the strength of M.O.P. it was argued that the recent decline discounted everything of an unfavourable nature that could occur and that short interest of great extent had been created in the stock.

McCORMICK IS ELECTED

Recount in East Lambton Goes in Favour of the Liberals

SARNIA, July 15. — By the decision of his honor Judge MacWatt, rendered at the close of the recount proceedings late last night, the East Lambton seat in the recent Ontario contest has been awarded to Robert John McCormick, the Liberal candidate. Conservatives say they will carry the decision to the Court of Appeal. No less than 123 ballots were found in the ballot box with the counterfoil and printed numbers attached, which has been held to be against the law in a number of previous election cases. Of these, 77 ballots are marked for Martyn, and 46 are marked for McCormick. The 123 ballots with counterfoil attached are from the polling subdivision of Thedford. If these ballots were counted they would give Dr. Martyn a majority of 31 in that polling subdivision. If, however, on the other hand, they were declared illegal, it would give Robert McCormick, the Liberal candidate, a majority in the riding of about 25. Then again, if these disputed ballots are allowed, Dr. Martyn, the Conservative member-elect, will have a majority of nine or eleven in the riding. Judge MacWatt held a count at his chambers last night, when the case was argued by the legal representatives of the respective candidates, and decided in favor of Mr. McCormick.

Judge Reserves Judgment.

WOODSTOCK, July 16. — County Judge Wallace yesterday morning reserved judgment in the South Oxford recount, and it is probable that the case will not be decided for some days. Forty-five ballots are under dispute, but most of the objections are of a minor nature, several ballots having been marked in ink, blue pencil, etc. Others are numbered and these have distinguishing marks upon them, which is claimed to be contrary to the act.

W. A. Sinclair, Conservative candidate, has a majority of four, and both sides are hopeful that the final decision will be in their favor. Col. T. B. Mayberry was the defeated Liberal candidate.

Johnny: It's funny, ain't it, that everybody in our family's some kind of an animal?

Father: What do you mean?

Johnny: Why, mother's a dear, baby is a little lamb, and I'm the kid, and you're the goat.

TWO WOMEN ARE KILLED

Double Fatality at Mt. Albert Yesterday When Sisters Are Met by Express

NEWMARKET, July 15. — A tragedy was caused at the C. N. R. crossing at Mount Albert yesterday morning by the apparent haste of the Misses Louisa and Mary Starr, who lost their lives, when the C. N. R. express crashed into the buggy, in an attempt to pass over the tracks in front of the on-coming train. Two horses were also cut to pieces, and the vehicle completely demolished.

The accident occurred at 11.40 a.m. The girls were driving into Mount Albert from the east, and the train was proceeding north. The danger at this point is enhanced by a thick growth of bushes, which precludes the railway traffic from the sight of those approaching the crossing.

In this particular instance it appears that the two girls were aware of the presence of the train in the vicinity, but thinking they could "make" the crossing, continued on their journey, which had such a tragic result.

The train, which was moving at a high rate of speed, reached the crossing as the horses and buggy were squarely on the tracks. Death was instantaneous, the bodies were cut to pieces.

Coroner J. H. Wesley and jury visited the scene of the accident shortly after noon and adjourned the inquest for a week. The Misses Starr had managed a farm at Whitechurch since their father's death nearly two years ago.

"FOURTEENTH" IN FRANCE.

Entire Nation Turns Out to Celebrate the Fall of the Bastile.

PARIS, July 15. — Half a million Parisians, celebrating the fall of the Bastile, were thrilled yesterday at the opening by the President of the republic's annual review of the Paris garrison, when twenty military aeroplanes rose at the far end of the Longchamp's race course and in perfect alignment of fours swished at full speed past the Presidential stand.

A mighty roar of enthusiastic cheering swept over the ground and this was kept up as the 30,000 troops, comprising cavalry, artillery, infantry and other branches marched in close order before the reviewing stand.

Another minute of unitterance was provided at the close of the review by a charge of 2,000 cuirassiers in bright steel breastplates and brass helmets, waving their swords, who galloped at full speed in a single line to within 30 paces of the President.

Fireworks displays, military bands, public dancing, free performances at theatres, both afternoon and evening, in Paris and all the other cities, towns and villages of France, are all provided at the expense of the Government.

RESTITUTION TO BE ASKED.

Southampton Railway Will Be Made to Refund $40,500.

OTTAWA, July 15.—When the report of A. R. Pringle, K.C., who investigated the cost of the Southampton Railway of New Brunswick, is made the Government will take steps to force restitution of the subsidy which the commissioner states was fraudulently obtained from the Dominion.

The ordinary subsidy is $3,200, but where the cost of the road runs up to $21,000 a double subsidy is paid. In the case of the Southampton Railway the figures of cost were padded so as to make it appear $21,000 a mile and $6,000 a mile on the recommendation of Mr. Johnson was paid the road. The road is some 13 miles long, and the total subsidy paid was $81,000. The Government will take force restitution of half this amount, or $40,500. The Department of Railways and Canals accepted the recommendation of its engineer, E. V. Johnson, who has been suspended.

Arbitrator Agreed To.

GENEVA, Switzerland, July 15.—The Swiss Government has officially acceded to the request made by both Greece and Turkey for the appointment of an arbitrator to settle the differences between these two countries in the event of the negotiations which are now going on at Smyrna failing. A Greece-Turkish commission is endeavoring to reach a settlement on the emigration question and an exchange of property belonging to Greek and Turkish refugees.

Dragged By Horses.

GUELPH, July 15.—A serious accident occurred yesterday morning when Mr. Robert Caulfield, a farmer near Arkell, almost lost his life. He was mowing in one of his fields, touching the highway. Something went wrong with the mowing machine and the horses ran away. Mr. Caulfield was thrown to the ground and dragged the length of the field. He was badly hurt, and is in a critical condition.

Master Painters Convene.

BELLEVILLE, July 15. — The eleventh annual convention of the Canadian Association of Master House Painters and Decorators was opened in this city yesterday with a large attendance of delegates from all parts of the Dominion. President George Metcalfe, of Hamilton, delivered his annual address and a number of papers were read. The convention will last until Friday afternoon.

TAKES NO CHANCES.

Carranza Moves On to Capital Whether Huerta Stays or Goes.

WASHINGTON, July 15. — Although the resignation of Gen. Huerta is confidently expected by the State Department and Washington diplomats to occur at any moment, the the Constitutionalists, unaffected by the news, are pressing hard their military campaign on Mexico City.

Official despatches revealed that Gen. Villa with 15,000 men was ready for a rapid advance on the Mexican capital, and that Gen. Obregon's forces at Guadalajara were prepared to sweep onward within a few days. Although officials have not been given much to predictions, they now firmly believe the Constitutionalists will be in Mexico City in two or three weeks regardless of what the Huerta Government may do.

Huerta Enjoys Himself.

MEXICO CITY, July 15. — President Huerta was the guest of honor of the French colony at a celebration at Chapultepec Park yesterday, in commemoration of the fall of the Bastile. The President was also often during the course of the day in various public places, and, so far as could be learned, no preparations are being made for his possible departure from the capital.

Many Mexicans joined with the French residents in celebrating the holiday. Most of the stores were closed, and the buildings in the principal streets were decorated with French and Mexican flags.

St. Clements is Liberal.

WINNIPEG, July 15. — St. Clements was added to the list of safe Liberal seats by additional figures received from that constituency yesterday morning. Three missing polls give Hay (Con.) 66, and Ross (Lib.) 50. With one poll to hear from, where there are less than 30 names on the list, the vote now stands: Hay 882, Ross 1,025, or a majority of 143. This makes the standing: Conservatives 25, Opposition 31. There will not likely be any change unless such should occur through some recounts which may be demanded.

"PEBLO"

The Glass of Quality

We haven't any doubt but that most people value their eyesight sufficiently to want to take the best care of it. That is why we went to the expense of securing for our Optical Trade the Highest Grade of Lenses that can be made and which we handle exclusively under the trade mark "PEBLO." We believed our patrons would appreciate having their eyeglasses fitted with this superior quality lens, and after two years exclusive use of "PEBLO" Lenses, we are well satisfied with the result, judging by the hundreds of satisfied customers whom we have fitted with these beautiful lenses. It is interesting to know that in spite of the expense of procuring "PEBLO" Lenses the prices to our patrons are no more than when we used other makes of lenses, this being due to the large quantity we buy at a time. We manufacture these "PEBLO" Lenses from the finest "PEBLO" glass, in our own lens grinding department.

Any kind of lens duplicated while you wait, and all work guaranteed.

AMENDING MEASURE GETS THIRD READING

Marquis of Crewe Says in Closing Stage of Debate That an Agreement Will Be Easily Reached

LONDON, July 15.—The House of Lords yesterday passed the third reading of the bill to amend the Irish Home Rule Bill, and sent it across to the House of Commons for consideration.

On suggestion of the Marquis of Crewe, the bill was read a third time without a vote being taken.

In the closing stage in the Upper House the Marquis of Crewe, Liberal leader, took part in the debate on the bill, and indirectly promised that the attainment of an agreement in regard to the elimination of the time-limit, by which the counties of Ulster were allowed to vote on the question of their exclusion for a period of six years from the operation of the Home Rule Bill, did not prove difficult. He said, however, that the area of the portion of Ireland to be excluded had been so greatly enlarged by the Unionists that it would be a vexed and critical question. The Unionists, he argued, had failed to explain how they proposed to meet the inevitable objections to exclusion of the Roman Catholic counties of Ulster and their friends elsewhere in Ireland.

The Marquis of Crewe concluded

by asking for the exercise of patience and forbearance, and firmly hoping for a successful solution.

The Marquis of Lansdowne, the Unionist leader, reiterated that nothing short of the Unionist amendments could avert the imminent peril that was threatening. He said this was his explanation of the demand for the total exclusion of the Province of Ulster, and he complained that the Government had given the Unionists no assistance whatever in the task of avoiding civil war.

Before the passage of the third reading of the bill, the Earl of Dunraven moved the insertion of a new clause providing that the King might by an order-in-Council, suspend the operations of the Home Rule act until a commission should have reported on the constitutional relations of Ireland to the other parts of the United Kingdom. He argued that by means of such a commission there would be hopes of creating a situation that might lead some day to a satisfactory final settlement of the whole problem, and that peace might be achieved without dismemberment.

Lord Dunraven's motion was adopted without division, although it aroused no enthusiasm. The Marquis of Lansdowne said it was vague and open to the objection of putting the whole Empire into the melting-pot on the chance of getting the Government out of a purely domestic difficulty. Affairs in Ulster, he continued, brooked no delay, and under no circumstances would his side of the House accept the clause as a substitute for their own amendments. But if these were accepted and incorporated in the act, there might be considerable advantage in the proposed inquiry.

Lord Morley of Blackburn, in behalf of the Government, described it as a purely academic proposition brought forward at the moment of the crisis, for which there was no precedent. With regard to the other amendments adopted by the House of Lords, he said their effect would be to embitter relations and increase the difficulties of a settlement. They amounted virtually to to elaborate method of rejecting the bill. It would have been far more straightforward, he declared, if they had voted for Lord Willoughby de Broke's motion for the rejection of the amending bill.

Carson Hurries To London.

BELFAST, July 15. — Sir Edward Carson left unexpectedly for London last night by the Liverpool steamer, having been recalled by a telegram from Westminster.

Addressing the Ulster volunteers at a tattoo in the grounds of Craigavon, he said: "I am returning on the one and main business of my life. I have made up my mind to carry out the covenant to the very end, and I hope you will do the same."

MORE HINDUS COMING?

Agitator In Bombay Is Negotiating for 500 More.

VANCOUVER, July 15.—Negotiations are now being carried on by an East Indian styling himself Behari Lal Verma, as secretary of the American Indian Colonization Co., with Towner, Jones & Co. of Bombay, for a vessel capable of carrying 500 third class Hindus via the Suez Canal to Halifax. Verma failed in chartering a boat in Hong Kong for the same purpose. The protector of emigrants, the Government official in Bombay, has not yet agreed to issue permits for the proposed 500 emigrants to Canada.

A call for 400 volunteers among the Hindus residents of Canada to go to India about the time the Komagata Maru sails back and to preach sedition there with the Maru passengers is now being issued here.

Hindus have also gone east in order, it is said, to get into the United States and come west to the Pacific coast states, and raise additional volunteers there to make the total number 1,000.

Three Girls Drowned.

WESTFIELD, Mass., July 15.—Three girls, patients at the Tuberculosis Hospital, were drowned while bathing in the Westfield river yesterday, in company with about 20 other patients. Most of the girls could not swim and were unable to aid their companions. The drowned were Fannie Gold, 14, and Bella D. Steinberg, 15, of Boston, and Annie E. Linehan, 13, of Chelsea. The girls were in charge of a nurse from the hospital and stepped into a hole about 16 feet deep, some distance from shore.

A WONDER WORKER

"It heals like magic," is a favourite expression when Dr. Chase's Ointment is used. It works quickly, stops all itching at once, often heals in a single night. For eczema, salt rheum, barbers' itch, skin irritations or eruptions, it is a most satisfactory treatment. Being antiseptic, it prevents blood poisoning.

IS A GREAT MUSICIAN

SIR EDWARD ELGAR IS ENGLAND'S LEADING COMPOSER.

The Man Who Dominates Music in Britain To-day Looks More Like an Army Officer Than a Writer of Symphonies—He Had Little Help When He Was a Boy and Was Forced to Struggle Hard.

At the first concert this winter of England's leading musical society—the Philharmonic—Fritz Kreisler, one of the world's leading violinists, played a new concerto by England's leading composer, Sir Edward Elgar. "An Admirer" contributed the following article to The London Daily Mail:

The personality of Sir Edward Elgar dominates English music to-day, and yet at the first glance you would never take him for a musician. There are none of the traditional trappings of the composer about him—no long hair, or velvet coat, or flowing tie. Such things he despises as affectations. One should be a man first and a musician afterwards, so he thinks. With his closely-cut iron-grey hair and his military-looking moustache, you would probably set Elgar down as a retired colonel or a distinguished lawyer or politician — anything, in fact, but a composer. And yet a second glance will make you feel that you are looking at a very remarkable face—the face of a great thinker, with the eyes of a visionary. Such is Elgar to the outside; the man as his friends know him would require many pages. To strangers he appears as a reserved, almost taciturn man, but there never was a more charming and genial companion to those who know and understand him.

Apart from his great musical gifts, Elgar has a remarkable personality, and as a matter of fact there never was a composer who talked less about his work. You might chat with him for hours, and, if you did not know, would never suspect him of being a musician. On science, politics, literature, and other subjects he has many things to say that are worth the saying but he has a special aversion to talking "shop" about music, and there are, indeed, not a few people who have met with unmistakable rebuffs when they have tried to get his views on certain musical questions.

Elgar has the gift of attracting people; his circle of friends could be many times larger if he wished it. He is gifted with a delightful vein of humor, and is never so happy as when he is telling or listening to a good joke. Many an orchestral player can tell you of his dry humor at rehearsals, and they could also tell you of scathing remarks when things go wrong, for he is somewhat quick-tempered and severe on incompetence.

He likes a country life. For years he lived on the beautiful Malvern Hills, and now he has a house in a charming spot on the outskirts of Hereford Town. He has no hobbies, but is clever at a good many things. Like Caruso, he is gifted with the pencil and is an excellent caricaturist. Some time ago chemistry took up some of his spare time. But now, apart from his work and social relaxation, his time is spent in the country, for which he has always has a passionate fondness, and golf is almost his only relaxation.

Elgar's career has been an extraordinary one. He has won his way to the front rank against many adverse circumstances. As a boy in Worcester he was without money and influence and cut off from the musical world. He had to fall back upon his own resources. But there were books, and he and one or two other boys (now well-known citizens of Worcester) met almost daily, and were wont to talk of things which were far outside the humdrum philosophy of the old cathedral city's life.

Elgar has often jokingly said that the only music lesson he ever got was one given him by his father when he was eight years old. The boy was sitting one day at the table with a piece of paper on which he had ruled some lines. "What are you doing?" said Elgar senior. "Writing music," was the reply. "Well, don't you know that music is written on five lines, not four lines?" was the father's comment on seeing that his little son (doubtless having seen some Gregorian music on four lines had only ruled four lines on his piece of paper.) If his boyhood, indeed, had been spent in a more musical centre, doubtless Elgar would have been made a prodigy, for at fifteen he was writing music, and before that age he was a good player on the organ and violin.

In a way this exclusion from the musical world in earlier life has made him the individual force in music that he is, for his genius was free to mature unhindered by outside influences. But it meant twenty years' work, with scarcely any recognition till the end of that time. Everything in music Elgar has taught himself, and perhaps one of the secrets of his success, as in so many other cases, is that industry which is certainly the hand-maid of genius. Elgar has always been a marvellously quick worker. Erratic, he may do nothing for months, and then, when the creative impulse seizes him, work day and night to set down his ideas.

It is obviously impossible to attempt anything like a final estimate of Elgar's ultimate position as a composer. But no English musician has ever attracted so much attention, both at home and abroad, by his music. He is one of the half-dozen composers of to-day whose new works are awaited all the world over with eagerness. Individuality and sincerity are the two great essentials of his music. From every page of his music one can tell its authorship, and every page we feel is written as the outcome of a genuine emotion, and not in any way manufactured. In some ways Elgar has not been an innovator in music, and has not opened up new spheres like Strauss or Debussy. He has been content to take the musical apparatus largely as it was left by composers before him. But with this he has created music that is absolutely and entirely individual to himself.

LOSING HOPE
WOMAN VERY ILL.
Finally Restored To Health By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Bellevue, Ohio.—"I was in a terrible state before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My back ached until I thought it would break, I had pains all over me, nervous feelings and periodic troubles. I was very weak and run down and was losing hope of ever being well and strong. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I improved rapidly and today am a well woman. I cannot tell you how happy I feel and I cannot say too much for your Compound. Would not be without it in the house if it cost three times the amount."—Mrs. CHAS. CHAPMAN, R. F. D. No. 7, Bellevue, Ohio.

Woman's Precious Gift.

The one which she should most zealously guard, is her health, but it is the one most often neglected, until some ailment peculiar to her sex has fastened itself upon her. When so affected such women may rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a remedy that has been wonderfully successful in restoring health to suffering women.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

CHRISTMAS IN THE OLDEN TIME.

The wassail round, in good brown bowls,
Garnished with ribbons, blithely trowls.
There the huge sirloin reeked; hard by
Plum porridge stood, and Christmas pie.
Nor failed old Scotland to produce,
At such high tide, her savory goose.
Then came the merry maskers in,
And carols roared with blithesome din.
If unmelodious was the song,
It was a hearty note and strong.
Who lists may in the mumming see
Traces of ancient mystery.
White skirts supplied the masquerade,
And smutted cheeks the visors made.
But, oh, what maskers richly dight
Can boast of bosoms half so light!
England was merry England when Old Christmas brought his sports again.
'Twas Christmas broached the mightiest ale;
'Twas Christmas told the merriest tale.
A Christmas gambol oft could cheer
The poor man's heart through half the year.
—Sir Walter Scott.

TODAY.

Today is your day and mine, the only day we have, the day in which we play our part. What our part may signify in the great whole we may not understand, but we are here to play it, and now is our time. This we know. It is a part of action, not whining. It is a part of love, not cynicism. It is for us to express love in terms of human helpfulness. This we know, for we have learned from sad experience that any other source leads toward decay and waste. —David Starr Jordan.

The Colossus of Rhodes.

The gigantic Colossus of Rhodes was one of the seven wonders of the world. It was erected in honor of the sun by Chares of Lindus, a disciple of Lysippus, and was thrown down by an earthquake about 224 B. C. The figure stood upon two moles, a leg extended on each side of the harbor. A winding staircase led to the top of the figure, from out of the eyes of which were visible the coast of Syria and the ships sailing on the coast of Egypt. The colossi were the peculiar characteristic of eastern art and were of common occurrence, many of them being over sixty feet in height. The most celebrated is the statue of Memnon, on the plain of Thebes, described by the historian Strabo.

Widows' Caps.

The widow's cap is a survival of an old Roman custom. Widows were obliged to wear their weeds for ten months, and the bereaved woman shaved her head as a token of mourning. Naturally the widow could not very well appear in public with a bald head, so dainty caps were made in order to hide the disfigurement. The cap still remains, though the immediate necessity for its existence has long passed away.—Pearson's Weekly.

THE KORAN IN TURKISH.

How the Sacred Tradition of Centuries Has Been Broken.

Nine out of ten foreigners usually think of the Koran as being written in the Turkish language, while, as a matter of fact, it is written in Arabic and in Arabic characters. The Turkish language, strange as it may seem, has no characters of its own, and Turkish books are usually printed with Arabic or Greek characters; hence the excitement in religious circles in Turkey on the appearance of the Koran for the first time in the Turkish vernacular.

The translation has been done by Ibrahim Bey Hilmy, a learned oriental, who by giving Turks an opportunity of expressing their religious sentiments in their own mother tongue will doubtless be suitably rewarded by both church and state.

The sheik ul Islam at Constantinople heretofore prohibited the publication of the Koran in the vernacular on the plea that since no translator could strictly conform to the original he would be sure to make mistakes and those mistakes would be sacrilege. In this the sheik has usually been supported by the prime minister and the Young Turks, who, in spite of the liberal ideas on religion that some of them are known to entertain, cannot go against popular feeling on so important a matter. But it seems that Ibrahim Bey Hilmy, who is master of both Arabic and Turkish, to say nothing of Persian, Hebrew and Greek, has produced a translation which the leaders of Islam by a majority applaud. Thus is it that the sacred tradition of centuries is broken.—Constantinople Cor. New York Times.

Seasons Indoors.

There is nothing much more insidious in the whole net of habit that is always being wound about us than the growing claims of certain pieces of furniture to be used in certain ways. I do not mean to advocate a state of daily instability in one's surroundings, where nothing has a place of its own and you can never find a buffet or a coalbox when you want it. Still, to allow summer and winter to go by without any proper recognition within the house beyond stuffing a painted fan in the fireplace and sticking up a few muslin curtains is simply miserable.—London News.

AN AMAZING SALE.

Spurious Pictures Had Been Collected at Big Prices.

Pictures were cheap in Newcastle, England, recently, when the greatest "bargain sale" of modern times, the disposal of the Shipley collection of reputed old masters, began.

There were some 2,500 pictures in the collection, which was left by the late J. A. D. Shipley to the Newcastle Town Council. A report on the collection was prepared for the council by Sir Walter Armstrong, and Mr. E. R. Dibdin, in which they said:

"Many of the frames and a few of the canvasses bear the names of famous artists of the first class, such as Holbein, Rubens, and Corot. But in no instance is there any perceptible ground for such ascription."

In the result, the bequest was declined by Newcastle, and Gateshead exercised its option and selected some of the pictures, leaving the remainder to be sold by auction. The first day's sale produced a total of $2,540 for 120 lots, which gives an average of rather less than $25.

Picture collecting was Mr. Shipley's hobby, and it is said that he would advance any sum of money on a picture and never dream of wanting his cash returned, but his craze did not infect the sixty or so critics and dealers who attended the dispersal.

Pictures alleged to be by great masters were in some cases totally ignored, as in the case of a "Raphael," which proved to be only a copy of "The Holy Family," and cost the late owner $425. There was one offer of $25, whereupon, the auctioneer ordered the "treasure" to be put on one side.

A Van Dyke, which was said to be a copy was sold for $11, and a "Murille," called "Madonna and Child," brought $40, one of the day's best prices, though it did not suit the auctioneer, who wanted to start the bidding at $250.

A large canvas of "The Holy Family," attributed to Rubens, attracted no offer. The highest price obtained was $90, which was given for a wooded landscape, attributed to Hobbema. A Gozzoli landscape fetched only $2, which was probably about a tenth of the price paid for the frame.

Sir J. E. Millais' "Lady with Fan," a picture which was accepted by one of the experts present as a genuine work, slowly reached $20.

There was one surprise at the sale. A naval battle scene, by an unnamed painter, was put up and provoked a sudden burst of brisk bidding, the price running up to $75 before the hammere fell. An expert hazarded the opinion that it was a genuine Vander Velde.

The Matterhorn.

The Matterhorn, in the Swiss canton of Valais and Piedmont, rises to the altitude of 14,705 feet. In July of 1865 the highest peak was first scaled by a party of Englishmen, consisting of Lord Francis Douglas, the Rev. C. Hudson, Hadow and Whymper, with three guides, when the three first named and one of the guides were the first victims to fall into the icy precipice of the beautiful Matterhorn.

Easily Answered.

"I'm a little short and will propound to you a question in mental arithmetic."

"All right, go ahead."

"Well, suppose you had $10 in your pocket and I should ask you for $5, how much would remain?"

"Huh! Ten dollars."—Chicago News.

TORTURED BY CONSTIPATION

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured Paralyzed Bowels and Digestion

ST. BONIFACE DE SHAWINIGAN, QUE. Feb. 3rd. 1914.

"It is a pleasure to me to inform you that after suffering from Chronic Constipation for 2½ years, I have been cured by "Fruit-a-tives". While I was a student at Berthier College, I became so ill I was forced to leave the the college. Severe pains across the intestines continually tortured me and it came to a point when I could not stoop down at all, and my Digestion became paralyzed. Some one advised me to take "Fruit-a-tives" and at once I felt a great improvement. After I had taken four or five boxes, I realized that I was completely cured and what made me glad, also, was that they were acting gently, causing no pain whatever to the bowels. All those who suffer with Chronic Constipation should follow my example and take "Fruit-a-tives" for they are the medicine that cures".

MAGLOIRE PAQUIN

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

The Egyptian Barber.

Some interesting facts regarding barbers are contained in Lord Kitchener's report on the condition of Egypt and the Soudan during the last year.

"The ordinary village barber of Egypt," says the report, "bears a certain resemblance in so far as his profession goes to the barber-surgeons of ancient time in England. He is authorized by law, after having passed an examination, to perform the operation of vaccination, application of leeches, cupping and simple dressings, and is forbidden by the same law to order or prescribe medicine.

"Every barber must attend a course of lectures of three weeks' duration at the Mudiria Government Hospital and pass an examination for a certificate. In each village one of these barbers is appointed by the public health department as its representative.

"Barbers so appointed are called sanitary barbers, and among their special duties are the following:—Vaccination, examination of deaths, issue of permits of burial, render reports of deaths involving suspicion of infectious disease.

"If the sanitary barber is unable to read or write, the work of registration is done by the village tax collector."

Cinema In School.

There is at Bowes Park in England a boys' school which is conducted on unique lines. A cinematograph has been installed, by the aid of which such subjects as science, history, and geography can be the better taught.

The boys are trained in oratory. Recently at a public meeting one of the boys spoke fluently for half an hour. As much as $150 or $200 in silver and copper is frequently in use among a class, so that they may become thoroughly accustomed to the handling of coin.

Scholars are taught to write with both hands. The chief of the staff of Selfridge's big departmental store has been down to lecture on "Business," and Dr. Stanley Wyard, an old boy, has addressed the boys on "Personal Hygiene." Even talking in class is not prohibited, so long as it is reasonable.

Penny Lodgings For the Poor.

Lodgings at a penny a week are offered to the poor of Midhurst, Sussex, England, by Rev. F. Tatchell, vicar of the parish. He has turned an old vicarage over to this purpose. The penny a week secures a bed sitting-room in cases of genuine poverty.

The reason for the penny rents scheme lies with the charity commissioners of the town, who have been letting the public almshouses to the highest bidders. The result has been that the very poor have been forced to pay more than they could afford for lodgings. To overcome official competition, the vicar has started his penny lodgings.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Hyperidrosis.

There is a kind of functional disorder of the sweat glands that results in excessive perspiration. The scientific name for the condition is hyperidrosis. Those who suffer from hyperidrosis are usually not in the best of general health, and the nervous system is especially likely to be at fault. The treatment of the condition, whether its manifestations are local or general, should aim to build up the general health. Any good tonic that gives a fillip to the general system and improves the circulation may relieve the trouble. Cold baths are often useful for their effect on the circulation. In cases where the hands or the feet are affected, immerse them for a few minutes in quite hot water, and then, after drying them with a soft cloth, dust them freely with boric acid powder. If the trouble is very annoying and does not yield to time or to simple remedies like these, consult a physician. The sweat glands themselves may be in a disordered state, and it may be advisable to use the X rays. These rays have cured cases of hyperidrosis that have resisted every other form of treatment.

PSYCHOLOGY OF POCKETS.

To prove how undeveloped is the growing urchin's mind
Turn out a small boy's pockets, and these treasures you will find:
A top, six rusty shingle nails, a hank of dirty string,
A snake (defunct), a tailless sprite, a battered napkin ring.
A broken file, a rubber ball, some bits of broken rock

To prove that lovely woman is deficient in the brain
Turn out her leather hand bag, which is likely to contain
A canceled transfer, thirty cents, some frazzled squares of silk,
A fragment of a recipe for sterilizing milk,
A pointless pencil, seven stamps, some powder and a puff,
A shopping list, some scissors and a mangled buff.

To prove that man's a creature of tremendous intellect
Go through his clothes some morning and you'll readily collect
A dry and useless fountain pen, a knife that will not cut,
Some scribbled dates, a paper book entitled "How to Putt,"
Four keys to locks long gone to rust, five crumpled dollar bills,
A box of sticky cough drops and six numbered billiard pills.

Some German Taxes.

Among the curious taxes imposed in Germany on various objects are those on baby carriages, where the amount is 40 cents each and $1.50 tax on caged nightingales, of which there have not been any for many years, and tourists for whom the hotel keeper is taxed 2½ cents, which is added to the bill.

Faulty English.

A slipshod use of English has been a favorite charge against American writers by their English cousins. The latest accusation is that we have gone so far as to force the English themselves to use our slang. But Dr. Rossiter Johnson has no difficulty in showing that even classic English writers are guilty of clumsy and incorrect usages. If this is the case with makers of English in the slow and careful process of book writing the critic should not be quite so captious concerning the slangy or faulty English that creeps into the American newspaper and periodical produced under a degree of pressure entirely foreign to a writer of books. Dr. Johnson ranges over the field of literature and shows by striking examples how Macaulay, Ruskin, De Quincey, Tennyson, Lecky, Thackeray, Hallam and many others have split their infinitives, separated verbs by modifying words put in the wrong place and dotted their writing with various awkward, ill contrived and ambiguous expressions.—Leslie's.

Marvelous Coincidence.

The following story was told by a famous New York wit recently: A party of skaters were once progressing at considerable speed down a certain frozen river in Canada when, to the horror of his companions, one of the party was seen to skate straight into a hole in the ice. Before he could stop himself he had fallen through it, and the sharp edge of the ice cut his head clean off his shoulders. The speed at which he was going, however, caused his head to skim along the top of the ice, while the rest of his body traveled at an equal speed beneath it, until, by a stroke of good luck, the severed portions met at another hole farther down and joined so exactly that the unfortunate man came out of his accident with nothing worse than a severe cold.—London Strand.

A Nabob.

"Rich as a nabob," is an expression not infrequently heard, but why a "nabob" should thus be associated with wealth and who he was precisely is not so generally known. Under the great moguls the provinces of India were administered by deputies known by the designation of "nawab," who commonly amassed much money and lived in great splendor. The office and the title continued under British rule in the orient, but gradually the word became corrupted into "nabob" and was applied generally to all natives who had grown rich. More latterly it was bestowed—often in a derisive sense—upon Europeans who, having made large fortunes in India, returned home and spent their money in a luxurious and ostentatious way.—London Tatler.

Kent and Burr.

James Kent, famous for his "Commentaries on American Law," was a great admirer of Alexander Hamilton, and when the great Federalist was killed by Aaron Burr in a duel he became the implacable enemy of the latter. One day long afterward when in New York the judge saw Burr on the opposite side of Nassau street. He went across the street as fast as his years would permit and, brandishing his cane in Burr's face, shouted:

"You're a scoundrel, sir, a scoundrel, a scoundrel!"

Burr proved equal to the emergency. He raised his hat and bowed to the ground and then said in his calmest professional tone, "The opinions of the learned chancellor are always entitled to the highest consideration."

Never Satisfied.

"We are never satisfied." "How now?" "We all want front seats at the theater, we're peevish if we can't get them and if we do get them we begin to think the play can't be very good."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Gunpowder For the Soil.

Brown gunpowder, manufactured for the purpose of destruction, is being turned into food. An experimenter has found that it makes an excellent fertilizer for garden vegetables, as it contains about 80 per cent of potassium nitrate. Large quantities of the powder made for navy use have been displaced by the newer smokeless powder, and the government authorities sought a way of utilizing the discarded explosive. In its new employment of adding to the country's food supply it is thoroughly wet and worked into the soil.—New York Tribune.

Our George in London.

Some Englishmen do not take kindly to the suggestion that a monument to George Washington should be placed in Westminster abbey. "Are we," asks the London Outlook, "to have a monument of Washington in the abbey, but none to the men and women and children who were his victims? Then let us be logical for once and erect another monument to the late President Kruger. Equally with Washington, he had the two necessary qualifications—he was the mortal enemy of England, and he persecuted a British population. What more is requisite?"

War's Mark on the Candy Trade.

Certain toothsome confections known as "Mexican kisses" were favorite bargain day candies in New York for a long time. Recently the signs in the shops carrying these sweets were changed to read "Pecan Maple Kisses."

"Why?" asked a lady shopper.

The saleagirl raised her eyebrows as she answered. "Because of the trouble in Mexico, of course."

"That really made a difference?"

"You'd be surprised to know how much."

Longest Telephone Cable.

The telephone cable which is to connect Aldeburgh, England, with Walcheren, Netherlands, is to be seventy-nine nautical miles in length, making it the longest submarine telephone cable in the world. It will furnish telephone communication between London and Berlin. The cable is to be of the four core Pupin loaded type.

Skin Trouble On The Scalp

Skin Dried and Cracked and Hair Fell Out—Cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Eczema is annoying and distressing at any time, but doubly so when it gets into the scalp and causes the hair to fall out. Here is a grateful letter from a lady who was cured by using Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mrs. Hector Currie, Tobermory, Ont., writes:—"I was cured of a disagreeable skin disease of the scalp by using Dr. Chase's Ointment. The trouble started with itching and pain in the scalp, the skin would get dry and crack, and at times would bleed, and the hair would fall out. I tried three doctors without benefit, and suffered for three years. Reading in the almanac about Dr. Chase's Ointment, I began its use, and am now completely cured. The hair has grown again, and I am as well as I ever was. You are at liberty to use this letter, for I am glad to recommend so excellent a treatment.

Dr. Chase's Ointment has no rival as a cure for itching skin disease.

A Leaf From a Woman's Diary

Tuesday, June 9th—A very warm day, but a pleasant one for me. Scarcely stirred from the cool, shady porch all day. Was to have gone shopping—principally to get Marie a new dress for her school closing. Happened to see an advertisement in the newspaper of the dearest little frock that just looked like Marie. So, instead of going down to Brown's as I had intended, I just phoned Smith's and had them send up one of those dresses on approval. And, while I had them on the phone, I thought of their ad. about Winston Churchill's "The Inside of a Cup." So I had it sent up too and spent the whole day enjoying it—cool too, thanks to the new porch shades and the electric fan John brought home last week. The dress came in the afternoon and I tried it on. Marie in the evening. She looks sweet in it and said "Mummy won't you please get all my clothes at Smith's." And I think I will. These hot days it is so convenient to find you can pick out the very thing you want from an advertisement, and just have it sent up with no more trouble than phoning.

Just a few days previous, Brown had said to his business manager of his local paper: "You can't get people to pay attention to ads. in such hot weather—no more advertising for me until it gets cooler."

About the same time Smith was arranging a splendid series of ads. for that very paper designed to appeal to the women who find it too hot to shop in the ordinary way, but who will phone their orders.

Brown doesn't know yet that he has lost a customer. Smith knows he's gained one—for the lady on the cool, shady porch has some mention of a purchase at Smith's store in her little nook almost every week now.

Does it pay to advertise in the warm weather? Ask Smith.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Princess Aline

She Had Remarkable Diplomatic Talent

By MILLARD MALTBIE

The Princess Aline of Crakovia was an object of great concern to her father, King Ludwig. His majesty had five sons and one daughter. The succession being therefore established beyond a reasonable doubt by her brothers, the princess was of no importance whatever on that account. But she was of great value in another direction. A province, Gaudix, had been wrested in war from Crakovia by King Philip of Ancovia, an adjoining power. A proposition had come from Philip for the hand of the Princess Aline for Ferdinand, crown prince of Ancovia. It had been declined. A deputation was then sent by King Philip offering,

"I WILL NOT MARRY PRINCE FERDINAND."

if the matrimonial proposition were accepted, to restore to Crakovia the province that had been ceded.

King Ludwig was not only astonished at this remarkable offer; he was delighted. Without consulting his daughter in the matter he replied at once that the proposition was accepted.

The deputation was about to return with this reply when the princess was informed that she was to take a husband she had never seen without having been consulted. She at once notified her father that she did not intend to marry any one and she certainly would not marry Prince Ferdinand. King Ludwig sent for his daughter and informed her that she must marry the prince because on her doing so depended the restoration of the lost province, whereupon Aline replied that if a hundred provinces could be gained by her marriage still would she remain a maid. At this her father was so dumfounded that he could voice no reply.

When the deputation returned to Ancovia and reported the failure of this second proposition King Philip was both astonished and perplexed. The laws of Ancovia with regard to the marriages of members of the royal family were very closely drawn. So many provisions had been incorporated into them that there was not a single princess of the blood in Europe except Aline who was eligible. The king called his son into his cabinet and told him what had taken place, concluding with the words:

"I propose to declare war against Crakovia and compel the princess to marry you."

"Father," said the prince thoughtfully, "there is an old saying that you can take a horse to water, but you can't make him drink. You may conquer Crakovia and annex it to your kingdom, you may make the princess a prisoner and force her to the altar, but you can't make her say that she will take me for her wedded husband."

"My son," replied the king after weighing the prince's words, "you are right. Such a course might succeed with a man, but not with a woman."

The Princess Aline being the only daughter in the royal family, besides being very attractive—though it was known that she had a will of her own—had been very popular till it leaked out that she had refused in marriage the crown prince of Ancovia, with the lost province in the palm. The cession of this territory had been as sore a point with the Crakovians as the surrender of Alsace and Lorraine with the French. A century and a half before the cession of Gaudix, Crakovia had been obliged to cede one-half its territory to Ancovia, and when Gaudix was lost to them they were broken hearted. For these reasons, when it became known that Aline had refused to give herself in exchange for Gaudix, popular favor turned against her, and she became as much hated as she had before been beloved. She appeared as usual in public places till her treatment by the people became martedly disrespectful; then she retired to one of her father's country palaces, where it was understood she lived a secluded life.

One day Prince Ferdinand happened to go through the room where his sisters were studying their lessons under their governess. His attention was arrested by the young woman, and under pretense of inquiring what the children were studying he fell into conversation with their teacher. So pleased was he with her intelligence that he made frequent visits to the schoolroom and asked his mother, the queen, if the governess might not be admitted to the social functions of the court. The queen assented, and the prince announced the fact to the recipient of the royal favor. To his surprise, the latter declined the honor, saying that her mind was concentrated on the education of her pupils and she would not like to have it diverted.

There was in her something so superior to other women with whom the prince came in daily contact that his admiration for the governess grew rapidly. Whenever he found it possible to get away from the fawning associates who surrounded him he would seek his untitled friend and refresh himself with her engaging though independent personality.

One day the prince awoke to the fact that he loved one whom as a prince of the blood he could not marry. He kept his secret from her for some time, but at last yielded to the pressure within him and avowed his love. She did not reproach him for so doing, but the next day handed in her resignation as teacher for the royal children, and when the prince sought her again he found that she had left the palace. He endeavored to learn where she had gone, but failed to gain any trace of her.

From this time a marked change was noticed in Prince Ferdinand. In public he had caught the popular heart by a happy manner that was natural to him, but now he seldom appeared to the people and when he did looked gloomy and morose. It became known that there was no woman living whom the laws of his country would permit him to marry, and those who attributed the change in him to this cause sympathized with him instead of blaming him. Nevertheless, in the main the prince was an example of the adage, "Laugh and the world laughs with you; weep and you weep alone." He fulfilled this almost literally, for princes are dependent on friends the same as other persons, and Ferdinand's intimate friends ceased to find pleasure in his society. He was therefore left much to himself. However, he was very indifferent to all associates.

One day a messenger arrived at the court of Ancovia announcing that if King Philip desired King Ludwig would be pleased to reopen negotiations for the hand of the Princess Aline. King Philip at once sent for his son and announced the glad tidings.

"Something must have occurred to change the conditions," he said to the prince. "I shall withdraw the offer to restore the province of Gaudix. We may get the princess without losing this valuable territory."

"Do what you like in the matter," replied Ferdinand. "I shall be obedient to your wishes."

In truth, the prince secretly hoped that the withdrawal of the previous offer would break off the negotiations. The idea of marriage except with the girl he loved was repulsive to him.

So King Philip replied to King Ludwig that he would be pleased to renew his request for the hand of the princess, but he could not now consent to give up Gaudix. King Ludwig replied that the matter was in the hands of his daughter and if the crown prince wished for her hand he would have to make the request in person. Philip was delighted.

"I told you so," he said to his son. "Something has occurred to change the situation. Go to the princess, but not as a beggar. We'll get her and keep Gaudix."

The prince departed at the head of a splendid retinue and with handsome presents to meet a wife simply that he might give an heir to the throne. There was no method of traveling in those days except on or behind horses and not much communication between the different countries. King Philip waited impatiently to hear of the prince's success, hoping that no cession of territory would be necessary. Finally a message came from him son stating that the Princess Aline would marry him, demanding not only the restoration of Gaudix, but that much larger territory which had been ceded to Ancovia a century and a half before. What was more astonishing than this was that the prince urged that the conditions be accepted.

The shock was more than King Philip could bear. He was an old man and in poor health. He fell on the floor in a faint, was carried to his bed and died the next day.

Immediately after the king's demise the chancellor of the realm made posthaste to Crakovia to announce to the crown prince his accession to the throne. He found Ferdinand basking in the princess' smiles, but just as the chancellor was about to kneel with the words, "The king is dead—long live the king!" he stopped, paralyzed. In the Princess Aline he recognized the governess of the royal children of Ancovia. But, recovering himself, he found voice to make the announcement.

Before King Ferdinand left Crakovia he had a consultation with King Ludwig wherein a new distribution of all the territory that had been ceded to Crakovia was made, Crakovia getting the larger share. After the documents had been signed the wedding between the young king and the princess took place amid such rejoicings as had never before occurred in Crakovia. The lost popularity of the princess was not only restored to her, but she could not appear in public without receiving a storm of acclamation.

Renewed Vigor in Old Age

This Letter Brings a Message of Cheer to the Aged—Results of Using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

New, rich blood is what is most needed in the declining years to keep up energy and vitality. That Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is a wonderful help in maintaining good health and prolonging life is attested by the writer of this letter.

Mr. Stephen J. Leard, North Tryon, P.E.I., writes: — "At seventy-five years of age my heart gave out and became very irregular and weak in action and would palpitate. My nerves also became weak, and I could do nothing but lie in bed in a languishing condition, losing strength and weight. In that condition I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and am cured. Had I not obtained this treatment I would now be in the box with the roof over my nose. At eighty-one I have an energy which means go, and I am writing this letter so that old people like myself may prolong their health and strength by using this great medicine." 50c a box, 6 for $2.50. For sale by all dealers.

Toll of the Jungle.

The number of persons killed by wild animals and snakes in Assam during the year 1913 is reported to have been 269, as compared with 262 in the preceding year. The number of cattle killed by wild animals, says "The Indiaman," rose from 14,607 to 16,733, while the number killed by snakes fell from 545 to 362, the decrease in the latter case being attributed to the low level of the floods in the Kamrup district, where the mortality fell from 320 in 1912 to 20 in 1913.

It is noticeable that the number of cattle killed in the province by leopards is increasing steadily and has risen at the rate of about 1,000 a year. Two hundred and thirty-six cattle are said to have been killed by jackals in Kamrup, and over the whole province wild dogs have to their credit the substantial total of 302. The number of wild animals killed increased from 1,730 to 1,988. The number of snakes destroyed was 1,981, or practically the same as in 1912.

Volcano In Mid Ocean?

An active mud volcano has appeared in lat. 19.30 N. and long. 93.0215 E., according to a notification issued by the Marine Department at Rangoon, recently. The height on 1st May was about 30 feet and length about one cable, showing two summits. The position of the volcano is apparently on the track between Kyaukpyu and Akyab, and is evidently off the long island of West Borongs, near Tiger Point. The Katoria, the B.I. vessel which first reported the volcanic eruption off the Arrakan coast, arrived in Calcutta from Rangoon recently, and in an interview with a newspaper representative Captain F. M. Austin said he sighted the eruption at close quarters, between Kyaukpyu and Akyab. He scouted the idea that it was a mud volcano or a volcano at all. "From all appearances," he said, "it is an island about a mile in extent, and from 25 to 30 feet high. What confirms my conviction that it is an island," he continued, "is its proximity to the island of Borongs, and I should not be at all surprised if it is found to be a part of that island. Another thing that strengthens this idea is the earthquake report issued from Simla. In that report it was stated that the shock came from about a thousand miles distant, and Borongs island is just about that distance from Simla. Since no other report that would account for the shock has been made it is more than probable that this eruption was the quake recorded on the Simla seismograph."

Origin of London Names.

How many know that Piccadilly, or a considerable slice of it, was originally known as Portugal street? And the Portuguese Princess, Catherine of Braganza, Charles II.'s Queen, after whom it was named, in like manner was honored in the Catherine street, near by, which today is clubland and Pall Mall.

A Literary Coterie.

Gubbins, who calls his living room the library, but is otherwise a good sort enough, brought home a near-sighted friend to dinner the other night. A young lady was standing near the door to welcome the guest.

"Allow me," said Gubbins, "to present you to my daughter."

The guest bowed, but the courteous inclination was directed not toward Miss Gubbins, but toward another of the household treasures, a plaster pillar surmounted by a bust.

"No, no," hastily interposed Gubbins, "to the right, not to the left; the one on the left is Homer."

The best remedy for wrongs done us is to forget them.—Syrus.

TO CHECK A COLT

It is easy to check a cold if you begin in time. Frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine keep the cough loose, allay the inflammation, and so prevent it spreading to the bronchial tubes and lungs. Mrs. H. M. Moore, Shortreed, B.C., writes: "I wish to state my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, for it cured a cold which a friend said would soon put me in the grave."

Very Little Difference.

"Men have an advantage that woman never can possess," she complained. "Whenever a man wishes to hide his identity he can, by letting his whiskers grow or by shaving them off as the case may be, change his expression completely."

"That isn't so much of an advantage," he replied. "A woman can by putting on her complexion or leaving it off as the case may be, make just as much of a change in her appearance as a man is able to make in his with or without the aid of his whiskers."—Philadelphia Ledger.

MAGIC BAKING POWDER

Believes Carman's Story.

MINEOLA, N.Y., July 15. — The grand jury yesterday took up the case of Mrs. Florence Carman, charged with the murder of Mrs. Louise Bailey, one of her husband's patients, who was shot in his office on the night of June 30.

Dr. Carman was on the stand nearly two hours. As he left the grand jury room he refused to say anything about the nature of his testimony. District Attorney Smith said he was satisfied with Dr. Carman's story, and had changed his mind about asking him to sign a waiver of immunity. Neither Carman nor the attorney would say whether Carman had in any important details altered the story told at the inquest.

Family Nearly Electrocuted.

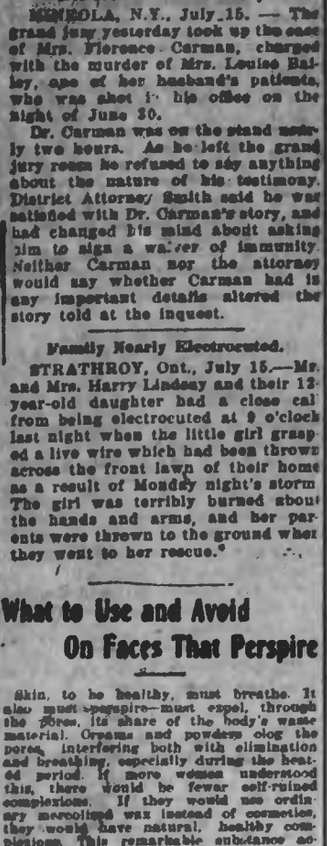
STRATHROY, Ont., July 15.—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lindsay and their 12-year-old daughter had a close call from being electrocuted at 9 o'clock last night when the little girl grasped a live wire which had been thrown across the front lawn of their home as a result of Monday night's storm. The girl was terribly burned about the hands and arms, and her parents were thrown to the ground when they went to her rescue.

What to Use and Avoid On Faces That Perspire

Skin, to be healthy, must breathe. It also must perspire—must expel, through the pores, its share of the body's waste material. Creams and powders clog the pores, interfering both with elimination and breathing, especially during the heated period. If more women understood this, there would be fewer self-ruined complexions. If they would use ordinary mercolized wax instead of cosmetics, they would have natural, healthy complexions. This remarkable substance actually absorbs a bad skin, also nealogging the pores. Result: The fresher, younger, under-skin is permitted to breathe and to show itself. An exquisite new complexion gradually peeps out, one free from any appearance of artificiality. Get an ounce of mercolized wax at your druggist's and try it. Apply nightly like cold cream, for a week or so, washing it off mornings.

To eradicate wrinkles, here's a marvelously effective treatment which also acts naturally and harmlessly: Dissolve 1 oz. powdered saxolite in 1-2 pint witch hazel and use as a wash lotion.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE



No. 6,725, Lady's Apron and Cap.

Modified kimono lines are used in this apron, which is quite loose and hangs in straight flounces from shoulder to hem. There is a seam along the shoulder and down the outside of the sleeve, each portion of which is cut in one with the body of the garment. The closing is at the side of the front. The cap is full, and will cover any headdress, and has a turnback band across the front.

The apron pattern, No. 6,725, is cut in sizes 36, 40 and 44 inches bust measure. Medium size requires for apron and cap 6¾ yards of 27 inch material, with half yard of contrasting goods 27 inch wide to trim.

This pattern can be obtained by sending ten cents to the office of this paper.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

ANOTHER CANAL IN SIGHT.

U. S. Secretary Says Erie-Ontario Waterway Will Be Needed.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Memorial of restrictions upon the importance of electric power from Canada and retention of the present limit of 12,000 cubic feet per second upon the amount of water diverted for water power purposes from the Niagara river above the falls on the American side were advocated by Secretary Garrison in a letter to the House foreign affairs committee, made public yesterday. With the letter Mr. Garrison sent a report by Brigadier-General Kingman, chief of the army engineers, declaring that the enormous commerce on the great lakes probably soon would demand a ship canal between Lakes Erie and Ontario on American soil.

As to the situation below the Falls, Secretary Garrison said there seemed no reason for an express limitation upon water diverted there. He endorsed in a general way the pending Smith and Cline bill, which, he said, "closely approached the legislation needed for the protection of the Niagara river, and for the best and most economic use of its waters for power developments not inconsistent with navigation interests."

The Secretary's letter will be before the committee to-day, at a meeting called for a general discussion of the Niagara water-diversion problems, which have vexed Congress, the War Department and New York State authorities for years. Representatives of the Seneca Indians are expected to appear to support the Senecas' claim to rights in the Niagara, under the Pickering treaty.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The late Hon. H. R. Emmerson's will was probated at Dorchester yesterday. The estate is valued at about $100,000, and is left to the family.

Miss Irene Dailey, Greentown, Pa., and Lawrence Reder, of Akron, were struck and instantly killed yesterday by a Baltimore & Ohio train at Akron, Ohio.

Herr Oelrichs, a German aviator at Leipsic yesterday rose in his biplane to an altitude of 7,500 metres, or approximately 24,606 feet, nearly four and three-quarter miles.

After many weeks of effort, Captain Alex. Cunning and his crew have succeeded in releasing the Toronto steamer Turret Chief, which was wrecked in the big gale.

With her master lying dead in his state room, the passenger steamer South America steamed into Duluth yesterday with flags at half-mast, Captain Wm. A. McKay died of heart failure.

Because, he says, D. A. A. Audet uttered defamatory remarks in connection with his work in the Ville Emard expropriations, Dr. Leon Dubois, a Montreal alderman, has entered action for $5,000 damages against Dr. Audet.

JOURNALIST SENTENCED.

Englishman In Japan Guilty of Receiving Stolen Papers.

TOKIO, July 15. — Andrew M Rooley, an English newspaperman was yesterday sentenced to two years imprisonment and a fine of $100 on a charge of receiving stolen documents in connection with the recent Japanese naval scandals involving officers in the receipt of illicit commissions for influencing the allotment of contracts.

Rooley received the documents from Carl Richter, an employe of a German armament firm, who had stolen them, and was alleged to have used them for blackmailing purposes.

Two other prisoners also were convicted yesterday in the same case, V. Herrmann, the Tokio representative of the German armament firm, being sentenced to one year in jail, and George Blundell, also connected with English journalism, to ten months' imprisonment. The sentences on these two men were suspended for three years.

RINGWORM ALL OVER GIRL'S FACE

Hands and Arms. Burning and Painful. Suffered Day and Night from Itching. Cured by Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment.

St. Veronique, Que.—"My little girl got ringworm all over the face, hands, and arms. I was given a sort of white ointment and like a pistol of water to wash with. After eight days of this treatment the ringworms instead of healing became dark red and were spreading, then were burning and painful. The child suffered day and night from the great itching. I was very disturbed.

"One evening I found a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment that I had requested the year before. So I commenced a wash with the sample of Cuticura Soap, then applying the Cuticura Ointment and at the end of three days the child was suffering less. Then we wrote to some friends in Montreal to get some Cuticura Soap and Ointment for us. After fifteen days' treatment the ringworms were crusted over and whitish, then on the twenty-fifth day they were all dry and cured." (Signed) Mrs. Marie Louise Rien, May 26, 1913.

When you buy a fine toilet soap think of the advantages Cuticura Soap possesses over the most expensive toilet soap ever made. In addition to being absolutely pure and refreshingly fragrant, it is delicately yet effectively medicated, giving you two soaps in one, a toilet and a skin soap at one price. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. For a liberal free sample of each, with 32-p. book, send post-card to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. D, Boston, U. S. A.

A MESSAGE TO TOM, WEAK, SCRAWNY FOLKS

An Easy Way to Gain 10 to 30 lbs. of Solid, Healthy, Permanent Flesh

Thin, nervous, undeveloped men and women everywhere are heard to say, "I can't understand why I do not get fat. I eat plenty of good, nourishing food." The reason is just this: You cannot get fat, no matter how much you eat, unless your digestive organs assimilate the fat-making elements of your food instead of passing them out through the body as waste.

What is needed is a means of gently urging the assimilative functions of the stomach and intestines to absorb the oils and fats and hand them over to the blood, where they may reach the starved, shrunken, run-down tissues and build them up. The thin person's body is like a dry sponge—eager and hungry for the fatty materials of which it is being deprived by the failure of the alimentary canal to take them from the food. The best way to overcome this sinful waste of flesh building elements and to stop the leakage of fats is to use Sargol, the recently discovered regenerative force that is recommended so highly by physicians here and abroad. Take a little Sargol tablet with every meal and notice how quickly your cheeks fill out and rolls of firm, healthy flesh are deposited over your body, covering each bony angle and projecting point. Your druggist has Sargol, or can get it from his wholesaler, and will refund your money if you are not satisfied with the gain in weight it produces as stated on the guarantee in each package. It is inexpensive, easy to take and highly efficient.

Caution:—While Sargol has produced remarkable results in overcoming nervous dyspepsia and general stomach troubles, it should not be taken unless you are willing to gain ten pounds or more, for it is a wonderful flesh builder.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, July 14.—Despite increasing damage from black rust the wheat market today finally took a downward turn owing to export bids being out of line. The close was nervous, 1-8 to 3-8c under last night. Corn showed a net loss of 1-8 to 1 1-8c, and oats of 3-8 to 1 5-8c. In provisions the outcome varied from 5c decline to a raise of 15c.

Mercantile Marriages.

In the British royal family mercantile marriages have been very frequent, especially in the eighteenth century, and it was to check these marriages by royal princes that the act was passed by which no marriage within the family is valid unless the consent of the sovereign has been given.

The most recent of these mercantile unions was that of the late Duke of Cambridge, whose wife was known as Mrs. FitzGeorge, a name which has descended to the children. In Europe the most interesting case at present is that of the Archduke Franz Ferdinand, whose son cannot succeed to the Austro-Hungarian throne as the law stands at present.

There were a good many mercantile marriages in the last century in the Hohenzollern family, but the last seems to have been in 1853, when Prince Albrecht the elder, brother of the Emperor William I., married Fraulein von Rauch.—Manchester Evening News.

MERCEY'S STRUGGLES.

Stories About President of Empress Wrath Commission.

In many ways the life of Lord Mersey, the famous judge who is one of the three members of the Court of Inquiry which has been investigating the loss of the Empress of Ireland, has been an eventful one. The son of a Liverpool merchant, he was at first intended for a commercial life, and spent five years on the Liverpool Exchange.

Then, to quote his own words: "When I was twenty-six years of age, I made up my mind to go away and try my fortune elsewhere. But the start was far from encouraging. I came up to London with a letter of introduction to Mr. Charles Russell, afterwards Lord Russell of Killowen, who, when he read it, turned round and said, 'What on earth induced you to think of going to the Bar?'

"However, he was good enough to say immediately afterwards, 'Come and dine with me to-night.' I went and dined with him, and I can say of him that, although his manners were rough, and although at times, perhaps, one was not pleased with what he did, he was a good friend to me."

For a time, however, the future Lord Mersey—he was plain Mr. Bigham then—did not find much profit in the law, and he has told how the first year he was at the Bar he made only seven guineas. "The second year, I think, I made seventy, the third about $700, and the fourth about $2,000." And then he went on to prosperity.

Undoubtedly Lord Mersey's success was due not a little to his wonderful energy. Few lawyers, indeed, have lived a more strenuous life. "I used to start work at four o'clock in the morning," he once said, "and go on till eight, breakfast, and then go to the Temple at 9.30 or 10, where I worked until six; and then after six I did nothing. Such was my program for twenty-seven years."

Apart, however, from his wonderful legal knowledge, which has won for him such a great reputation in the Divorce and Admiralty Division of the High Court, Lord Mersey is known as one of the quickest and most fearless of judges. There is a story told of one occasion when Lord Mersey, then one of the busiest advocates in the Common Law Courts, waited twenty-five minutes for a certain judge, distinguished among other things for his unpunctuality. Having a second case to attend to in another court, Lord Mersey went out to see how it was faring, and while he was away the unpunctual judge made his appearance on the Bench.

"I have waited five minutes for you, Mr. Bigham!" exclaimed the judge, impatiently, when the busy counsel returned.

"My lord," was the bold reply, "I waited five times as long."

Ages of European Sovereigns.

King George, whose fourth accession day brought him many congratulations, is still young as Kings of England go, having only just celebrated his forty-eighth birthday, and from the actuarial standpoint his "expectations of life" may be regarded as very good. Without exception, his Hanoverian predecessors lived to a good age. Indeed, it is necessary to go back to Mary, the Consort of William III., to find an English sovereign who did not live to be at least fifty.

Among European monarchs King George is younger than the Emperor of Austria, the Kings of Roumania, Montenegro, Servia, Wurtemberg, Bavaria, Sweden, the German Emperor, and the King of Saxony, who is his senior by only nine days.

Those who are younger than His Majesty number seven, and are the Czar, who is all but three years younger; the Kings of Italy, Denmark, and Norway; the King of the Belgians, Queen Wilhelmina of Holland, and the King of Spain.—Westminster Gazette.

FORGET THEE!

"Forget thee?" If to dream by night and muse on thee by day,
If all the worship, deep and wild, a poet's heart can pay;
If prayers in absence breathed for thee to heaven's protecting power,
If winged thoughts that flit to thee, a thousand in an hour;
If busy fancy blending thee with all my future lot—
If this thou call'st "Forgetting" thou indeed shalt be forgot!

* * * * * *

Keep, if thou will, thy maiden peace, still calm and fancy free,
For God forbid thy gladsome heart should grow less glad for me,
Yet while that heart is still unwon, oh, bid not mine remove,
But let it name its humble faith and uncomplaining love.
If there, preserved for patient years, at last avail me not Forget me, then, but ne'er believe that thou canst be forgot!

—John Mentrie.

Where the Road to Water.

Writing of a tour of Holland, Arnold Bennett in the Century says:

"After a few weeks I began to perceive that Holland's most striking places, though thrilling, were not the whole of Holland and perhaps not the most representative of Holland. As the yacht worked northward Holland seemed to grow more Dutch until in the chain of shallow inlets and channels that hold Friesland in a sort of permanent baptism we came to what was for me the ideal or celestial Holland—everything done by water, even grass cut under water, and black and white cows milked in the midst of ponds and windmills over the eternal fatness used exclusively to shift inconvenient water from one level to another. The road is water in Friesland, and all the world is on the road. If your approach to a town is made perilous by a succession of barges that will obstinately keep the middle of the channel you know that it is market day in that town and the farmers are rolling home in agreeable hebetation."

Locating a Broken Wire.

When a telegraph wire is broken or damaged, say, several hundred miles away, how does the operator, sitting in his office, know exactly where the accident occurred?

The explanation is simple. It requires, as every one knows, considerable force to send electricity through a wire. The longer the wire the greater, of course, must be the force required. This force is measured in units, called by electricians "ohms." Let us suppose that a wire between a New York office and a point 150 miles away has broken somewhere. The telegrapher knows that when the wire was intact there were required, say, 2,100 ohms to facilitate the current, or fourteen ohms to the mile. He now finds that he can send a current with only 700 ohms. Dividing 700 by 14, he finds that the break in the wire is fifty miles from his end.—New York Tribune.

Contrasts in Mexico.

Perhaps nowhere else in the world is there a country so full of contrasts as Mexico. Here you will see a Mexican half-breed barefooted wearing a dollar pair of trousers, a fifty cent shirt and a ten dollar sombrero. There at a single glance and within the length of a single city block you may see an Indian cargador, a donkey cart, an ox-cart, a carriage, a railroad train, a street car and a motor-car—almost every type of locomotion since Adam. You may tread the burning sands of a tropical desert with a vet of perpetual snow of towering mountains still upon your shoes. You may take a single railway journey of thirty-six hours in which the people you see at the railroad station will be dressed in four different weights of clothing. Everywhere you turn there is contrast, high lights and deep shadows.—William Joseph Showalter in National Geographic Magazine.

To Multiply by Division.

Everybody knows that learning the tens in the multiplication table is as easy as "pie" and that the fives are not much harder; but, slight as is the mental effort required in multiplying any number by five, it may be lessened still more by discarding the multiplier entirely and substituting a divisor instead. This may sound paradoxical, but by experimenting you will find that dividing by two will bring the same result as multiplying by five, provided you add a cipher to the quotient if the dividend be an even number or five if it be odd. For instance, if you multiply 2,734 by five the product is 13,670. What is still easier, divide 2,734 by two, which is done almost instantaneously; then tack on your naught and you have 13,670.

ANNIE LOUISE CARY

And Her Favourite "Robin Adair"

The indisputable queen of song in her day was Annie Louise Cary. She was one of the world's famous contraltos when she retired from the operatic stage at the very height of her career in opera. She retained the sweet, wholesome characteristics of the American girl all during her musical triumphs. She made her debut in Copenhagen, although she studied in Milan. For three years she delighted European audiences before making her appearance in America. For over twelve years, with the exception of a brief European tour, she delighted American audiences with the charms of her voice and personality. But to hear her sing "Robin Adair," that simple old song, and that masterpiece of Arthur Sullivan's "The Lost Chord," and Longfellow's "The Day is Done," with the rich tones of the happy, good-natured personality that always charmed, she always left the audience breathless and spellbound.

"Robin Adair," "The Lost Chord," and many other favourites of Cary, now being distributed to the readers of this paper. See Coupon elsewhere in this issue for terms.

Where Women May Not Pray.

In some parts of the world the women are not even allowed to pray. Certain Hindu congregations deny their women this privilege, and among the Afghan women can pray only in very rare cases as the deputies of their husbands. The natives of Madagascar, however, stretch a point and permit their women to intercede with the powers of evil, but prayer to their supreme being is strictly a masculine prerogative.

PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, JULY 15, 1914

FINE RECEPTION FOR THE S.A. TEMPLE BAND

Parliamentary Representatives, Mayor and Aldermen Speak in Appreciative Terms of the Visit to England.

BAND WAS CHEERED

The members of the Temple Band of the Salvation Army were given a hearty civic reception at Victoria Park last night when they played their first concert since their return from the great International Congress in England. Ald. Stratton, chairman of the Reception committee of the City Council, presided, and addresses were given by Mayor Buller, Ald Johnston, Ald. Duffus, G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P. and J. H. Burnham, M.P. A large crowd was in attendance and the band was very heartily received.

The keynote of the speeches was pride in the manner in which the band had represented Canada and Peterborough in the mother land, and of appreciation of the work of the Army in this City.

Ald. Stratton, the first speaker, referred to the double task the Temple Band had had to perform in England, owing to the wiping out of the Territorial Staff Band in the Empress of Ireland disaster. The speaker made a feeling reference to the bereavement of Bandmaster Peryer and Bandsman Sandford in the catastrophe and told the audience how heroically they had carried out their duties.

Adjutant McElhiney, the officer in charge of the local corps, thanked Ald. Stratton for his kind references to the Band. It was with heavy hearts, he assured them, that the members of the organization had left the shores of Canada. They realized that their loved ones at home would be in a state of anxiety, owing to the terrible disaster and that they themselves would have a double bereavement to face in the old land with the majority of the Territorial Band gone. Not a man had whimpered or complained, but each had put his shoulder to the wheel cheerfully and willingly and had worked faithfully.. Adjutant McElhiney referred to some of the features of the visit, of the honour the band had received at the great festival in Crystal Palace, where they had been invited to play a selection at the massed band concert before 25,000 people, and of the warmth of the receptions given them in the old land. They had advertised Peterborough throughout the old country and had established a reputation for themselves as Christian gentlemen who were sober and quiet and knew how to take care of themselves.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., spoke in terms of admiration of the playing of the Temple Band and expressed his pleasure at being given an opportunity to welcome them home. He also referred to the general work of the Salvation Army in Peterborough which appeal to him and others like him. He reminded the members of the band of the danger of vanity, of being carried away by receptions and processions and hoped they would continue in their simple way to carry on the work they had been doing so well.

Mr. Geo. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., was glad of the opportunity to reiterate what the other speakers had said in regard to the work of the Salvation Army Band in the Mother Country. They had not only worthily represented Canada and Peterborough, but the noble work of the Salvation Army as well. He referred eulogistically to the efforts of the Salvation Army in Peterborough.

Mayor Buller also added his measure of praise. The citizens were proud of the Temple Band he remarked, and were appreciative of the work the organization was performing in Peterborough, in the interests of the poor. Nbe one came more closely in touch with the work of Adjutant and Mrs. McElhiney than he himself, and he felt that he could not say too much in regard to them. Mayor Buller then asked the gathering to give three cheers for Adjutant McElhiney and the band and they were given with a gusto that made the trees ring.

Ald. Duffus and Ald. Johnston also spoke in terms of highest praise of the band and the work of the Army generally.

The band played a fine programme during the evening, one of the choicest numbers being an instrumental duet by Bandmaster Peryer and Bandsman Sandford.

WILL ENTERTAIN.

The Women's Bible Class of St John's Church will entertain the Men's Bible Class at a social evening to be held in the School Room tonight at 8 o'clock. All members are invited to be present. SHOULD MAKE THE EXHIBITION GROUNDS A PARK

Prof. Hutt Does Not Believe in Grounds Being Used Only For Three or Four Days in Year

ADDRESSES DIRECTORS

A very important meeting of the directors of the Peterborough Central Exhibition was held in the Council Chamber last evening. A large number of the directors were in attendance.

Prof. Hutt of the Guelph Agricultural College was present and addressed the meeting. Prof. Hutt was over the grounds during the afternoon and made some recommendations to the Board. In the course of his remarks he stated that he did not believe in exhibition grounds being used for a period of three or four days only during Fair time, and he thought the City should cooperate with the Board with the object of using it for a park. He said that in running over the City, while the grounds could be made into a beautiful Park and Exhibition Grounds, at the present time they were the one particular black spot in the City from a standpoint of being attractive. He suggested the name of Mr. W. L. Sharpe of Winona as a man who would be able to lay out the grounds satisfactorily, and Mr. Sharp has been written to, so that he will be in Peterborough almost immediately.

In the meantime the matter of the addition to the grand stand and the new approach will be allowed to stand until Mr. Sharp's report is in, when there will be time to make any additions that are deemed advisable.

A Ploughman's Club

Exhibition Directors Will Co-operate With Farmers' Institute

Mr. Wm. Collins was at the meeting of the Exhibition Board, last evening, and brought up the matter of the organization of a Plowman's Club in this district. At the annual meeting of the Farmers' Institute the names of fifteen men were taken and last evening five more were added, which in the number demanded by the Department before the organization is recognized by them. Application will be made at once for membership in the Provincial body. It is expected there will be a plowing competition in this district this fall and the winner to have the privilege of competing in the final, which is composed of winners of the different districts.

The matter was left in the hands of Mr. Collins, which insures its being taken care of.

THE S. A. BAND WILL PLAY AT THE PICNIC

An additional treat is in store for those that go to the big picnic tomorrow. It is now three Bands and an Orchestra. The S. A. Silver Band has very kindly offered to assist the merchants in making the picnic a success and will go down to the Park in the evening.

This will make a continual flow of music all the time. There are 35 members in this Band and they will play a number of selections that have not been heard before. The merchants and others will appreciate this from the fact that the Band are donating their services free.

WHAT CHILDREN DO AT THE PARK

A Synopsis of What the Health Association Has Inaugurated—Play is Supervised and Encouraged

HOW THE IDEA WORKS

The children's camp at Jackson Park was opened recently without ostentation and practically unannounced. After two weeks' existence a visitor might not be impressed with the actual camp arrangement but an investigation of the daily programme followed by the little ones leaves a feeling of satisfaction that a good work has been undertaken and is being capably carried out.

One also recognizes that there is a small minority of observant citizens who fortunately possess the spirit of initiative necessary to breath life into their idealistic ideas, and have the means or connections that lend weight to an undertaking of this kind.

Children Enjoy It.

This morning an Examiner reporter visited the Park and following the sound of children's voices found twenty or more of the little ones under the care of Miss Dickson, trained nurse. Out in the stream boys and girls were building tiny dams and sluices, under a shade tree four boys were playing porchesa and others were wading in the water sailing chip Lipton challengers and guiding them past danger zones. All the youngsters were within the range of Miss Dickson's vision, and all of them were enjoying themselves.

How Gathered.

Members of the Health Association, particularly doctors, suggested the names of children who, although not ill, are expected to improve greatly by the opportunity of daily playing in the Park. A long omnibus makes the rounds of the homes every morning beginning at eight o'clock. Some of the children live south of the Exhibition Grounds, some in the West Ward, others in the East. In fact the 'bus winds around the city and arrives at the Park about nine o'clock. They receive a light lunch of bread and milk and then begin the day's round of amusements. Their dinner is calculated to build up and invigorate the bodies of the children. Meat, potatoes, vegetables and pudding every day provides a good meal. After dinner an hour is spent at rest. Up in the park a large tent to be used as a shelter contains cots which are carried out under the pines and the children are obliged to rest for an hour after the midday meal. This is the only obligation imposed upon them. Then come the afternoon games, another lunch about five o'clock, when the 'bus arrives to return them to their homes.

Need Assistance.

The meals are served in one of the Street Railway waiting rooms, and the salubrious air in the Park, strongly flavoured with the sanitary fragrance of the pines, sharpens the appetites of the youngsters to a degree that suggests the possibilities and probable results of the Health Association's work. With a natural sanatorium on the city's fringe at the Park, the Association by inaugurating the organized use of it, is incidentally doing a great work. Occasional visits during summer are of little use, but a regularly conducted visits should be highly beneficial. Citizens interested in the Health Association's work are reminded that funds are very limited, and financial assistance will not only enable the extension of the work, but will give it a greater permanency.

ARE EATING AWAY THE CORN

One of the G.T.R. railway men brought the story to the city this morning that in the Hallburton district the grasshoppers are eating away the corn. Some of the fields, he stated, were so bared by the insects that cattle were being allowed the crops. Rain is necessary to check the number of these distructive insects.

BIG GATHERING OF THE MASONS

59th Communication Will Go Down Into History as the International Peace Communication.

LOCAL MASONS THERE

Examiner Special:

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., July 14. —With welcoming street streamers assuring the Masons "The place is yours, everything is yours but the key," the Blue Lodge Masonic Brethren of Ontario, opened their fifty-ninth communication, which will probably go down into history as the international peace communication here this morning.

One thousand delegates attended to-day's inauguration and some thirty outside the jurisdiction in the United States and Great Britain were represented. the century of harmony between two great countries was receiving recognition in a Masonic way, hence the emphatically international character of to-day's proceedings. M. W. Bro. W. D. McPherson, of Toronto, presided as Grand Master. He will tender a banquet to-night to the craft rulers. Mayor Dores formally conferred on the visitors the freedom of the city. It is expected that the Grand Lodge business will be finished by noon to-morrow.

In his address Grand Master McPherson pleaded for "happy medium" in initiation fees. He did not believe in "cheap Masonry," neither did he think the lodges should fix fees so high as to exclude deserving men who could not afford it.

The treasurer's and other reports were satisfactory.

Delegates from Peterborough Masonry to the convention are Messrs. H. R. H. Kenner, A. A. Fowler, R. M. Waddell, and W. H. Walkey.

MAYOR BULLER

Who, it is stated, will receive the appointment to the position of Collector of Inland Revenue.

A BIG EXODUS FROM CANADA

Government is Being Inundated With Applications for the Deportation of Many Men

MORE OUT THAN IN

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., July 15—The Government is being inundated with applications for the perotation of stalwart men, who are without employment. Now the movement has become most popular. Every place, which has idle men wants to get rid of them. To-day there are thousands of such men in the country. The men, themselves, want to leave for their homes in Europe. It has been semi-officially stated that the exodus of peope from Canada woud be greater this year than the influx. There is considerable alarm over the number leaving Canada.

MORE EVIDENCE AGAINST MRS. CARMAN HEARD

Special to The Examiner.

NEW YORK, N. Y., July 15—Another strong link in the chain of circumstantial evidence being wrapped around Mrs. Forence Carman, charged with killing Mrs. Louise Bailey, in Dr. Carman's office, was forged today when Frank Farrell, a tramp, told the Coroner's Jury, to-day, he heard the shot fired, and saw a woman in a long cloak run from the Doctor's window, where the shot went through, to the kitchen door. The coloured maid testified yesterday that Mrs. Carman ran into the kitchen door after the shot was fired, but Mrs. Carmon declares she was upstairs all the time.

ENJOYABLE SOCIAL AT C. J. HICKS' HOME

About sixty of the members of the Treasure Seekers' Bible Class of St. James' Church were the guests of Mr and Mrs. C. J. Hicks, Albert Street, at a social held on their lawn last night. Mr. Hicks has been Secretary of the class since its inception and a very pleasant time was enjoyed last night. Games were played and a short programme was rendered. Refreshments of ice cream, cake and fruit were served. The next event for the Bible Class will be the excursion to Niagara Falls, on July 30th.

A Berth For Mayor Buller

Reported His Worship Will Receive the Appointment of Collector of Inland Revenue

A widely-circulated report around the street to-day, has it that at a meeting of the Executive of the Conservative Association, to-night, His Worship Mayor Buller will be recommended for the position of Collector of Inland Revenue. It seems to be understood that His Worship will get the appointment if he wants it.

THE MERCHANTS MEET TO-NIGHT

Final Details for the Big Picnic Will be Arranged

A meeting is being called for to-night of all the different picnic committees at the Y.M.C.A., to put the last drop of oil on the wheels of what is expected to be the largest picnic ever held in this part of the Province.

The Committee badges will also be distributed which give free transportation on the street car lines.

The Executive are asking every merchant to come out to-night who is at all interested in this big event and to help it along.

The meeting is called for 8 o'clock.

WILL HOLD A CONVENTION HERE

The Ontario Marble and Granite Dealers' Association will hold their annual convention in Peterborough on August 3rd and 4th. It is expected that some forty or fifty delegates will be in attendance.

THEFT CHARGE CAUSED AMUSEMENT IN COURT

Maxwell Bros. Are Sent Up for Trial on a Charge of Stealing Articles From W. A. Bailey.

GAOL FOR A MONTH

A lively session of the Police Court was held this morning when William and Arthur Maxwell, two brothers, were charged with breaking into the house of W. A. Bailey at the corner of George and Princess streets, and stealing the following articles: One pair of boots, one pair of tweed trousers, one set of gold cuff links, one pair of opera glasses, one pair of boots, one pair of gloves, and other goods, making a total value of $30.

W. A. Bailey went into the witness box first to give evidence, parts of which were very ludicrous. When Assistant Crown Attorney Wearing and Magistrate Dumble started to question witness he seemed to get excited remarking: "If both of you ask questions I can't answer you."

Magistrate Dumble—"We are not here for Tom foolery."

The evidence showed that the place had been broken into at midday on the 2nd of July when witness was away. Most of the stolen articles were produced in court.

Magistrate Dumble—"Are these your boots?"

Bill Bailey—"As far as I know they are, but I don't care about the go do at all, and as for my boots I do not value them.

The stolen trousers were next produced and showed signs of alteration, but they matched the vest Mr. Bailey had on in court, and he said if they had taken the whole suit he would not likely have missed it.

Then witness went on to say that they had taken a pocket-knife which was hanging on a nail at the door and was the most useful article he owned.

Mr. Widdifield, appearing for the prisoners, then cross-examined witness.

Mr. Widdifield—"Ever been in police court before?"

Mr. Bailey—"Yes, and I'm rather proud of it."

Then the question of the trousers was brought up, and it was noticed that they had been altered to fit the thief.

Mr. Baillie—"I don't care about the alterations, I am not going to wear them again."

Mr. Widdifield—"Pretty thin man."

Witness—"Oh you go to blazes."

Mr. Widdifield—"Did you ever miss anything before at your home?"

Witness—"Yes, my dinner."

At this junction a continuous titter was audible throughout the court room, and Chief Thompson's voice called "Order."

Then Abraham Chimikof, who runs a second-hand store on Simcoe street, said that his wife had bought some of the stolen goods from the prisoners.

Detective Newhall said that on the 7th of July he and Detective Meagher saw the prisoners at the Grand Hotel, but at the sight of the police they fled. but the detectives caught them after a short chase.

Counsel Widdifield then said that an awful lot of admissions were made around here and he wondered how they came about.

Prisoners refused through Mr. Widdifield, their counsel, to either plead or elect, and they were committed for trial.

Thomas Boucher, who was found drunk, was discharged.

Stanley Hopkins, of Kinmount, found Peterborough booze too much for him and was told he had better go home.

Thomas Newhall, who is wanted in Norwood, was found drunk and remanded till to-morrow.

A man named Harvey, who decamped with a candy traveller's bag at Belleville on July 1, and was arrested in Peterborough with the goods, come up for hearing this morning and pleaded guilty, saying that he had been drinking. He was sentenced to one month in jail with hard labour.

A. N. Robinson was charged with getting $8 from Mr. Nicholls by false pretences. Robinson was to clean out a cess-pool but it is said never did the work, although he was given the money. He pleaded not guilty, but Magistrate Dumble enlarged the case for a week in order to give the defendant time to pay back the money and save himself further trouble.

CORDAGE CO. CASES BEFORE JUDGE HUYCKE

Local Master Hears Evidence for Action Brought About by the Liquidator

CASE NOT CONCLUDED

The attention of Judge Huycke, the local Master, was again centred on hearing the cases brought by the liquidators of the defunct Peterborough Cordage Co. against contributaries who, it is alleged, subscribed to stock, which has been allotted to them, but payment has never been, or only partially made.

The first case heard was that against Alex. Sanderson, who resides on the Chemong Road. Mr. Sanderson was defended by Mr. Dixon, while Mr. S. T. Medd appeared in the interests of the liquidators. The claim made by the Liquidator, Mr. G. W. Hatton, was for two shares, at $25 per share. As evidence, he produced letters written to Mr. Sanderson by the Company, and Mr. Sanderson's reply, asking for time to pay, owing to pecuniary difficulties, which arose at the time payment was alleged to be due.

This evidence was, in the opinion, of Mr. Medd, enough to warrant judgment. There was, however, no application form signed by Mr. Sanderson, produced.

There was a verbal agreement, as deduced in evidence, which was made in the woods, and it was claimed, the law does not call for a written promise or agreement in the case of buying or agreeing to buy, stock from any Company.

Mr. Sanderson was called to give evidence. This was done by means of pencil and paper, as the witness was extremely deaf. He stated that he could not remember signing an agreement to take stock, but he thought he had promised to take some from Mr. Kennedy, while working in the woods. He admitted receiving demands from the company, by the letters exhibited, but could not say whether or not other demands were made upon him. No other evidence was taken, and the case was given over to argument, after which His Honour reserved his decision.

The next case was that against L. H. Burns of Ottawa. The liquidators in this case sought to prove that he had suscribed to $100 worth of stock in the Company, and as evidence produced a stock certificate, and a sheet from the Company's loose leaf ledger, and other letters, the purport of which was to prove that the defendant had been notified re the stock. Other evidence was lacking and the case adjourned. It is the object of the defence to prove that he had never subscribed for stock, and that he attached his name to the list for the purpose of enticing others to do likewise. Further, it is claimed the documents were signed on Sunday, thereby rendering them null and void. The case will be concluded later.

The case which will doubtless arouse a great deal of interest is that of the iquidators vs. T. Tanner of St. Catharines, from whom is claimed the sum of $2,500. Mr. E. H. D. Hall has been retained as counsel in this case, which will be heard on Tuesday next, before His Honour Judge Huycke.

DANCE AT CHEMONG

To-morrow evening the Chemong Regatta Club will hold their regular weekly dance at the pavilion in the Park. These dances are becoming popular with the young people of the Park and city every week, and no doubt there will be a good attendance to indulge in the Terpschorean art. Mr. Asa Huycke will furnish the music and play the latest pieces.

CAN'T AFFORD TO RUN AGAIN

Examiner Special:

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., July 15—"It's not ill health, but poverty. I simply can't afford it," explained E. A. Lancaster, M. P., and Chairman of the Railway Committee of the House of Commons, when he told his constituents here that he would not be a candidate again. He left Ottawa during the session last year, broken in health, but has returned here somewhat recovered.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE MRS. WATSON

The funeral of the late Mrs. M. Watson, McGill Street, who passed away on Monday afternoon, was held this morning from the family residence to the G. T. R. Station, whence the remains were taken to Keene for interment. The services were conducted by the Rev. J. E. Webb, of the Murray Street Church, and a large number of friends were present to pay their last respects to the deceased. The late Mrs. Watson was the mother of Mr. Isaac Watson, of this City, who very recently was saved from death by electrocution by the use of the pulmotor, after he had received a severe shock and fallen from one of the hydro-electric poles on George Street.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 15, 1914

ALWAYS TO-MORROW.

Premier Borden will live in Canadian history as Sir Robert, the Unready, and the Great Procrastinator, says the Brantford Expositor. Delay and vacillation are his characteristics in dealing with Canadian affairs. Vigour, progressiveness and the keeping of faith with the people are lacking. He trifles with the questions of unemployment and the high cost of living. His promise to appeal to the people on the navy question has gone unredeemed. His Government fails to make good its declaration that the Naval Service Act would be repealed. The pledge the Premier gave in Opposition to take prompt steps to stamp out electoral corruption has gone unfulfilled, and such actions as have been taken was the direct result of a Liberal motion in the Commons during a recent session. The Senate reform the Premier promised has not been undertaken. The assurance he gave the Western farmers that if elected he would have the Dominion take over the terminal elevators is honoured only in its breach. His attitude toward technical education is one of procrastination only. Sir Robert does nothing toward redeeming his pledge to hand over to the Prairie Provinces the control of their natural resources. Nothing has been done toward that civil service reform which the Premier promised the country. He plays with the question of branch railways in the Maritime Provinces. In two things only does Sir Robert show vigour — one, the granting of increased tariff privileges to Special Interests; the other, the giving of scores of millions of public money to favoured railway corporations.

THE IRISH VOLUNTEERS.

(Ottawa Journal.)

In the July number of the "British Review," a publication which voices all that is best in English Conservatism, there is a very remarkable article on the Irish National Volunteers, from the pen of Alice Stopford Green, wife of the famous historian John Richard Green, and herself an author of distinction. As one who has given exhaustive study to Ireland and the Irish, their ancient history, literature, passions, hatreds, aspirations, and ideals, she is more competent than most observers to express an impartial and accurate opinion on the outcome of the troublous times which beset that country and its people. In the formation and development of the two rival Volunteer armies Mrs. Green sees the basis of genuine reconciliation between the men of the South and the men of the North. Thus she writes:

"The great majority of the Conveners, Irishmen know to be their brothers in blood, and all to be their fellow-countrymen. The Irish Volunteers bring no message of civil strife. . . . They are casting away all party feeling against the Orangemen. Englishmen who imagine that Irish historical memory is a source only of evil passions, do not understand the glow of gratitude and affection with which Irishmen dwell on the Belfast of older days. Nothing is better known and remembered than the mission given by the Protestant Belfast Volunteers in 1783 to their delegates for the Dublin convention to support a plan of parliamentary reform which should give Catholics equal admission to the rights of freemen—a liberality in which Belfast stood almost alone. Irishmen remember the critical days when Belfast was beginning to build up its commercial position — how the landlord Protestants of the town subscribed in 1784 towards the first Roman Catholic chapel allowed to be built after the penal days, and the Belfast Volunteers in full uniform lined the chapel yard as a guard of honour, and presented arms to the priests as he passed in to the church; and how the Roman Catholics returned thanks to their brother Christians. . . . The leaders of the Irish Volunteers are doubtless right in their assertion that the movement in Ulster has already begun most effective to develop mutual respect and understanding. When Conveners and Catholic freely consult together for the common good in co-operative societies, (thout t in all these months of stress any sign of disunion; when the rank and file of the Ulster Volunteers and Irish Volunteers salute each other on the march as brave men, there are dawns of comprehension and good sense at work, which will go hard with organisers of civil war to destroy."

The whirligig of time has brought stranger things than that which this distinguished Englishwoman discerns through the mists of political controversy which cloud the Irish situation. Every lover of the Emerald Isle—and who is not?—will hope that she is right. The confusion or the non-existence of Ulster, pales into insignificance before the greater problem of downstanding the men of the North and South. Creed hatred has been the bane of progress in Ireland. The Young Ireland movement recognized this fact, and some of its best and brightest minds — Protestants and Catholic —consecrated their lives to tearing down the barriers of religious distrust. The Celtic League, and the literary revival of the last ten years, have accomplished much toward that end. A lot remains to be done. Religious differences in Ireland are rooted in centuries of conflict and distrust. If the Volunteers of the North and South should come together for the common good, they could accomplish more than has been achieved by politicians and governments during the past half a century to raise the structure of their country on the broad basis of justice, equality and toleration ;to bring about that reconciliation between the Orange and Green of which one of the poets of the Nation sang:

"And let tthe Orange lily be,
Thy badge, my patriot brother;
The everlasting Green for me,
And we for one another."

THE NEXT FOUR YEARS.

Discussions on ways and means of defeating the Whitney Government four years hence are interesting in their way, says the Toronto Star. But perhaps a question of more immediate importance is what is to be done during the next four years by a Government possessing an overwhelming majority and by the Legislature.

The Government has undertaken a policy of road improvement on a large scale, and it has also promised to establish a system of radial railof electric power to farmers. These are good objects; and it will be the duty of the Legislature, without distinction of party, to encourage the promised work and hasten it forward. The Government has had no reason to complain that its Hydro-Electric policy was obstructed for party reasons, and it will meet with no opposition, but with aid and encouragement, in any other progressive undertakings.

The Government has declined to appoint a commission to inquire into the conditions of rural Ontario and to endeavour to check rural depopulation. But that refusal, if persisted in, only emphasizes the duty of the Government to strengthen its Agricultural Department and extend the usefulness of its service to farmers.

In labour legislation a good beginning has been made with compensation for workmen. There are other important fields for labour legislation. Means should be taken to lessen the evils of unemployment by providing labour exchanges. Insurance against unemployment and sickness is another subject that ought to receive attention. The appointment of a Minister of Labour would stimulate interest in this work, and the Government ought to be asked to reconsider its refusal to establish such a department.

The change which has taken place in the Legislature is not to be estimated by merely counting the heads on each side. Some of the new members are men of unusual force and originality, and we hope they will add to the stock of ideas for the advancement of Ontario. In this country we perhaps pay too much attention to Governments and too little to Legislatures. A hundred and eleven men are not elected to the Legislature merely to vote for and against the Government. They are chosen as our best and most representative men, and we have a right to expect much from them.

Prospects More Encouraging Says President Nicholls

In view of the decline in Canadian General Electric stock, a statement by Mr. Frederick Nicholls, President and General Manager of the Company, that its business is not half-bad, despite reports to the contrary, is quite reassuring. Mr. Nicholls says the Company is experiencing some falling off in orders, but he says that while some departments are not running to full capacity, others are exceptionally busy, notably the Canadian Allis-Chalmers department, which has booked more orders in the past half year than it did in the corresponding half of 1913. Orders for electrical apparatus are less in volume, owing to the fact that no large enterprises are being proceeded with at the moment.

"It is, of course, too early to forecast the result of the whole year," said Mr. Nicholls, "but the prospects are more encouraging now than they have been for some time past. The Company is finishing up contracts for locomtives for the Intercolonial Railway, the Canadian Pacific, and has orders for twenty-five more, some of the work on which has not yet reached the shops."

Collections, he says, have been surprisingly good, and the Company's liabilities have been reduced by over $2,000,000 since the first of the year. —Toronto Star.

PETES HAD FIFTEEN SOLID BLOWS AND BEAT OTTAWA 9 TO 5 IN THIRD GAME

Came From Behind and Scored Five Runs in the Fifth Innings, Giving Them a Lead That They Held Throughout.

ANOTHER WIN FOR STERLING

OTTAWA, July 14—Peterborough made it two out of three against the Ottawas, taking to-day's game by a score of 9 to 5. Ottawa led by 2 to 0 until the fifth, when two errors by Smykal, one by Powers and, coupled with hits by Miller, Sterling, Blount, Byrne and Welsh gave the visitors five runs and a lead that Ottawa could not overcome. After the second inning Sterling had the Ottawas numbered, whilst Peterborough drove Shocker out of the box in the fifth, and then hammered Lill, who was taken out in the eighth. Rogers finished the game and he, too, was pummelled Peterborough having a total of 14 safeties, including a triple by Dolan, which Rogers should have caught.

Sterling held the Ottawas to eight hits, and fine support saved him on many occasions. None of the Ottawa pitchers had much, Rogers and Lill being exceptionally wild. Shaughnessy derricked Shocker in the fifth as Shocker stood in the box and allowed Dolan to steal second. A balk was called on him and Shaughnessy sent him to the bench. Ottawa afterwards drew within two runs of the White Caps, and had the bases filled in the seventh, but they could not find Sterling when hits meant runs. The Senators played very raggedy in the field and there will likely be a shake-up at once. Nill will be benched. Smykal sent to second and Brassel, a new infielder from Chattanooga, put at short. Pitcher Pake reported from Chattanooga to-day. Score:

FREAK SCORING IN OTTAWA GAMES

It is time the scorer at Ottawa woke up to the fact that the Cincinnati base hit rule is no longer in existence. He credited two hits against Cresswell on Monday under this discarded rule. On one occasion, with Nill on first base, Dolan hit to Cresswell, who had an easy out at first base, but tried for the base runner at second and lost him. The generous scorer, however, handed Dolan a hit in spite of the following clear rule:

"When the fielder after handling a batted ball elects to try to retire a base-runner instead of the batter, the play is known as a fielders' choice. In case the runner is retired or would be retired but for an error the batter shall be charged with a time at bat, but no hit. If the runner is not retired and no error is made, the batter shall be charged with a time at bat, but no hit, provided he swing at the ball and shall be credited with a sacrifice hit, provided he bunted the ball."

The information editor received this letter from a fresh youth:

"Kindly tell me why a girl always closes her eyes when a fellow kisses her."

The editor replied:

"If your will send me your photograph we may be able to tell you the reason."

CANADIAN LEAGUE NOTES

Ottawa Free Press: Five scattered hits, two of which were of the scratch variety, were all Peterborough could gather off Pitcher Kubat yesterday afternoon, and Ottawa skunked the Lift Lock squad 3—0. The Senators, with a savage attack on Lefty Cresswell, in the opening round, scored all their runs on five hard cracks. After that only a couple of opportunities presented themselves for the champions to again cross the rubber, but Cresswell either tightened up or fast fielding prevented any further damage. While Kubat was in excellent form, he was also well supported, Shaughnessy robbing Dolan on two occasions of drives labelled for the fence. A fine shoe-string catch by Rooney in right, of Shag's line drive on a hit and run play in the seventh, cut off at least two runs, as two were on at the time and none out. A double play resulted. Kubat fanned eight men and walked but two. Cresswell was also in a strike-out mood and got half a dozen of the champions. The game was played in excessive heat.

Ottawa Journal: The Senators uncorked a little of the silver lining stuff yesterday and a three-run lead, grabbed off at the first of the contest, lasted through the entire nine frames, the Petes tasting defeat via the shut-out route. The Shagmen looked a mighty different outfit than they have for some time past, only one error being contributed, and that came with two men down in the eighth.

Frank Kubat did the hurling for the champs, and got through with colours flying. Kubby allowed but five hits and no two came in the same innings. On top of that he walked only two men during the affray, and struck out eight. Opposed to him Pitcher Cresswell twirled just as good ball after the fatal first innings, and at least three of the nine hits the champs garnered from his delivery were of the scratch variety. Cresswell was also unlucky in having a couple of very close decisions go against him, although, in one case he was more or less responsible through delaying his throw to the base.

Troutie Had Five Hits In Five Times Up

Toronto aMil and Empire: The feature of the game was the playing of Trout. In five times at bat he had five hits. He made the circuit on his last hitt, a beauty to the centre field fence. He also fielded in fine style, and showed speed on the base lines, stealing third once and scoring four runs. Killilea also had a perfect average, but his hits were not as clean as those of Trout.

GOLF

The Mississauga golfers who are coming to Peterborough to-morrow, are as follows: F. W. Kennedy, J. H. Forrester, F. W. Tanner, Thos. Allen, Frank Roden, R. H. Coleman, F. W. Ott, Wm. Smellie, J. C. Murrie, Col. A. Weir, Dr. W. E. Dean, H. S. White, George H. Hendry, W. A. Denton, N. F. Gundy.

Personals

A match will be played on the Peterborough Golf Links between the home club and a team representing the Mississauga Golf Club of Toronto. The game will start as soon as possible after lunch in order to enable the Toronto players to catch the afternoon train. The members of the Peterborough Golf Club, who have been notified are requested to be on hand sharp on time for lunch at 12.30 p.m., to-morrow.

On Thursday, July 23, a match will be played against Oshawa, in Oshawa. Further particulars regarding this match will be announced later.

BASEBALL.

At a meeting of the Mercantile League executive held last night, the protest of the De-Laval team against a decision of Umpire Andrews in the game against the Red Caps last week, was disallowed and the score will stand as was given, 4 to 4.

INSIDE BASEBALL.

Winning in the Morning the Game of the Afternoon.

In the American Magazine Eddie Collins, second baseman for the Philadelphia Athletics, writes a baseball article, entitled "Connie Mack and His Mackmen," in which he describes intimately the wonderful Philadelphia baseball manager. Collins is the man whom Johnny McGraw of the New York Giants calls the greatest base ball player in the world. Following is an extract from the article:

"Every morning at 10 we gather in the clubhouse. If the team is on the road we meet in Connie's room in the hotel. We are never in session less than ten minutes or rarely more than half an hour. But in that time the game to be played that afternoon is sometimes won.

"Every point of the defensive and offensive strength of the opposing team is discussed. Mack will mention the pitcher that our opponents will probably use and instantly a scheme of attack is devised. This attack varies as we meet different pitchers. Always in those morning meetings Mack goes over the entire situation—plans the battle."

She Passed as the Buddha.

Regularly every year during the carnival the writer on Chinese subjects, Mme. Judith Gauthier, gives a little party in her wonderful house in the Rue Washington in Paris. The house is a museum of Chinese art, and Mme. Gauthier's guests always find something new to interest them.

At this year's party when the guests arrived their hostess was not there to receive them. The servants told them madame would come presently and called their attention to her latest treasure, a magnificent life size Buddha with a painted face and covered with a wonderful cloth of gold. The Buddha sat on the piano, and the guests were admiring it when it sneezed and coughed. It was Mme. Judith Gauthier herself.—Paris Cor. New York Sun.

Revolving Ships.

The revolving ship is one of those inventions which, although they are obviously impracticable, seem to have a fascination for the inventor that is rather difficult to explain. Several years ago there was built and tried in this country a boat of the revolving type which reached a stage at which it was launched, and an attempt was made unsuccessfully to propel it. According to a dispatch from London, a Paris inventor is now busy on another of these craft, and, judging from the meager descriptions available, the device is following along the lines that were proved to be altogether impracticable fully a dozen years ago.—Scientific American.

Petes Will Be Here To-morrow With Brantford

The Petes will return from Ottawa early to-morrow morning and will open a three-game series to-morrow afternoon at Riverside Park with Rube Deneau's Brantford team. To-morrow's game on account of the half holiday will be at 3 o'clock, Friday's at 3:45, and Saturday at 3 o'clock. The Petes are going at a fine clip now and are sure of a good reception from the fans to-morrow. They will be home for a week, Ottawa coming here for three days at the beginning of next week.

ABOUT PICTURES

Mrs. W. McCrae, Essex Co., Ont.

Although I am not an artist and cannot even draw a picture that would pass muster, I am nevertheless extremely interested in pictures, and believe that too often we neglect altogether to cultivate the artistic temperament as we should. The day school presents a wide field for cultivating the love of good pictures. I would suggest that Women's Institutes can do a good work by buying copies of famous paintings and placing them in the schools. These pictures would give the teacher a splendid opportunity of teaching nature study to the children and of educating them into a larger appreciation of the beautiful.

While reading in a United States farm journal a few days ago I noticed an article on the value of picture study which was so good and the sentiment expressed coincided with my own ideas so closely that I am passing it on for the benefit of Farm and Dairy readers:

"The value of picture study in the school is not recognized by many. In the different subjects taught it is almost indispensable in the language work of the lower grades. This work, which is often a distasteful, lifeless subject, can be changed to a period of real pleasure by the use of pictures. Children take to pictures as naturally as a 'duck takes to water.' Let us furnish good pictures so that the bad may be crowded out, or at least given no room in which to find lodgment.

"Hideous and unsightly calendars, and pictures whose mission is to advertise, should not be given a place in the school room. Two pictures which every school should possess and study are 'Sir Galahad' and the 'Madonna of the Chair.' Just an illustration:

"A grammar grade boy, who had received the appendage of 'bad,' entered the room at the opening of the school. The teacher had been acquainted with his reputation, and expected almost anything to happen. The first day went smoothly. The second was the same. Peace and good behavior continued the third day, and in fact for many days. After a few weeks the curiosity of the teacher got the better of her, and she went to him one recess, and said: 'John, there is one thing I wish you would tell me. Why is it that you have behaved so well for me, and have made it so pleasant, when you gave the other teachers so much trouble?' The boy, without any hesitancy, pointed straight to the picture of 'Madonna of the Chair,' otherwise Mary, with the Christ Child in her arms, and said, 'No fellow could be bad with that picture looking at him all day.'

"Why is 'Sir Galahad' mentioned as a picture from which good may be derived? This pictures denotes chivalry and courtesy. Many and many a bit of mischief may be averted by saying, 'Where are my Sir Galahads?' Notice how quickly the boys and girls will straighten up in their seats. Also there is an opportunity here to teach kindness and true politeness.

"Much work of this sort may be brought in with each picture, by which morals and manners and self-government may be taught."

Lowest Bidder.

"I have come back to ask for the hand of your daughter," announced the young man.

"Have a chair," said the father, kindly. "I presume you have made an estimate of what it will cost to keep my daughter in the style to which she has been accustomed?"

"I have, sir."

"And the figures?"

"Ten thousand dollars a year."

"I'm sorry, my boy," said the older man, "but I cannot afford to throw away $10,000 a year. Another suitor has figured to do it for $8,000."

DISCOVERIES AT POMPEII.

Wonderful Revelations Are Being Made in Ruins of Old City.

A discovery has recently been made in the immediate vicinity of Pompeii which promises to be a memorable event in the story of ancient art. Last year some excavations undertaken in accordance with the Italian law of 1902 upon a farm close to the Porta Ercolese suddenly assumed importance because they disclosed the remains of a magnificent mansion, containing more than twenty rooms, in addition to the usual Roman open-air courts and enclosed gardens known to all students of Pompeiian domestic architecture.

Upon the resumption of work this season, including the removal of the covering of volcanic débris to a sufficient depth to reveal the interior walls of the villa, the investigation proved to be of special importance, for the decorative fresco paintings adorning the rooms were found. The London Standard states, to possess a new character in ancient technique, being painted so as to imitate successfully sculpture both in low and high relief. Tourists will remember that both at Antwerp and at Brussels, as well as elsewhere, there are similar pictorial tours de force by Netherlands artists, but here in Campania, as so frequently in other sites of civilization, we find evidence that there is nothing really new in artistic execution.

It was to be anticipated that the finest houses for persons connected with Pompeii would have been erected without the walls of that crowded little city, in which the summer heat must have been stifling and where many vicious characters dwelt. The better classes, therefore, built their homes in the suburbs, and artists of the greatest skill were employed in their decoration. In the house just discovered there are a few examples in which the artists have successfully endeavored to imitate architectural features, producing the precise effect of architectonic perspective. In one of these, two Ionic columns with their bases supported upon a projecting ledge at the foot of a wall, appear (even in photographs of the fresco) absolutely as if standing quite detached from the surface in the rear. Still more effective, although a representation of a smaller feature of a building, is the painting of a double door, the upper third of which is occupied by a "grille." The interstices of this are so shaded as to appear as true perforations. Dr. Breccia, of Alexandria, has pointed out that the design of these doors is almost identical with the actual portals of an ancient tomb discovered by him at Chatby, near Ramleh. This is not surprising, because much of the ornamental silverware from the Bosco Reale Villa, farther away from Pompeii, was of Alexandrian decorative style.

A Matter of Opinion.

"Mary!"

Father's voice rolled down the stairs and into the dim and silent parlor.

"Yes, papa, dear!"

"Ask that young man if he has the time."

A moment of silence.

"Yes; George has his watch with him."

"Then ask him what is the time."

"He says it is 11.48, papa."

"Then ask him if he doesn't think it about bedtime."

Another moment of silence.

"He says, papa," the silvery voice announced impersonally—"he says that he rarely goes to bed before 1, but it seems to him that it is a matter of personal preference merely and that if he were in your place he would go now if he felt sleepy."

Mary, Queen of Scots.

Mary, Queen of Scots, was tall and slender, but very graceful in all her actions. Her face does not seem to have been especially beautiful, for she had rather irregular features, but her fascination of manner was irresistible. She had a way of cocking her head a little to one side and of looking sideways at the person with whom she was talking that gave a strong impression of coquetry. She had very small hands and feet and was fond of showing both, often having her gowns shortened in order that her feet might be seen. She always had her own hair cut close and wore a wig to save the time and trouble of hairdressing.

If Opportunity knocks at every man's door, as the maxim has it, her knuckles must be pretty sore.

Every time a man sows wild oats he gets a lot of innocent people to help him harvest the crop.

As between the submarine and the aeroplane, it is a toss-up as to which involves the more danger.

It is proposed to use warships in South American trade. They ought to come in handy to collect bills.

Old Civil Service Examination.

Lady Dorothy Nevill in one of her books gave an amusing example of the style of examination for posts in the British civil service which prevailed before the advent of the competitive system. The young candidate was ushered into the room of the old chief clerk of the department, and this ordeal followed:

"Sit down, sir," roared a voice of thunder. Then after a painful pause: "Now, sir, attention. I shall examine you in arithmetic."

"Shall I not have pen and paper?"

"No, sir," thundered out the gruff voice. "Attention! How much are two and two?"

Paralyzed by the voice and sudden question, the youth stared and then gasped out quite seriously:

"Four, sir."

But the question surely should have been, "How many blue beans make five?"

The Earth's Interior.

That the interior of the earth is intensely hot is proved by the increase in temperature observed in deep mines and in even deeper borings. It is proved also by the emission of lava, which is nothing more than molten rock, from the craters of volcanoes. But the scientists, who maintain that the earth's interior is not fluid but of the consistency of steel, are probably correct just the same. Matter, when under great pressure, may be rigid even at enormously high temperature. The interior rocks of the earth may be heated to several thousand degrees and still be solid. When pushed up to the surface by volcanic action and relieved from pressure these solid, though superheated, rocks would become immediately liquefied. The practical deep well borers, who find that their drills are softened by the heat of the lower strata, have not got the laugh on the theoretic savants.—Philadelphia Record.

Old Time Gas Charges.

The price of gas in the early part of the last century is shown by a schedule of charges issued by the Liverpool Gaslight company in the year 1817. Instead of so much per cubic foot being levied, each individual burner was charged for, and the price varied according to the hour at which the light was to be extinguished. Thus for using one No. 1 Argand burner up till 8 p. m. £3 per annum had to be paid. For the right to keep it alight until 9 £3 18s. was the figure, while those roistering blades who sat up till 10, 11 or 12 had to disburse £4 16s., £5 12s. and £6 8s. respectively. Imagine the gas bill at a house where ten or twelve burners are flaring away until the small hours if such a method of taxation were in force nowadays!—Liverpool Post.

"She wasn't to me, sir," answered the conductor politely.—Purple Cow.

SIGNALS TO STREET CAR

Passengers for Street Cars are requested to distinctly signal the car as it approaches the stop at which they are waiting, by raising the hand, cane, or umbrella to a horizontal position or higher.

In many cases it is impossible for the motormen to know whether or not persons who merely step out towards the the centre of a street, when a car is approaching, want the car to stop or not, and much uncertainty and consequent delay to passengers may therefore be avoided by our patrons making a distinct signal, as above, when they wish a car to stop for them.

LAWN SOCIAL AT SACRED HEART CHURCH BIG SUCCESS

Large Crowd Enjoyed Annual Gathering in South End—Booths and Supper Contributed to the Success

Graced with splendid weather and a record attendance the lawn social on the Sacred Heart Church grounds last night was a complete success. Early in the day the sky was lowering and rain seemed imminent, but about four o'clock the sun burst through, providing a delightful evening for the annual outdoor event. The The grounds were well lighted, the booths decorated with Chinese lanterns and the whole scene presented a constantly changing and pretty picture.

Supper was served between five and eight o'clock, with hundreds partaking of it. The ladies had the gratification of receiving many compliments for the meal which surpassed anything yet attempted at this annual social. Their industry and planning was rewarded with a generous response and nothing but praises were heard in connection with the supper.

The ice cream, refreshment, flower and fancy goods booths were all busy and the fish pond was worked overtime. The 57th Regimental Band played during the evening and other entertainments enlivened the proceedings.

The ocean wave hit the breakers early in the evening at a time when it was rolling in a tide of nickels and the children were enjoying the billows. While a new passenger list was being made up and about half the seats were occupied the wave buckled in a half dozen places and gently collapsed. The occupants were deposited on the lawn after a fall of a few feet. No one was hurt, but the wave subsided with its incidental music and the gaiety of the nation received a severe setback.

The ocean wave, in charge of Messrs. J. Murray, W. Boyle and D. Gleason proved a big attraction for the kiddies, while the ball tossers kept the "hitting the nigger" stand in charge of Mr. F. Neary, busy all evening. The fish pond for which over 3,000 articles had been prepared was crowded till all the articles had been disposed of. It was one of the b' attractions on the grounds and was in charge of Misses A. Simmons and A. Meagher, assisted by Misses M. Boyle, A. Gillman and K. Masterman. To Miss Simmons and Miss Meagher is due the credit for collecting the various articles.

The refreshment booth of the Sodality was in charge of Misses Annie Fagan and Mabel Desautel, assisted by Messrs. M. Desautel, T. Flood, M. Sullivan, K. McNichol, A. Murray and Messrs. J. Rogers and G. Desautel. The T. A. S. booth was in charge of Messrs. I. Goslin, Jr., V. Goslin, Sr., J. Goslin, T. Goslin, H. Rishea and F. H. Rishea. The young ladies in charge of the lottery booth were Misses L. Desautel M. Ryan, M. Meagher, J. McNichol and B. Shaughnessy. The flower booth was taken care of by Misses V. O'Brien, A. Grady, L. Milloy, J. O'Brien and E. Brioux.

Interesting Report Of The Visit Of The Cadets To Barriefield

The following account of the Cadet Camp, at Barriefield, has been written for the Examiner:

The Cadet Camp opened up successfully on July 6th. They all arrived in two days, Monday and Tuesday. There are 1,707 cadets, and about 1,800 o. all ranks. The keenest interest is being shown in the work by all ranks and so far, no serious hospital cases have been reported.

The catering is being carried out by Messrs. Reid and Hambrook, of Kingston. It is all that can be desired, good, healthy food, and plenty of it, is the rule of the camp.

Everybody is highly pleased with the catering with the exception of one or two, but these men would do with about six days at Petawawa on jam and bread diet.

A new departure in the camp this year is the moving pictures conducted every evening by the Y.M.C.A. and judging from the number of boys who patronize this venture it appears to be a very good method of keeping the boys in camp at night. Anywhere from 12 to 15 hundred boys gather to watch the pictures every night.

Great credit is due the Y.M.C.A. for the good work carried on here. The "Y" have the handling of all incoming and outgoing mail, which is no small undertaking.

An interesting feature of Wednesday's programme, was a presentation by Col. Hemming to Bat. Com. Lorne Cann, of Peterborough, of a medal for shooting. Col. Hemming complimented Mr. Cann for the keen interest he shows in cadet work and hoped that the other boys would endeavour to win a medal for the different branches connected with cadet work.

Wednesday night a big bonfire was lighted and a programme was given in the firelight. This lasted from 9 to 10 p.m. in front of the headquarters' tent. This finished with the singing of God Save the King, and three cheers for the general staff, and three cheers for the cadet camp.

Great credit is due to Col. Hemming and Major Gillespie for the able manner in which the camp was conducted. Wednesday afternoon the General Staff Officer, Col. Gwynne, director of cadet services, inspected the Brigade of 5 Battalions. He was highly pleased with the manner in which the corps conducted themselves.

The inspection lasted about two hours. The Peterborough Boys' Band played the march past for the Third Battalion.

Mr. Otter, the Y.M.C.A. representative, was severely burned while taking a flashlight on Friday evening the 10th inst. The Ottawa Cadet Corps won the best shot honours again this year.

The Williamstown Cadet Corps was awarded a cup for best corp on the common.

A Stirling man received a nasty cut on the left eye. This required a couple of stitches.

Thursday opened up a beautiful day. Cadets rose at the usual hour and took part in physical exercises, each corp in command of its own instructor. After breakfast the 3rd Battalion was formed up to partake of the musketry instruction on the ranges. The Batt. was in command of Capt. Hounsell (musketry instructor), assisted by Instructor P. Foster. Inspector Foster explained the mysteries of marking in the butts to about 38 cadets during the morning.

At the early morning parade the Battalions were visited by Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, and Col. Gwynne of the General Staff.

Col. Hughs shook hands with and complimented the officers and instructors of the 3rd Battalion, and expressed his pleasure at the fitness of the cadets. The staff also complimented the cadets on the cleanliness of the camp.

Thursday afternoon about 600 cadets went down the St. Lawrence River on the steamer America for a trip around the Thousand Islands. The remainder journeyed down to Lake Ontario Park where a special vaudeville was given. The park excursion arrived back about 8 o'clock, when a good supper was served to the boys. The boat trip arrived back about 8:30 o'clock. All those who went down on this trip seemed highly satisfied with the beautiful trip.

Thursday night was a very quiet night. All the boys seemed very tired, so this appeared to be a good reason for the silence.

Friday morning the Third Batt. formed up for target practice and under the direction of Musketry Inst. Capt. Hounsell some good work was indulged in for about 3 hours.

Friday afternoon a big field of sports was run off by all five Battalions separately. A large number of handsome prizes were given. About $100 worth of prizes were competed for by the five Battalions of cadets.

Friday night another large bonfire was lighted in front of the Headquarters' Camp. About 1,200 cadets were present. Col. Hemming made a very few suitable remarks at the close of the camp. This closed with three cheers for Col. Hemming and Major Gillespie.

Saturday morning the camp broke up. The different corps left at the scheduled time. The reconnaissance was put through that another year, the camp be a ten-day one instead of a six, as is now the case.

Capt. C. E. Jamieson was in charge of the Third Battalion.

FUNERAL OF MR. E. W. COX AT TORONTO

Toronto Telegram: The funeral of the late E. W. Cox, son of the late Senator George A. Cox, was held this morning at eleven o'clock from the residence of the deceased, 102 Isabella Street. The Rev. Dr. Burwash was the minister in charge of the funeral, and he was assisted by the Rev. Dr. Wilson.

The pall bearers were: Mr. H. C. Cox, a brother of the deceased, Mr. Chas. Brown, and Mr. A. E. Ames, brothers-in-law, Messrs. Alf., Frank, Wilfred, Harold and Ross Cox, Dr. Perry Goldsmith and Mr. W. G. Morrow, cousins, and Mr. George Ames, a nephew.

The offices of the Canada Life Assurance Company, of which Mr. E. W. Cox was the general manager, were closed, and a great many of the staff were present at the service. So large was the crowd that they could not possibly all get into the house, and, during the service, many were forced to remain on the lawn. The flowers that were sent, in spite of the request to the contrary, completely filled one room and the hall.

When the service in the house was finished the casket was borne down the steps, between the rows of mourners and placed in the hearse. The cortege then proceeded to Mount Pleasant Cemetery, where the interment took place.

Among the floral tributes were American beauties from Mr. W. G. Morrow and Miss Morrow, Peterborough, a spray from Mr. Duncan Walker, Peterborough, a basket from the officers and staff of the Peterborough office and a wreath from the Official Board of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church.

NEW CANAL IS INTERFERING WITH WATER SUPPLY

Examiner Special:

ST. CATHARINES, July 15—That the Dominion Government's new fifty million dollar Welland Canal is destroying the water supply of this City and several other towns and Villages in the Peninsula is the serious question confronting a conference of representatives of these places who are meeting here to-day. The Government will be asked to build, at a heavy cost, a pipe line from Lake Erie, to supply them.

STRAWBERRIES

J. E. Smith, B.S.A.

Many of us are persuaded that as soon as we have taken the last picking of strawberries we have nothing more to do with the bed until the coming season. This largely explains the smallness of the second crop of strawberries, and the big crop of bluegrass that we secure instead.

The strawberry bed requires more care after the crop has been taken off than before, if the yield for the next year is to be at all worth while. Just as soon as the last berries have been picked the patch should be gone over with a sharp scythe, a mower or a lawn mower, and the leaves trimmed off. When they have dried they can be raked off and burned, or if there is no danger, fire can be allowed to run right over the patch.

The plow should then be used, and each of the rows trimmed down to from six to nine inches in width, and the ground harrowed over with a light harrow. In these two steps you have cut down the leaf surface, and at the same time trimmed away a large part of the older roots. The result is that the plant is stimulated to make a new growth, and sends out new foliage, runners and root that will provide a heavier crop for the next season. Cultivation during the late summer and early fall is absolutely necessary, for upon the vigor of growth that is made before the winter sets in, depends the harvest for the next year.

TO WATCH CHAUFFEURS.

Ten New Provincial Constables Will Be Sworn In.

TORONTO, July 15. — Ten more constables are to be appointed by the Provincial Secretary's Department on Friday to assist in enforcement of the Motor Vehicles Act. They will be stationed at points throughout the province.

While all infringements of the act will be watched for, what was especially provocative of these appointments is the beast of a good number of chauffeurs, some with much experience, that they have taken out no license and will not do so. Other drivers have passed parts, but not all of the necessary examination, and are driving motor vehicles.

Subway Is Refused.

OTTAWA, July 15.—A judgment of the Dominion Railway Commission just issued refuses the application of the Board of Trade of Georgetown, Ont., for an order for a subway under the G. T. R. tracks at Esquesing Township, near Georgetown.

Although the company was ready to contribute and the municipalities also, the commission did not feel that the danger was sufficient to warrant compelling the company to go to the expense that would be required.

Escaped Death From Train.

KINGSTON, July 15. — To be struck by the International Limited on the Grand Trunk Railway and to escape with a few bruises was the experience of Dr. Samuel Manhard of Lansdowne at noone yesterday. His horse was killed and his buggy smashed into kindling wood at the village crossing. He managed to throw himself out of the vehicle and free from the engine.

Alligator Still at Large.

ST. CATHARINES, July 15.—Although the water was drawn off the Hydraulic Raceway for sixteen hours, the missing four-foot alligator, which escaped and took up its hiding place in the power channel, was not found. It is believed to have escaped into the larger body of water nearby, the old Welland Canal.

Broke Law on Election Day.

WINNIPEG, July 15. — Election day infringements of the Liquor Act have resulted in nearly twenty prosecutions being instituted by the Provincial License Department against Winnipeg hotels for having their bars open on Friday last. The act provides that bars shall be closed all day during federal and provincial elections, and contrary to this a number of local bars opened for business when the polls closed on election day last week.

Shortis Is Now Insane.

OTTAWA, July 15.—It is learned here that Valentine Shortis, the Volleyfield, Que., murderer of years ago, now in Kingston Penitentiary, has developed insanity, though of a harmless form.

It was the commutation of Shortis' sentence to life imprisonment that nearly wrecked a Government once, as vice-regal and social influence was alleged as having operated to save him from the gallows.

Devotion to Duty Cost Him Life.

EDMONTON, Alta., July 15.—In a head-on collision in the Edmonton yards of the C. N. R. Monday night between an incoming freight train and a yard engine switching freight cars, George Marshall, engineer of the freight, was scalded to death by escaping steam. Frank Scott, fireman, jumped, shouting to Marshall to do the same. Instead the engineer blew his whistle and jammed on the brakes.

CANNOT RELEASE CANADA.

Steamer Is Still Stuck Despite the Efforts of Tugs.

QUEBEC, July 15.—All efforts of the wrecking tug Lord Strathcona, and the Canadian Government steamer Lady Evelyn, to dislodge the steamer Canada of the Gaspe and Baie des Chaleurs Line from the rocks on which she is stranded have proved ineffectual, and the two boats which had gone to her asistance returned yesterday to Rimouski. Her situation is said to be serious as she may have to wait for the high tide, and until that time the northeast wind will be dangerous.

The Canada is now lying on the rocks about four miles below the church at Cape Chatte, and in nine feet of water. Her passengers, freight and part of her crew have been sent home by the Gaspesian.

The Lady Evelyn and the Strathcona are said to have developed about 3,000 horsepower while engaged in their operations.

"WHERE THE STYLES COME FROM"

FIRST MERRY HALF-DAY SALE

THURSDAY MORNING 8.15 to 12.30, JULY 16th

The store was closed all day Last Thursday for our Annual Pic-nic, consequently this is the First Merry Half Day Sale. It is our aim to do a whole day's business in four hours; we think we can do it with values such as these; read every item carefully, you will surely agree that the bargains are wonderful. Come early, in some the cases quantities are limited.

OUR ANNUAL SALE OF TUB DRESSES

60 Expensive Dresses at One Price $1.69

This is our Annual Clean-up Sale of Wash Dresses, last year there were twice as many and we cleared the lot long before the noon hour. The values run as high as $7.50—a few even higher. Some of these Dresses are quite soiled and need a visit to the wash tub; some are creased and wrinkled; others for some reason have not sold well. When we say this is positively the best Dress bargain of the year, it's putting it rather mildly. Included in this lot are about 15 White Dresses, they were bought late last season and on this account need a little altering, but then this is worth overlooking when we tell you that some of these are worth as high as $12.50. We cannot accept 'phone orders, neither can these dresses be exchanged. All clearing at the one very low price of 1.69

SUNLIGHTS ON THE MERCHANTS' BIG PICNIC

Mr. J. C. Sullivan, East City, will not be a passenger in the Aeroplane since W. J. Byers is going to runt it.

F. J. Might is keeping on the good side of Hangman Fowler, since the latter has received the appointment.

R. M. Glover, of The Examiner, may be taken before Judge Lynch as soon as he comes on the grounds, everything he has done wrong on the merchants during the past year, will be settled there and then. The Hangman will donate his services free, in case he is needed.

Robt. G. Kingan and Herb. Stenson will be contestants in the Pie Eating Contest.

Several of the prominent ladies in town are buying a lot of nails these days. No doubt it is for the nail driving contest.

Porter S. White is trying to make the grade to measure the necessary 44-inch waist measurement in the Fat Man's race. The hundred weight of flour looks good to him.

Several applicants have come in to get into the Pillow fight, among these are Ex-Mayor Bradburn, John Crane, W. G. Morrow and J. J. Turner.

M. J. Hickey has offered the Hangman fabulous sum so as to get his position for 20 minutes. If he gets it, D. M. Minicola will not be on the grounds.

There is sure to be doings on the grounds all afternoon and evening, and it cannot all be told here, as many things will happen at the picnic that your scribe knows not of.
